Fables By George Ade

The Modern Fable of the Long-Range Lover, the Lollypaloozer and the Line of Talk.

(Copyright, 1902, by R. H. Russell.)

One evening while at a Dramatic Entertainment consisting of 22 Coon Songs, a Rising Young Lawyer looked across the Parquet and nearly blinded himself. He thought he had seen some 24-caret Tisums when he had attended College and hung around the Fem Sem, but the Girl that he now beheld was in a class by herself. She made Cleopatra look like Martha the Sewing Girl. And Venus arising from the Sea was a squizzly old Soap Advertisement in three elementary Colors.

The fair Unknown had a pair of Incandescent Headlights that beat the Anna Held Lithographs; a Complexion like Sunset Blush on a Snow-Bank, and enough hair rising above her to fit out two girls of her size. She was somewhat attired in a Whipped-Cream delicatessen Delirium with mauve-colored Galluses. When she fanned herself it could be seen that she had put some Jeweler out of the Business.

It is very seldom that one sees anything of that kind except in the back of a Magazine.

Of course, she did not know that the Opera Glasses were being pointed at her, even by those who sat two Rows in front. If she had known that, it would have annoyed her a lot. It always annoys a Young Woman who has put on $1200 worth of Hurrah Clothes to have a lot of Strange Men do the Waldorf-Astoria Inspection. The only thing that annoys her more than that is to have these same

IN A CLASS BY HERSELF.

Goodyear Specialists overlook her entirely.

When some 47 would-be Lady-Stealers are giving a Circus Maiden the Grand Stand Eye, she has to be in fine Condition if she can sit through it and not let on. The Unknown was still a Bud and yet she was thoroughly up in the Part. She was unconscious of her own Hit, and she was determined to keep on being unconscious.

Among the other Things she wore that Evening was a featherweight Escort who had Percy written all over him. The Men were wondering why any Peacherette with a Kentucky Shape, who could take her Pick of all Mankind, should want to carry such a sad Specimen of Excess Baggage. He was one of these 90-pound Wrap-Holders who showed his Teeth when he was pleased. He belonged out at Mother's Place in the Country, feeding the White Rabbits. Every Man who saw him snuggling up to the Unknown hoped that he would fall down and break his leg.

The Rising Young Attorney caromed on both sides of the Aisle when he went out for he was still looking at the Dream. He hid behind a Bill-Board and saw her come out with Human Weasel. In her Opera Cloak she certainly was very easy to look at.

On his way to the Boarding House he walked two Blocks past the Place. The Unknown had him trancified. He imagined himself riding with her in a Golden Automobile through a Grove of Violets. There was a Music Box Attachment under the Seat and she was fighting to hold his Hand. He came to just in time to save himself from walking into the River.

This Attorney was an emotional Proposition. He had a high John C. Calhoun Forehead and the yearning Look of a Genius who would like to trade a College Education for a Meal-Ticket. From the Moment when the Goddess flashed across his Pathway, he was Stung in eight different Places. All during Business Hours he looked off into Space without seeing anything in Particular and he was thinking of Her. No Clients ever came stamping in to pull him out of his Reverie and slip him a few Retainers. He was a good Union Lover and put in his full 8 hours per, working up Day-Dreams. He called her a good many Names that would have been New ones on her.

One Day he saw her on the Other side of the Street. It made him goggle-eyed and he walked off the Curb. Another time she zipped past him on a Trolley. Every time he spotted her, she looked at least 40 per cent better than the time before.

"I'm for her," he told himself.

Once he saw her coming out of a Department Store and she made the others look like the Odds and Ends of a Rummage Sale. He heard her Rippling Laugh and there was enough Music in it to carry a whole Season of Grand Opera. A Friend who was with him said that her name was Clarice. So he told his Friend: "Anytime that you read about Clarice being engaged, start in to drag the River."

When he heard that she had gone to a Summer Hotel, he trailed her and continued his long-distance Worship. He was afraid to get too near for fear that he would curl up and have a Spasm.

Who was he, a Legal Worm, that he should dare to crave a Word from those Rosebud Lips or hope for a melting Glance from those star-lit Lamps? As for executing a Clutch and swinging into the Slow and Dreamy, that seemed only a vague and far-away Hope of Paradise, and it was a Sin to waste time on it.

The best he could hope for was to send her a Box of long-stemmed Roses and then go and let a Train run over him and maybe she would condescend to attend the Funeral. That, or else he could save her life in a Runaway and die with his Head in her Lap. All he wanted was a Romantic Finish that would leave a Sad, sweet Memory behind. He wanted a Guarantee that she would think of him a couple of time and he would be satisfied to play Village Dog and die any kind of a Death.

While in this desperate Frame of Mind, he met Mr. Buzzer, the moving Graphophone and He-Vampire, sometimes known as the Burned Edge of the Crust of Society. When the unspeakable Buzzer said that he knew Clarice and stood Aces and Eights, the soulful Attorney wanted to throttle him for he could not believe that a real Diana would trifle with a blue Cat-Fish.

However, he accepted the Opportunity to hold Converse with the Star of his Soul. Buzzer led him around the long Veranda and at last he stood in that radiant Presence.

"Sis, I want you to know a Friend of mine," said the well-known Safe-Blower and Social Outcast known as Buzzer.

He stood enthralled for at least one-twentieth of a Second. Then Clarice got under way.

"Oh, Crickets! I seen you at the Theayter one Night," she said. "I was there with Ollie Pozozzle of Minneapolis. Me and him come out just behind you. Say, wuzn't that Grand Show? I'm just crazy about that 'Mamie, Mamie, Ain't it a shamie?' When did you land here? Huh? Oh, sure! This is a small Joint all right, but they stick you for everything. Gee! but I'm glad Mr. Buzzer come out. He's awful good Company. I'm going out ridin' tonight with He and a Friend of his. Come along! I'll stake you to a Girl."

When they found the Sentimental Attorney in the Woods an nour later, he was barking like a Sea-Lion and butting his Head against the Trees.

Rich Mines In Arizona

Noted Properties In Yavapai County, Arizona, Whose Fame and Wealth Attract World-wide Attention.

Prescott, Ariz., April 15.—(Special Correspondence to The Herald.)—The grand old county of Yavapai contains some of the richest and most noted mines in the world. Ages ago, old Dame Nature held a "round-up" here and "corralled" a choice lot of mountains and hills, chock-full of mineral wealth. As a result, the configuration of the county is rough and the few rich valleys are narrow and small in area. Within the present limits of Yavapai county several of the leading mineral zones of Arizona meet, cross and unite. Treasure-seeking man is now busily engaged in placing his brand on the profuse maverick mineral wealth that can be had here for the seeking and the winning.

Yavapai county has an area of 8009 square miles and is larger than the state of New Jersey. Originally it was several times larger, but other counties have been cut off and organized on different sides. Even now it is a mineral empire whose fame and wealth attracts world-wide attention.

Here, in Yavapai county, less than a dozen miles south of Prescott, is Mt. Union, something like 10,000 feet in elevation, the second highest peak in Arizona. The lowest valleys are 1200 feet above the sea level, but much of the mining area is a mile and more above sea level. As a natural result, more snow falls in the winter season than in the lower portions of the territory, and the sweltering heat of the Southern part of the territory is avoided. There are excellent wagon roads for the transportation of machinery and supplies, and the grades excel those of many mountainous regions. Railroads are slowly but steadily advancing into the different districts, bringing their mineral wealth within a profitable commercial reach of the outside world.

The first real prospector in Yavapai county probably was a Spaniard, Antonio de Espejo. Between 1537 and 1582 several Spanish expeditions visited the territory now embraced by New Mexico and Arizona. In the last named year Espejo explored northeastward from the City of Mexico to the Rio Grande river and then marched northward along its banks for fifteen days. He named the region New Mexico. Turning westward, he visited successively all the Zuni and Moqui pueblas. Crossing the Little Colorado river, he journeyed southwestward, reached the Verde river at a point probably not far from Jerome, the location of Senator Clark's great United Verde mine. He reported that he discovered rich silver mines near two rivers and 45 leagues southwest of Moqui. One of those rivers must have been the Verde and the other may have been Clear creek, which enters the Verde just below old Camp Verde and nearly opposite Squaw peak, where many rich gold mines are now in operation.

"That was 320 years ago," says a local writer, "nearly half a century before the pilgrim fathers landed on Plymouth rock. At a time when Henry VIII in England was beheading his wives and burning both friends and enemies at the stake, and all the Atlantic coast of America was untrodden by Europeans, the broad, level stretches of Chino valley resounded to the clank of mailclad cavaliers, advancing sword in hand and erquebus on shoulder, mounted on their armored steeds, while black-robed Jesuits journeying through the Valley of the Verde, crossed themselves as theyglanced fearfully up the shadowy canons on either side."

It was not until 1863 that American prospectors struck Yavapai county. In the '40s Kit Carson and Pauline Weaver, trappers and Indian fighters, passed Granite creek, Lynx creek and Hassayampa river. They noted the mineral wealth and told of it to the miners of California and New Mexico. It soon became the El Dorado of the miners of those sections, and in 1861 "Uncle Joe" Walker organized a party at Keysville, Cal., to prospect that virgin territory. On the way supplies ran out and the party made for Albuquerque, N. M. There they found Kit Carson organizing a party to fight Indians, and many of Walker's men enlisted. Walker went to Colorado, but in the fall of 1862 he organized another party to seek gold in the new fields. After some months of travel the expedition reached its destination and found gold placer ground on Granite creek, the Hassayampa river and Lynx creek. From that on it was digging gold, fighting Indians and undergoing all the many experiences of pioneer life. The conditions in Yavapai county today make it seem almost incredible that only forty years have passed since Walker's expedition came in from Denver.

In May, 1863, shortly after Walker's party passed up the Hassayampa, a second expedition, headed by A. H. Peeples, arrived from California. It was met at Yuma by old Pauline Weaver, who undertook to help find a fabulously rich silver mine, where it was vaguely reported that silver slabs covered the ground, and where the Apaches pounded out silver bullets for their guns.

This story is thought to have related to the Silver King mine, which was not found until ten years later, but when it once was found, for several years paid dividends of $1,000,000 annually.

Guided by Weaver, the party followed up the Colorado river valley to La Paz, and then turned east across the Plomosa range and went up the Cullen valley. As an objective mark, they took the sky line of a prominent, flat-topped peak. Reaching the peak they camped in a ravine for the night, and, upon testing the sands of a little stream which they named Weaver Creek, they found good gold values in the dirt.

At Yuma the expedition had been joined by four Mexicans. While the members of the party were digging in the sands of the creek, these Mexicans went to seek the horses that strayed away in the night. Returning in the evening, they called Peeples aside and showed him double handsful of gold nuggets, which they said they had picked up on the top of the mountain.

Naturally there was great excitement. The next morning the party lined up and marched up the mountain. On the tap, in a sort of shallow basin, about 1000 feet long and 800 feet wide, they found nuggets and chunks of gold in great quantities, lying right on the surface of the ground.

The mountain was named Rich Hill. It is estimated that the members of the expedition picked up $250,000 worth of gold in a month. The entire production of that little spot on the top of the mountain is estimated at not less than $500,000. Mexicans are still picking gold there. After a rain it is especially easy to find nice nuggets. The real source of that peculiar deposit is still a mystery.

Thus commenced the fame of the present area of Yavapai county as a gold field. There were the usual pioneer hardships and the usual scenes of a new placer gold camp. The bloody Apaches had to be watched and fought, and more than one white man's scalp fell into their hands. Those days passed and now, with modern methods, lode mining with depth and on a scientific basis, the glory of this great county as a producer of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc has only fairly started.

Over to the northeast is the wonderful United Verde mine, employing 2000 men, and, it is believed, paying Senator W. A. Clark of Montana about $1,000,000 a month. It produces gold, copper and silver, and there is an impression among mining men that the ore carries enough of each metal to run the mine at a profit on one metal alone, exclusive of the others.

Then to the southwest is the famous Congress mine, with a depth of 3200 feet. It is considered one of the most interesting mines in the world, and was visited by President McKinley and his cabinet at the time of their trip to the Pacific coast. A very complete and modern plant has been recently installed, with a capacity of about 8000 tons of ore a month. Even the boilers are so arranged so that either coal of crude oil can be used for fuel.

Eleven miles south of Prescott is the Senator mine, owned by Phelps, Dodge & Co., the big copper producers at Bisbee, in the southeastern corner of the territory.

Forty miles south of Prescott, in the midst of the Bradshaw mountains, is the Crowned King mine, a very rich gold and lead proposition, which has paid a quarter of a million dollars in dividends and profits to the majority stock owners much greater. One pocket struck in that mine is admitted to have yielded $70,000, and a minority owner, in a law suit now pending, alleges that it was nearer $600,000 than any other sum.

Years and years ago the Bradsh--

Subsidy Pretensions

Bits From Our History of This Kind of Legislation—Past Experience With Ship Subsidies Not Gratifying.

Mr. Frye has consumed a great deal of energy in attempting to prove that some countries pay subsidies. He declared that these subsidies are paid "for purposes of trade and for nothing else." Then, rising to his full oratorical height, he delivered this curious pronunciamento: "Trade cannot precede the mail! The mail must precede the trade!"

A more absurd misstatement was never uttered, even in the halls of congress.

In order to prove his wild assertion, Mr. Frye would have to show that the chief delight of the primitive savage is to produce and consume literature. But this utterance by the leader of the subsidy movement is no more absurd than the other arguments put forth in defense of the Frye bill. We are told that other nations pay $25,000,000 every year for postal subsidies, and we are solemnly admonished that we must pay subsidies, too, if we wish to escape commercial and industrial annihilation. It is implied that we do not pay subsidies. As a matter of fact the United States government pays higher mail subsidies for the service rendered than any other country. Yet the subsidy howlers say that our merchant marine has declined because we haven't given subsidies.

Shipping subsidies are not a new thing to this country. We have experimented with them several times and always with results anything but gratifying to our pride. In every case the promoters of subsidy schemes in congress have uttered the ancient and threadbare fallacy about enormous expansion in trade to follow the granting of subsidies, and they have always ascribed the failure of their forecast to insufficient subsidy.

As far back as 1850 congress voted a subsidy to the Collins line. The subsidy failed to build up a great steam merchant marine, and foreign commerce was not noticeably affected. The venture ended in disastrous failure, bringing ruin to all engaged in the enterprise. In the period from 1848 to 1858 congress expended more than $15,000,000 in subsidies similar to the subsidy now proposed. During that period our foreign trade went on increasing exactly as if no subsidy had been paid. When the subsidy policy was discontinued our foreign trade continued to increase more rapidly than before. All this goes to prove that trade does not follow the mails nor the mails follow the flag.

From 1858 to 1866 the United States government gave no subsidies for ocean mail service. In the year 1866 the Harrison line, from New York to Rio Janeiro, was subsidized to the amount of $250,000 per annum for a bi-monthly service. Mr. Alley, in introducing the bill granting subsidy to this line, said: "Establish this steam communication with South America and you will not a great while longer see England exporting $25,000,000 worth of merchandise and taking in return less than half the amount and the United States exporting only $6,000,000, while the import of Brazilian products is over $20,000,000."

This line lasted nine years and cost $1,500,000. When the subsidy was withdrawn the company suspended operations. So ended the high expectations proclaimed by Mr. Alley.

The following table shows the conditions of trade with Brazil before and after the subsidy:

	Imports.	Exports.

The increase of the import trade was due not to the steamship line, but to the removal of the duties on coffee and rubber. In 1875 the imports of coffee were $35,099,274, and of rubber $2,519,437. After the Garrison line was discontinued, our trade with Brazil went on increasing more rapidly than before. Meanwhile the commerce of England with Brazil, without the protection of a government subsidy, grew much more rapidly than our own.

In 1867 the government entered into a contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship company for carrying the mails to Japan and China, via Hawaii. The service was to be monthly, with a subsidy of $500,000 per annum. In 1872 the company offered to run another monthly service for an additional $500,000 a year. With some difficulty a bill authorizing such a contract was passed by congress in 1873. It was afterward discovered that bribery had been used to secure the passage of this measure. It was proved that the company had spent more than $1,000,000 to obtain the subsidy. The new contract was abrogated by the government, because of the improper methods used in gaining the necessary legislation, and the subsequent failure of the company to fulfill the conditions of the contract. In 1873 the service to the Sandwich islands was given up by the Pacific Mail Steamship company. It had lasted for six years and cost $425,000.

The state of trade with Hawaii before and after the experiment is given below:

	Imports.	Exports.
1873	1,275,061	674,191

The statistics show a decrease in exports of nearly $200,000, and an almost equal gain in imports. In the protectionist view this is a loss of nearly $400,000. Really it shows that trade was almost stationary, despite the fact of American ships subsidized to carry the flag.

The first contracts with the Pacific Mail Steamship company expired in 1877. The company actually received from the government during its ten years of service $4,583,333.33.

The statistics of the trade with China and Japan before and after the subsidy are as follows:

CHINA.

	Imports.	Exports.
1867	$12,112,440	$3,575,808
1876	12,047,633	4,729,892

JAPAN.

	Imports.	Exports.
1876	15,470,047	1,099,696

The only increase in trade of any consequence was in those articles from which the tariff was removed, viz., tea and raw silk.

The melancholy result of these attempts to build up commerce by paying ships to sail back and forth over the seas ought to be pretty conclusive. But we find people today engaged in prophesying the wonderful results that will inevitably follow when their little ship subsidy scheme is enacted into law, and, what is more incomprehensible, they find people to believe in them.

In 1879 it was attempted to revive the scheme to subsidize a line to Brazil. The same arguments now employed were used then. It was claimed that the only thing that prevented our having an enormous and profitable trade with South America was the lack of subsidized steamers. When these were furnished they were found of no value to our business men, for we had nothing to export to Brazil and no mails to exchange. Our imports continued to grow, because Brazil had coffee and rubber, which we need. We have sufficient communication with South. tee of the National Association of America, as was shown by the committee Manufacturers, which visited South America in 1896. Direct shipping facili-

GOSSIP OF GOTHAM

Story of the Girl Who Refused to Let the Coachman Tell His Love and Tried to Elope With an English Dude.

New York, April 19.—Girls who have the good taste to be the daughters of wealthy parents cannot be too particular in their demeanor to their father's coachman. That's the moral that adorn this tale, though, perhaps, everybody will not see it in exactly the same light. After the manner of certain novels this history should resolve itself into books. Book the First would tell how, two or three years ago, a stalwart, rather good-looking young buck got a place as driver for a certain Nabob whose house is not so very far from what Andrew Carnegie calls "Fifth Avenue Highlands." The worthy young man drove his employer to business, and his employer's wife and daughters to the shops and upon calling expeditions. Late in the afternoon he brought his employer home again, and like as not in the evening there was an opera or other social function requiring his modest assistance till a late hour. It was a steadily industrious if unexciting life he led, and one might have supposed that he was too busy to fall into mischief. Drive, drive, drive, from fairly early in the morning until past midnight, six days in the week and enough to do on Sundays to keep the blood from stagnating; surely it shouldn't be wondered if he grumbled a bit. It doesn't matter what form his grumbling took, and it isn't of very much consequence that after a time a second coachman was employed, so that his labors became less arduous. Straight to the point is it that he was assigned to the special duty of driving the "missus" and her fair daughters. Now, there have been notable examples of love between coachman and mistress, so there is no need to raise the brows in incredulity when it is told that the coachman fell in love with one of the daughters. That was the mischief that not even 18 hours a day of service could save him from, for his vain heart was in a quiver long before the second coachman came on the scene. Doubtless there was something in the maiden's kindly demeanor that gave him unfounded courage. Like enough she was wholly unaware of the feelings she had inspired until the day of revelation came. At all events, she said she was, and when she did understand the coachman's plight she was first and most insistent on his instant dismissal. And the first book may be supposed to end with the ignominious retreat of him who had aspired too high.

Quite correct, is probably the verdict upon the girl's demeanor, but wait. Isn't it just possible that she could have softened the blow? If she had, the second book might have a more romantic ending than must be given to it in deference to the facts. Book the Second, then, would tell how there came a man to woo this same daughter who was at least within sight of equality with her socially. He was English, well bred, and apparently in possession of independent means. The girl was highly pleased. Not so the father. Mr. Nabob's objections need not be analyzed. Suffice it that he objected. The lover had become a persistent caller and a late stayer. There are plenty of conventions in high society to minimize the late-staying evil, and others to safeguard the girl in the case, but true love, you know, laughs at such things, aye, in Manhattan even. It came at last to firm measures on the part of the old Nabob. He openly discouraged the visits of the lover, and probably there was a scene that would make a good chapter in which he forbade the young man "ever to cross my threshold, sir!" Anyhow, what had been quiet opposition became open war, and the girl was naturally more enamored than ever, or thought she was, which I believe comes to the same thing. She was wholly convinced that both she and her nice young man were badly used. To live without him was unthinkable. So an elopement was planned.

This precious device was brought to a head about a week ago. There was a dinner party at Nabob's palatial residence. Not until 9 o'clock did the women rise from the table and leave the men to their cigars and shop talk. At that time the women disposed of themselves in the ordinary way to wait for the return of the men. It was a period of tranquil dullness on the floors above the dining room. The girl easily slipped away from the others and went to her room. Half an hour later a heavily-muffled female figure stole down the front stairs and signified to the waiting attendant there by a gesture that she wished to leave. Promptly she opened the door for her and out she stepped, free! for it was the dear girl, and she had so concealed her face that the house servant had not recognized her. A good bit of writing could be done concerning the titillations of her bosom as she flitted along the walk to a cab that was waiting beyond the extremes of the line of carriages drawn up before the house. In this prosaic record it is sufficient to say that she found the cab and that a hand was reached out from its dark insides to help her in. The door was then slammed and the driver guided his restless steed southward. Southward they rolled upon the smooth Fifth avenue asphalt for two miles and a little more, then a sharp turn to the east and they were at the doors of the Grand Central depot. Why, oh why, did they not go to the nearest dominie? There was long to wait for the train. Suburban service would not do for them, as their tickets read to Boston. Until midnight, then, they must wait before making the real beginning of their journey. And here is where we come to the juncture of the two books.

The discomfited hero of the first book had got another job. That should have been taken for granted. Fate led him to drive his empty cab past Nabob's house at the fatal hour of 9:30 p. m. Maybe he glanced ruefully at the place that had once been his by virtue of employment there. Maybe he congratulated himself on shorter hours and fatter pickings. Speculation aside, he was near the waiting cab when the fair eloper came along, and as her figure appeared distinctly outlined in the romantic rays of an arc light he recognized it. The eyes of love, e'en disappointed love, were sharper than those of the doddering house servant. Let it be supposed, if you will, that he was in doubt. Suspicion was incentive enough for his subsequent course, which consisted first in turning his cab in the direction taken by the other. He pulled up at the Grand Central, went inside, made sure that it was the girl he thought, saw that she and her lover had resigned themselves to waiting until the train was ready, and then returned to his cab. A virulent case of energy developed upon his person, and his nag was infected contagiously. Whew! How the law-enforcing coppers must have stared as that cab raced northward! Arrived at Nabob's house he jumped down and left his horse to get his breath unattended while he went to the door, rang and demanded to see the master. It was most important, he insisted, and his insistence won.

"She's gone sir," was his breathless message, "gone and done it for fair!" Imagine how his eyes gloated over his prospective revenge.

"Who is she, and what has she done?" asked Nabob, impatiently.

The coachman named the girl. "Grand Central," he added, "fellow with the red mustache and one goggle."

Nabob opened his lips to call for his daughter, thought better of it and ordered his own carriage in a hurry. He arrived at the station shortly after 11.

GOOD WEATHER FOR BASEBALL

High School Players Take Advantage of It---Minneapolis Central Football Team Want a Thanksgiving Game---Other Matters.

The excellent baseball weather which has prevailed during the week has done much toward getting the high school players into good condition. Practices have been held regularly at the fair grounds, which were very well attended by those athletically ambitious. There has been a sufficient number of players out at every practice to form the first and second teams, making it possible to give the men thorough training in their respective positions.

No game was played today for the reason that satisfactory opponents could not be secured for the team—not because the men were not in condition to play. A week from this afternoon the team of the Stone-Ordean-Wells company will be met in a practice game, if the weather and other conditions do not interfere.

Capt. Cummings said the other day: "Yes, I'm sorry we couldn't get a game for Saturday. It would have been good practice, and we have a team now that could easily beat any high school nine in Duluth, Superior, or the surounding country."

He gave the following as the probable line-up of the team in the first games of the season:

Potter, catcher; Capt. Cummings and Summers, pitchers; Dash or Congdon, first base; Staacke or Scoble, second; Guy Cummings, third; Peterson, shortstop; Berg, left field; Clayton, center field; Summers, left field.

The first game of the regular season has been arranged for May 10 with Eau Claire high school at Eau Claire. But an effort will be made by Manager Dash to have the date of this game changed to May 17. If this is done the local baseball season, the high school baseball season, and the new ball park will all be opened with a game with the Minneapolis Central high school team on May 10. The new ball park is to be situated on the ground where the old ball park was years ago—on the upper side of Superior street just east of the Missabe & Northern ore docks.

The local school is very desirous that this should be built, for besides giving them a chance to play a game with their old rivals, it will surely be a success from the financial point of view.

A fact, by the way, that will interest those who follow high school athletics, is that the manager of the Minneapolis Central high school football team for 1902 has written a letter to one of the local men in which he declares that the Minneapolis school hopes and intends to play a game of football with the local high school in Minneapolis on next Thanksgiving day. This means that the Minneapolis team, which has for years been interscholastic champion of the West, considers the Duluth school its greatest rival for these honors next year. The proposition will probably be readily accepted by the local men when made.

LACK OF INTEREST.

The track practices have, to say the least, been rather disappointing to the lovers of sport. Interest is lacking. The practices which have been held thus far have been poorly attended. In general there is little or no enthusiasm over the team.

There is no apparent reason for this, as the school has some very good track material. Capt. Mallet has been working hard to get up enthusiasm, but little good has resulted from his efforts. A few men have been out for practice, some of them showing up very well for so early in the season, but compared with the number which is usually on hand for work at this season of the year, the number of candidates is very small.

Something should be done, and done immediately, to remedy this and arouse sufficient interest among the students to at least guarantee the appearance of sufficient candidates to form a respectable aggregation.

For the four-cornered relay race between the classes the juniors have elected Fred Ash to captain their team; the Sophomores, Frank Scobie. The other classes have not made their selections as yet.

Preparations are being made for the preliminary field day, which is to be held on May 17 at Oneota driving park. The committee of the Athletic association charged with the duty of soliciting articles from merchants and others, to be given as prizes in this field day, as far as it has been made out is as follows: Fredin, '03; Crandall, '04; Andrews, '03; Neff, '05; Moe, '03; Davis, '03; Kane, '03, and Barnum, '04. A few more names will be added to this last.

The committee hopes to get up a good list of prizes which will be worth while to try for. If they succeed well, it will probably increase the number of candidates for the team.

THE LITERARY SOCIETY.

Fine Program of Literary and Musical Numbers.

A remarkably good program was given at the Literary society this week. In spite of the splendid weather outside a rather large audience attended, and it thoroughly enoyed the entertainment.

The first number on the program was a solo my Miss Rena Smith. Her usually fine soprano was exhibited in a beautiful little song, "Bon Soir, Marie." She was given an enthusiastic encore. Miss Elizabeth Day gave a recitation which was heartily applauded. Miss Nellie Boer played a piano solo in an accomplished style, well earning the encore which was given her. A recitation by Miss Wiley was received with great applause. She was recalled and gave another equally good. Miss Richards gave an excellent piano. The program closed with a well delivered recitation by Miss Burbank '04.

SENIOR ENTERTAINMENT.

Planning a Delightful Program For May 9.

The preparations for the senior class musical and dramatic entertainment which will be held Friday evening, May 9, have been going forward rapidly during the last few weeks. A. F. M. Custance, who has the matter in charge, is making every possible effort to make the affair a success. Selections from the best modern operatic music will be the principal musical features, while the dramatic part of the entertainment will consist of a production of the great mirth-producing farce, "A Rice Pudding."

The musical numbers, which will form the first part of the program, will be selected pieces from "San Toy," the great Chinese comedy opera, which has been making such a hit at Daly's in New York, and the fomaus "Floradora" sextet, from the English comic opera of that name. Flaaten's orchestra will play all of the accompaniments.

In the words of the theatrical press agent, "it will surpass all former efforts in its unctious humor and sparkling melody, and will totally eclipse them in its remarkable exposition of scenic gorgeousness, resplendent ensemble and sumptuous gowning."

The names of those who will take part are being withheld, but the best musical and dramatic talent of the class will participate.

The Sophomore Hop.

Last evening the annual sophomore hop was given by the class of '04 at the Masonic temple. A large sized crowd of high school students and their friends were in attendance. A very enjoyable evening was spent. The program, which was composed of some twenty numbers, was rendered by five pieces of Flaaten's orchestra. The latest and best music was given. Punch was served. When the affair broke up shortly after midnight every one felt that it had been most successful.

Notes of the Week.

The physical culture classes, begun about the first of the year, have been discontinued.

The seniors decided to invite the juniors to their next monthly spread, which will be held shortly, at their class meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

The athletic association failed to get a quorum at its meeting on Monday afternoon. What's the matter?

The pictures of the baseball and football teams have been finished and are now for sale. They can be bought of the Zenith board. They are very good—better than the school has had of any of its teams for years. Either of the pictures would make a very effective decoration for the rooms of the loyal.

The peculiar narcotic properties of the first week after the spring vacation have been plentifully in evidence during the past week. Sleepiness is manifest in all the classes. As the poet said or might have said under the circumstances:

Of all the sad words that make one quake,
The saddest are these: I must keep awake.

Most of the "copy" for the Zenith goes to the printer on Monday. All of the stories, verses, etc., have been collected and there only remains to add the chronicles of the athletic teams to make the volume complete. If all goes well the Zenith will be ready to sell by June 1. Usually this means about a week later than the date named, but probably that is not the case in this instance.

produced immense quantities of high grade silver ore. The distance from market was so great, however, that values in the second class ores could not stand the freight rates by wagon to Prescott and Phoenix, and many very valuable properties went temporarily out of business when silver declined. Then, too, many properties produced rich, oxidized gold ores near the surface. Some of these were shipped, and some were treated in the old Mexican arrastres, with good returns. When the sulphide zone, or water level, was reached, most of those mines were shut down. It is only a question of incoming railroads, modern methods, newer smelters and capital to bring all those properties into steady and profitable operation.

In a quiet and even sly way, considerable Duluth money is coming into Yavapai county. Where the money is being expended by experienced and trustworthy men, it is yielding more than satisfactory returns, and I predict that much more will follow. It is a real mining country. The wealth is there and can be won with very satisfactory profits, if the same care, caution and skill is employed that would be employed in any other business or in any other branch of mining.

Louis Rouchleau was, I believe, the pioneer in this county from Duluth. Some years ago he took hold of a gold proposition called the Gen. Crook mine, about sixteen miles south of Prescott, near the noted Blair property. It is the local opinion here that Mr. Rouchleau drew on his bank account for $25,000 to $30,000 while he worked that property. I do not know what the reason was, but satisfaction and success did not follow. The mine was shut down with some outstanding bills. The miners did not know Mr. Rouchleau as he is known in Duluth, and placed a lien on the property. He came down from Duluth in person, paid up every dollar that was owed, and today his action is greatly praised and admired by the people here.

For some reason Mr. Rouchleau seemed sick of his deal. He sold the property for $1700 and went back to Duluth and iron. The purchaser from him turned around and sold the property to a syndicate of Bradford, Pa., capitalists, known here locally as the "Standard Oil people," for $10,000. That company is now developing the mine and proposes to sink a working shaft to a depth of 500 feet. Some very fine ore has been taken out since Mr. Rouchleou let go, and only the other day an exceedingly rich strike was made.

David T. Adams is now putting some of the money he made in iron and rents into Yavapai county gold mines. With him is associated Peter Kimberly, of Pennsylvania; John G. Williams, a prominent Duluth attorney, and A. S. Chase, one of the fee owners in the Little American, Minnesota's only gold mine, at Rainy Lake City. I supposs some of their friends also are in on the deal.

This syndicate owns a dozen claims about ten miles south and a little east of Prescott, in what is known as the Groom creek district. Their leading property is known as the Midnight Test. A shaft is down something like 400 feet or more. The vein was quite narrow on the surface, but widened very satisfactorily with depth. A number of practical miners speak well of it, but I have no information from those in authority.

Good camp buildings have been erected, assay office, shaft house, ore bins and a 1-stamp test mill. That is the invention of Superintendent Wood, and a test of one considerable lot of ore was made on it. The report in circulation is that the test was satisfactory. If so, it speaks much for the ore, for I have no liking for or confidence in a mill of that kind on any property, and particularly on a property like the Midnight Test. The best miners here express a regret that the company ever allowed Mr. Wood to install the mill. Too many good properties have been "queered" with these little steam stamp mills.

I was out past the Midnight Test the other day. No work is in progress on that claim, and the pumps were pulled from the shaft. A gang of men was engaged on the "Dutchman," however, one of the claims in the group owned by the company.

Mr. Adams and A. S. Chase were down here recently. I met them at Ash Forks on their way back to Duluth, as I was on my way here.

Gus Ahlsted, formerly in the cigar business in Duluth, is keeping books for the Midnight Test ,and his wife is here with him. I have not met him, however, since I arrived.

Another old Duluthian here is Mr. Achilles Falco. He is a former citizen of sunny France, and was in Duluth in the iron boom days. He also put in some time at Port Arthur in the silver days. With Mdama Falco he makes his home at the Hotel Burke, here in Prescott, and gives his time and efforts to gold mining enterprises. Just now he is interested in a rich property out in the Bradshaw mountains, with bright prospects, I am informed, for pulling out a good wad of cash. Mr. Falco has pleasant recollections of his days in Duluth, and inquired after many of the old iron boomsters. He especially asked concerning the welfare of William C. Sherwood and requested me to remember him to any of his old friends who might inquire about him and Arizona mining.

I understand that George H. Hillyer's love for Rainy lake has cooled down sufficiently to enable him to tackle an Arizona proposition. Many people have considered him inseparably connected with Western Ontario mining. He says that he still has heavy holdings over there, but that the climate does not seem to agree real well with the health of the goddess of fortune and that he not only "likes a change" now and then, but also thinks, possibly, that the goddess will have better health in the light atmosphere and under the sunny skies of Arizona.

Mr. Hillyer arrived here last week and has already started back for Duluth. Before he left, he closed a deal for the "New Jersey" mine, a rich gold proposition in the Bradshaw mountains, just south of the Crowned King, and only a few miles from the property being operated by Mr. Falco.

The "New Jersey" has the distinction of having produced $15,000 in gold from a thirty-foot shaft. The miners who struck the rich pocket never had seen gold and they went into camp and reported that they had found a "brass mine."

A shrewd Jew hapened along, saw the strike and then slipped away to the owner of the property, some forty miles distant. He talked to good advantage, said nothing about the rich strike, and secured a lease on the property. He then went back and drove off the men who were doing the work and who really struck the pocket.

Mr. Hillyer informed me before he left that he would soon put on a big force of miners and open up the property in good shape. If he finds much ore similar to some that he took out of the workings himself while there, he will, I fear, forget all about Rainy lake, for Rainy lake will have to take a back seat when such ore as that comes to the front.

About sixty miles south of here, is the booming gold and copper camp of Wickenburg, in Yavapai county. It is a great camp and a great boom has marked the past two years. Only twelve miles from Wickenburg is "Charley Erieson's mine," as it is called in Duluth frequently, otherwise known as the Duluth and Arizona copper mine. Mr. Erickson is president of the company and, among other well-known Duluthians in it are Daniel G. Cash and Henry S. Swift.

I intended to visit this and other properties around Wickenburg, but shall be unable to do so. The Duluth and Arizona embraces four claims and they are cut by an immense ore body, running exceedingly well in copper and promising great things with proper development. I hear it well spoken of by mining men in this county and if the mine pays as well as Mr. Erickson's clothing store, it not only will speak well for the district, but I know of no one in Duluth who will begrudge the success to those interested.

Some people might think that John T. Black would be so busy putting out fires in Duluth and so engrossed in keeping the red wheels of his buggy polished up that he never would listen to a mining proposition, but that same busy fire fighter has sowed some of his big round dollars in Yavapai county soil with a hope and expectation of raising a big crop of real gold bricks. He is a director in the Black Rock Mining company that has half a dozen very promising gold claims near Wickenburg. There is a good vein of high grade ore and, without noise or flourish, a shaft, together with other development work, has been sunk to a depth of 200 feet or more.

Chief Black is a director in the company and a fellow director is Chief Kellow, of the eWst Superior fire department. Professor I. M. McNell, J. A. Merrill, C. C. Pillsbury, A. D. Bellinger and John Diffor are other West Superior men on the directorate.

I have done considerable railroad riding in this one county since I came here and I have covered 250 miles by stage and carriage, in addition to some brisk mountain climbing on foot and mountain ponies. I expected to give some of my impressions and conclusions as to mining matters here, as well as a few sketches of life in town and around the mines. I have just returned from a trip to Jerome, where I saw all that the public is allowed to see around the United Verde. Senator Clark's wonderful bonanza. I promised to tell The Herald something about that mine, but my space is more than full already. If my typewriter does not break down, I'll keep that promise in a future article.

Two Remarkable Literary Coincidences.

At the "Gentlemen's Night" of the New England Woman's Press association, signalized by a reception and banquet at the Hotel Vendome, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass., on the evening of Feb. 11, 1902, Charles Felton Pidgin, author of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" and "Blennerhassett," was one of the guests.

When called upon by the president, Mrs. Annie G. Murray, Mr. Pidgin said that he wished to call the attention of the association to two remarkable literary coincidences. He said that in 1883 Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox published a poem entitled "Solitude," which is found in her collection of poems—"Poems of Passion." The poem begins with the well known and oft-repeated lines—

"Laugh and the world laughs with you,
Weep, and you weep alone."

Having called this fact to the attention of the association, Mr. Pidgin said that he had in his possession another fact even better attested. This was to the effect that the poem in question was originally written in the year 1563, by Col. John A. Joyce, of Washington, D. C., at that time adjutant of the Twenty-fourth Kentucky Union volunteers. The poem was written in the wine room of the Galt house, Louisville, Ky., in the presence of the late George D. Prentice, and was entitled "Love and Laughter."

Col. Joyce was wounded at the siege of Knoxville. He afterwards passed unharmed through fifteen battles, but was so seriously injured in the thigh at the battle of Kennesaw Mountain that he was invalided and discharged from the service.

Col. Joyce's poem was set to music by Hubbard Smith, the composer of the popular song, "If You Love Me, Darling, Tell Me With Your Eyes," and was published by the John Chuch company, Cincinnati. Suit was brought against the John Church company by Mrs. Wilcox's publishers, but when the case came to trial Mrs. Wilcox and her attorneys did not appear, and judgment went against her by default.

Mr. Pidgin then presented the two poems, telling his hearers that from a comparison of the same, and from what he had said by way of introduction, they could draw their own inferences.

Love and Laughter.

COL. JOHN A. JOYCE.
(Written in January, 1863).

Laugh and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For this brave old earth must borrow its mirth,
It has troubles enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh, it is lost on the air!
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you,
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not want your woe.
Be glad and your friends are many,
Be sad and you lose them all;
There are none to decline your nectar'd wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give and it helps you to live,
But no man can help you to die.
There's room in the halls of pleasure,
For a long and lordly train;
But one by one we must all file on,
Thro' the narrow aisles of pain.

Solitude.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.
(Written in 1883).

Laugh and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth,
But has troubles enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh, it is lost on the air.
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you,
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not need your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be said and you lose them all—
There are none to decline your nectar'd wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Fast, and the world goes by.
Succeed and give, and it helps you to live,
But no man can help you die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train,
But one by one we must all file on
Through the narrow aisles of pain.

The second literary coincidence to which Mr. Pidgin called attention was etween "The Raven," written by Edgar Allan Poe, and "The Parrot," written by Penzoni, an Italian poet. In 1873, Col. Joyce, at the request of some friends, who were assembled at the Sturtevant house, in New York, recited Poe's poem, "The Raven." Among his hearers was a young Italian, named Leon Penzoni, who was an artist, but who added to his income by singing in the chorus during the grand opera season. When Col. Joyce finished his recitation, Penzoni remarked that the poem was similar to one written by his granfather, entitled "The Parrot." His hearers were incredulous and, in order to convince them, he repeated several verses from memory. He told Col. Joyce that when he was next in Milan he would refer to the files of the Art Journal of that city and make a literal translation of the poem and send it to him.

It will be noticed that "The Parrot," which bears so close a resemblance to "The Raven," was written in 1809, the year of Pope's birth, while "The Raven" was not written until 1845, long after the death of Penzoni.

The Raven.

EDGAR ALLEN POE.
(Written in 1845 and Published in the Evening Mirror of New York, in that Year).

Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered weak and weary,
Over many a quain and curious volume of forgotten lore,
While I nodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping,
As of someone gently rapping—rapping at my chamber door.
"'Tis some visitor," I muttered, "tapping at my chamber door—
Only this and nothing more."

Ah, distinctly I remember it was in the bleak December,
And each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor.
Eagerly I wished the morrow;—vainly I had sought to borrow
From my books surcease of sorrow—sorrow for the lost Lenore—
For the rare and radiant maiden whom the angels name Lenore—
Nameless here forevermore.

"Be that word our sign of parting, bird or fiend!" I shrieked upstarting—
"Get thee back into the tempest and the Night's Plutonian shore!
Leave no black plume as a token of that lie thy soul hath spoken!
Leave my loneliness unbroken!—quit the bust above my door!
Take thy beak from out my heart, and take thy form from off my door!"
Quoth the Raven, "Nevermore."

And the Raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting
On the pallid bust of Pallas, just above my chamber door;
And his eyes have all the seeming of a demon's that is dreaming,
And the lamplight o'er him streaming throws his shadow on the floor;
And my soul from out that shadow that lies floating on the floor
Shall be lifted—nevermore!

The Parrot.

PENZONI.
(Written in 1809, and Published in the Art Journal of Milan, Italy.)

I sit and pine so weary in midnight sad and dreary,
Over long-forgotten volumes of historic love-lore;
And while winking, lonely blinking,
I thought I heard, while thinking,
A rush of wings revolving above my oaken door.
"What's that?" said I, disturbing my melancholy sore—
"Tis my lost one, sweet "Belmore."

The frosts of wild December invoke me to dismember
My weak and tortured body on this dreary, dastard shore,
And I trust no waking morrow
Shall rise upon my sorrow.
With all its hideous horror that now thrills my inmost core—
For my brilliant, beaming beauty, beatic, dear Belmore—
Lost, gone forevermore!

"Horrid bird!" I shrieked emphatic, and wildly, loud, lunatic,
I flung the flowing Parrot through the night's dark, shoreless shore,
While its gilded feathers fluttered in the darkness still, and muttered—
"I'll not believe thee, doubting devil, but remain above thy door—
Sink my beak into they trembling heart, and torture more and more—
Shrieked the Parrot—"Evermore!"

And the Parrot still is posing, winking, blinking, dozing
On that marble bust, Minerva, just above my oaken door,
And his hellish eyes are beaming like a devil who is dreaming,
While the sputtering, fluttering lamplight paints his shadow on the floor,
And my soul-lit spirit writhing in that shadow on the floor—
Dead and damned—"Forevermore!"

"The Parrot" was first published in English in a "Life of Edgar Allan Poe" written by Col. John A. Joyce, and published by the F. Tennyson Neely company, of New York and London. In concluding his remarks the speaker called attention to the fact that each poem contained eighteen stanzas, but said he should, as in the case of the other poem, leave his hearers to draw their own conclusions.

The midnight train was then ready for passengers who had sleeping accommodations, and for that reason Nabob's first tour of the station did not reward him. He thought he had been hoaxed, but the vengeful coachman had followed him, and, reasoning possibly from what might have been his own procedure if the nice girl had chosen to go away with him, he suggested a run through the train. Overcoming a bit of red tape at the gate Nabob strode through the Boston train. A misguided prter opened the door to a stateroom just as Nabob was passing. An agitated young woman, a solicitous young man with a red mustache and a monocle, a pair of gripsacks on the floor—and then strong fingers closed over the nose of said young man. Taken by surprise and held fast he could only say "Ouch," or something to that effect and bend ignominiously toward the floor as the muscular old tyrant drew his arm down. The girl didn't faint, but she went home with papa, and as she passed from the station to his carriage she did not know that a certain despised coachman sat on his box near and grinned triumphantly.

It is yet too early to ask the young man with the monocle if he has a spare ticket to Boston that he would like to dispose of at a sacrifice, but as the story is out—through that same rejected coachman—the question will break forth from some venturesome acquaintance some day.

About twenty years ago a bronze statue of Washington was set up on the steps to the sub-treasury building in Wall street. With every passing year it has grown more gloomy in appearance and rather more impressive. The other day an itinerant peddler wandered down that way and tried to do business with a minor employe of the treasury. He had a polish of some kind to sell, and he was eloquent in praise of its virtues. The employe didn't want it.

"Why!" persisted the peddler, "it will clean anything and make it look as bright as new. I can even brighten up that weather-beaten old statue out there."

"All right," said the employe carelessly, 'go ahead and let's see what you can do."

Without hesitation the peddler went to work. His stuff was a polish and no mistake. He began on the revered father-of-his-country's shoes and made them shine as if a modern shoe polisher had been at them. Then he worked up the stockinged leg to the knee. The other leg came in for his exertions next, with the result that the dignified hue disappeared and gave place to a glare that was and still is anything but artistic. How much further he would have gone in his enthusiasm to demonstrate the virtues of his polish can only be guessed, for a high official of the treasury chanced along and sent him flying. There was a clerk who received a severe reprimand, and no sale of the polish was made, but a new curiosity was added to the street. This was proved by the remark I overheard a country woman make to her husband as they stood staring up at the statue recently:

"I wonder," she said, "why they don't keep him clean above the knees as well as below them?"

ties are ample and in excess of demand, while rates are usually lower than freights to and from England. The same is true of communications with European and Asiatic countries. There are more ships than exports to fill them. Freight rates were never so low; and shipbuilding was never so extensive all over the world. Yet the Republicans tell us that we haven't ships enough to carry our exports.

Duluth people say so. They have tried them.
They have been cured—You can't possibly doubt their testimony.

Mr. Charles Hendee, of 1811 Superior street west, night foreman at the Northern Pacific roundhouse, says: "I was troubled on and off for years with pains through my loins and kidneys. If I caught cold or strained myself the pains became very severe. I attribute the trouble to the heavy jarring I received while a locomotive engineer in years past. If I sat or laid long in one position my back became so lame and sore that I could hardly straighten up and in the morning on rising I felt tired and unrested. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and determined to try them. Procuring a box from the Duluth Drug company, I used it and was promptly relieved of the trouble."

INSURGENT VICTORY

House Votes to Take Differential From Refined Sugars.

Was a Startling Surprise For the Republican Leaders.

The Cuban Reciprocity Bill Was Then Easily Passed.

Washington, April 19.—The Democrats and the Republican insurgents rode rough shod over the house leaders yesterday when the voting began on the Cuban reciprocity bill. They overturew the ruling of the chair in committee of the whole on the question of the germaneness of an amendment to remove the differential from refined sugar during the existence of the reciprocity agreement provided for in the bill. The vote to overrule the decision of the chair, made by Mr. Sherman, of New York, was 121 to 130, Republicans to the number of 37 joining with a solid Democratic vote to accomplish this result. Having won this preliminary victory, the amendment was adopted in committee, 161 to 111, and later in the house by a still larger majority, 159 to 105. On this occasion 64 Republicans voted with the Democrats for the amendment. The bill then was passed by an overwhelming majority, 247-52.

An analysis of the vote shows that 124 Republicans and 123 Democrats voted for the amended bill and 42 Republicans and 10 Democrats against it. Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, was one of those who voted against the bill. The voting on the bill was the culmination of a long struggle which began almost with the opening of this session of congress and after two weeks of continuous debate during which much bitterness was aroused.

Yesterday's debate was of an exceedingly lively character, the feature being echoes of the previous night's Democratic caucus. To that caucus the defeat of the Republican leaders who sought to pass the bill without amendment is attributed. Previous to the holding of the caucus the Democrats were very much divided and the opposition of the Republican beet sugar men showed signs of disintegrating. Yesterday when it became apparent that the Democrats would act together the beet sugar men decided at a meeting attended by thirty-two of them to take the bit in their teeth and overrule the chair. As soon as this combination was affected, the Republican leaders realized that they would be defeated so far as the removal of the differential was concerned, and Mr. Payne, the Republican leader, contented himself with warning his beet sugar colleagues that in removing the differential they were taking off a bit of protection placed in the Dingley bill, especially for the benefit of the beet sugar producers.

The Democrats attempted to follow up their advantage when the differential amendment was adopted by offering the Babcock bill and other amendments to reduce the Dingley schedules, but on these amendments the Republicans declined to stand with them and the Democrats did not press them vigorously. One of the surprises of the session was the attempt of Mr. Roberts, a Massachusetts Republican, to take the duty off hides. He offered two amendments and appealed only from the decision of the chair, but was voted down each time.

The bill as passed authorizes the president as soon as may be after the establishment of an independent government in Cuba and the enactment by said government of immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws as restrictive as those of the United States, to negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba by which, in return for equivalent concessions, the United States will grant a reduction of 20 per cent from the Dingley rates on goods coming into the United States from Cuba, such agreement to continue until Dec. 1, 1903. During the existence of such agreement the duty on refined sugars and all sugars above No. 16, Dutch standard, is to be 1.825 per pound.

In the debate on the point of order made by Mr. Payne yesterday afternoon Mr. Morris (Minn.), made a strong speech against it. While he agreed with Mr. Grow that the word "sugar" was not in the bill, sugar was all over it. He said that as the bill increased the differential on sugar from Cuba 47 cents a hundred pounds it was proper that the house should reduce the differential on sugars from the remainder of the world.

In a very elaborate ruling Mr. Sherman (N. Y.), who was in the chair, sustained the point of order. In doing so he cited a long line of precedents covering three-fourths of a century of parliamentary procedure in accord with his decision.

As soon as the decision was announced Mr. Tawney appealed from the decision of the chair. The vote was taken by tellers. Speaker Henderson was the first member to pass between the tellers in support of the chair's ruling.

It was an interesting spectacle as the issue was put to the test.

The whole Democratic side rose en masse and watched the Republicans to see how many would decline to vote with their colleagues. Not a Democrat voted to sustain the chair. When the announcement was made that the chair had been overruled 130 to 171, the Democrats and the Republican insurgents cheered. The vote then recurred on the Morris amendment, which was adopted amid Democratic cheers by a vote of 164 to 111.

DUN'S REVIEW

Business Has Increased Rapidly With Excellent Outlook.

New York, April 19.—D. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Weather conditions have been potent for good during the past week. Retail distribution was greatly accelerated, which in turn enlarged jobbing trade and brought more pressure on manufacturers for prompt shipment; agricultural work was facilitated and building operations made rapid progress; traffic increased at the interior as the condition of country roads improved, which made collections better. Some labor controversies were settled and others were averted. Complaints are still coming regarding tardy deliveries, but freight is less congested, and business has increased to the extent of 6.9 per cent larger railway earnings for April thus far than last year, and 16.3 per cent over 1900.

Quotations of iron and steel cannot yet be considered inflated, but the market is following natural courses, despite the efforts of leading interests to maintain a conservative position. Supply and demand must in the long run govern prices, and, in this industry, nearer than ever before than available stocks, although productive capacity has largely expanded. Pressure for pig iron is very great, but furniture men have contracted for their output far into the future, and consumers who want prompt delivery are willing to pay premiums. Similarly as to steel rails, the regular price of $28 has become nominal on current business, an advance of $5 per ton being readily paid for immediate delivery. This is especially noticeable on urgent trolley construction. Specifications for new buildings promise abundant additional contracts for structural material, while some mills have already sold their entire output for 1902.

Machinery and hardware lines are in the activity and are doing a brisk export business in spite of high prices.

Cotton goods have not followed the fluctuations in the raw materials, although its strength has contributed to the steadiness of the finished product. The feature of the week was the increased inquiry for export, and mills catering to this trade are sold far into the autumn. In the domestic trade many bids slightly below ruling prices were not considered and it is evident that supplies are in strong hands. Deliveries are being made more promptly, yet there is no fear of accumulation. Woolen goods are in less urgent demand, purchasers having secured most of the cloth which the American company was unable to furnish owing to the strike. Buying of dress goods has decreased and jobbers are beginning to go out with fall lines. Footwear shipments therefore have decreased, but jobbers are placing orders for fall and the shops are fairly well occupied.

Grain and meats have continued very strong. There was some logical explanation of the advance in corn, interior receipts falling to 35,500 bushels for the week, while Atlantic exports rose to 884,800 bushels, an unusually large total for recent times, although small by comparison with the corresponding week in preceding years. Wheat was sustained by exports from all ports of 4,485,,92 bushels, flour included, against 4,613,891 a year ago.

Cotton attained a higher price, Southern markets leading the advance on decreasing port receipts and a good demand from spinners. Sugar and coffee have been notably weak. The latter falling to within a sixteenth of the bottom record.

Failures for the week numbered 261 in the United States against 206 last year and 24 in Canada against 21 a year ago.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT

Boston Globe: Why should the religious folk of Washington feel shocked because President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to a race track? The horse enthusiasts never complain when the president goes to church.

Brooklyn Eagle: A New Haven clergyman has obtained a divorce because his wife would not call on the parishoners and do other social duties. Sympathy is with the woman. You ought to see some of the people that ministers' wives must be pleasant to.

Louisville Courier-Journal: A New York preacher—how we love a lord!—has been industriously digging in genealogy and now triumphantly proclaims that President McKinley is descended from eighty-one kings. And the pitiful thing about it is that this preacher believes he is faithfully observing the rule to say nothing but good of the dead.

New York Mail and Express: When Rev. Dr. Charles S. Ryman arose in the Newark Methodist conference last Thursday and said that he "would pray for the day to come when all Methodist churches would adopt a system such as prevails in the Episcopal church, so that the worshipers coming to Methodist churches would know just what part to take in the service," he voiced a feeling, the growth of which is apparent in his own and other denominations.

Minneapolis Times: The church nursery is a new departure and a good one. A room in the basement is fitted up with everything necessary to the comfort and happiness of a baby, sweet-faced nurses are placed in charge and the little ones are checked and cared for while their mothers enjoy the services without fear of an outcry. When a church is thus equipped the presence of an infant at home is no longer regarded as a valid excuse for non-attendance.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican: The action of the archbishop of Montreal in forbidding Roman Catholics to attend the passion play professionally performed in that city is evidence that public opinion in America is not yet ready to tolerate the portrayal of the sacred scenes on the stage. Heretofore Mgr. Bruchesi has taken no position in the matter and his final decision has been largely the result of public opinion. Meanwhile the Passion play is still being performed by professionals in Paris. There the Catholic church is said to have given its consent, though priests are forbidden by Archbishop Richard from attending, on the ground that such spectacles "prevent inwardness, create an idle frame of mind and are foes to seriousness of religious sentiment and thought."

BLASTS FROM RAM'S HORN

A selfish success is a sad failure.

Many words do not make much wisdom.

God's sympathy is not exhausted in sighs.

The braggart deceives no one but himself.

The church is weakened by wicked wealth.

Many a man must lose his all to find himself.

No man fails of success who conquers himself.

A racket is a revival of nothing but noise.

Religion without joy is a sun without light.

The path to greatness with God is open to all.

The great life is made up of greatness in littles.

Sincerity is the best sermon against hypocrisy.

It is hard to be healed when we hide our wounds.

The perils of truth lie deep in the sea of patience.

A man can be judged by his judgments of others.

God wants flowers on hearts more than on altar-cloths.

The foolish bark at truth because it is a stranger to them.

Mrs. L. S. Webb
Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

Laura S. Webb

THERE are many sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 or 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. During the change of life, the menstrual function gradually disappears. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Mrs. Elizabeth Barfield, of Fort Barnwell, N. C., has had happy experience with Wine of Cardui during the change of life. She writes:

"Please allow me to say a few words in praise of your wonderful Wine of Cardui. When I wrote to you in 1900 I was so weak and nervous that I could not sit up very long at a time. I had such a cough that at times I thought I was going to lose my breath. When I received your medicine and commenced to use it I improved in health and now I am feeling better than I have since the change of life. I hope I will continue to improve in health. I have recommended your medicine to others and will continue to do so."

This subject is a serious one for any woman and the evidence given here that Wine of Cardui will lead her safely through these dangers cannot be ignored. It is a tragic fact that so many women sicken and die at that critical time, because they do not prepare themselves. Mrs. Abbie Stricklin, of Falkins, Ala., says:

"I have been using Wine of Cardui for twelve months and I believe I would have been dead if it had not been for Wine of Cardui. I was down over half of the time and my husband insisted on my trying Wine of Cardui. I have been able to do my housework ever since. I think more of Wine of Cardui than any other medicine I ever took. Every woman in the world should give Wine of Cardui a trial during the 'change of life'."

All members of organized labor in Duluth have been so busy during the past week working that they have had little time to make news. The meetings held during the week were mostly routine, and good business prospects were reported all around.

The journeymen barbers of this city are being examined by the state board, consisting of: John Hitczker, of Winona; W. J. O'Brien, of Minneapolis, and F. W. Martin, of St. Paul. Twenty candidates for the barbers' license were examined yesterday. These men are not all Duluth journeymen, however, but from towns all over the northern part of the state.

The state board of plumber examiners will arrive in Duluth on Monday for the purpose of examining applicants for the licensed plumbers' trade.

Gust Winberg, former secretary of the Federated Trades' assembly, was up from Minneapolis during the past week. He reports union matters very lively in the Twin Cities.

Ole Larson, of the Steamfitters' union, has returned from a trip to the Twin Cities.

The retail clerks held an enthusiastic meeting on Tuesday evening. The union appointed a committee to wait on the West End merchants in the interest of the early closing movement, which had given such satisfaction to both employers and employes in the larger "uptown" stores.

Four new members were taken into the union, three by first initiation and one taken in from a Sioux City local.

James B. Murray, one of the most popular union labor men in Duluth, has been elected house captain of the Great Eastern.

Two letters were received in this department last week inquiring rather cuttingly why it was that certain unions received mention week after week while others were seldom heard from.

The reason is that in some of the unions some good, reliable officer takes a few minutes off to send in a report of what his union is doing, thereby helping stimulate the general interest in labor doings, while in others they do not take any time to write anything but sundry small kicks.

Any reliable labor news sent in to this department will be appreciated and handled in a thoroughly conservative manner.

Business Agent Richardson of the Building Trades' council is making quite a reputation for himself in that office. He is a hustler.

The meeting of the sheet metal workers on Tuesday night should be interesting. It is the last meeting before May 1, when the new wage scale goes into effect.

LABOR NOTES.

Textile is our leading industry.

Chicago hod carriers get 35 cents an hour.

Cincinnati street car men want better runs.

Germany's twenty shipyards employ 60,000 men.

Canada's fisheries employ 80,000 men, and 1200 schooners are in use.

San Francisco merchants are agitating an all-night car service there.

Indianapolis bricklayers secured their demand for 50 cents an hour and an 8-hour day.

Denver painters signed a 2-year agreement at $3.50 a day and will have Saturday half holiday.

It is claimed that 367 central bodies of labor are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

St. Louis painters, numbering 1500, who wanted an advance from 37½ to 45 cents an hour, compromised on 40 cents.

There are 6159 establishments in the United States, with 46,647 acres, where flowers and ornamental plants are cultivated.

The new Los Angeles (Cal.) shops of the Southern Pacific railroad now under construction will cost $500,000 and employ 1500 men.

Karl Renber, of Pittsburg, offers to donate free a site on Fifth avenue near Boston street for the proposed $50,000 labor temple of that city.

Bridgeport (Conn.) laundry workers have started a movement the object of which is to form a state association for the exclusion of the Chinese laundries.

The men's petition asked for a minimum scale of $1.50 per day for section men and $2 per day for foremen. There are nearly 5000 section men employed by the C. P. R. system.

Milwaukee woodworkers may order a strike May 1 in factories that have not the union label. The plan is to establish a new scale with a minimum rate of 25 cents an hour to operate in all factories.

The action of the W. B. Conkey company, of Hammond, Ind., in granting its employes a 9-hour day at the same wages formerly paid for ten hours is claimed as a union victory by labor officials in the printing trades.

An international union with 10,000 members has accepted a woman as a member for the first time. Miss Maud Denison, of Chicago, will be made a member of the United Brotherhood of Leather Workers and Horse Goods Employes.

Suit for an injunction and for $300,000 damages has been instituted by Carpenters' union No. 483 against the San Francisco Building Trades' council. It is the Building Trades' council against the union to compel it to withdraw from the labor council.

The Canadian Pacific railway authorities have given official recognition to the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen. The question of wages will be settled at a conference by Chief Engineer Vantelet, representing the company, and President John T. Wilson, representing the Brotherhood.

The National Stove Founders' association will probably grant an increase in wages to the stove molders of the United States. A slight increase was asked at the joint conference in Chicago. There has not been a strike among the thousands of employes in the association's stove foundries for twelve years.

"One million members in 1905," is the slogan of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employes. The organization was formed at Rosebury, Ore., Jan. 27, 1901. It aims to cover all white employes engaged upon steam railroads, also white ex-railway employes who have had three or more years' experience.

Connecticut has three mayors who were elected to office in less than six months by what is generally called the labor party of Connecticut. Mayor Sullivan, of Hartford, presides over 80,000 population. Bridgeport has a labor union mayor—Denis Mulvihill, a stoker. Mayor Stephen Charters, of Ansonia, is a labor union man, a mechanic.

About 4500 new books are published annually in this country, and about 10,000,000 copies of these books are sold. The great bulk of American reading of new matter, however, is evidently in periodicals, for of these more than 4,000,000,000 copies, or about 100 to each possible reader, are published annually. Nearly 3,000,000,000 of these are daily newspapers.

Plans to unite all the federal labor unions in the country into an international union are under way and the movement is being closely watched by students of the labor question. A convention of delegates from a number of federal labor unions throughout the country will be held in Chicago May 6 to inaugurate the movement. Among the leaders of the new project are Nicholas Geiger, of Cleveland, and Sheldon A. Harris, of Dwight, Ill. The plan aims to unite the unskilled workers of the country.

San Francisco unionists are jubilant over the surrender of Neustadter Brothers, wholesale shirt and overall manufacturers. They have resigned from the Employers' association, which they were so active in forming, in order that they might gain the right to use the union label. In taking this step they not only forfeit a large sum of money deposited as a guarantee of their continuance in membership, but, it is understood, will pay the initiation fees of their employes into the unions they were fighting. The gain to unionism is greater even than this. The defection of Neustadter Brothers from the Employers' association seems to foreshadow the disintegration of that arch enemy of union labor. The next to secede will probably be Levi Strauss & Co., who have already taken the first step preparatory to applying for the union label.

The nomination of Mayor Charters grew out of the strike in his town. He was a carpenter, and an officer in one of the local trades council. Charters was arrested with two labor leaders because of connection with the strike, and there is still pending against him in the superior court, criminal side, in this county, a charge of conspiracy growing out of the strike. Mulvihill's platform was "rugged honesty and economy;" Charters' "trades unions," and Sullivan's "The Economic league." The platform of "The Economic league" advocates free text books, a municipal lighting plant, eight hours for city employes, honest government and economical administration. Since the victory of these three men there has been considerable talk of the laboringmen, of organized labor, putting in the field this coming fall a candidate for governor.

SUMMER HEADWEAR

Many New Ideas and Novelties Have Seen the Light In Paris.

Never Has Fashion Patronized So Many Different Shapes at One Time—Rustic Hats One of the Novelties.

New York, April 19.—The Paris correspondent of the Millinery Trade Review says: During the past month many new ideas and novelties have seen the light. Milliners are vying with each other in ingenuity and resource, while the materials at their disposal continue to increase in importance and variety. Some new shapes have appeared, and some of those with which we are already familiar have been subjected to slight alterations. Never before has fashion patronized so many different shapes at one time.

The same may be said of materials and trimmings. Straw braids of 100 different kinds suggest all sorts of combinations to the milliners, which the equally rich assortment of trimmings enables them to vary indefinitely.

Of the most conspicuous novelties that have appeared during the past few weeks, the shapes made of straw, in imitation of reeds and grasses, stand first in the list. They have the effect of being woven carelessly and present the appearance of a rustic looking mat of green nearly an inch thick. They do not require much trimming; some flowers or fruits with leaves generally suffice. One model of this sort is of a rather bright shade of green, flecked with white, as are certain fancy grasses. It is of medium size and rather flat. The trimming consists of bunches of cherries, those at the side being black and red, while those placed further back are white or pale green. They are mixed with plenty of leaves.

Green cherries compose almost the entire trimming of a capeline woven thick of bright green reeds, and they are arranged in a deep fringe falling behind, while little bunches of twos and three peep out here and there. On the left side, rather far back, is a large globular rosette made up of loops of wide pale-blue satin ribbon. Green reed and grass hats are also trimmed with large white roses, greenish white double poppies, and variegated anemones and, still more aptly, with cowslip balls and daisy chains.

Many of the latest additions to the new summer models owe their novelty to the choice of braids, and the methods of treating them. The only way to give the reader an accurate notion of what is being done in this line will be, we think, to describe in sufficient detail the best specimens that have come under our notice. Thus, wide, pure white chip braids are made up into a medium sized hat with low crown. The brim, which rolls up slightly and equally all the way round, is lined with two of the white braids divided by one still wider of fancy Tuscan. Wide black velvet ribbon folded double is set behind the roll of the brim so as to show half an inch above the edge and is then knotted behind in a large double bow forming a cachepeigne. Resting athwart the hat is a broad black couteau pinned to the right edge of the low crown by a handsome cabochon brooch consisting of a large irregular pearl set in an engraved rim of dull silver.

Another hat is composed of wide strips of pure white chip loosely twisted (not plaited) and laid all over and underneath the brim of a wire foundation covered with white tulle. This is a broad-brimmed capeline turned up in front where it is trimmed with bright green barberry leaves spread out fan-shape with here and there a bunch of red berries. A similar arrangement of leaves and berries is laid on the back of the brim which is bent slantingly down in the neck.

A smaller hat of the amazon order is built up of ecru raffia braids, the edge of the braids stitched one against the other so as to form a little ridge. The brim, which is very wide at the sides where it is turned up, is trimmed, on its under side, with thick coils of brown tulle. These coils are just the width of the straw braids, and one is laid on each braid. Outside there is a spray of pale pink roses with buds and leaves laid round the front of the brim. Behind, the brim is almost non-existent, and, in its place, is mounted a sort of curtain made of wide white taffetas ribbon with a rose design warp-printed upon it. This is arranged in two triple box pleats, each secured by an oxidized silver slide, and so composing a deep frill surmounted by a narrow ruffled heading.

Fine chip woven into pipes about the thickness of a man's thumb, and then sewn together, is used to make a medium sized hat with low crown and slightly rolled brim lifted on the left side. The pipes are in three shades of light grayish brown, and against the upturned brim at the side is placed a fan-shaped bow of dark brown velvet ribbon and a large handsome cabochon made of gilt wire set with large white pearls. Outside, a garland of lily-of-the-valley flowers and leaves encircles the brim. To the ends of this garland, which hang loose at the back, are attached bunches of red and green berries forming long tassles.

Golden yellow Tuscan braids, alternately plain and fancy, are used to make a small hat mounted on a wire shape covered with shirred white tulle. The brim is slightly rolled in front and at the sides against a fold of black velvet, but is turned down at the back beneath three large rosettes made of gathered folds of white chiffon with a cluster of gold stamens in their centers.

A shape made up of broad wood-brown chip braids has the brim faced with fine plaits of the same braids sewn on slightly full so as to form ruffles. Round its edge is a narrow garland made of the leaves of the small dwarf pink. A piece of red velvet, cut on the bias, enriches the crown, passes over the left side of the brim, to finish at the back in a bow made of several loops bound round in the middle.

For a Marquis hat the braids chosen are of bright red chip plaited with red grenne. Round the edge of the rolled brim, which is lined with the same braids, is a close row of red poppies, and on the top of the crown is inserted a black aigrette lying flat upon it and fastened down in the center by a large jet cabochon. A small hat or toque has a crown of red taffeta, and a brim of looped copeau straw to match, into which are introduced small bunches of red hyacinth flowers.

Here and there are to be seen a few dark blue straw hats. One example will suffice. This is a medium-sized capeline with the brim turned up both sides so as to form a point at the back (a variation of the amazon) made up on a wired foundation of blue tulle, covered outside with braids composed of three chips of dark copeau straw plaited together, and on the underside of the brim with fine straw—dark blue chip interwoven red and white in a broad check. For trimming there is a large blue bird with clear glass eyes. The head of the bird is on the right and its body encircles the crown.

Some new and pretty sailors are covered plain with thin silk—generally red or dark blue—stretched over with white muslin. On this foundation broad chip braids or copeau plaitings to match the silk are sewn in a spiral so as to leave about an inch between each row of braid. No further trimming is needed, but to fasten such hats very handsome pins are worn, which constotute a sort of decoration.

Besides all such fancy straws and arrangements of straw braids, there are shapes in rice and manilla, and in leghorn white or dyed in pastel tints.

A fresh attempt is to be made to bring in the cabriolet form again this summer. How far it will prove successful remains to be seen. One of these models in natural tinted manilla straw is trimmed with pendant branches of hop in three colors—white, green and manila. The branches are fastened in front of the crown and dangle down on the left side. The open brim is lined with folds of soft silk green, being used alternately with white. This has pink roses underneath the brim, and outside two large bows of pink mervelleux of a paler shade than the straw. A whole breadth of silk is used for each of these bows; it is folded, doubled, and then knotted once, forming a bow and two ends. There is one bow in front and another at the back.

To be included among the very latest novelties is a large plateau hat, mounted on a circulart trimmed bandeau fitting onto the top of the head. A model of this sort consists of a plateau of rice straw, the upper side of which is white and the under side slightly glace with pale blue. A circular piece of cream guipure covers the center of the plateau. On the bandeau is a folded scarf of very soft pale blue satin arranged behind in a butterfly bow with fringed ends. Above this, in the under side of the brim, is a drapery of blue tulle, the ends of which are fastened beneath two pairs of blue wings, also sewn flat on the brim, so that they are face downward. The same arrangement is also carried out in black rice, butter-colored guipure and a maize scarf, and yellow roses in the place of wings. Owing to their somewhat exaggerated size, these hats are not likely to be so generally favored as a smaller sized hat called the Louis XVI plateau. This is composed of a plateau not more than ten inches in diameter, mounted on a wire and net shape, with a flat brim of the same size. The trimming properly so-called fills in the space between the two brims, but the plateau itself may consist of trimming laid flat upon it. A hat of this sort has the plateau entirely sewn over in a spiral with quillings of white hair net; between the two brims is a row of globular pink roses set in among sprays of green moss. Another consists of a plateau of white rice and puffed rosettes of soft pink satin ribbon and rose buds between the brims. In some cases the plateau is covered with mosses or leaves; in the latter case fresh young ivy leaves and small tender green rose leaves have the preference, and the space between the two brims is filled in with small flowers, lilies-of-the-valley, forget-me-nots, rosebuds, jasmin, bindweed, daisies and the like.

Hats of various shapes, more especially the Amazon and the Marquis, are covered entirely with flowers only, or with leaves or mosses and trimmed with flowers. A hat of the marquis shape is completely faced with small full-blown single poppies, showing their black stamens. Those in front are deep pink, and the flowers are shaded from this color to brightest red at the back. Just within the rolled brim is a drapery of red tulle, which is tied at the back in a big butterfly bow. Many Amazons and Marquises made of brownish-green copeau or chip braids have thin brims faced with green or variegated mosses, and flowers inserted along the top of the brim at the left. Small white roses, white jasmin, or heather serve the purpose best, the harmony of green and white being in much favor. More complicated schemes of coloring, however, are attempted. Here is a case in point. The Marquis shape is built up of very wide rose pink chip braids, between each of which is sewn a quilling of black net. The top edge of the brim is faced to a depth of two inches with sprays of green moss, and lower down with quillings of the net. On the left side, fastened against the brim, are two clusters of blush roses. Bands of black velvet ribbons pass over the brim, between the flowers, and end by forming a cascade of loops at the back.

Among the many shapes on show is one that promises to take the fancy of Parisians. It is a small capeline with a low, almost imperceptible crown, worn tilted over the brow. The back of the brim is bent forward over the crown, and the hat rests at the back on a wire support or cachepeigne several inches deep, which receives most of the trimming. One of these hats, made of pure white chip braids, has a garland of leaves and cherries round the crown, and, for cachepeigne, a knotted white lace scarf and large bow of pale blue velvet.

Finally, a very curious shaped hat, of which we have only seen a single specimen, deserves passing mention, if it were only for its eccentricity. It is compcsed of four small plateaux about six inches in diameter; three of these are attached together so as to compose a smape like that of a shamrock leaf, to which the fourth is mounted in the center, as an apology for a crown. The straw used for the plateau is palest blue copeau piping arranged in a spiral, and the only trimming is a trio of small pearl cabochoons.

The facing and crown of this pale blue straw hat are of black silk, slashed and laced with black cords through tiny steel rings. Cluster of black wings at the side. From Hill Bros.

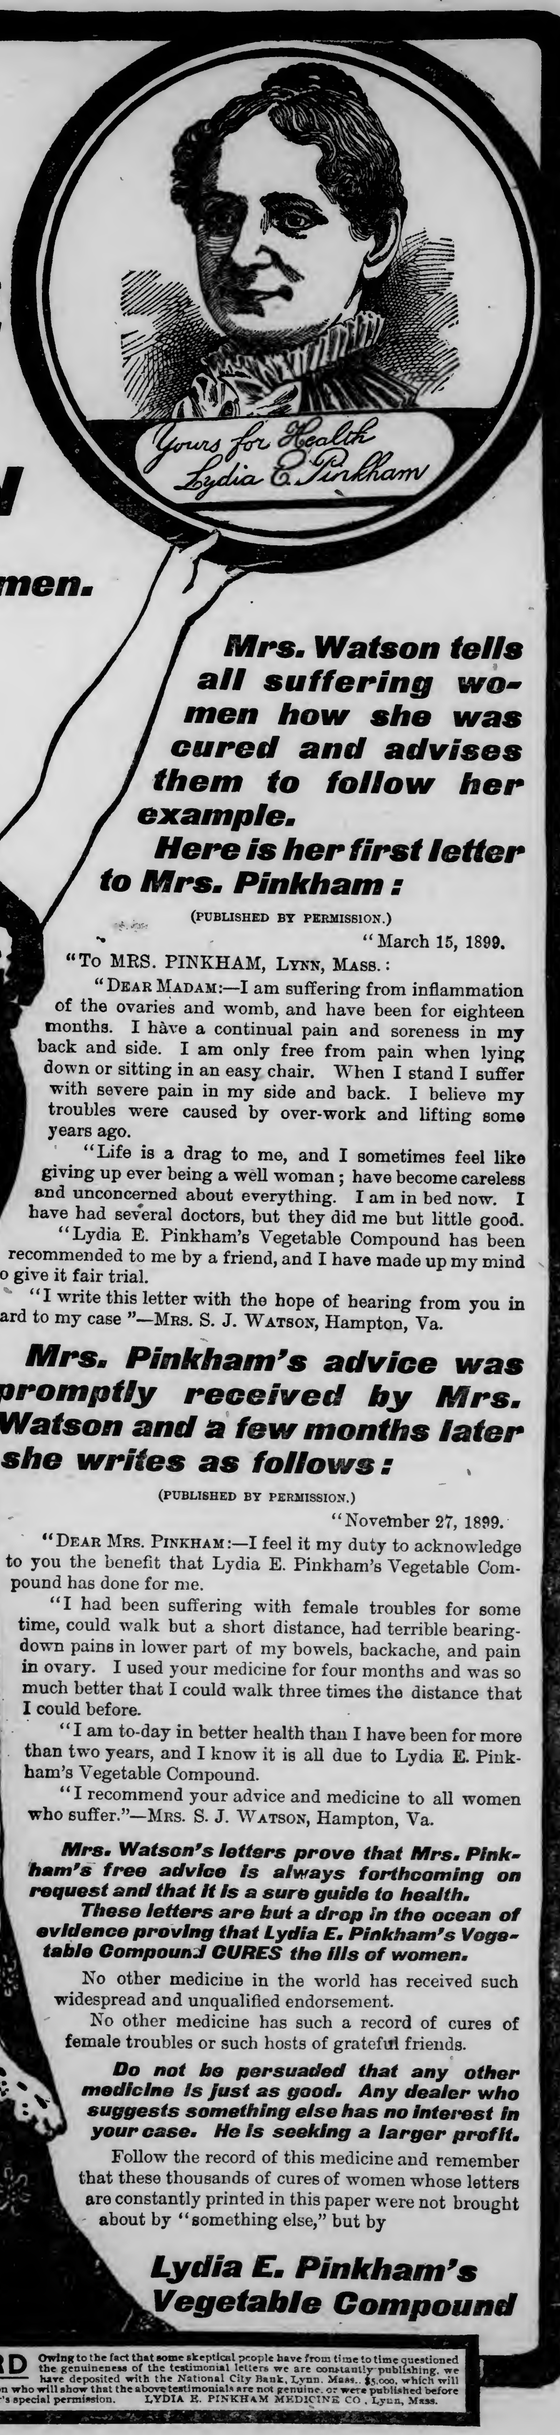
that is curing women.



Mrs. Watson tells all suffering women how she was cured and advises them to follow her example.

Here is her first letter to Mrs. Pinkham:

(PUBLISHED BY PERMISSION.)

"March 15, 1899.

"To MRS. PINKHAM, LYNN, MASS.:

"DEAR MADAM:—I am suffering from inflammation of the ovaries and womb, and have been for eighteen months. I have a continual pain and soreness in my back and side. I am only free from pain when lying down or sitting in an easy chair. When I stand I suffer with severe pain in my side and back. I believe my troubles were caused by over-work and lifting some years ago.

"Life is a drag to me, and I sometimes feel like giving up ever being a well woman; have become careless and unconcerned about everything. I am in bed now. I have had several doctors, but they did me but little good.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been recommended to me by a friend, and I have made up my mind to give it fair trial.

"I write this letter with the hope of hearing from you in regard to my case"—MRS. S. J. WATSON, Hampton, Va.

Mrs. Pinkham's advice was promptly received by Mrs. Watson and a few months later she writes as follows:

(PUBLISHED BY PERMISSION.)

"November 27, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to acknowledge to you the benefit that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

"I had been suffering with female troubles for some time, could walk but a short distance, had terrible bearing-down pains in lower part of my bowels, backache, and pain in ovary. I used your medicine for four months and was so much better that I could walk three times the distance that I could before.

"I am to-day in better health than I have been for more than two years, and I know it is all due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I recommend your advice and medicine to all women who suffer."—MRS. S. J. WATSON, Hampton, Va.

Mrs. Watson's letters prove that Mrs. Pinkham's free advice is always forthcoming on request and that it is a sure guide to health.

These letters are but a drop in the ocean of evidence proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound CURES the ills of women.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends.

Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

"The Viking," One of the Greatest Successes, At the Lyceum Tonight.

Rose Coghlan In "Forget Me Not" Here Next Thursday—Blanche Walsh In "La Madeleine" Saturday Afternoon and Night.

The production of "The Viking" by the Roosevelt Marching club, of Minneapolis, this evening at the Lyceum will be a unique and, the reports in the Minneapolis papers of this week indicate, a most delightful entertainment. One hundred young men of that city appear in this remarkable production, every part being taken by a man. The opera is staged and dressed in handsome style, the make-ups are very clever and artistic, and the men who appear in the female parts are only betrayed by their voices.

The Minneapolis Tribune said of it:

"'The Vikings' sailed into Minneapolis last night in their serpentine ship amid tumults of applause and the admiration of hosts of friends. So widely heralded, they sustained to the utmost all that had been said of them, and not for one moment was there dullness or lack of interest among either players or audience.

"The opera, composed last year for the use of the Harvard society, is exceptionally excellent. There are many companies now upon the road with a far weaker vehicle for displaying their abilities, and although the plot has little of novelty, the music and many of the lines are decidedly catchy and meritorious.

"In securing this opera the Roosevelt Marching club was especially fortunate, and in producing it as they did last night, there is evidenced the fact that they have also been most persistent and industrious in their efforts to master so complicated and so elaborate a work. The chorus, solos, marches and drills were all carefully arranged, and artistically and spiritedly executed.

"The time of the first two acts is 1000 A. D., the first act in a Norwegian village at the Yuletide, and the second act on the shores of America in the fall of the next year. In the third act Lief and his confidante, Tryker, are discovered upon the bursting of a gigantic rock in Elliott park, in this city, and the opera closes with all the accompaniments of pretty girls, smart looking men and all the other beauties of art and nature which Minneapolis can boast.

"Theodore Stensland, Jr., and John A. Loud were the composers of the work, and have done much that is commendable. The music in many places far exceeds the usual light opera music, and a few of the choruses are almost classic in simplicity and dignity. The last act is more characteristic of light opera, and contains a number of very singable lyrics."

ROSE COGHLAN.

"Forget Me Not," with Miss Rose Coghlan as Stephanie de Mohrivart, will be at the Lyceum next Thursday, when this famous play will receive its first presentation here with a cast of players who have supported Miss Coghlan in many of her New York productions. The play is strongly dramatic, but never descends to the cheap trickery of melodrama, even in the greatest of its scenes, which strips a mercenary adventuress of a position in society which she has held by means of intrigue, blackmail and effrontery, with an ever-present insouciance and silly manner to disarm a coterie of enemies plotting her downfall. It is in the amazing self-possession, in the exhibition of feminine wiles and coquetries, when danger threatens the position she has usurped in society, as well as in the self-command and stolidity exhibited during some intensely dramatic scenes that Rose Coghlan shows she is past mistress of her art. The supporting cast includes a number of ladies whose costumes are a delight to the eye, whose well-modulated voices and easy grace proclaim the fact that they have participated in many a society play. Unquestionably Rose Coghlan is the best qualified woman to enact such a part on the American stage today by reason of her magnificent stage presence, elaborate costuming and the talent which has placed her in the forefront of all American actresses.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Blanche Walsh, who is conceded to be one of the most able emotional actresses, although one of the youngest dramatic stars on the American stage, will appear at the Lyceum theater next Saturday afternoon and evening in a powerful, four-act drama by the well-known journalist, H. J. W. Dam, entitled "La Madeleine." This piece is said to depict with great fidelity scenes and incidents in the gay life of Paris at the present day. The first act occurs in a typical Parisian restaurant, the second in a squalid garret, the third in a luxurious hotel, and the fourth and last in the nave of a great cathedral.

Miss Walsh is said to have made a stupendous production of the piece and to have invested it with lavish scenic effects and gorgeous garmentry. The character which has been allotted to the star is that of a woman of the boulevards, who in her loose life, at least, experiences a genuine love which, in the end, she sacrifices in order to avoid bringing disgrace upon her lover.

The cast of "La Madeleine" is a large one and utilizes every member of Miss Walsh's company, including besides the star, Robert Lowe, Raymond Whitaker, Mason Mitchell, Emmet Shackleford, Forrest Flood, Frederick Harris, R. Paton Gibbs, Thomas Hayden, Denman Maley, Oscar Barrett, Robert Harold, Jr., William Morris, Richard Fitzgerald, Percy Wynn, Harry Reeves, Rose Braham, Harriet Sterling, Emily Baker, Mrs. J. R. Haywood, Fanny Marinoff, Rose Anthon, Dora Norton, Laura Foley, Adelaide Reeves, Ethelyn Clemens and Beatrice Norwood.

SCENES FROM "THE VIKING."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

First of Gotham's Theaters Closes For Season.

New York, April 19.—The Garden is the first of the New York theaters to close its doors this season, because of the lack of a suitable play to take the place of "Life," which has been withdrawn after one unfortunate week. The Casino has tried vaudeville as a last resort, but will probably have to close within a fortnight. The theatrical syndicate is unable to supply plays for these and for other theaters whose present attractions are rapidly nearing the end. At present the outlook for this season is now so dubious that few theaters will be open after June 1.

Of the plays which are still to come to town George W. Lederer's "The Wild Rose" is the most important. This will be given a trial production in Philadelphia, and will come to the Knickerbocker a week from Monday night. Incidentally it is finally settled that Corrine will not appear with the company. Instead, she has cast her fortunes with Alfred E. Arons, and has gone over to Philadelphia to join "My Antoinette." The part originally assigned to her has been given to Marie Cahill, while Irene Gedford will play the leading lady. The theme of "The Wild Rose" follows "The Strollers," in a general way, while the first act bears somewhat of a resemblance to "The Bohemian Girl." It is laid in a gypsy camp, and there is a good old-fashioned stolen child brought up by the gypsies, only in this case a gypsy child has in turn been substituted for the missing member of the count's family. Eddie Foy. Eddie Foy has the leading comedy role of a second-class traveling hypnotist. He experiments upon the gypsies to such a degree that a vendetta is declared against him, and he has to flee for his life. The second act is laid in a rathskeller in Strasburg, and here two companies of soldiers, French and German, are gathered upon a wager that they can remain in each other's society for several hours without a duel. This act gives is opportunity for the introduction of several specialties, the principal one being furnished by Foy, who disguished himself as a woman, is still being followed by the gypsies.

Adelaide Thurston, who has been meeting with great success all season in "Sweet Clover," is going to appear in a new play on April 21. It is entitled "At Cosey Corners" and was written by Pauline Phelps and Marian Shart, two New York girls, who also wrote Miss Thurston's former play, "Sweet Clover." Frederic Paulding has been engaged to stage the new production. By the way, Miss Thurston has inspired one artist who saw her recently to such a degree that he has written a song and dance respectfully dedicated to her. It is called "Over the Clover, to Adelaide."

James J. Corbett made one of the greatest hits of his life the other evening in an uptown restaurant. A Canadian editor had been dining there, and when he went to pay his bill discovered that he had nothing but Canadian bank notes with him. The manager was sorry, but flatly declined to take this money, and did not look with favor upon the suggestion that he call up the Waldorf where the editor was a patron, and ask if everything was all right. Finally the diner, pulling a valuable ring from his little finger, suggested that this would be a sufficient guarantee for a Canadian $10-bill, and the manager accepted it as such. Corbett, who had been watching the scene, stepped up and brusquely ordering the manager to return the ring, turned to the other man with a good-sized roll, and invited him to help himself, offering to exchange all the Canadian money that was needed. Corbett and the Canadian had met, it seems, although the pugilist actor did not recall that fact until reminded of it. It is needless to say that there is one paper on this side of the Atlantic where Corbett can have all the press notices he wants.

Frank McKee is wearing a smile these days whenever he watches the crowds entering his Savoy theater to see Robert Edeson in "Soldiers of Fortune." That play is bringing well-deserved returns both to star and theater, and the enthusiasm evoked is weekly on the increase. On Wednesday afternoon the house was crowded with an audience which waxed so enthusiastic that Edeson, panting with the exertion of his stairway fight, was forced to make a short speech. It was clever, rather too clever, for it shot over the heads of most of the women, but they were satisfied just to hear him speak. One young woman who sat near me caught it all and said to her companion: "Why didn't he just say 'How d'ye?' that's all they wanted." Then, growing reminiscent, she continued: "It was only a few years ago that George—you know his real name is George, George R. Edeson it used to be—declared that he would never, never go on the stage. What we would have missed if he had kept to his word." Truly she spoke with great wisdom.

Lillian Russell and De Wolf Hopper were on the program for a turn at a benefit given at Weber and Fields for the treasurer, Al Minehan, last Sunday night. Miss Russell, at the last moment, sent word that she was unable to appear, and Hopper for a few minutes was in a dilemma, for he had prepared nothing for such an emergency. After a moment's consultation with the lady sitting at his side, he addressed the audience, and explained that he would sing a song to an accompaniment played by his mother. Then he escorted the stately, white-haired lady to the piano amidst great applause. He sang a simple German love song, but it made a greater hit with that audience than finest grand opera selection would have done. It was Mrs. Hopper's first appearance upon the stage.

So Annie Russell has decided to give up the demure sympathetic parts she has been playing with such great success. The news from London that she has secured Rostand's "Joan of Arc" startled Broadway in earnest. Miss Russell is a young lady who is taken very seriously both by her manager and her audiences. Her acceptance of a play has always been followind with the most gratifying returns at the box office, and those who are inclined to raise their eyebrows at the present news have decided to wait and see what Miss Russell will really do with the part. "Joan of Arc" was written for a French society woman with wealth and stage aspirations. It is described as a tragic-idyll of the middle ages, and its style decidedly recalls the best of Tennyson.

Plans filed by David Belasco for alterations at the Republic show a much needed improvement in the entrance and lobby. It would seem as if Hammerstein had forgotten that these were needed when he put up his new playhouse on the spot where "Gil" Robinson once ran a winter circus. Persons who hold balcony seats enter the theater by a broad and imposing stairway out in the street, while those who have paid the higher prices for the orchestra are obliged to crawl in by what appears to be a basement door. All this will be changed, and the Republic will have an imposing entrance.

Speaking of Hammerstein, he is one of the busiest men in New York at the present time. Much of his day is devoted to plans for his new Drury Lane theater, and such moments as he can spare are spent in a workshop in the flies of the Victoria, where he is perfecting a new cigar making machine. Instead of eating Hammerstein goes aloft to his piano and composes music for the summer season at his roof garden. He is also planning many changes for the latter place, which extends over the roofs of both the Victoria and the Republic. All the woodwork is to be replaced with steel and concrete, and the Dutch village of last year will be replaced by an Eden musee sort of thing, but carried out on strictly original lines.

The fight of the Sires against the building department over the New York theater threatens some curious developments. The Sires insist that they are entitled to give two shows under one roof, and declare that if they are not permitted to do so they will insist that the law be similarly enforced against the Waldorf-Astoria, where theatrical shows are occasionally given, although the proprietor holds only a hotel license. They even insist that the circus with its advertised "three shows" should not be permitted to run undisturbed at the Garden with one permit. The building department is carefully considering these objections and endeavoring to find some easy way out of the tangle.

George Baxter, a former stage hand at the Casino, is dying of consumption, and his wife and four children are in imminent danger of starvation. The stage carpenter at the playhouse, hearing of this, devoted himself to the manufacture of an antique oak liquor cabinet, fashioned like a beer keg. The front lets down like a shelf, disclosing an inner drawer, which, being opened, reveals a compartment for bottles and glasses. The hoops are nickelplated and the whole affair is both unique and handsome. The barrel is going the rounds of all the theaters, and all the employes of each are being invited to take part in a raffle for the benefit of the Baxter family.

Frank Keenan, it seems, has decided to give up his part in "The Hon. John Grigsby." Keenan played the role with considerable success in this city, and continued to do well on the road, but the management decided to cut down expenses, which necessitated curtailing the cast to a considerable degree. To this Mr. Keenan objected, and a bitter disagreement with his backers followed, with the result that he would play that part no more.

William Collier's success in "The Diplomat" is a great tribute to his own skill in remodeling the play, as well as to the sagacity of Jacob Litt in permitting Collier to have his own sweet way. "Sandy" Dingwall said to me the other afternoon: "We have completed arrangements to remain with Collier at the Madison Square theater during the remainder of the season. Last week was the biggest Collier has ever played to in New York, exceeding the gross receipts of any week of "On the Quiet" last season, while the salt is big for four weeks to come. "The Diplomat" is the greatest success Collier has ever had and his company is the best."

Bessie Tyree, encouraged by the career of Elsie DeWolf, has decided to star under her own management next season. She has a play by Sydney Rosenfeld, "As Others See us." It tells the story of an American girl's adventures in London society. Somewhat of a fall from Miss Tyree's late ambition to play Juliet, but one that is more likely to produce box office results.

The picturesque, often unique and generally tempestuous professional Woman's League is in more trouble. Some bright and daring spirit suggested a grand celebration in Madison Square Garden, and without further consideration the entire league rushed over to Madison avenue and Twenty-seventh street and proceeded to hire the building. As soon as the manager could recover his breath he explained that the only open time was the days immediately following the departure of the circus. The fair beslegers were quite satisfied, but the embarrassed manager was forced to explain that for at least two weeks after the circus had departed Madison Square Garden was no fit place for an afternoon tea.

Now that the rush of the season is over, the strain of a hard winter's work is telling severely upon several of our leading actresses. The most unfortunate case is that of Miss Nina Farrington, who for many anxious weeks has been appearing in the New York theater prominently displayed as to figure, but almost overwhelmed with a part in which she is compeleld to think to herself for several hours. Miss Farrington announces that she has lost over thirty pounds since "The Hall of Fame" was first produced, and she adds that she means to go away for a rest for several weeks.

On Monday night the Empire Theater company presented its third play of the season, Oscar Wilde's comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest." The story which is told is interesting, and possesses besides is amusing features a pretty, sentimental theme. The play affords the best opportunities Charles Richman and Margaret Anglin have yet had to display their polished cleverness. They appear in characters of an entirely different kind from any in which they have yet been seen. Abundant opportunities are given to other members of the company, including William Courtnay, W. H. Compton, Ethel Hornick, Margaret Dale and Mrs. Thomas Whiffen for the excellent work of which thisy are all capable.

Harry Bulger, the droll and unctuous leading comedian of "The Beauty and the Beast" at the Broadway theater, has made arrangements with the Hawthorne Sisters to appear with him this summer in Norfolk, Va.

A. H. Chamberlyn has sent many telegraphic requests to thespians now in New York to join his latest production in Boston. So far, not many familiar faces are missing from Broadway.

Charles J. Ross and Mabel Fenton are to return to vaudeville. They have signed a contract with Lawrence Weber, under which they will head a company of vaudeville artists next season and will tour. Their specialty will be burlesque. "Du Barry" has been chosen as the principal play to be interpreted in this way, but other successes of this season will come in for a share of attention at their hands. Mr. Ross is now with "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," but Miss Fenton has not been seen on the stage for several seasons.

Judge Lacombe, in the United States circuit court, has granted an injunction restraining the publication by the John Church company of the music and songs taken from Puccini's "Manon Lescaut." Action was brought by Boosey & Co., the resident agents of G. Ricordi & Co., of Milan, who claim the ownership of the opera.

Mrs. Alice Shaw and her 18-year-old daughter Elsie, both of whom are well known in theatrical circles for their whistling abilities, are confined to their home at 116 West Sixty-ninth street, as the result of a fall both sustained last Sunday evening. Mrs. Shaw bruised her head, shoulders and left ankle so that she is unable to use them, and the daughter suffered a fracture of the nose, a bad cut over the left eye and possible internal injuries. Mrs. Shaw and her daughters Elsie and Ethel, were filling an engagement at Hurtig and Seamon's in Harlem. In the rear of the Music hall there is a steep stairway of iron leading to the street. The rain falling at the time made the stairway very slippery. Mrs. Shaw and her daughter, who was endeavoring to raise an umbrella, had not gone more than three steps when those below heard a sharp scream and the next moment were astounded to see a mass of clothing come tumbling down the stairs. When the mother and daughter were picked up they were both badly bruised and much shocked by the fall. Mrs. Shaw will not be able to leave the house for fully a month and Miss Elsie will be confined for perhaps a longer period. As a result of the accident both performers have been compelled to cancel a number of engagements.

Mary B. Evans, a chorus girl in "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," appeared at the funeral of her former husband, Nelson G. Burr, in Binghamton, and announced that she would make a contest for his fortune as his legal wife. Eleven years ago they were divorced, but Miss Evans says her husband obtained the decree by fraud. She says she can produce witnesses who will admit they were paid to swear against her. When Miss Evans was studying for the operatic stage Burr became interested in her and married her. She had to leave him because he would only allow her two dresses a year.

Joseph Haworth is to be seen as a star again next season. He will produce a new religious play called "Corianton," which is the work of a Salt Lake City dramatist. The piece is to be presented for the first time in that city next August.

R. G. Knowles, the former American comedian, but more recently identified with London's variety stage in recent years, has been traveling all winter in the Holy Land, from where he writes that he will make a few London appearances this spring before retiring from the variety stage.

A deal is said to be on which, if it terminates successfully, will afford Charles Dalton, the English actor, so long associated with "The Sign of the Cross" in this country, an opportunity to present "If I Were King" in Australia next season.

Louis Nethersole has been called to London by a cablegram from his sister Olga, announcing her intention to present "Sapho" at the Adelphia theater there on May 2. "Arizone" is holding the stage there, and the prospects of its early closing does not indicate that it has met with as great favor on the other side as it has in this country. Incidentally there is cause for speculation as to how London will take "Sapho."

Reports from San Francisco regarding Elsie Leslie's health state that though still confined to a hospital there she is rapidly regaining her shattered forces, and will soon be well on the road to recovery.

Frank Keenan has closed his tour in "John Grigsby." There is some talk that Keenan will have a new play next season owing to differences with the managers controlling his present vehicle.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Bessie Tyree is to star.

J. J. Rosenthal, who married Kathryn Osterman, has joined the ranks of fathers. The infant and mother are doing well.

Robert Tabor and J. E. Dodson have scored the chief hits in the London production of "Ben Hur."

Nance O'Neil, according to report, made a great success as Magda at the Khedieal theater, Cairo, Egypt, last week. Among the notable persons in the audience were the khedive, Lord and Lady Cromer and the entire diplomatic corps.

"A Chinese Honeymoon," by George Dana, celebrated its 200th performance at the Strand, London, recently.

Ignace J. Paderewski went to Albany last week in an endeavor to secure executive clemency from Governor Odell for Anton Werner, a countryman of his, convicted of murder and now serving a life sentence. The governor has not yet acted upon the appeal.

Katie Emmett, for many seasons identified with the "Waifs of New York," will produce a new play next season, entitled "East and West." In this play Miss Emmett will again don male attire, assuming the role of a boy.

Edwin Stevens, of the Empire Theater Stock company, has decided to return to comic opera, in which line of work he made many brilliant successes in seasons past. He signed a contract last week to sing the role of the emperor in the coming production of "The Chinese Honeymoon." Thomas Q. Seabrooke also signed last week for the same company.

"Joan of Arc," a new play adapted from Edwin Fitzball's melodrama, by Will A. Page and the author, will be given its first production on any stage on May 12 at Washington. The feature will be Morgan Sherwood's fire device, whereby Joan will be burned at the stake in a manner that is terribly realistic. The producers are Sherwood and Denham. There is much local interest.

There has been launched in Kansas City a concern called The Multitude, Incorporated, an association of 100 business men, who have established cooperative stores, with a view of giving each purchaser of $300 worth of their best energies toward securing talent for their benefits, while favorite players with the various stock companies are reaping in a little extra cash to tide them over the dull summer. No less than six different actors of the two stock companies in New Orleans have increased their exchequer from $500 to $700, while in Milwaukee, Kansas City and Omaha benefits have been decidedly numerous. In New York city the fever has not quite struck us, although the treasurer of Weber and Fields netted over $1200 recently on a Sunday night, and in the course of a few weeks there will be any number of beneficiaries, and there will be canvassing of anxious friends in large proportions.

Edwin Knowles, who died last week, was 56 years of age. He made his first appearance in New York in 1867 and for fifteen years afterward he continued to act, playing with Madame Jananschek, Edwin Booth, Fanny Davenport, Frank Mayo, Barry Sullivan, Lawrence Barrett and other noted stars. He was in the famous production of "Henry V" with George Rignold, at Booth's theater, and he appeared as an actor for the last time in the Madison Square theater in "Esmeralda," in 1882. Annie Russell playing the title role. After that Mr. Knowles went into management with Col. Morris and conducted the Grand Opera house in Brooklyn for ten years.

Mrs. Campbell has decided to revisit the United States next season, encouraged by the success of her first tour. But it is not certain that she will return under the management of Liebler & Co. It is said that she "invites offers," as the professional vernacular has it, but she will not consider any that are not decidedly attractive in the financial sense.

It is announced that Martin Harvey is to come to this country in a play next season, and that he will appear in a play entitled "The Children of the King."

Any consideration of the past season's repertoire at the Metropolitan, New York, must call attention to the number of popular operas that were not sung at all this year and to others that have had but a few representations. 'Don Giovanni," one year drew four audiences to the Metropolitan that represented no less than $10,000 each, and as strong a cast could easily be provided next year. "La Boheme" was not sung at all nor was "Il Barbiere di Seviglia." The promised revivals of "L'Africaine" and "Le Prophete" were not made, and the Verdi cycle disappeared altogether on account of the shortness of the season. "Die Meistersinger,' one of the really popular operas in New York, was heard but once and "Goetterdammerung" and "Siegfried" had the same number of representations. "Il Flauto Magico" drew the largest receipts and "Carmen" had the largest number of performances. "Romeo et Juliette," after two audiences of indifferent sizes and one poor audience, showed how completely the opera depends on the presence of Jean de Reszke for success. Without him the public refuses to become interested in the work whoever the prima donna may be. Wagner still led the list of composers, however, even with this tenor absent, and had sixteen representations, while Verdi came in but for nine. If "Manru" had not come so late in the season it would certainly have had more than three representations, and as it was one of these fell outside the subscription, Massenet had but two hearings with "Le Cid," as the proposed person given. In all, there were sixty-eight performances of twenty-five operas. Of these forty-seven were in the subscription and twenty-one outside of it.

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. What the danger was he might not understand, but he would take no chances. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signals of Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a loss of flesh, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends.

Such a condition calls for the prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

"Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie E. Clark, of Enterprise, Shelby Co., Mo. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratefulness to you. I had despaired of ever getting well. I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything I ate distressed me; bowels constipated, was very nervous, depressed and despondent. In fact, I can't express half my bad feelings to you. When I first wrote to you I thought I could never be cured. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my honest recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's."

If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the "pill habit."

In reference to the lights in the saloon buildings, where the proprietors have gone out of business, and have no meters, it was ruled that the parties should either pay for the lights installed, or surrender their rights, and have the lights cut off, or put in meters and pay for what they use at regular rates.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia, April 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council meeting Tuesday night was a very interesting and amusing affair, both to the large number of spectators and to the councilmen. It was expected that the vote on the different applications would be close, but no one ever dreamed that a deadlock awaited our city dads. But it came, and it came in every office sought. First on was the reading of eleven applications for street commissioner. Those desiring this berth were Jacob Johnson, P. Avegannon, Fred Jenkins, John Harrington, Jabot Hafver, George Ryan, Matt Sulkanan, Hans Anderson, James Sullivan, Emanuel Lonpqvist and Ed Aska. The vote sifted down to two, Johnson and Gannon, and remained four to four for four ballots. The appointment of street commissioner was laid over until the next meeting, by mutual consent. The next on the program was the reading of applications from Assessor M. Sweeney, John Holmberg, David C. Christopher and A. E. Dunsmore, for city assessor. Mr. Steinberg and Mr. Holmberg were, according to outward appearances, in for the race, and three votes for assessor elected the matter to come up again next week. So the council undertook to settle the fire chief fight and found that in this, also, they were running up against a deadlock. This match was between Joseph W. Deering and Edward Johnson, two members of the department. After two votes were taken on fire chief it was decided to abstrack any attempt to come to any agreement and there appeared to be no use in trying to break the deadlock, so the matter was continued for another week. Dr. Miller and Dr. Crowe were looking for health officer, but the council had enough ties and laid it over. Then up jumped the two printers, Cuppernull and Hannaford, with a consolidated bid to the city printing at half legal rates each, that is, for the council proceedings; Mr. Hannaford to do all legal publishing and be designated as the official paper, and Mrs. Cuppernull to do all job printing. The members of the council began to look at their time-pieces about that time and just to make everything harmonize, they took a vote and to the surprise of all, that too proved a tie, and was left over. But the deadlock vanished when Mayor Eaton read his police appointments. They were Charles Granberg for chief of police, Owen Gatley and John Lisowsky for patrolmen. The appointments were confirmed, the new officers sworn in and they went away rejoicing. The ways and means committee made a report to the effect that they had met and figured up the probable receipts of the coming year and found it to be about $20,250, and the expenditures to be about $16,000.

BASEBALL IN TANGLE

Warfare On Sunday Games May Stop the Game In Duluth.

Business Men Who Take An Interest In the Game Object to Being Called "Hoboes" By Rev. Knowles.

The local baseball situation is still badly tangled.

Arrangements are made for an expensive ground and a fast team is already signed.

Certain church people of the West End say that Sunday ball will not be tolerated.

These church people, through their spokesman, Rev. Harry Knowles, probably went a little too far in referring to all persons that attend Sunday games as "hoboes and the lawless element."

In fact the Sunday games have been attended by some of the best and most influential business men of the city in the past and this one statement has caused these same business men to inaugurate a movement to fight the West End Civic Federation.

Manager Van Praagh is not nearly so radical in putting forward his cause as those that have opposed the Sunday games thus far. He simply says that there is no more harm in a well-ordered game of baseball on Sunday than in any of the many other recreations, and not nearly so much harm as in having saloons open on that day.

Several times the question has been asked as to where the administration would be likely to stand. The present administration is not opposed to Sunday baseball when the games are conducted in a perfectly honorable manner, but if a protest is made there is no alternative but to stop the game. The grounds this year are to be located just east of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern trestle at Thirty-first avenue west. The grand stand which is planned would be a credit to the city.

"There is no more pleasant sensation known to mankind than that of being knocked down in a boxing match," says Champion "Tommy" Ryan in the Kansas City Star. "To the tired and discouraged fighter, helplessly awaiting the end, it is the sweetest sensation imaginable. The sensation a man has when he is knocked down is about the same as that which goes with 'hitting the pipe' or riding in a rubber-tired carriage. The reaction comes when the worsted man recovers and is far from pleasant."

While Ryan's knowledge of the sensation following the final blow has come to him almost entirely through hearing his vanquished opponents of the prize ring describe it, he has made the subject a study, and therefore knows whereof he speaks.

Regarding the knockout blow of modern boxing, Ryan says, if delivered correctly and at the proper angle, it is absolutely painless to the man who goes down and out. The final blow used by up-to-date boxers is not the old time John L. Sullivan vicious swing. It is a scientific, lightning-like short jab, delivered from a forearm action of not more than a few inches, and landed when a man is advancing to strike. The blow and its recipient meet half way, and the result is a sudden jar which, Ryan says, makes the victim enter at once upon a dream of home, beautiful women or "plate glass booze bars," just as his habits and tendencies dictate.

"There are some mistaken ideas about the knockout blow existing in the minds of people ignorant of the ways of modern boxing," said Ryan to a reporter of the Star. "People seem to think that because a man is put out suddenly he suffers pain in receiving the blow. Such is not the case. When a high strung fighter or a tired one gets his sleeping medicine the sensation before he dozes off might be compared to that of a man who has been carrying a mill stone feels when he is relieved of his weight. Have you ever felt, 'Well, I've done my best and it has done no good—now I am going to give it up and sleep?' Well, there you have the feeling of the boxer who goes down and out. The knockout sensation is pleasant. I believe it is the same as the death sensation."

Discussing the modern forearm jab which he and other boxers use in putting their men to sleep, Ryan said: "It is a gentleman's blow—not a bruiser's. There are perhaps 500 fighters in the world today, of which perhaps ten are scientific men. These use the short arm jab. The vital points which a clever boxer tries to reach with his infighting jab are the point of the chin, the jugular vein and the pit of the stomach. The short arm jab or hook on the point of the jaw, at the proper angle, jars the brain and stops the man. The jugular vein blow hinders the flow of blood to the heart to a certain extent and does the work nicely. The stomach short arm blow is just as effective as either of the others, and is perhaps easier to land. The hardest of the three blows to execute is the jugular blow, however, as the vein is guarded so closely by the chin and head movements of the alert fighter."

There are other kinds of short arm jabs used in boxing, but the three mentioned are the ones most universally used by good boxers. The chin and jugular vein jabs can be successfully landed while the antagonistic fighter is swinging for the head, or when both men are infighting. The stomach blow comes in handiest when the head fighting is being pushed and when the other man is watching for punishment above the collar bones. All three of the short arm jabs are swift, and almost unnoticeable by all except the men in the ring, and they are the surest blows scientific fighters use.

Ryan says the short arm blow, when successfully used, is frequently the cause of claims of fake from the audience. "They do not see the blow struck," he said, "and they therefore think the man who drops and is counted out is faking. That was the case in my last fight with 'Mysterious Billy Smith.' I finished him with a short arm jab, which did not look steamy enough from the audience to do the work. They thought Billy was faking and yelled 'fake' at us. Smith was out good and proper. The fight was entirely on the square, but the jab fooled 'em and they went home thinking we had things fixed.

"Boxing has changed wonderfully in the last ten years," continued Ryan. "Nowadays a man fights with his head and feet. In the days of the old London prize ring rules, when Sullivan and his class of men fought, it was brute force that counted. In those days a 50-round fight was common. Now fights seldom last over fifteen rounds at the most. The scientific short arm work finishes them in short order when properly used. Jeffries fights with the close in, short, crouching methods that I use, and which were practically unknown ten years ago. In all the years that I have been fighting I have never been in a brutal slugging match yet, and never will be in one."

Ryan thinks that modern boxing methods should have one amendment added to make them practically perfect. hTe additional rule, he thinks, should be one authorizing referees to declare a man out when he it stil on his feet, but going. In other words, he thinks the referee should stop a fight when he sees that one man is not holding his own.

"It should not be necessary for a boxer to knock his man down and keep him down," said he. "A referee should be a man who can see when a man is losing, and he should have a right to stop the fight and force the weakening man to throw up the sponge. Of course, I suppose there would be complaints from those who had their money on the loser, but the referee's decision should be final. I do not believe in knocking men senseless to win, yet I have done it under the present way of fighting."

In connection with his discussion of the short arm knockout blow Ryan tells a story of a New York newspaper man named Wright who once called on him and insisted that he be shown exactly how a man is put out with the chin blow. Ryan explained the blow as well as he could but the newspaper man was not satisfied, and insisted that he be shown.

"I just tapped him lightly on the chin," said Ryan, "and he sank back in his chair and was out for about a minute. When he came to he was the maddest man I ever saw. What else could I have done for him? He insisted on my showing him how to knock a man out with the chin blow, and I did it. Jeffries was there and he laughed until the tears came. The newspaper man wrote a good description of the blow, however."

Nine titled members of the Vienna Jockey club, charged with gambling at Vienna in contravention of the law have been fined 1000 crowns each. The trial arose from the great gambling at the Jockey club, Dec. 21, when Count Joseph Potocki, a Russian nobleman, lost $66,-000. Potocki and two other foreigners, in addition to being fined, have been permanently banished from Austria.

The Pittsburg players are very fortunate. They have a special car, where the players have all the comforts of home. They also have a chef and accommodations that surpass an ordinary hotel.

"Scientific batters are rare, but batting can be taught, and any player who will conscientiously apply himself can learn just as he can learn anything else," said an old-time baseball player in the Boston Herald.

"Good batters, as a rule, are naturally gaited that way, but the poorer ones can be coached, and their faults can be eradicated if they have been acquired; but some fine baseball players are miserable batters, and particularly is this true of pitchers. One of the fastest men on his feet in the country, Tom Brown, who played with the Boston team of the National league, Players' league and American association, lost his grip entirely on account of his bad form in hitting."

"Any man can be improved in batting if shown his weak points in a proper way," says the well-known ex-player, Arthur Irwin. "Look at men like Kelley, Keeler, McGraw and Jennings, all former members of the great Baltimore team. They are all students of the game. They can hit in any direction and can bunt to perfection. They studied the game and the art of batting. They saw the necessity of doing away with all superfluous motions when at the bat. They practiced morning after morning, and actually worked harder in the morning than they did in the afternoon. They knew that by doing so they were making themselves more valuable. These men coached each other. They felt free to call attention to anything in a comrade that looked like bad form."

The most difficult thing in the world is for the managers to develop the minor leaguer into the proper style of batsman. A good batsman must learn to hit all kinds of pitched balls. That is the secret of batting. The great thing in baseball nowadays is team hitting. The men must work together as a unit, and anyone who fails to do his part in this sort of thing militates against the discipline and success of his club. Generally the minor leaguer has had no coaching at all. The veteran has got where he is simply on what he has picked up himself and through observation. Nowadays the youngster can profit by this sort of thing, and can find out the weak points in which he is perfectly obvious, and improve upon them. "You have no idea" says Arthur Irwin, "how difficult it is to coach some men. You can't get them to believe that there is anything wrong with their form. Why, I had to take one man before a photographer and illustrate to him through the prints wherein he was lacking before I could get him to believe that everything he was doing was not all right."

"It is a wonderful thing," continued Irwin, "with the immense population of this country, with players developing from cities, towns and colleges, with the intelligence of the professional ballplayer on the increase, how few become first-class ballotsers. Yet I believe that there are as many first-class players outside the ranks as are in the same today. The man who has the best chance to develop is the man with speed. It was speed that took 'Patsey' Donovan off an express wagon and put him into the game."

McGraw was for two seasons a substitute on the Baltimore team before he was taken on regularly. When he left Davenport, Iowa, to go to Baltimore, he said: "I think I will be the best player in the world, because I will work."

Perhaps the spirit of Retribution is pinning a few crepe rosettes on Ned Hanlon. There is no question in the world but that the New York club expected the Brooklyn manager to handle the Giants this year. That dream of conquest turned out to be a nightmare, for the manager of the champions decided to remain with his old love. No club in the National league—Philadelphia perhaps excepted—has suffered such a loss as Brooklyn.

The Quaker defections came lumped, but Ned Hanlon has been getting his bumps in volleys. Brooklyn has lost eight men since last fall. Tom Daly and Joe Kelley simply bolted the reserve, but Joss, Mullin, Gachnauer and Knight, of the new dispensation, and McGuire and Sheckard, of the old, jumped contracts.

Of Ned Hanlon's famous old champion aggregation which won two flags for Brooklyn, only three are left. The lone survivors are Capt. Billy Keeler, Charley Farrell and Billy Dahlen. All the rest save two are with the American league—Jay Hughes, who may return to Brooklyn, and Dr. McJames, who is dead. If new faces are conducive to baseball fortune Brooklyn ought to draw the curious this year, for Ned Hanlon's reputation is an issue. He was the manager who turned a lot of selling players into champions at Baltimore, and now the jealous ones are saying that Hugh Jennings and Joe Keeley were the brains of the birds, for Hanlon won flags for Brooklyn after he had said farewell to McGraw.

The last of the "Big Four"—Keeler—is in command of the field for Brooklyn, and the part that the Trolley Dodgers will play in the campaign of 1902 will be watched with no little interest all through Fandom.

STARTLING

Operations That Restored Sight of Old Man and Baby.

Toledo, Ohio, April 19.—Two remarkable operations on eyes were performed at St. Vincent's hospital Tuesday. The sight of James McAfee, aged 75, who has been totally blind for a number of years, was restored today. Mr. McAfee's eyes had been destroyed in an explosion of gunpowder about twelve years ago, and since that time he has been totally blind. The physicians removed the blind eyes from their sockets, rubbed them, cut off a scum that had accumulated, brushed, the eyes cleaned and replaced them in their sockets.

Mr. McAfee blinked for a few seconds, rubbed his eyes, and to the astonishment of everybody present announced that he could see as well as he did before his eyesight was destroyed. The physicians tested him for a few minutes in regard to color, and gave him knots of spun wool colored in varied hues to make comparisons and selections from, and he did so without a mistake. After the tests the physicians darkened the eyes so that the light might not destroy them. It is considered the most remarkable operation ever performed here. Drs. Lawless and Bodman had charge of it.

Another equally as startling an operation was that of Peter F. Whalen's 16-months'-old baby, which was born blind. The same physicians removed the eyes of the child, cleaned them, cut off a scum that resembled the shell of a nut and then replaced the eyes. To the surprise of everybody the child began to observe things. Various devices were resorted to in order to prove that the child had the full possession of its eyesight, and all showed it did. The eyes of both patients will remain covered for some time, and by means of darkened glasses will be gradually introduced to the brilliancy of daylight.

THREE WIVES

Compared Notes and Terry Was Arrested For Bigamy.

Sandusky, Ohio, April 19.—George Terry, who was arrested at Olena, Huron county, on an indictment for bigamy, has had an interesting matrimonial career in this city and county. Terry, it is said, now has three living wives and a divorced wife, who resides in Cleveland. For more than twenty years he has lived a double life, apparently, and not until three weeks ago was he detected.

Terry married Cora Rickard in this city in 1879, and the two moved to Wood county. After a few years Terry left her with her three little children, and only occasionally since then has he visited her, while he contributed but little to her support.

Three years ago he came here and secured employment as a coachman. His marriage had been forgotten and he soon wooed and won Margaret Miller, a poor but handsome girl. A few months of wedded life and Terry tired of it and again departed, stating that he would look for better work. He continued to write letters and, as is now stated, was also writing to his first wife in Wood county. When a child was born to the second wife, proceedings were commenced in the courts to compel him to support the two and he agreed. But he soon disappeared again and was not located until about three weeks ago. Then it was learned that he had married a third girl, Daisy Fish, near Norwalk, with whom he was living. The three women compared notes and the indictment for bigamy followed.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST.

Saved to Wed a Girl Who Is Dead.

Wapakoneta, Ohio, April 19.—John Nickol, employed by the St. Mary's Machine company, has left for his home in Marburg, Hessen, Germany. Two years ago Nickol left his fatherland to seek his fortune in America, leaving behind a sweetheart, whom he promised to return and wed as soon as he had earned enough for a good start in life. Nickol has been working hard, and was about ready to return to Germany, when he received a letter that his bride-to-be was dead. Broken-hearted he packed up at once for his journey home.

Benjamin Rauck Has Filed Suit For Divorce.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, April 19.—The novel spectacle of a husband suing for divorce from a woman who is at once his wife and his stepmother, was presented here when Benjamin Rauck filed his complaint. The defendant was at one time the wife of Rauck's father.

In his petition for legal separation Rauck alleges that his wife, Almeda, absents herself from home, three months at a time. He claims she has told him that he is "not as good as a nigger." He further sets forth that his wife is living with Robert Martin, of Sycamore, Ohio.

The defendant has been married three times.

BIG EARS

Led to Arrest of Fuller Wanted For Embezzlement.

Akron, Ohio, April 19.—Frank E. Fuller, the young agent of the Adams Express company at Hudson, who absconded Feb. 7 with $5000 in mutilated currency, which an Akron bank was shipping to Washington, reached Akron in charge of G. A. Curtiss, superintendent of the Adams company at Columbus, from Red Oak, where he was captured Saturday. The young man pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was bound over to the grand jury. He devoted the rest of the day to playing a mouth organ. Fuller's brother Fred, who confessed to receiving $1000 of the stolen money, is now locked up in Red Oak.

It was Fuller's unusually large ears which led to his capture. At St. Paul Curtiss found on a hotel register the name "F. L. Foster," the writing of which he thought he recognized as Fuller's, but the description of "Foster" did not tally with that of Fuller till the landlord of the place mentioned "Foster's" immense ears. "Fuller beyond a doubt," said Curtiss, and four days later he had his man.

"It is all off," said Fuller when he saw Curtiss at Red Oak, and at once acknowledged everything, saying he had for some time contemplated getting away with a large sum. He denied there was a woman in the case. Only $125 of the $5000 taken by Fuller has been recovered. He had bought a billiard parlor in Red Oak and was living in luxurious fashion. His room was filled with jewelry, fine clothes, guns, knives and trinkets.

"He spent money as a 10-year-old boy might have done," says Curtiss, "and had a mania for mouth organs."

It cost the Adams Express company $2000 to apprehend Fuller. He is 22 years old and came of a respected family in Hudson.

An Explanation.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Some time ago the editor of Home and Flowers, at Springfield, Ohio, wrote asking the improvement association to forward any park views which might be had here.

I replied by sending him a copy of "Picturesque Duluth," a leaflet distributed throughout the schools last summer, treating on how to beautify Duluth, together with photographs of Park Point, Cascade square and Lincoln park. There was not a slightest intimation that the Improvement association was entitled to any credit for the beauty of Cascade and Lincoln park, the improvement of which is entirely due to the park board of this city.

Seemingly the only way to treat editors who make such blunders is to ignore their applications for pictures by sending them nothing.

BARBARIC TREATMENT

Of Filipinos Is Admitted By a Lieutenant.

Water Cure Caused Old Men's Teeth to Fall Out.

Washington, April 21.—The senate committee on the Philippines today resumed the examination of witnesses in connection with the affairs in the islands. Grover Flint, of Cambridge, Mass., who served as a first lieutenant of the Thirty-fourth volunteer infantry, testified that in May, 1900, he had been a witness of the water cure, as administered to the natives by the Maccabebe scouts and that this was done to get information as to the whereabouts of their guns. The guns were delivered. The following day some men of his own regiment applied the cure, but their act was without the authority of their commanding officers. The Maccabebes at the time referred to were not under command of a commanding officer, but under a sergeant of the United States army. Flint had been, he said, a witness to at least twenty cases of water cure. He never had seen any one die as a result of the cure, but seen a hospital corps man working on a native who had been rendered unconscious. It also had been reported to him that one of the natives died from the effects of the cure. Witness then described the method of administering the cure and said that in some cases where it was given to old men he had seen their teeth fall out. Mr. Flint, in response to a question by Senator Dietrich, said he was present upon these occasions to draw the line on excesses. He did not recommend to his major that the practice cease, nor did he give any orders to his men to stop the torture.

Answering a question by Senator Burrows, the witness declared that the effect of the cure was immediate, the victim invariably turning in his gun or a bolo and giving information as to the whereabouts of others. He said it was impossible to judge whether the victims were insurgents or peasants, but they appeared to be peaceable barrios or villagers. Some of them were thrown down by force, others who were timid would submit readily, while those who resisted were simply held the more tightly. The treatment, he said, never got to the point of great brutality.

Replying to a question by Senator Lodge, the witness said he had been refused a commission in the regular army because his colonel had reported him as using intoxicating liquors to excess. The witness deplored the raising of this question, but Senator Beveridge said it had an important bearing on the case. Witness said that on none of the occasions when he had witnessed the water cure was he under the influence of liquor. He thought in justice to himself he ought to state that he never got drunk, but had been a careless drinker. He had, he said, released several men who did not appear to him to be insurrectos.

Maj. Geary of his regiment was also present, but had not interfered in the administering of the cure. After considerable questioning, he finally admitted he approved of the water cure and, responding to a query by Senator Beveridge, said that it was not an American invention, but was as old as the Chronicles of Newgate." Asked regarding Filipinos in guard houses, he said they were treated exactly the same as American prisoners, except that they were supplied with food, which they were accustomed to, and not with the army ration.

The witness described the burning of small villages, the idea being, he said, to drive the people to the woods or to the towns and concentrate them.

"Who did the army borrow that from?" inquired Senator Culberson.

"I saw it in Cuba," answered the witness, "under the authority of Gen. Weyler."

Witness was then excused, and the committee went into executive session.

SMASHED A SYNAGOGUE

People On the East Side of New York Decline to Take Advice of Attorney Jerome and a Riot Follows.

New York, April 21.—In his capacity as a friendly adviser for the people of the East Side, among whom he is living, District Attorney Jerome has been called on to settle a dispute over the possession of a synagogue at 122 Monroe street. Mr. Jerome counseled peace, but his advice was not taken, as a tremendous row started there about two hours later. Doors were smashed in, windows broken and the interior of the synagogue was wrecked. At one time two score men were fighting all over the place. A great crowd gathered in the street and the police reserves came. After a little difficulty they arrested a dozen men, who were supposed to be responsible for the disturbance. Then the police ejected everybody from the synagogue and took possession, which they will retain until the dispute is settled in the courts. The congregation purchased the property some time ago, making a partial payment. They shortly afterward claimed the building extended upon another property and refused to complete the payment until the tangle was straightened. The matter was taken into the courts. The owner finally barred out the worshippers who, despite Mr. Jerome's advice, broke in the doors and attacked the owner and his party.

When the police arrived, a fair-sized riot was in progress. The landlord and a dozen others were arrested.

WANTED MORE STOCK

British Members of the New Shipping Corporation Desired to Subscribe More Heavily to Morgan's New Syndicate.

London, April 21.—The allotments of stock in the new shipping corporation was all taken up by British members of the syndicate at noon today. What proportion was given to Europe the Morgans decline to announce, but evidently it was not nearly so large as desired by the British interests. J. Pierpont Morgan is now in Paris, but from members of the firm the Associated Press learns that the shipping corporation will be run almost exactly on the same lines as the United States Steel corporation, each branch retaining its individuality, but being subject to the control of a directing body. The statements intended for the stockholders of the new corporation, regarding earnings, management, etc., will be issued by a method similar to the one employed by the steel corporation.

Regarding the defection of the Cunard, Allan, Anchor and French steamship lines, the Morgan views are as follows: "It remains to be seen whether they will come in. We think it is rather a good thing in some respects not to get everybody in at the beginning, the idea being that the present combine is quite big enough to start with, and it is better to get it down to a practical, working basis before being too anxious to make a clean sweep."

Anent the possible refusal of the British and continental shareholders to ratify the directors' action, the Associated Press is authoritatively informed that no such contingent is possible, as the corporation already owns a controlling financial interest in each line, and so far, no indications of discontent on the part of the shareholders over the prospective conversion of their present securities have been noticed.

BLIND TO LEAD THE BLIND

New York, April 21.—An unique wedding ceremony has just been celebrated in Brooklyn. Richard Felming and Delphine Hinchman, both blind from birth, were married. The couple met only a few months ago and are said by their friends to have been mutually attracted through the sounds of each other's voices. Fleming, despite his affliction, conducts a large manufacturing business.

ARE TO INVESTIGATE FAKE

Milwaukee, April 21.—The postal authorities, at the request of the local police, have begun an investigation of the alleged fake detective agencies which are said to make their headquarters in this city. Applicants are said to be made detectives on payment of $3, but are not given employment. Complaints have been received from Detroit, Brooklyn and Kansas, Ohio and New York cities.

AN EARLY HOT WAVE

Unseasonable Weather Prevails In the West and Southwest.

Chicago Is Feeling the Effects of the Heat.

Unless Rain Comes Wheat Will Be Seriously Injured.

Chicago, April 21.—Chicago is feeling the effects of the hot wave that developed in the West yesterday. The thermometer at 9 o'clock registered 67 degrees. Relief, however, for a great portion of the Central West is expected today. Professor Walsh of the United States weather bureau says a storm area of considerable magnitude is gathering over Missouri, Iowa and Illinois. Because of the excessive and unseasonable warmth thundershowers are expected. Particular interest in the weather is manifested by local grain speculators and many have expressed the fear that unless rain comes to the relief of the winter wheat fields, troublous times will ensue on the board of trade.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 21.—The hot wave which struck this city yesterday continues. At 7 o'clock this morning the mercury stood at 76 degrees. Two hours later it had crawled up to 82 with prospects of reaching a record-breaking height before night. Intermittent storms of dust accompanied the heat.

Kansas City, April 21.—The hot south winds that swept over the better part of Kansas yesterday prevailed again today and this morning no reports of rain had been received at the weather office. Damage to grains of all kind will doubtless result. The temperature at Florence and Abilene, in Central Kansas and Hiawatha in the northeastern corner, ranged from 90 to 96 degrees above in the shade yesterday and the prospects today are for a repetition of this weather. The ground generally is reported dry and hard and badly in need of rain. The midsummer weather experienced in Kansas City yesterday when the thermometer rose 32 degrees in seven hours, from 59 to 91, prevails today with perhaps a slightly cooler wind.

The weather bureau at 10:30 this morning reported that the only promise of relief in the next twenty-four hours in the West were in occasional showers. The highest temperature reported yesterday was 100 at Concordia. Other highest in Kansas were: Hays, 99; Dresden, 95; Fort Scott, 94; Dodge City, 92; Baker, 96; Manhattan, 97; McPherson, 96; Osage City, 93; Toronto, 96; Wichita, 92.

Oklahoma—Enid, 90.

Omaha, April 21.—The temperature this morning at 8 o'clock was a trifle cooler than yesterday at the same time, but the heat is still oppressive and quite unseasonable. The mercury stood at 72, two degrees below Sunday. At Valentine it registered 44, against 48 yesterday morning. A high wind prevails in Omaha and throughout most of the state. The indications are that the day will be as hot as Sunday.

DIFFERENCE

Of Opinion On Candidate For Presidency Of Women's Clubs.

Minneapolis, April 21.—There seems to be some difference of opinion whether Minnesota will have a candidate for the presidency of the big club meet of women at Los Angeles next month. Mrs. Lowe, the present federation president, is to go out of office, as no general president can be in office more than two terms.

The Times today says: "The candidates mentioned for president are Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, of the California federation, and Mrs. Lydia P. Williams, of the Minnesota federation. The second question of great concern to Minnesota is the fact that Mrs. Williams is to present an invitation in the name of the Minneapolis club women for the next biennial meeting to be held in Minneapolis. Opposition will be strong in both instances, and the women are expected to witness an exciting meeting.

"Three special cars have been engaged to take the Minnesota delegates out West. They will leave on Thursday morning for Kansas City and from there via the Santa Fe to California."

THIRD LEVEE

Held By King Edward at St. James' Palace.

London, April 21.—King Edward held his third levee today at St. James palace, to which he proceeded for the first time from Buckingham palace. The public took full advantage of the greater possibilities of viewing the procession afforded by the longer route.

The levee was moderately attended. United States Ambassador Choate and the other members of the United States embassy were among the diplomats present. Otherwise no Americans were presented to his majesty.

RESERVE RULE

In Baseball Leagues Held To Be Legal.

Philadelphia, April 21.—The supreme court today reversed the decision of the court of common pleas No. 5, in the case of Napoleon La Jole vs. the Philadelphia National League Baseball club. This decision upholds the validity of the reserve clause in the National league contract. La Jole, who formerly played second base for the National league club in this city, signed with the Philadelphia American League club for the season of 1901 and 1902. The Philadelphia baseball team, through Treasurer John P. Rogers, entered suit to restrain La Jole from playing with the American league. The lower court held that the reserve clause was illegal and Col. Rogers carried the case to the supreme court where the decision was reversed. If this decision stands it will affect all players who were subject to the reserve rule and who are now playing with the American league.

QUEEN WILHELMINA OF HOLLAND, WHO IS VERY ILL.

The Hague, April 21.—The following bulletin was posted this morning at Castle Loo: "The queen slept part of the night and is taking some more nourishment. Her general condition is satisfactory." Prince Henry went for a ride this morning, for the first time since her majesty's illness. This was taken to be a favorable sign.

WASHINGTON MAY FILE

Is Granted Permission to Enter An Original Bill For Injunction Against the Merger In the Supreme Court.

Washington, April 21.—The United States supreme court today granted leave to the state of Washington to file an original bill for an injunction against the Great Northern Railroad company, the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and the Northern Securities company, in accordance with the petition of that state recently filed in the court.

The opinion in the case was delivered by Chief Justice Fuller, who stated that the court had always exercised the utmost care in its proceedings in original cases, and that the present decision to grant leave to file was intended to be entirely without prejudice to either party at interest.

COURTMARTIAL IS ORDERED

Manila, April 21.—A court-martial has been ordered for the trial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith, who was in command of the United States troops on the island of Samar. Gens. Lloyd Wheaton, Samuel S. Sumner, James M. Bell and William H. Bisbee, and Cols. Chambers McKibbin, William A. Rafferty, William E. Dougherty, Alfred C. Markley and Jesse M. Lee, compose the court. The judge advocate is Maj. Harvey G. Carbaugh. Col. Charles A. Woodruff will appear for the defense. The charge brought against Gen. Smith is conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline The trial will begin Thursday.

MUST NOT INTERFERE

Cincinnati, April 21.—Judge Collster at noon issued a temporary injunction against the local union of engineers and firemen and the International Union of Engineers and Firemen and the officers and executive council of the American Federation of Labor from any interference with contracts which employes have with the brewery proprietors and from interrupting the business of the breweries.

Secretary Morrison arrived here today to carry out the decision rendered by the national council at Washington last week, in the controversy between the stationary engineers and the United Brewery Workmen that has for weeks locked out 1200 of the latter. Some brewery proprietors insist on retaining their new men and want them admitted to the union, which will prevent the reinstatement of all the old men. Secretary Morrison, while recognizing the engineers as independent of the United Brewery Workers, insists that the engineers shall not furnish steam in breweries when non-union men are employed. It has been reported that application will be made for an injunction against the engineers and today it is said that a restraining order may be asked for against Secretary Morrison if further proceedings are taken that will interfere with the five-year contracts recently entered into between the engineers and brewers.

HIS HORSE HIS ONLY FRIEND

St. Paul, April 21.—A La Crosse, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: To keep his wife from getting a divorce Herman Fuscher, for 17 years a drayman of this city, committed suicide by hanging in the manger beside his old horse which he said was the only friend he had. The wife began divorce proceedings some weeks ago on the ground of cruel treatment and it was to have come up at next month's term of court. He told her she would never get it. He is sixty years old and lived here for 35 years.

FORTY-TWO HOUSES BURNED

Eau Claire, Wis., April 21.—The barn of the Daniel Shaw Lumber company, containing forty-two horses, was burned Saturday midnight. The origin of the fire is unknown. The blaze had gained much headway when it was discovered and the watchman and firemen were unable to rescue any of the horses. The building also contained a lot of logging outfits and supplies which were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $10,000; partially covered by insurance.

FEARED EMPLOYE LOST LIFE

Buffalo, April 21.—The freight sheds on Greene street below the New York Central Railroad company's Exchange street station, were burned early today. They were occupied by the American, United States, and National Express companies and the New York Central Railroad company, and were said to have been well filled with freight. Five cars of express freight which were being unloaded, several rows of train sheds erected for the Pan-American service, a number of cars, mail and passenger and the building in which was located the commissary department of the New York Central and Lake Shore roads, were also destroyed. Charles Hendrickson, a clerk of the United States Express company, is reported missing. It is said the loss will exceed $150,000.

PERISHED IN FLAMES

A Frightful Casualty On a River Steamer.

Mississippi Packet Burned to Water's Edge.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—The following is a new and revised list of names of the missing passengers who were aboard the steamer City of Pittsburg, burned yesterday morning at Turner's Landing, K.:

Missing passengers: Capt. Wes Doss, Cincinnati, body recovered; Miss Mary Tissium, Connelton, Ind., body recovered; three children of Mrs. Fannie McCullom, Leavenworth, Ind., one body recovered; Patrick Burt, wife and ten children, of Owensboro, Ky., one child only survives of family of thirteen; a child of Pilot Al Prichard; Clay Breezel, wife and son, of Uniontown, Ky.; child of Archer M. Allen, Pittsburg; G. Greey, Cloverport, Ky.; Mrs. Smith, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. T. Adams, Jamestown, O.; Mr. Leach, La Salle, Ill.

Capt. J. M. Phillips, master of the boat, cannot give any explanation of the fire, but thinks it possible the insulation of one of the electric wires may have been cut and the wire exposed. Capt. Phillips floated ashore on a feed trough, his limbs having become cramped, rendering swimming impossible.

Capt. Dana Scott, chief clerk, says all the crew who were lost were good swimmers, and he cannot account for their loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Archer Allen, of Pittsburg, were taken from the relief boat Kilgore and brought to the Holliday hotel here. They are heartbroken over the loss of their only child, and are suffering from wounds caused by wreckage striking them. Their condition is most pitiable.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—Although no complete list of either the victims or of the survivors is yet obtainable, investigation today indicates that almost one-half of the 150 people on the City of Pittsburg were lost when that ill-fated steamer was burned yesterday at Ogden's Landing, between this city and Paducah. Many of those who were brought to this city are suffering from injuries brought on by exposure and fright. The number aboard was about equally divided between passengers and crew, the latter suffering the greatest loss in casualties. The names of many of the "roustabouts" were not known, and the number drowned or burned is not likely ever to be ascertained. The fire started in the lower part of the steamer in the freight material, or possibly in the engine room, and shut off the means of escape there, while passengers jumped overboard from the upper decks. Within ten minutes of the discovery of fire at 4 a. m., survivors say the upper decks were swept by flames and passengers were penned in all sides, even the life preservers being cut off by the flames. The panic that followed caused a greater loss of life than would have ensued if the officers could have controlled the terror-stricken people. Some rushed through the flames and perished; others fainted and sank down to be cremated. Many, in their night robes, some afire, jumped overboard and were drowned. Those that got into the boats saw others drowning as their overcrowded craft pulled to shore. The barely clad survivors on the shore not only witnessed horrifying sights around the charred hull, but also suffered from early morning till relief came in the afternoon. The captain says there were sixty-six passengers, not including a dozen babies. There was as many women as men in the cabin, and the indications are that the greater percentage of losses was among the women and children. As the register with all other records was burned, and the survivors scattered in every direction, there is

TWO CITIES DESTROYED

Earthquakes In Guatemala Wrecked the Capitals of Two Departments, Killing Many People and Ruining the Towns.

New York, April 21.—The three earthquakes on Friday night reduced to ruins Quesaltenango, the second city of importance in Guatemala, and having 25,000 inhabitants, and completely destroyed the town of Amatillan, says a Guatemala City (Guatemala) dispatch to the Herald. Both of these towns were capitals of the departments of the same name each bears. It is said many persons were killed in Quesaltenango, but the rumor lacks confirmation. The exact loss of life cannot now be ascertained. News of the destruction, which extended 100 miles along the western part of the republic, is coming in slowly, because all of the telegraph wires are down.

It is known that Amatillan exists no more as a town, the seismic disturbance having been so great. The inhabitants —that is, those of the 10,000 residents who escaped death in the Cataclysm—are camping in the open air for safety, not daring to return to the ruined confines of the town. Some of the inhabitants are building temporary mud huts.

More news has been obtained about the condition of affairs at Amatillan than at Quesaltenango, as the former is only fifteen miles south of this city, while the latter is more than 100 miles to the northwest.

Couriers say earthquake shocks are still being felt at short intervals in the neighborhood of Quesaltenango.

There have been serious seismic disturbances along the Cordillera, affecting towns and villages between Amatillan and Quesaltenango. No reliable information regarding loss of life or extent of property destruction in these intermediate places has reached here. Slight disturbances were felt at Guatemala City, but no great damage resulted.

TWELVE BEET SUGAR PLANTS

Milwaukee, April 21.—Twelve beet sugar manufacturing plants, each with a daily capacity of 500 tons of beets, and costing in the aggregate of over $5,000,000, will be built in different parts of Wisconsin next fall by Wisconsin and Michigan capitalists, who own and control the Menominee Falls Beet Sugar company.

R. J. Wagner, president and general manager of the Menominee Falls plant, who is at the head of the syndicate, will build the plants. He says the sites for the plants had been decided on, the places selected being Beaver Dam, Watertown, Kaukauna, Ripon, Oconto, Dorchester, La Crosse and Racine.

BEGIN WASHING OUT GOLD

Tacoma, April 21.—Dawson telegrams state that melting snows have formed streams sufficient to permit clean-up operations. The washing out of gold commenced last week and will keep up for two months. During the winter the greatest dumps in the camp's history have been thrown upon the banks of creeks, insuring an aggregate clean-up estimated at $30,000,000. The flow of gold toward Puget sound will commence in May.

The Ottawa government last week ordered the Klondike authorities to throw open for entry 4000 elapsed and abandoned claims, which are withdrawn from the Treadgold concession. The gold commissioner's office is rushed with men recording abandoned claims they have staked.

TO UTILIZE ELECTRICITY

Chicago, April 21.—By order of President Hill, Great Northern engineers have taken up the question of early utilization of water in the Cascade mountains for generation of electric power with which to operate Great Northern trains across the Cascade mountains for a distance of 100 miles, is the statement made by the Tacoma, Wash., correspondent of the Inter-Ocean.

During the past month the Great Northern engineers have been locating water power rights and power house rights on the rivers and creeks in the Cascade mountains, contiguous to two-mile cascade tunnel, which the railroad finished last year. The third rail system will be used.

DEAL IS CLOSED

Kinney-Hawkins - Crosby Property Passes to Deering Company.

Amount Paid to the Holders of Lease Is $525,000.

Duluth Men Get Handsome Sums Out Of the Sale.

The lease to the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby-Pearce mine today became the property of the Deering Harvester Works company of Chicago. The amount of the consideration—$525,000—was paid over in cash to the former owners of the mining leases.

The property was taken under option about three months ago by the Eastern Minnesota people, who were acting for the Deering company. It was like all sorts of deals of the kind. When the option was taken, it was with the purpose of proving up the estimates of the lease-holders as to the extent of the ore body that had been shown up. Men were employed by the prospective purchasers and the exploratory work that had been done was gone over and measurements taken.

These measurements, it is understood, show that fully 40,000,000 tons of ore have been shown up on the whole property. From 13,000,000 to 14,000,000 tons of this ore is said to be of Bessemer grade, or 60 per cent iron and better. It is considered to be the third largest deposit of ore on the Mesaba range.

Through the sale of the lease, O. D. Kinney and Senator E. B. Hawkins are said to have received today $183,750 each, George H. Crosby, $105,000 and Capt. J. H. Pearce, $52,500. The two former owned each a 35 per cent interest, Mr. Crosby 20 per cent and Capt. Pearce, 10 per cent.

The property is located in sections 31 and 32, township 57-22. It is about six miles from the line of the Eastern Minnesota road, which by virtue of having made the deal will get a traffic contract covering the product of the mine. The lease is on a basis of 20 cents royalty and a minimum output annually of 100,000 tons must be made. The fee is owned by the Mississippi Land company, which is controlled by Frederick Weyerhaeuser, R. H. Clute, of Minneapolis, E. C. Whitney and a Mr. McCormick, of Green Bay.

The discovery of the property is said to have been made in a promoting way, at least, fully eighteen months ago by George H. Crosby, who interested the others in the lease.

Several other options on Mesaba range properties are said to be out. Steel men who are in the city from the East are said to be here for the purpose of closing them up.

IN THE SOUTH

P. M. Shaw Talks of Lumbering Conditions Down There.

P. M. Shaw, Jr., who has just returned from an extended trip to Florida, says that the rates at which lumbering interests are developing in that state are a revelation to a Northern lumberman.

"The more extensive logging operations are carried on," said Mr. Shaw, "in the extreme northern part of the state. The district is probably bounded on the south by a line stretching across from gulf to ocean, about 125 or 150 miles below Jacksonville and Tallahasse. But, while my travels did not take me far South of that line, I understand smaller mills are situated all along the railroad lines much farther South and perhaps throughout the northern two-thirds of the state.

"The chief product is southern pine, though cypress is also logged quite extensively. Cypress grows largely along streams and water sides. It is sometimes mixed with pine, but pine largely lies back from the river. The big pine logging enterprises down there are largely logging road propositions. The timber is very pitchy and heavy, and it costs a great deal to railroad it on the regular roads so thus far a disposition has been shown to market the product as closely as poss to ocean or gulf ports, so it may go North or abroad by seagoing vessels.

"You hear a great deal about the swamps of Florida, but I haven't seen much of them. I drove about down there in a wagon when the water covering the road was up to the hubs of the wheels, but the road itself was a good solid wheeling of sand. The water came from heavy rains, and the soil didn't seem to be at all of the mushy character of our swamps up here. What soil I noticed was of firm, white said. Take San Pedro bay, which I presume is a contraction of San Pedro bayou. That has streams flowing out of it on all four sides, and the shores are solid sand beaches, of course, farther south, down in what are known as the Everglades, it may be there are located the terrible swamps that we have always heard about. But the ground I went over afforded good basis for logging operations.

"The chief obstacle that I learned about down there in the logging industry was the sparse growth of large timber. The trees that are of merchantable dimensions are larger than our Minnesota pine, but much of the standing timber in Northern Florida is too small to cut as yet. The average of southern pine stumpage to the acre in Florida is figured at about 3000 feet to the acre. Here in Minnesota a liberal estimate would probably be 6000. The timber grows thickens, however through Georgia and Alabama and into Louisiana, until it probably gets better than 6000 feet to the acre. There is so much activity in logging in Florida because timber is cheaper there than in the other states. Moreover, it costs less to get it to water routes of transportation, because there is salt water on both sides of the peninsula, and the rail haul is therefore reduced to a minimum. The weight of the timber makes this an especially important item."

THE GREAT DISMAL SWAMP

Of Virginia is a breeding ground of Malaria germs. So is low, wet or marshy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. They will surely prevent typhoid. "We tried many remedies for Malaria and Stomach and Liver troubles," writes John Charleston of Byesville, O., "but never found anything as good as Electric Bitters." Try them. Only 50c. W. A. Abbett guarantees satisfaction.

REPORT

On British Camp Is In Hands of the President.

Washington, April 21.—The complete report of Col. Crowder, of the judge advocate's department, upon his inquiry into the conditions at Port Chalmette, whence supplies are being shipped to South Africa, is now in the hands of the president. Col. Crowder spent a good portion of yesterday and last night in going over his report in company with Acting Secretary Sanger and Judge Advocate General Davis at the war department.

At the president's suggestion certain details were added to the report that were not originally included.

An important fact in connection with the document is that it makes no recommendations as to the treatment of affairs at Port Chalmette; it is merely a statement of the conditions there as they were discovered by Col. Crowder.

The war department officials say that in making this inquiry Col. Crowder acted as a representative of the president and so he is not accountable to the department. It is said that the document will be laid before the cabinet at tomorrow's session.

COURT ON WHEELS

District Court Decides to Perambulate About the County

For the Benefit of Residents Desiring Second Papers.

Itinerary Not Announced But Trip Will Be In June.

The judges of the district court have decided to make a trip to the towns on the ranges for the purpose of hearing applications for second citizenship papers.

The date has not been definitely fixed, but the trip will be made during the first or second week in June.

The judges have been receiving many requests for them to make this trip, but some time ago they concluded to wait for assurances that there would be enough applicants to make the trip worth while before announcing that one would be made.

J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, instructed his range deputies to find out how great a demand there would be for second papers, and upon the result of this inquiry was to depend the question of whether or not the trip would be made. The replies from this and other sources was so satisfactory that the judges have decided to make the trip.

The itinerary will be announced later. It has not yet been prepared, but it will include all of the range towns where there are assurances of a good number of applicants. This will include most of the larger cities and villages on the two iron ranges, probably.

The date is fixed as late as June, because it was feared that if it was made earlier there might be a demand for another trip later, and the court will hardly find the time to make more than one. Therefore, it was thought best to clean it all up at once.

These trips of the "court on wheels," which were made possible by a law passed for the benefit of the county, are great conveniences to the people of the range towns who desire to become voters. To become voters they must become citizens, and few of them would be able to make the trip to Duluth merely for that purpose.

WIND IS HIGH.

Northeast Gale On and It Is Not Yet Spent.

The northeast gale that has been blowing over Lake Superior for the past twenty-four hours reached a velocity of thirty-six miles per hour during the day, and there are indications that it will continue tonight and tomorrow. The shipping interests have received ample warning and none of the boats have been leaving the harbor. The high wind has lashed this end of the lake until the waves are running high through the canal, and schooners entering the harbor alone have done so with more or less danger. The storm is said to be caused by the high temperatures in the lower Mississippi valley yesterday. Temperatures ranged from 80 to 90 degrees in Southern Dakota, Iowa, Northern Missouri and Nebraska.

DETAILS

Of the Operation Of the Fairmont Coal Company.

Fairmont, W. Va., April 21.—The Fairmont Coal company, with $2,000,000 capital, gave out today details of their arrangement with the Pittsburg Coal company and coal companies in the Hocking Valley field in Ohio for control of prices in the lake coal trade. These interests are now the controlling factor in the lake coal trade and will regulate trade and prices absolutely. Prices will be fixed from month to month, so that the coal will be controlled by the original shipper until it reaches the actual consumer.

These companies control 350,000 acres of coal land and the combined capital is $125,000,000. All other lake docks will be distributing agents for the combination.

RAPID.

Was Progress of Flames On the Doomed Pittsburg.

Cairo, Ind., April 21.—C. M. Ellis, of the Telegram, and Fred Connell, of this place, who were the first on the scene of the burning packet from Cairo yesterday and sent to Mayor Wright for aid, have been investigating the disaster ever since yesterday and report as follows:

The City of Pittsburg, with a crew of seventy-nine and a passenger list which included sixty-six men, women and children, was on her way from Cincinnati to Memphis. At 4:05 a. m. at a point three miles above Turner's Landing, fire was discovered in the forward hatches. This was apparently seen about the same instant by the engineer on watch and the first mate, Arthur Shriver. The former directed a deck hand to open a valve which would turn the water for the purpose of flooding the hold when he exclaimed that the valve was red hot, indicating that its connection below was in contact with the flames. Mate Shriver was just going on watch, accompanied by his wife, who had gotten up early to keep him company. Seeing the flames and realizing the gravity of the situation he rushed to the deck and shouted to Pilot Harry Doss that the boat was on fire and to run to the nearest shore with all speed. Then he hurried back to the cabin and aided in arousing the sleeping passengers.

By this time, brief though it was, the forward part of the boat was in flames. Pilot Doss remained bravely at his post until the bow of the boat struck the bank. Then he rang the bells for the engine to stop. The deck beneath him was blazing and he was enveloped in smoke. He leaped from the pilot house to the deck, thence to the roof, made his way to the wheel house, leaped in the river and swam ashore. Wesley Doss, his aged father, and an old time pilot, who was making a trip for pleasure, had been in the pilot house with him but a few minutes before, but left before Harry did, making his way to the after guards, where he sprang into the water and despite his 67 years, swam ashore in safety, but died a few minutes later from exhaustion and excitement. His body was brought to Cairo.

The flames spread with such rapidity that passengers had no time to dress, but they rushed to the guards and while many sprang overboard to take their chances between death by drowning or death by burning, others were assisted into a yawl by Mate Shriver and Sailor Ed B. Holly. The latter had climbed one of the supports that kept the yawl suspended, cut the ropes and let the craft into the water, where women and children were placed until it was full, and hurriedly taken ashore, fourteen persons at a time. Several trips were made at the immediate risk of their lives until it was too late to aid further in the rescue from the boat direct, when the men set themselves to work saving those who were afloat in the river. Quite a number were rescued a mile or two below the wreck.

DR. MORGAN

Addresses Ministerial Association On the Subject "Preaching."

The ministers of Duluth and Superior were addressed this morning by G. Campbell Morgan on the subject of "Preaching." He said the opinion of some that the sermon was to be relegated as a thing out of date is dangerous. A comparison of the press and pulpit is unfair. The press, broadly speaking, is a medium for the presentation of a message; the pulpit stands for a message plus a man. The preacher should get back to the New Testament as the original source for instruction as to his work.

Here Mr. Morgan called attention to the words translated in the Scriptures "preach" and "proclaim." One of these meant the proclamation of an evangel—good news; the other described the preacher as an official crier, a man of authority and publicity. Behind all preaching lie two thoughts—man's need and God's provision to meet that need. Keeping these two thoughts before him, the preacher, like the prophet of old, must stand before Jehovah and thus, "with his back against God," proclaim his certain message. He must be fully persuaded in his own mind of the message he is to speak—not simply "thus saith the Lord," but "thus saith the Lord today."

"In the New Testament the method of preaching is, first, an enunciation of truth; second, an application of that truth to the immediate necessities, and, third, an appeal to the will. A man should be held by the truth—a creed. 'Those who attempted to produce conduct without a creed are plowing the sand.' Duty without doctrine does not come. Creed is no use unless it blossoms into conduct. Creed only issues in conduct when the will is submitted.

"Have the times so far changed as to demand a change in the apostolic ideal of preaching? No. A change of method may be granted, but man's need and God's grace are the same.

"The 'moral defects,' 'the kinks' in human nature—or, what is much to be preferred, the Biblical term, 'sin'—is the same in man. Education and culture do not furnish an absolution from these. The gospel alone gives this to man. And this dynomic that has produced the transformations proves the absolution behind it. Man's will is still the citadel to be stormed."

Mr. Morgan closed with a plea that the "appeal" be practiced more by the preachers to whom he spoke.

ELABORATE

Household Effects of Jacob H. Vanderbilt Sold By Sheriff.

Tocoma, Wash., April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The elaborate household effects of Jacob H. Vanderbilt, who receives an annuity from the famous New York family, were sold at public auction today to satisfy a chattel mortgage held by a leading local pawnbroker. Young Vanderbilt was the assistant cashier of the Metropolitan bank that failed last November with deposits of $500,000.

On Saturday last a judgment for $18,000 was taken against him by Charles McNamee, personal representative of George Vanderbilt, sent here to wind up the defunct bank's affairs. McNamee also took judgment for $53,000 against P. V. Caesar, president of the defunct bank, and a relative of the Vanderbilts through his mother, and against T. W. Enos, vice president, for $28,000. McNamee paid the bank's creditors in full. When he took hold he found notes of Vanderbilt, Saesar and Enos among the assets for an amount aggregating $109,000.

AT WEST DULUTH

Ransom Metcalf returned Saturday from the Little Rock country, where he went with a party of settlers and landseekers a few weeks ago. Mr. Metcalf says that his party got through in fine condition, that teaming was done from Hibbing to the river and that the party had to carry its load but two miles of the entire distance. A large amount of supplies were taken into the Little Fork country on this trip. The party was but two and a half days making the trip to the river. There were two new land-seekers among them. One remained in the country and the other came back, but will go out again later. Those of the party returning walked all the way from the Little Fork country to Tower.

Mr. Metcalf says that the people that have gone out under the direction of the colonization company are well pleased with their land. He predicts that by next fall there will be no lands available for settlers in either the Little Fork or Willow river valleys. Since the colonization company began sending settlers into the valleys there has been quite a movement that way from other points, and the country is fast settling up. The next party to leave West Duluth will start the first part of next month. It is expected that the boats will begin to run on Vermilion lake by the end of this week or the first of next week, and the next party will be saved a long walk. The walking this last time was occasioned because the boats were not in commission.

FORMERLY A DULUTHIAN.

C. F. Thorp and son Charles Thorp, of Los Angeles, Cal., are in West Duluth for a few days to visit friends. They are guests of Dr. and Mrs. David Graham. Mr. Thorp was formerly in the drug business here and sold out to S. J. Nygren about six years ago. He has been to Michigan to attend the funeral of his mother, who died at Detroit. Mr. Thorp says that he can see but few changes in West Duluth in the six years that he has been absent, except that the sidewalks and pavements are in poorer condition than when he left. He believes that the prediction of some of the business men, made at the time West Duluth became part of the city, that it would be another case of the tail wagging the dog, this part of the city representing the dog, has been realized. Mr. Thorp and his son will leave for their home tomorrow.

RUMORS ACTIVE AGAIN.

Rumors about the old car works are again afloat. The place has had a number of visitors during the past ten days, and now it is said that there is a movement underway to make a big stable out of part of the building and a carriage factory out of the remaining portion. Just what the idea would be in putting a large stable in this portion of the city is not clear, but the carriage factory idea is considered very feasible.

WILL BE MARRIED.

J. M. Lauermann, the Central avenue shoe dealer, will be married tomorrow in Aberdeen, S. D., the bride being Miss Edna Harris, a popular young lady of that place. The wedding will be a quiet one, and Mr. and Mrs. Lauermann will return to West Duluth about Thursday. They will make their home here, but have not definitely decided where they will begin housekeeping.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

C. J. Petruschke, of the West Duluth box factory, has received an order for 200 carloads of boxes for one of the big packing concerns. The boxes are to be used either to pack meat or the product of the packers. The contract is one that will keep the factory working steadily for a long time. About one carload a day will be turned out. It is probable that more machinery will be installed to facilitate the handling of the contract.

DEPUTY ARRESTED

By Sheriff On a Charge of Burglary.

Boscobel, Wis., April 21.—"Bronco" Smith, deputy sheriff of Richland county, and ex-United States mail carrier between Boscobel and Excelsior, was arrested, charged with burglary, and had his examination Saturday. He was bound over to appear in district court, in the sum of $300. The store of A. H. Davis, of Excelsior, was broken into and an attempt made to blow open the safe. The money drawer was robbed of $35 and $10 or more of other goods secured. Other parties were arrested by Smith, but they proved alibis. The officer showed such an acquaintance with the affair that the sheriff was summoned to place his own deputy in durance vile.

PENALTY IS DEATH.

Verdict of Murder Found Against Edward Batson.

Lake Charles, La., April 21.—The jury in the case of Edward Batson, charged with the murder of the Early family, has returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. The penalty is death.

The verdict was reached yesterday, but Judge Miller declined to receive it until today. The delay in reaching it resulted from the desire of two of the jurors to qualify their finding so as to send Batson to the penitentiary for life rather than to the scaffold. They finally yielded to the majority.

CHESS BY MAIL.

Tournament Between Brooklyn and Chicago.

Chicago, April 21.—Play in the monster chess correspondence tournament between Brooklyn and Chicago began today. The number of postal cards sent from players of white men in Brooklyn will be received tomorrow and Wednesday by the fifty-eight Chicago players of black. It is not impossible that a few games may be finished within a month, but the average length of the games is expected to last out three months and it may be a year before the result of the tourney may be known.

Congress also is requested to pass the bill to remove the tariff on fresh meats.

NOT THE SAME

Suspect Held at Maryville, Tenn., Not Arthur Inman.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Williams suspected of being Arthur Inman, one of the alleged murderers of Patrolman Charles Mayer, who was killed in the rear of Jessrang's saloon, University and Farrington avenues, Feb. 15 last, was placed under arrest at Maryville, Tenn.

The prisoner is not Inman, however, and Chief O'Connor today wired the authorities at Maryville to this effect.

Williams bears a general resemblance to Inman, but the photograph received by Chief O'Conner proves he is not the man wanted.

HE WILL NOT RUN

Friend's View of F. B. Daugherty's Congressional Intentions.

Condition of Health Such As to Practically Bar Him.

Senator Daugherty's Position May Affect Mr. Kinney's Decision.

It is stated on excellent authority that Senator F. B. Daugherty has not authorized the use of his name in connection with the Republican nomination for congress. Furthermore, it is announced that Mr. Daugherty is not in any sense a candidate for the nomination.

"Mr. Daugherty's health has been aggravated the past winter by an attack of the grippe," said a friend of the senator's today. "He had improved greatly during the past few years, until this influenza put him back. He went to Mount Clemens in the hope of getting rid of the effects of the grippe, but came back without relief. He still hoped to improve after his return, but his expectations have not been realized. He is still feeling very poorly, and is not willing at this time to consider anything looking to the assumption of such obligations as a congressional nomination would thrust upon him.

"Of course, his health might become so much improved later that he would be willing to consider the matter, but if such should prove the case, it is quite unthought of by him at this time.

"I don't believe either that Senator Daugherty has anything but the kindliest feelings toward O. D. Kinney, and doubt if he would care to do anything that would interfere with the successs of Mr. Kinney's friends in their efforts to induce him to run for the nomination. The latter, however, is merely conjecture and in no sense authorized.

"As far as Mr. Daugherty is concerned he has a very large number of friends who have long hoped that his health was so improving that he would consent to allow his name to be used for the congressional nomination. I can say by authority, however, though not without the deepest regret, that Mr. Daugherty himself will not allow this to be done. He believes that his health alone, even if it were not for other matters that deter him, is in no condition to warrant him considering the proposition."

Mr. Kinney's friends, or those that have learned of Senator Daugherty's disposition in the matter of the congressional candidacy, are inclined to believe that it will have considerable bearing on Mr. Kinney's decision. They incline to the conviction that the narrower the field of candidates the more likely will Mr. Kinney be to give the subject serious consideration when it is directly presented to him by his friends in Duluth upon his return home. Not the least of these influences, it is thought, will be Mr. Daugherty's decision.

PASSOVER.

The Great Religious Time Of the Jews Begins Today.

The Jewish passover, the greatest religious observance of the Hebrew faith, began at noon today and will continue until sunset on Sunday, with appropriate devotional exercises.

During the week the members of the Hebrew faith keep the observance with deep devotions and the strictest attention to the requirements. No leavened bread is eaten, and in its stead an unleavened bread called "matzes," consisting of flour and water baked in a thin, wafer-like form like a large water cracker. This is said to typify the experiences of the Israelites when they wandered in the wilderness and for lack of fire baked their bread in the sun. The dishes used by the faithful during the passover are not used at any other time, and most Jewish families keep an extra set of dishes to be used only at this time.

Services are held in the churches twice daily, morning and evening, until next Sunday evening, when the passover will be ended.

THE REPORT.

Health Board Will Make A Report To the Council.

The health board met late this afternoon to formulate a report on its investigation of the detention hospital.

The board will probably report that recent charges about "pest house horrors" were exaggerations.

Many rules of the hospital were disregarded and attention to cleanliness was lacking during the month of March, during which period the caretaker of the institution had notification of her discharge on April 1.

It was charged that the provisions sent out were rancid and scarce. The board finds there was no scarcity of provisions, though at times the cooking was poor.

All these things were discovered and remedied at least a week before the sensational charges were made public.

It will also be found that the plan of having convalescent patients assist in caring for their own rooms, was not a failure, as in the women's department everything was kept clean and neat, while in the men's department, where the patients refused to assist in the work, complaints of uncleanliness were made.

Despite the fact that the council has not taken part in the emergency hospital disturbance, this report will be presented to the council this evening.

INSPECTS THE LINE

Thomas Lowry Here to Look Over Street Railway System.

Has Little to Say of Intentions of the Company.

Thinks Removal of Canadian Wheat Duty Would Be Wise.

President Thomas Lowry of the Soo railway, and who controls the Duluth-Superior Traction company, arrived in the city this morning. He is accompanied by M. D. Munn, general counsel for Mr. Lowry's street railway companies. Both are registered at the Spalding. They were joined there early this morning by General Manager Herbert Warren of the street railway, and later met Luther Mendenhall and G. G. Hartley. They left shortly for a trip over the line in the car St. Louis.

Mr. Lowry said this morning, when asked regarding the significance of his visit, that he had come up to discuss street railway matters with Mr. Hartley and Mr. Mendenhall. He preferred not to discuss various questions now of chief interest to the public until he had consulted the gentlemen referred to.

"We shall make some considerable improvements here this season, however," said Mr. Lowry. "Just what will be done has not been determined as yet. In fact, partly that is the object of my visit to Duluth today. I have come up to discuss the general situation with Mr. Hartley and Mr. Mendenhall."

Mr. Lowry said the Soo road has enjoyed a heavy traffic in all lines the past year. He discussed the Canadian wheat situation in a free but guarded way.

"Certainly more Canadian wheat ought to come this way after this," he said, in response to a question bearing on the probability of the Soo and other lines running into this country from Canada hauling larger quantities of Manitoba wheat to American terminal points. "Last year, I believe, was the first that any considerable quantity of Canadian wheat has come here. I think it would be a good idea to remove the duty on wheat and let the Canadian crop move partly this way if it would.

"The Soo is extending through to Bismarck this summer. The Bismarck line leaves the main line at Hankinson and runs straight toward Bismarck. It is through as far as Hebard now."

Mr. Munn, who accompanies Mr. Lowry, is a member of counsel for the state in the proceedings brought to break up the merger of the two North coast roads. He is reputed to be one of the best lawyers in the West.

This afternoon the members of the party were still out on the street car line. They went over the Woodland line, which leads some to the opinion that an early announcement will be made concerning the beginning of work on the rebuilding of that line as well as of the extension of the West Third street line.

BIDS OPENED.

P. R. McDonnell Lowest On the Jenswold Street Cut.

Bids for the Jenswold street subway were opened by the board of public works today.

There was a big field of contractors anxious for the work, but P. McDonnell was lowest with a bid of $15,419. King & Steele came in second with a bid of $15,534, while other bidders ranged as high as $19,500.

The original subway was designed to be fifty-seven feet in width, but the subway for which the bids were opened this morning is to be but thirty feet wide.

The full width of fifty-seven feet will be made later when there is money money available in the permanent improvement fund.

It is expected the subway will be started immediately, providing the contract to Mr. McDonnell is confirmed by the council. By anticipating next year's tax levy for the permanent improvement fund, sufficient money can be secured to finish up the 30-foot wide subway.

This will be ample as a substitute for the present dangerous viaduct system at Oneota, and to furnish better transit facilities on the West Duluth and East End street car line.

At a late hour this afternoon the members of the board went out for an inspection of the boats bidding for the Park Point ferry contract.

It is understood that the board is more favorably disposed to give the contract to the fire fighting Carrington at $32.50 a day or to the Sarah Smith at $30 a day than to the Estelle at $27 a day.

During the past year there have been numerous complaints about the Estelle and that has agitated the board somewhat.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Small Boy Captured While Robbing a Cash Register.

Louis Buffsky was arrested yesterday morning for taking $1 out of the cash register in Kugler's drug store.

He is a newsboy about 15 years of age, and went into the store making a small purchase. While Ernest Kugler was in the rear of the store the youngster went to the register and took the money. Mr. Kugler caught him in the act and walked him across the street to police headquarters.

The boy was in police court for hearing this morning, but as his folks are Hebrews and had just begun the celebration of the feast of the Passover, they did not care to have the celebration and the trial on at the same time. The hearing was then set for April 30.

Fred Smith, a painter was on trial in police court this afternoon for flourishing a knife in the kitchen of the Spalding hotel. He frightened the female help. He was employed at the Spalding as a painter and became intoxicated Saturday afternoon.

TWO REAR ADMIRALS.

Washington, April 21.—The president today nominated Capt. Joseph B. Coghlan to be rear admiral, and Capt. James H. Sands, rear admiral.

UNDER SAILS.

Schooners Come Up the Lake and Into the Harbor.

Quite an uncommon sight was presented this afternoon when two schooners sailed into port without the aid of any tugs.

They were the barges Zapotec and Barnes, belonging to the steamer Aztec. The Aztec lost her smokestack down the lakes, and arrived early this morning, leaving her consorts behind.

They, left to do the best they could without the aid of a steamer, did very well indeed. They sailed on up the lake, with a good stiff northeaster blowing them just where they wanted to go. They came straight as an arrow's flight, without a tack, up to the harbor, and slipped through the piers without the aid of a tug.

It is infrequent that vessels are seen under sail without a steamer towing them, but it is much more rare to have them sail through the canal without steam aid, either from their steamer or from tugs. They did it this afternoon, however, without the slightest difficulty.

The tug strike is producing exigencies of this sort and developing the latent talents of the lake mariners, so that if it continues much longer it will be demonstrated that there are just as good sailors on the lakes as there ever were on salt water.

ARE IN ORE.

Eastern Minnesota Has Drills Well Down In 56-23.

It is reported that the Eastern Minnesota interests which are exploring on the Robinson lands, near Oxide lake, in township 56-23, have drills down in seventy-five to ninety feet of ore. These are state lands and were formerly leased to W. Robinson. Afterward leases were taken by D. T. Adams and John Flynn, and the Eastern is said to have obtained options from the latter two. This location is not far from the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby mine. There are rumors of ore finds also in 15-56-13.

Interest in the ore discoveries and their probable effect on the future of the town is still at fever heat at Grand Rapids. Many of the locations where explorations are going on are well distant from present lines of railroad. During the past winter a number of drill outfits were sleighed over to the new field from Hibbing. Since the spring breaking up, however, Grand Rapids has been the center from which operations have been conducted.

Practically all the Western Mesaba discoveries thus far have been made at such depth below the surface that it is believed underground mining will be general, if not universal in that region. It is said there is too much surface to pay to strip.

A CONTRAST.

St. Paul Has Torrid Temperature While Dakota Has Snow.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The weather has seldom been so warm in St. Paul during the month of April as it was today. The official thermometer at the weather bureau registered nearly 70 degrees before noon and early in the day it was 64 degrees Fahrenheit.

In spite of St. Paul's 65 to 70 degrees it was snowing at noon in the center of the Dakotas and there was a cool rain in the Red River valley which section does not need moisture, but Southern Dakota is suffering from rain as much as is this section of Minnesota and still there is none immediately promised. It is stated at the weather bureau that St. Paul would be dry for at least another twenty-four hours, though what might come after that was as yet uncertain.

MOLINEAUX.

New and Important Evidence Found By the Prosecution.

New York, April 21.—Important new evidence which is to be used in the coming retrial of Roland B. Molineaux for the murder of Mrs. Catherine J. Adams has been discovered by Assistant District Attorney James J. Osborne and the police of Newark, N. J.

Cornish, thinking it was harmless, administered it to Mrs. Adams.

They have obtained the testimony of Detective Joseph P. Farrell, of Newark, which is of a sensational character, and they have found a boy who worked at Hartdegen's store in Newark, where the silver holder was bought on Dec. 21, 1898.

PLEASED

With the Decision Made By the Supreme Court.

St. Paul, April 21.—Governor Van Sant on hearing the action of the federal supreme court said: "I am certainly pleased with this decision of the highest court in the land. We shall soon be able to know whether or not the position of the state of Minnesota is right on this important question."

Attorney General Douglas also had reason to be pleased over the decision, for it was he who prepared the brief for Attorney General Stratton of Washington, upon which the decision of the supreme court was rendered. Mr. Stratton spent several weeks in consultation with Attorney General Douglas, during the preparation of the brief. Gen. Douglas said: "This is a great and decisive victory for those who have contended that the supreme court had primary jurisdiction in such matters. I have not read the decision and therefore am not advised as to the ground upon which it rested. Having prepared the brief in the Washington case, I, of course, am elated over the result. I think the disposition on all sides is for a speedy settlement of the proposition involved. We will soon know whether or not state enactments have force and effect in cases like these."

The question was decided in the negative, the law being thus held to be still in effect. The Chinaman in this instance entered the state of New York from Canada, in October, 1900, and was immediately apprehended.

VERY BRIEF

Was the Chief Justice's Opinion In Case of Washington.

Washington, April 21.—The chief justice's opinion in the Washington merger case was very brief and consisted entirely of a review of original cases of the same character which have been brought to the attention of the court. The two most important of the cases thus cited were the case of the state of Louisiana vs. the state of Texas, concerning the quarantine regulations of the latter state, in which leave was given to file and the state of Minnesota vs. the Northern Securities company, in which the petition to file was denied.

Referring to the latter case, he said that the petition had been refused because of the insuperable objection that indispensable parties to the case could not be brought into the court. This objection did not, however, confront the court in the present case, and the court felt, that because of its desire to proceed with the utmost care and deliberation in all cases where originals actions are brought in this court, the precedent of the Louisiana-Texas case should be followed rather than that of the Minnesota case in the present instance. Hence leave to file would be granted and subponenas would be issued, returnable on the first day of the next term of court in November.

DR. TAYLOR EXPLAINS

He Answers Complaints About Management of the Pest House.

Gives His Version, Feeling He Has Been Unjustly Accused.

Believes All Fair-Minded Persons Will Accept Explanations.

To the Editor of The Herald:

So much complaint has been recently made through the News Tribune about the pest house and its management, that I desire to give my version of the matter, for I feel that I have been done an injustice. The principal complaints as I know them are as follows:

First, that provisions were insufficient in quality and quantity and improperly prepared.

Second, that patients were compelled to do most of their own work, and that this was a hardship.

Third, that the place and patients were dirty and no attempt made to keep it clean, or rid it of vermin.

Fourth, that medicine was frequently lacking.

Fifth, that the help employed was insufficient and incompetent.

Sixth, that the medical attention was inadequate.

In the interests of economy a more modest plan had been adopted in managing the pest house for the winter past than for the year before. It had been decided not to employ an expensive trained nurse continuously, but for just such periods as might be necessary. A matron, or superintendent, was to be employed who could cook and look after everything, including what little nursing might be required. This was considered sufficient care for about ten persons. Additional help became necessary, it was to be added, but the bulk of the work, cutting wood, bringing in water, washing, scrubbing, etc., was to be secured mainly from among those patients who were able to help. The food supplied was to be simple, plain, wholesome and in sufficient amount without extravagance, and of but one grade. The majority of the patients at the place are never sick a day. A small percentage have a secondary fever, and these are sick usually less than a week.

A large majority of the patients are woodsmen, and unable or unwilling to pay for care, but usually not objecting to doing a moderate amount of work. Inasmuch as the sickness is so small a part of the disease, this work was considered in no way an imposition, especially as it meant board and room for about two weeks. The only expense being that, whenever possible, $2.75 was collected to pay for the ambulance hire, in case this was used.

On Jan. 11 a man-cook was in charge of the place, but it was deemed necessary to have a lady employed on the place, as lady patients might come in at any time. A Mrs. Doretty was engaged and put in control on that date, with the former cook as assistant. This displeased him, and in the course of a week or more he left. This nurse was notified when hired that she was to be in absolute control, was to depend for her help mainly on the inmates. She was instructed by me how to order her provisions, supplies, etc., far enough ahead that I might bring them out on my regular visits. After her helper left she was instructed how to prepare patients and clothing before leaving the institution.

It has always been my policy to quiz patients after their discharge, on how they enjoyed their stay at the pest house. About the only fault found up to this time was that she was a Mexican—a white woman being preferred. Provisions and care were admitted to be satisfactory, considering that no charge was made. On Feb. 25 the husband of the cook was employed to help her for one month. He remained until March 22, when she discharged him. During this time there was considerable complaint. There seemed to be more difficulty during his presence than with his wife alone. A new nurse was sought, employed and instated April 1, and is there now and is giving satisfaction.

About the last favorable report I heard was from a local hotel keeper's wife, who was discharged April 10. Knowing her surroundings at home to be comfortable, and that she was experienced in handling this class of men, I considered her opinion valuable to me. She reported that she was satisfied with her care and provisions, and that in her opinion the men were not justified in complaining. From this time on I heard nothing but complaints, the men complaining of the provisions, the cook complaining of her inability to secure help among the patients. There would be an occasional man who would be willing to help her, but such were few, and I am satisfied that if any person was imposed upon and requested or required to do more than his share of the work, that it was because she was unable to secure help from the others. On several different occasions I have remarked before the patients assembled in the office that it was not the desire to ask any patient to work until he was able to, and that we aimed to secure a little help from each, rather than a great amount from any one. It was not fair for those who were willing to work to do it all, and for those who were unwilling to work to do nothing. Upon one occasion Mr. McCue complained that some patients were being compelled to work when they were unable, and I made the preceding statement directly to him at that time. This, I believe, was also the time at which Mr. Achter was suffering from tonsilitis, presumably contracted just prior to my visit.

It was one of the rules of the house and was known to patients as well as attendants that the main building was to be reserved for the newer and sicker patients, and a couple of extra cots were to be kept to receive such, especially in case they should arrive during the night, as the main building became crowded, those nearest their discharge were to be moved to Camp 2, or if necessary Camp 3. These are separate buildings that are not as comfortable or commodious as the main building.

The food furnished was largely purchased and delivered personally by me, except the larger orders, and I can speak for both quality and quantity. The meats supplied were round steaks, boiling beef and pork chops principally. Bacon and ham was sent out to be kept in reserve, in case any orders should be delayed, and the nurse was instructed to keep such meats constantly on hand. I have never known of any meat to be sent out that I did not consider fit for myself, with the exception that one order was placed in a washing machine which was to go out with the ambulance. The driver could not carry it, and being unaware that the meat was in the machine, it was nearly a week before the order arrived. This I was unaware of until my next visit to the pest house, when I made the discovery. Provisions were always furnished in as great or larger quantities than she asked for, and it was not until near the end of her term that I ever heard that the quantity was insufficient. Complaint was made one day that the woman was a poor bread-maker, that her product was unfit to eat. I had seen bread on the table at different times, and it appeared to me to be all right. However, on this occasion I went to the pantry and found there three loaves of new bread that I considered all right. I told her that the men had found fault with it, and she explained that she had had hard luck on two previous occasions, owing to the condition of the stove. This was then examined, and the fire box found to be burned out. A new cast-iron lining was sent out with the next grocery order a day or so later.

Good butter was originally furnished them, which cost 27 cents. This, I was instructed, was liable to cause Dr. Robinson some censure, and I was instructed to pay but 22, as was being paid for orders sent to some places here in the city at that time. The 22-cent butter was poor. The groceryman said he would not guarantee any butter at that price, and it was decided to secure if possible some butter substitute. I do not know the official title of the present article, but I seldom hear any complaint about it, and it costs a little over half as much. This is what was referred to when Mr. Hutter was informed that good butter could not be secured for him, for we have but one quality of food for all. To supply two grades of such an article would be to court trouble.

There has always been a stock of canned goods on hand, own, pumpkin, tomatoes and peas constituting the variety and there has been not time to my knowledge when less than two of this class were on hand. Dried fruits, consisting of apricots and prunes were also supplied, and at least one of this variety was kept on hand. For a time milk was scarce, and evaporated cream was supplied to be used in coffee, etc., that the milk might be given to the sick patients. Oatmeal was always on hand, as was usually rice and beans. The rice chosen was a cheaper grade and the difference seemed to be principally in the size of the kernels, except that the best grade was cleaner, but this was about the times as extensive. Tea and coffee were both kept on hand. I do not know their grade at that time, as there was nothing on the package to indicate to me what it was worth. The regular 75 cents per bushel potatoes were purchased, which were all right when bought; possibly they may have been damaged by cold in transportation. The cook complained about this at one time, and was told to use only those that were good, and never mind the others. Buda crackers or ginger snaps were always kept on hand. The above articles are the ones making up the menu which Mr. Hutter described as consisting of coffee, oatmeal, bread and butterine for breakfast; Coffee, meat, bread, potatoes and butterine for dinner; coffee, potatoes, bread and butterine for supper.

I have never held myself responsible for knowing how much or which articles were on hand, depending upon the cook to keep me posted as to her wants, but do know that such articles were there on my visits to the kitchen and patnry when checking up orders, weighing groceries, or waiting for the cook to make out her orders. While on this subject I may add that it was customary for the patients to have their friends send out fruit, cake and delicacies. These I was always asked or offered to carry, since it was seldom that the grocery wagon was sent out. This was always willingly done, and frequently my carriage looked more like an express wagon than a physician's rig. Upon one occasion a basket was delivered at my residence for Mr. Gillis. It was delivered one morning after I had left the pest house, and was discovered on my return home in the evening. As it would be two days before my next trip, the basket was put out of the way, which resulted in my forgetting it. The next time I visited the pest house I walked, and did not care to carry the basket with me, so again it was left. About one week after its receipt it was delivered to Mr. Gillis, and by that time it was evident something in it had been spoiled. I expressed my regrets to the gentleman and explained how it had occurred. There was nothing in the package to state the nature of the contents, nor so far as I remember was there any evidence of who had delivered it to me. It happened that this was from a Lansing R. Robinson, and words seemed inadequate for him to express his contempt for my apparent negligence. Permit me to say that delivering such packages is no part of my duties, is a voluntary courtesy and I do not hold myself responsible for their conditions. This subject was mentioned to Mr. Gillis the day of the investigation, and he said he realized this, and was sorry the fact had ever been mentioned, adding that he had no idea matters were to be carried so far, or he would never have proceeded as he did.

My visits to the pest house are about three a week and more as required. They were usually over a half hour in length, and consisted in a personal inspection of each patient, independent of his condition. While Mr. Murphy was sick, three visits were made within twenty-four hours, and one of these was through the disagreeable road spell. The visits were made regularly during our worst siege of cold weather. I have several times made visits on succeeding days, and ordinarily make from twelve to fifteen per month.

On different occasions the solution of silver nitrate, which is used on the throat, has been out. On one occasion the bottle had been spilled, and on another occasion a two-ounce bottle had been misplaced. There was always on hand at least two other remedies for this complaint, though they were admittedly not as desirable as the silver solution. Cough medicine was also out for two trips. This was due, first, to the facts that I thought Mr. White had sent for some special preparation of Mr. Kugler's, and I had been unable to call at the drug store to get this for him. The next time I had no memorandum of it, and forgot it.

One year ago I testified before the investigating committee that I had visited the pest house and did not consider it very clean. At that time the help was costing the city something over $200 a month for from forty to seventy patients. It is hardly to be expected that as good or better results could be secured under present conditions for about $50 a month. However, conditions, particularly during the latter part of March, were not satisfactory, even for that price. This was due in a measure to the help and the inability to secure sufficient assistance from the patients, and that they did not care sufficiently to take care of themselves. The nurse was instructed that men on entering were to be given a bath if possible, and to change their clothes, and there was on hand Jan. 11 six or eight suits of underclothing belonging to the hospital. Another dozen suits have been added since. This bathing and changing of clothes was not always practical, as in advanced cases, or those of plentiful eruption, since a softening of the skin might result in a rupture of the lesion with the formation of a second scab, which retards recovery. The nurse was unable to give this her careful attention, again owing to a lack of assistance from the patients. It seemed about all they were willing to do was to provide fuel and water. Same way or other the idea became prevalent that water must not be used at all, even on the hands or face, and came to me to know when they could wash, and were usually told to wash at once, but to avoid soaking the parts. On such occasions I have taken pains to explain that the only times or conditions when water shall not be used is when it is liable to soften the scab and remove it too early, for then a new scab forms and the patient cannot be discharged until it has come off. For this reason, there is quite a period when some of them cannot advantageously bathe. This is evident and is due to the nature of the disease. There is no question but that some of them would have been disappointed if they could have bathed.

In reference to the blankets, sheets, etc., the explanation is the same as recited before. The nurse was instructed that sheets, etc., must be changed at least once a week. I know this was not always done, and have myself removed sheets and pillow cases from some of the cots. The blankets were ordered washed while Mr. Doretty was employed, and he reported to me that these instructions had been carried out. It was somewhat of a surprise to me to have to suggest to one patient that he air his own blanket, but he was then perfectly able to do so. Had he desired to have them aired before certainly someone would have done him the kindness for the request, in case he was unable to do it himself.

The testimony shows that the ladies' department was reasonably clean and free from vermin, and that the men's department was not. The reason for this was that the ladies took care of their rooms and beds, and that the men did not care for theirs.

Complaint of vermin was made to me late in March, when I informed the men that cedar oil was then on hand, and by-the-way, this is one article of drugs that has not been out of stock for about a year. At present writing, April 19, there is still a supply on hand. If anything better was used for prevention, which will be suggested I offered to secure it for them. Washing the underclothes is certainly not to be considered any particular hardship on the men, being as it is a mere matter of heating the water and turning the handle of the washing machine. That Mr. Hutter had to wash out a suit of underclothing was unfortunate, but natural and no more than his share of the work, since after disinfecting, a person must leave the pest house and leaves behind him the dirty underclothing he took off.

I have probably suffered most from the criticism made on my management of Mrs. Gustafson's case. The particulars are as follows: On the night of March 6, about 9:30, I was instructed to visit Mrs. Gustafson, and found her with a well-advanced case of smallpox, evidently nearly a week since it had broken out. She was alone in her room, was up and dressed, and her God made, notwithstanding she was the mother of a babe born Feb. 20.

There were two other families living in the same house. Isolation and quarantine at home was impossible, owing to lack of conveniences. It was therefore necessary to remove her to the pest house. She stated she did not know when her husband would return, and that he had not been there for the past few days, so he knew nothing about her going. She was evidently perfectly able to stand the ride, and so far as I could determine, never suffered any great inconvenience from it. She did not have a bad case. The child had already been thoroughly exposed, but was vaccinated at once, and it began to work about the time the child broke out. It was natural to expect that this case would prove severe and serious. I told the mother that I would give the child as careful attention as if she was in town, and would supply a trained nurse for the period while she was so sick. Dr. Robinson was notified, and he asked if the husband was able to pay for the nurse. I replied that he was proprietor of a saloon and certainly ought to be able to stand the expense. The doctor wrote a letter notifying Mr. Gustafson that a nurse was necessary, and that he must supply one for about a week. This letter was delivered by me personally, and after he read it, I offered to take the nurse out with me the next morning. He promised to get one. Later in the day he claimed he was unable to find one. I told him I could get him one, and furnished him with the names and addresses of four who would take care of that kind of patients. He never secured one. The child was not as sick as I expected it would be, and after two days I visited only every other day. The child recovered completely, and with but little deformity. It was some four days after her removal to the pest house before Mr. Gustafson visited to inquire about her. I am sure I gave her twice the attention and care that he did, though I am censured almost severely as if I had forgotten another willow basket of provisions from Lansing R. Robinson.

In closing I wish to sum us as follows: It was desired to manage the place on a more rigid financial basis than before. You must not expect any better results. The nature of the disease, the class of patients and the lack of conveniences make it impossible to carry on the work there as I should be pleased to. I have visited plenty of camps that were in worse condition than the pest house ever was. Mrs. Doretty was not satisfactory. This may have been due in part to her inability, but was also due largely through unwillingness of the patients to assist her. It would have been a simple matter for any patient, or a group of patients to have improved their condition had they been willing to do so themselves. As soon as possible after discovering the incompetency, a change was made and this occurred before the News Tribune reporter interviewed me and much improvement had been made before the article appeared in that paper. The reporter, Mr. Walker, was urged to visit the place with me, that he might know the exact condition. On the Monday following the News Tribune's article every patient at the place voluntarily signed the following statement:

"April 9, 1902.—We, inmates at the pest house, are willing to testify that we are satisfied with our care at this institution."

Most of the signatures were put down, while I was out of the room, attending to other matters.

It seems to me that these explanations will be considered sufficient by any fair-minded person. Respectfully yours,

C. W. TAYLOR.

Rapid Development In Artesian Wells In South Dakota.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—It is interesting to note the rapid development of the artesian well business in South Dakota. There were twenty-eight wells sunk in Faulk county alone last year. In that portion of the state lying between James river on the east and the Missouri river on the west, over 200 wells have been put down. Col. John H. King of this city, who has been a leader in promoting the sinking of wells, believing the formation of lakes and ponds and the sloughs, tends by the evaporation of the water to soften the atmosphere and and modify the effect of the hot winds, has constantly pushed the question before townships and ranchmen in all the central portion of the state. He estimates there will be at least 30 wells sunk in 1902.

Because many of the cities are arranging to have celebrations on July 4 it is likely the annual encampment of the militia will be held here the last week in June or the second week in July.

The city was literally alive with land seekers Wednesday and Thursday. Trains from the east and south were loaded with excursionists. It is estimated that from Sunday night to Wednesday morning not less than 500 people arrived.

Pierre—The state board of pardons has recommended pardons for Otto Ramske, sentenced from Day county for perjury, and Frank Gupenthrong, sentenced from Brookings county for criminal assault. The application of James West, sentenced from Brookings county for robbery, was denied. Application for a rehearing was denied in the case of Frank Bates. Applications of Edward Chausse and Edward Perry were continued.

Chamberlain—The Milwaukee Railway company has announced an excursion into Chamberlain on Sunday, May 4. Among the entertainment features will be a ball game between the Sioux City and Algonas, a splendid musical festival by celebrate bands of the northwest, a village of Sioux Indians dressed in their native costume, and many other features. Transportation will be furnished holders of excursion tickets across the pontoon bridge to American island at 10 cents each for the round trip. Gamblers and shell men will not be permitted to ply their vocations. As there is a tremendous immigration into Chamberlain, it is expected that the attendance will be unusually large.

Aberdeen—C. P. Gregory, of Aberdeen, president; Rev. W. J. Oldfield, of Estelline, secretary of the executive committee of the South Dakota Sunday School association, held a meeting with others interested here to arrange the program for the state convention, which will be held at Sioux Falls on May 21, 22 and 23. A number of addresses on important and interesting topics are to be given, Alfred Day, of Detroit, Mich., being one of the speakers from abroad. Among people from the state who will give addresses are Rev. W. B. Hubbard, of Webster; Rev. A. G. Hunt, of Aberdeen; Mrs. Carnine, of Aberdeen, and one or two Sioux Falls speakers.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—While seeding operations may be said to be general in the valley, they are backward in many places. In the Moose river country nothing has been done on account of high water, and the same is true over in Minnesota a few miles back from the river. Near Larimore, where the soil is sandy, the seeding is well along, and will be practically finished next week. In the western part of the state, in the Minot and Bottineau country, where the great bulk of the new settlers have headed this season, farm work will not begin for some time to come.

A meeting of the managers of the North Dakota Baseball league will be held here. One of two organizations in Winnipeg will be awarded the sixth franchise of the league, the other places being Grand Forks, Fargo, Devils Lake, Cavalier and Crookston, the latter being the only Minnesota town. About all the teams have completed the roster of players. President H. H. Kent has returned from Minneapolis where he opened negotiations for three league umpires.

CHANGE IN WIND

Saved Town Of Murray From Probable Destruction.

Ottumwa, Iowa, April 21.—A propitious change in the wind saved the town of Murray from possible destruction by fire last night. A grain elevator and extensive corn cribs of O. F. Hulbut & Co. caught fire and were destroyed, together with several freight cars. A high wind swept the flames towards the best part of the town, but after destroying a portion of the stockyards, the wind shifted and the fire was soon under control. The loss is estimated at nearly $40,000.

UP TO THE SENATE

Must Decide Contest Between Cuba and the Sugar Trust.

Vast Political Interests Are Hanging On the Decision.

Greatest Legislative Battle of Recent Years Is Impending.

Chicago, April 21.—Walter Wellman telegraphs to the Record-Herald from Washington: Is the New York sugar refining trust a greater power in the United States than the public opinion which demands justice for Cuba?

This is the question which has been raised by the sensational and to some extent surprising action of the house of representatives.

One of the greatest legislative and lobby battles of recent years is impending. Today the situation did not clear much so far as indicating the probable action of the senate is concerned. But so far as the future can be judged at this writing the sugar trust is beaten, and Cuba will yet gain a concession in some form before this session of congress comes to an end. If it does not it will be because the New York trust is too strongly intrenched among the active leaders of the Republican side of the senate.

Probably no more complicated situation was ever seen in the American congress. The policy of protection, the success of the Roosevelt administration, the prestige of the speaker of the house and the discipline and domination of the Republican majority in both houses of congress are directly or indirectly involved, to say nothing of many millions of money.

Until now the New York trust has been working in harmony with American public opinion. Both have demanded concessions to Cuba, the first selfishly, the latter generously. The trust wanted cheaper raw materials, and it refines all the sugar that comes from Cuba; the people wanted Cuban planters to get a higher price for their crop. The trust has taken advantage of popular sympathy for Cuba, and behind that sympathy it carried on an adroit and effective campaign.

But at this juncture the trust and public opinion part company. This is because the house, captured by the alliance of beet sugar Republicans and Democrats, passed the 20 per cent bill and repealed the differential on refined sugar. The trust wanted the former, but did not want the latter. It is estimated by good authorities that the 20 per cent reduction, standing alone, means to the trust an increased profit of about $3,000,000 the Cuban planters getting the other $3,000,000 of reduced duties. But the differential is said by the same authorities to be worth $5,000,000 a year to the trust on present conditions of trade in keeping out the competition of foreign refined sugar.

Therefore if the bill passes in its present form the trust, instead of gaining larger profit for its long campaign and adroit use of wholesome popular sympathy for Cuba, will be worse off than it was before.

Thus the trust is placed on the defensive. It must prevent enactment of the law as it no wstands. What the loss of the differential would mean to the trust is shown in the Wall street quotations Saturday on its common stock—a loss of $5 a share from Friday's highest.

Public opinion and the interests of the trust have come into direct conflict, because it is now known the Cuban reciprocity bill cannot be put through unless the differential is repealed, as in the house bill. Instead of working for Cuban reciprocity the trust is now working against it. This trust has powerful friends in the senate. These friends have made money for it in the past by fixing the differential as the trust wished. Many think they are strong enough to do it again. For the present, therefore, we have a deadlock, the trust on one side, justice to Cuba on the other.

The beet sugar people and their allies put the differential amendment on the bill for the avowed purpose of killing the measure. They reckoned on the trust to do the rest.

But there is ground for hope that both will be disappointed in the final result—that the bill may become law just as it is.

The new leader of the Democratic party in congress is Mr. Baler, of Texas. This young senator is playing good politics. He induced the house Democrats to smash the Henderson machine and the sugar trust with the same blow. He has thus passed up to the Republicans of the senate the very delicate question whether they will stand for the trust or for Cuba. He is now trying to mass the Democrats of the senate in a solid column against the trust and for a reduction of the protective duties on sugar.

Mr. Bailey has made a canvass of the senate. Of the eighty-eight members fifty-four are Republicans, thirty Democrats and four independents or Populists. The Texas senator claims that twenty-three of the Republicans are in favor of striking out the differential, leaving thirty-one Republicans who are disposed to stand by the passage of a straight Cuban reciprocity bill such as the trust originally favored.

If this canvas is approximately correct it shows that at least fourteen Democrats or independents must join the thirty Republicans in order to secure a majority of the whole senate. Hence Bailey is doing all in his power to hold the Democrats in line and win as great victory at his end of the capitol as he won yesterday in the house of representatives. In other words this shrewd leader and those who act with him are building up in two Republican legislative bodies an anti-trust combination which threatens to destroy the harmony and the domination of the party majority.

The revolutionary coup in the house has thrown the Republicans into a state of dire confusion. They do not know what to do or how to escape dilemma. On the one side are public opinion and the administration of President Roosevelt demanding relief for Cuba. On the other is the hard fact that they can grant this relief only by striking down the differential duty, which is as much a part of the Republican scheme of protection as any other protective duty in the Dingley schedules. To pass the bill in its present form means not only abandonment of protection to that degree, but following the lead of insurgents and Democrats. To refuse the bill because the trust's profits are threatened means they must stand before the country as preferring the trust to "plain duty."

There is grave danger that the Republicans of the senate will soon find themselves in as sad a state of demoralization as their party brethren in the house, which everyone admits is bad enough. An ugly feeling pervades the majority side of both chambers. No one is perfectly happy except the Democrats, and they are greatly enjoying the troubles of their political antagonists. Speaker Henderson has lost his control of the house, and is now turning his attention to smoothing down the antagonisms which have been created. For this purpose Joe Cannon was put forward Saturday to make a funny speech and relieve the tenseness of the situation with a bit of humor and horseplay.

On account of these dangers a good many Republicans favor dropping the whole matter. They welcome the resolution introduced by Mr. Teller for an investigation of the sugar question. Of course an investigation at this time means no action. It means postponement of the problem till after the fall elections. There is very little genuine enthusiasm for Cuba in the senate. The Cubans have no votes. Most of the pressure for Cuban relief comes from the people and the administration. A majority of the Republican senators would like to wash their hands of the whole business.

But where will that leave the president? What is to become of the promise which President McKinley made the Cuban delegates in order to secure adoption of the Platt amendment virtually establishing American suzerainty over Cuba? Is "every consideration of honor" to be flouted again?

Much will depend upon the attitude which President Roosevelt takes. He will be visited by senators who will tell him the campaign for Cuba must be dropped. They will say there is danger of wrecking the party. They will point out the dreadful situation which now exists on the bill, the majority side torn by dissensions and confronted with the most embarrassing dilemmas. They will deftly suggest that if he goes on in his demand for justice to Cuba and harm comes to the Republican organization he will be accused of being a "party wrecker," just as Mr. Cleveland was accused years ago by his own political friends.

It would surprise no one if President Roosevelt yielded to these pleas for the sake of harmony, for the sake of getting through some other legislation of great importance, such as the Philippine bill and the canal bill. It may be possible to raise a cloud of difficulties which will give him an exaggerated idea of the force of the storm lying beyond. His courage and steadfastness will be tested to the utmost.

OLD SETTLER.

Scargill Wakelin Died At Wakelin Farm Saturday Evening.

Scargill Wakelin, one of the earliest settlers here, died Saturday night. He settled here in the early '50s on what is known as the Wakelin farm at French river. The Wakelin farm is an oasis in the forest desert at the mouth of the French river. It lies on the lake shore, and the Iron Range road passes so close that it has for years attracted the attention of travelers. The farm was entered under military warrant.

Later, Mr. Wakelin sold the farm to W. C. Sargent, E. Z. Williams and others, though members of the family have since occupied it as tenants.

Mr. Wakelin also formerly conducted a hotel on Second avenue east which was known as the Wakelin house. The hotel burned and was never rebuilt. He sold part of the property on which it stood, but reserved a site on First street on which he erected a brick house. He was considerable of a speculator and unfortunate deals in which he was interested dissipated considerable of his holdings.

Mr. Wakelin was known among old settlers as "Bill" Wakelin. For years he has been one of the old time characters of the city. He was a native of Cambridge, England, and his father kept in that vicinity a famous sportsmen's stopping place.

Though Mr. Wakelin died at an advanced age, injuries he had sustained in accidents hastened the end. He was once badly hurt by a tree falling upon him, and it is said that he had had his skull fractured several times.

STYLISH SPRING COSTUME.

Gown of Dark Blue Zibeline —New Hip Yoke.

For early spring wear the tailor-made idea still prevails, the gowns on the whole showing a far greater simplicity than has been the case for the last few seasons. Our illustration shows a gown of dark blue zibeline, the Eton showing a very novel effect in the way of stitching. The jacket is cut without a collar and the revers may be either of striped silk or trimmed with straps. The skirt is cut with a yoke, below which are wide tucks stitched down with white Corticelli stitching silk.

Quite a new material is the double-faced linen which will undoubtedly arrive at the height of popularity during the summer and will be employed to evolve some very fetching gowns. Very little trimming is required on them, as the reverse side of the linen will answer admirably for this purpose. A wide latitude is given the skirts, although the fundamental principle—flaring at the hem—is till adhered to. This effect is gaining in different ways, either with curved seams or with a flounce, and is sometimes still further increased with clusters of tucks, or with small inset panels at the hem of contrasting material and color. It stands to reason that heavy goods like homespun, tweed and mixed fabrics in general will make up much more satisfactoriiy in a plain, gored skirt.

RAFTERS

Do Not Like Northeaster That Is Prevailing Now.

The nor'easter that has been blowing the past two days affords anything but a promising opening of the log rafting and towing season on the north shore. Lumbermen that have operated down the shore consider a nor'easter as about the worst thing they can meet. A wind from that direction usually blows for four or five days, and directly against the shore line, closing the booms and logs up against the beach. For safety's sake, to prevent the breaking of the booms, the tug usually pulls out into the lake, and a nor'easter usually means four days' idleness. A straight northerly wind is usually enough off shore, so it is said that by stretching the second or outside boom along the shore breaking—in operations can be continued as a general thing.

The Nestor estate began rafting the last of last week. If favorable weather had continued yesterday, the first raft would have been filled and gotten away from the shore. From that time there would be little worry about it. But it is thought now that the tug has had to pull the partly filled booms away from the beach without getting the raft complete enough to tow it to its destination.

It is said that the Cross River people and the Split Rock interests are getting ready to break in their first rollways this season.

Lack of rain is causing some apprehension regarding the logs in the streams on the south shore of Lake Superior. There has been very little logging done on these streams this season, and so comparatively few logs are involved. Most of the south shore timber is now banked on the beach, and is not dependent on spring rains.

SWIMMING RECARDS BROKEN.

San Francisco, April 21.—News of the breaking of three world's swimming records by Dick Cavill, a members of the famous family of Australian life savers, has just reached here. Cavill established the new marks at a tournment held in Wanganui, N. Z. In the mile he finished at 21:11 2-5. The half mile was made in the wonderful time of 11:08. The last race on the program was for a quarter mile, which he covered in 5:57½.

M'CARTHY IS SILENT

Itasca County Senator Says Nothing of His Intentions.

Itasca County Friends Anxious to Have Him Enter Field.

Talk of Opposition From Lumbermen Is Unfounded.

Senator C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, Minn., is not yet an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed Congressman Page Morris, of this district. Whether he will be a candidate remains to be seen, but just at present his friends say he has his ear to the ground. He is considering the matter seriously, whether he has a good show of getting the nomination if he goes after it and whether, in the event that he secures the nomination and election, he could afford it.

Senator McCarthy is saying nothing of his intentions and any statements that have been given out to the public regarding his candidacy are not authentic.

Senator McCarthy was asked Saturday by a Herald reporter whether there was any truth in the report of his candidacy. He smiled and answered:

"People will talk, you know."

Further than that he would say nothing.

If Senator McCarthy does enter the field as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congressmen, his Itasca county friends claim that he will receive the solid vote of not only his own county, but several of the northern counties in the Eighth district. They are every anxious that he will enter the field.

Mayor D. M. Gunn, of Grand Rapids, who is about as well posted on Itasca county political affairs as any man, says that J. Adam Bede would not take a vote in the county from Senator McCarthy. He says that it is a mistake to suppose that the lumbermen would oppose Senator McCarthy's nomination. When the McCarthy time check law, which prevented the "shaving shops" from getting the woodsmen's time checks for about half their face value, and practically compelled the lumbermen to operate for the winter on a cash basis, passed the legislature, there were lumbermen who felt unkindly toward the author of the bill, but Mr. Gunn claims that time has softened this feeling and that now Senator McCarthy has a large clientage among some of the very lumbermen who did not feel kindly toward him when the bill became a law.

Senator McCarthy was never a candidate for the nomination when Mr. Morris was after it and if the latter was to be a candidate again, there would not be the remotest possibility of his entering the race.

Mrs. Gregory Brings Action Against Brainerd's City Clerk.

A number of Duluthians are interested in a suit that has been started at Brainerd by Mrs. William Gregory, of Portland, Ore., against City Clerk Lowe, of the municipal court of Brainerd.

Mrs. Gregory is a colored woman and formerly lived in Duluth. About a year ago two colored girls—Etta Hickman and Mary Boggs secured $3200 from a farmer down in Iowa. It was one of those flurry touches for which colored soubrettes are noted.

The two women cut across the country about forty miles and then took a train for Duluth. They went to live with the Gregorys. The Gregorys and the Hickman woman put up a scheme to beat the Boggs woman out of what she considered her share of the stolen money.

They stole away in the night heading for Portland. The Boggs woman heard of it and notified the police. A wire from Detective Troyer caused the chief of police of Moorhead to arrest them just as they were crossing out of Minnesota and into Dakota.

All the colored people were started back to Duluth but Mrs. Gregory had to be taken to a hospital in Brainerd. In the meantime it was impossible to account for one of the missing $1000 bills.

After a session in the sweat box Etta Hickman said that Mrs. Gregory had the money. The woman at Brainerd denied it. Later the bills were found sewed up in one of her old wrappers.

This bill was turned over to Clerk Lowe who afterward turned it over to Detective Troyer and he turned it over to the Iowa authorities. Now Mrs. Gregory is suing Clerk Lowe for that amount.

BOLD THIEF

Robs Woodsman On Rice's Point In Broad Daylight.

Yesterday afternoon a man was knocked down and robbed behind a lumber pile on Rice's Point.

The victim of this bold, broad daylight robbery was William Grannis. The thief was not captured and he took with him $11 of Grannis' money.

The victim was coming over from West Superior on an interstate car when he met an affable stranger in workingmen's clothes. Owing to the fact that Grannis had been drinking West Superior beer he became ill.

The stranger became very anxious about him and finally on the way up Garfield avenue suggested that fresh air might benefit Grannis.

The latter acted on the suggestion and the stranger marched him in between two lumber piles. Grannis was so ill that he sat down. The stranger struck him a blow that caused him to lay down, but sobered him up considerably.

Grannis then made a desperate fight but the stranger was stronger and succeeded in taking away his money and escaping.

CHALLENGE.

Victorious Spellers of Grand Rapids To Go After Duluth.

Flushed with its victory in a spelling contest with the schools at Park Rapids, Fosston and Bemidji, the Grand Rapids, Minn., central high school is seriously considering the idea of challenging the Duluth central high school to a similar contest for the championship of Northern Minnesota.

The contest was held in Bemidji last Friday evening, each school being represented by three representatives. There were two tests, oral and written, the spelling lasting until nearly 2 o'clock Saturday morning. The Grand Rapids representatives were Miss Della Yansey, Miss Ada Kramer and Alexis Partridge. They were accompanied to Bemidji by about thirty of their fellow pupils and, as the Fosston and Park Rapids schools were represented by an equal number of supporters, there were lively times in Bemidji Friday and Saturday.

News of the success of the Grand Rapids contingent was wired to Grand Rapids Saturday morning and a big demonstration was planned and carried out. A majority of the business places were closed in the afternoon and when the victorious spellers arrived at their home they found the whole population of Grand Rapids, with the City band, at the depot to meet them. A procession was formed, headed by the band and a carriage containing the victorious pupils. They carried a new broom bedecked with ribbons and paraded the town.

A championship contest between the high school of Grand Rapids and the Duluth central high school would be a very interesting event and with its record of defeating teams from three other schools of prominent Northern Minnesota towns, and this after several weeks of careful preparation by all concerned, the Duluth central high school spellers would find opponents worthy their best efforts.

She is a fine girl, quite brilliant I hear. I understand she has just completed a course of Rocky Mountain Tea. That accounts for her brilliancy. Ask your druggist.

SEEDING

Has Just Fairly Begun In the Red River Valley.

"Seeding in the Red River valley has but fairly begun," said R. S. Munger today. Mr. Munger has just returned from a trip to his large farm, near Wheatland, N. D. "Seeding on our farm was begun last Wednesday," continued Mr. Munger. "On the Dalrymple farm operations did not begin until the following day. This, I believe, is indicative generally of the situation regarding spring work in the valley. It has been too wet until now to begin working the soil, though the spring there was quite well advanced. Still, they had more snow out in that country than we had here.

"I did not travel about much, aside from the trip it was necessary for me to make, but I gathered the impression that all the belief that there are large stocks of wheat in reserve in farm granaries is absolutely without foundation. Of course, in some cases an occasional farmer may have a little wheat back, but in a general way practically all wheat has been marketed. A great many are holding some wheat for seeding.

After they have supplied their needs in that direction it is doubtful if much will be left over to market. We've read a great deal about farmers holding their wheat, but I don't believe its out there to hold. In fact, the yield out there the past two years has not been so sweepingly large as some people believe. The country is pretty prosperous, but not everybody has prospered so largely. Crops are not so bountiful as they used to be on lands that have been worked for a number of years. That is to say, the yield is not so uniformly large.

"The farmers out in the territory I was in are investing in live stock, and will go quite extensively into raising it for the market. They will also engage quite largely in dairying. These things are now under way and are developing quite rapidly.

"Fargo surprises me every time I visit it, there has always been so much improvement. It strikes me that Fargo is always going to be a good town. It certainly is making good strides forward just now, and has been doing so for some years."

MORGAN LEFT ON SUNDAY.

New York, April 21.—J. P. Morgan, who was reported to have left London Saturday, says a World dispatch from London deferred his departure until Sunday. POLISH COLONY

Company Establishing One In Itasca and Aitkin Counties.

Sells Land to Polanders And Is Advertising Widely.

Building Churches and Schools---Paper Mill Buys Spruce.

Nova Polska, or "New Poland," is the name that is being applied to a large tract of land comprised in twelve townships in Itasca and Aitkin counties, which is being rapidly settled up by Polish people from the southern part of Minnesota, Northern Iowa, various parts of this country and even from Poland.

The Nova Polska Colonization company that is back of this big movement of Polish settlers in Northern Minnesota, is comprised of wealthy Polish men from the southern part of this state, with headquarters at St. Paul. This company has been a heavy purchaser of farming lands in Northern Minnesota for the past year and now controls lands in Northern Minnesota for the past year and now controls about 70,000 acres in the tract running south from Grand Rapids, Minn., between the Mississippi and Swan rivers to Sandy lake, in Aitkin country. The company is steadily buying land and it is estimated that "New Poland" already comprises 200 square miles.

Since the first of the year the colonization company has been selling land to Polish people that will become actual settlers, and thousands of acres have been disposed of. About twice a week representatives of the colonization company pass through Duluth with parties of home-seekers, who are taken to view the state experimental farm at Grand Rapids and to see the land that they intend to buy.

Last evening J. N. Ady, of Swan River, general agent for the colonization company, passed through Duluth with a party of Polish people that last Saturday purchased 1200 acres of the land in "New Poland," near Grand Rapids and who are going back for their families and friends to make settlement.

The colonization company is building two Polish churches for the settlers, one at Freeley, on the Eastern Minnesota road, between Verna and Swan River, and the other in Aitkin county. Sometime in May the cornerstone of the church at Freeley will be laid and excursions are to be run up from St. Paul, by the way of Duluth, to Freeley. It is planned to make it a gala affair.

The business interests at Grand Rapids are very much elated over the rapid settling up of the country tributary to that place and they are predicting big things for their town.

As a rule the Polish people move in large numbers. They are a clannish people and are anxious to get into a new country where there are no other settlers, get their farms, organize townships with their own township officers and have their own churches and schools. The rapid settling up of "New Poland" is said to mean the starting of one or two thriving little towns in the country settled, one of which is bound to be at Freeley.

The land that is being settled is a dark loam in some parts and a sandy loam in others. It is claimed to be very fertile and much of it is covered with spruce, balsam, tamarack, cedar and hardwoods.

The pulp and paper mills of the Itasca Paper company at Grand Rapids, Minn., is now operating day and night and seven days in the week. It offers a splendid market for all the spruce of the region and it is said that the settlers in clearing their land can, by selling the spruce to the paper company, more than pay for the land and the clearing of it.

New Poland is being widely advertised in the old country and the colonization company is receiving a large amount of inquiries from across the sea. The indications are said to be excellent for a heavy movement of Polish people from the old country to Itasca and Aitkin county farm lands this year.

Prices of the land are said to range from $5 to $10 per acre and nearly all the sales to actual settlers are being made on a cash basis.

HE WILL RECOVER.

Cameron Boy Seriously But Not Fatally Injured.

William Cameron, the 5-year-old boy that was run over by a car on East Fourth street Saturday afternoon, is at St. Luke's hospital and resting comfortably.

Though the injuries were very severe there is little doubt as to his ultimate recovery.

The physicians found that one leg was broken near the hip and that the scalp was badly torn.

The little fellow was not unconscious at any time and he bore up under pain with bravery that might do credit to a full grown man. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron, of 1611 East Fourth street.

"YOU MEAT EATERS."

The Baltimore Man Says Things.

You meat eaters who are ailing in any sort of way might take a valuable hint from the following:

A gentleman in Baltimore writes: "For a long time I steadily ran down because of an intense pain in my side, and also in the pit of my stomach. I was miserable and everything I ate caused distress. I fell away from 185 pounds to 150. Lost my ambition for work, was drowsy all of the time, felt tired in the morning as I did upon going to bed at night.

"I was a steady meat eater three times a day for several years. Somebody told me that if I would change my diet and take Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food at two meals in the day I would improve. I made the experiment and in less than two weeks began to improve very rapidly. My appetite came back and I slept better than I had for months.

"I used Grape-Nuts both at breakfast and lunch and ate a little meat for dinner, but not much. I discovered that a few teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts would furnish more nourishment than quantities of meat.

"My improvement has continued until now I weigh 195 pounds, which is a gain of about forty-five pounds in five months, and I feel in magnificent condition. Please do not publish my name if you use this letter, but I will gladly tell any person of the benefits received if self addressed, stamped envelope is sent." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

WILL BE TAKEN UP

Mayoralty Election Contest To Be Carried to Supreme Court.

Truelsen Lost Doubtful Ballots and Hugo Gained Every One.

Henry Truelsen Says the Decision Is Suprise To Him.

The Hugo-Truelsen mayoralty case will be carried to the supreme court.

It will be taken up in the current term of that court, and may be finally determined within a month.

As announced in The Herald's extra on Saturday evening, Judge Ensign and Judge Cant of the district court filed their decision in favor of the Republican contestee just as the court closed for the day.

This decision gives T. W. Hugo a majority of five votes over Henry Truelsen, the Democratic contestant.

There were 38 ballots in dispute that had the initials of only one election judge on the back, and there were 10 that did not have any initials.

There were 6 more Hugo ballots with only one initial than there were Truelsen ballots, and 8 more Hugo ballots without any initials than there were Truelsen ballots.

The principal fight of the Democrats was to throw out all these ballots, which would result in a net loss of 14 for the Republicans.

Judges Ensign and Cant held that the provision of law that says the initials of two judges of election of opposite political parties shall be on the back of each ballot, is directory only in that it is designed for an orderly conduct of an election, and that if for any reason of oversight or even wilful misconduct, the judges of election fail to initial the ballots, the innocent voter shall not be disfranchised thereby.

Outside of the uninitialed ballots the Republicans gained every "doubtful" vote that they hoped to gain while the Democrats lost every "doubtful" ballot they hoped to gain.

When the Democrats announced this morning that they would hasten the case into the supreme court, a representative of Mr. Truelsen simply said:

"We recognize the fact that we are beaten in this court only. We are not thoroughly convinced that the decision of the district court is exactly what it ought to be on the facts of law presented."

Henry Truelsen conferred with his attorney, J. B. Richards, this morning and there seemed to be but one sentiment—the case should be taken higher.

Mr. Truelsen said that he did not care to talk much for publication, but finally said:

"I was greatly surprised when I heard of the decision. We had great expectations. The supreme court will now have to decide on whether or not the purity of the Australian ballot shall be preserved because there is a greater and more important significance to that than there is to any political advantages that a favorable decision will give us.

"I have no doubt but that the two judges dealt fairly and honestly as they saw the law, but we are not convinced that their decision in infallible."

Before the case can be taken into the supreme court a transcript of all the testimony must be taken by the court stenographer and the case settled in the district court. This will be done with as little delay as possible.

IN MICHIGAN

Low Water Is Delaying Driving of Logs Considerably.

Ontonagon—The Diamond Match company is experiencing considerable delay in driving its logs this spring on account of the low stage of the water in the rivers. Only about 3,000,000 feet have been run in the boom so far, and there are about 25,000,000 feet more to be brought down. The season opened early with plenty of water, and it was anticipated that the company would be able to get in all its logs at an early date, but there has been no rain to speak of and operations are practically at a standstill.

Marquette—Owing to the large number of liquor cases to be tried during the term of circuit court, the docket is the largest ever compiled for any term of court. The total number of cases is 107, sixty-nine of which are for criminal charges. Sixty-five of the latter are cases against saloon keepers of the county for alleged violations of the liquor law. It is likely that most of those cases will be settled in a short time, nevertheless the approaching term of court promises to be a long one. There are two cases for assault with intent to murder, one for illegal voting and one for assault. The jury list for the term has been drawn.

The Sturgeon River Lumber company, whose mill is at Chassell, will likely be reorganized and the plant continued in operation. At the court house Thursday Trustee E. L. Wright sold the property and lands of the company, the bulk of it being taken by the creditors for $37,495.25. But few bids were made and the sale went as expected. The creditors will be instrumental in organizing the new company, although the old company has the right to redeem the property within a certain limit of time. Lieutenant Governor Robinson, of Chassell, was prominently connected with the old company, which got badly in debt several years ago, causing the trustee to be appointed.

William McDonald, a woodsman employed in McKenzie's lumber camp in the Porcupine mountains the past winter, was taken to the Marquette hospital Thursday, where he will undergo a surgical operation. McDonald being minus the necessary funds, the business men generously chipped in, raising $35, and the county purchased his ticket to Marquette.

Houghton—Stanton is the name of the new township created in Houghton county by the division of Hancock township. It consists of the south and southwestern portions of the township, comprising all that strip of land extending from the lake to Redridge. A special election will be held May 5 for the purpose of electing officers for the newly-created township. Hancock made a hard fight to prevent the division, and it is said that the matter will be carried to the supreme court.

AN OPEN RUPTURE

Exists Between Teamsters and American Federation of Labor.

Chicago Organization Defies National Body and Its Methods.

Recognition of Employers Membership Causes the Trouble.

Chicago, April 21—Through its failure to expel the delegates of the seceding 15,000 teamsters of this city, the Chicago Federation of Labor has taken an attitude of open rebellion against the American Federation of Labor, its officers and methods. In defiance of a mandate from President Gompers and Secretary Frank Morrison of the national body, says the Chronicle, the local labor assembly not only refused to order the expulsion of the teamsters' representatives, but went to the extent of indorsing, by formal vote, the stand taken by the seceders. Members of the Teamsters' union had seceded from that organization because the right of employers to membership was recognized, it is alleged, by President Gompers, and the American Federation ordered the Chicago body to expel the seceders. This was referred to a committee, whose report, which was unanimously adopted, contained the following:

"We further recommend, in the way of a resolution, that the international team drivers of America be notified that we stand for the union of wage-earners, and that we cannot encourage or countenance any organization that admits employers, and that when they eliminate from their constitution this clause, we stand ready to help them to settle the grievances between them and the Teamsters' National union."

great difficulty in getting a list of the survivors. It is thought that many charred bodies will be found in the hull of the burned steamer when the mass of members ceases burning so that search for the remains can be made.

Cairo, Ill., April 21.—The side-wheel steamer City of Pittsburg, en route from Cincinnati to Memphis, was burned to the water's edge early Sunday morning at Turner's Landing, near Olmstead, Ill., eleven miles from Mound City, Ill., and twenty-four miles from this city. The early reports stated that sixty-five lives were lost, and that many were badly burned and otherwise injured, but the list of casualties is not yet definitely determined. Two boats and every available craft from this city went to the scene for relief.

Most of the passengers were still in bed when Second Clerk Oliver Phillips gave the alarm. The engineers at once started all the pumping engines, while the crew brought all the hose to play. Amid the streams of water on all sides, the flames from the lower dock, and the dense clouds of smoke, the passengers rushed from their staterooms, and a frightful panic ensued. The appeals of the officers and crew could not appease the terror-stricken crowds that interfered with those throwing water on the flames, as well as with those working with the lifeboats. Few could adjust life preservers or do anything else for themselves.

The smoke was stifling. Great clouds floated through the blazing steamer, choking the passengers and adding to the terror. Children cried pitifully, and begged that they be saved. They knew, as well as their elders, that death confronted them, and clung to their mothers as though they alone could save them. Lifeboats were manned, and every effort was made to save the passengers in the scant attire they were able to gather were landed at the river banks. As fast as a boat could be emptied, it returned to the ill-fated steamer, the heroic rescuers not waiting to catch a breath of rest. The burning steamer was quickly headed to the bank, but the passengers had to jump off the stern, and, trying to swim ashore through the swift current, many were drowned.

Many also perished in the flames. Only one yawl was saved, without oars, and the women were taken off. About twenty or thirty were taken off in the yawl. The rest were picked up out of the water. Help, except from people living near-by, did not arrive until 2:30 this afternoon, and passengers with only nightclothes and without food suffered terribly.

The fire started in the forward hatch, larboard, and burned fiercely. When the steamer ran ashore, escapes were made over the cabin railing. Very few of the passengers or of the crew were aware of the fire until it was too late.

The captain and clerk claim that, in all, eighty persons have been accounted for, leaving sixty persons lost or unaccounted for.

The loss of over $80,000 on the steamer does not include the cargo, both being a total loss. The latest estimates are that there were 150 persons aboard, and no more than half of them were saved, many of the latter being burned or injured. As the register of the steamer was burned, no list can be given either of the victims or of the survivors, and in the confusion it has been impossible to get complete lists. Capt. Phillips admits that the death list may reach sixty.

One of the surviving members of the crew gave this account:

"The fire was discovered at 4:15 a. m. in the forward hold. In a few minutes the whole bow was a wreck. The front stairways burned, cutting off any avenue of escape. We alarmed the sleeping passengers, bursting open the doors to awaken them. They ran out without putting on life preservers and drowned aft. The officers held them back while the one yawl was loaded with women and children.

"The scene was awful. About twenty or thirty were taken off in the boat and then those in the water were rescued The water was very cold and the passengers were in their night clothing. Those who were not burned up in the boat drowned in the cold water, all except those who were able to swim, I was one of those.

"When we reached shore we were unable to stand and had to be helped out of the water. It seemed as though we were crazed by fright, for we were screaming with fright even after we were safe ashore."

THE ITALIAN CONCERT.

A Fine Program Heard By Small Audience.

The Italian concert at the Armory yesterday afternoon was not liberally attended, but was a fine musical event worthy of far more patronage than it received. It was given by Signora Valenza, Signor Valenza and George Tyler, assisted by Miss Mildred Porter, Miss Rena Smith and Roy Prytz, and the program numbers were entirely Italian music.

Signora Valenza sang an aria from "Mignon," and received an ovation, if the enthusiasm of an audience so small could be called one. George Tyler appeared twice in solos, and was no less cordially received, being in excellent voice and singing with fine effect. The duet by Signora Valenza and Mr. Tyler was a gem.

Signor Valenza gave two hard solos. He is a thorough master of that delightful instrument, playing with fine technique, admirable expression and effective style.

Miss Mildred Porter made her initial appearance before a Duluth audience and made a most favorable impression. Her voice is a clear soprano, of fine quality and strength, well toned and expressive. She sang "Non e ver," by Mattei, and a pretty song as an encore number. Later she appeared with Signor Valenaz in a due that was very pleasing.

Miss Rena Smith and George Tyler sang the recitative and aria from "La Traviata." It is one of the most difficult numbers in which Miss Smith has been heard, and she acquitted herself with great credit. It requires tremendous vocal technique to adequately render this, and, while it could not be claimed that Miss Smith was perfect, she took the runs and trills with surprising brilliancy and effectiveness.

Roy Prytz sang the recitative and aria from "L'Ebroe," by Milotti, very cleverly.

The quartet, from "Rigoletto," by Signora Valenza, Miss Smith, Mr. Tyler and Mr. Prytz concluded the program.

FISH TRUST.

It Is Alleged Booth & Co. Control the Trade.

Cleveland, April 21.—The United States court for the Northern district of Ohio, located here, will probably soon commence an investigation of the alleged fish trust which does business as A. Booth & Co., of Chicago.

This concern is capitalized at $5,500,000, and is said to practically control the fresh and salt water fish business from Boston to Astoria, Ore., and from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Selkirk, Man. On March 28 last A. Booth & Co., filed a petition in the United States court here asking that the Buckeye Fish company, of this city, be restrained from doing business here and named E. R. Edson and other stockholders of the Edson Fish company, which sold out to the trust, as parties defendant.

A temporary injunction was granted by United States Judge Wing and there will be a hearing in the case May 5. Since the injunction was granted E. R. Edson has filed answer and affidavits in which he asserts that William Vernon Booth, president of the trust, threatened to drive the Edson company out of business if it did not sell out and so it was sold to Booth & Co., for $110,000. Edson also asserts that Booth told him that it would be possible to control the entire fish business and that competitors would be frozen out.

He says that Booth & Co. got hold of sixty-four different fish companies and then reduced the prices paid to fishermen from 20 to 40 per cent and increased selling prices from 20 to 60 per cent.

Besides the affidavit of Edson similar affidavits have been filed by eighty-five other fish dealers who have been put out of business.

Retaliation Move Against Germany.

In all probability, the retaliatory movement in the way of excluding certain German products from the United States markets, which has been under consideration for some time, will soon be put into effect. The evidence which has been collected in support of such an act has been placed in the hands of the president and has been considered by the cabinet. Secretary Wilson urged that the report be made public at once, believing that the publication of it would prove a salutary warning to Germany and other nations also that the United States was in a position to strike back at the countries that enacted legislation hostile to our producers and manufacturers. The report in question was made by Professor W. H. Wiley, chief chemist of the department of agriculture, and consists of an analysis of which are shown to contain adulterants of a more or less harmful nature. The specimens that were examined were secured at New York, fresh from Germany, and the evidence is sufficient to warrant our government in refusing the further admission of such goods on the very ground that Germany put forward in determining to keep out of her country American hams and pork treated with borax and acids. Dr. Wiley recommended that steps be taken to secure the appointment of an international congress to discuss this matter, to which should be invited representatives of all the European governments. He believes that a consultation of experts would result in a better understanding of the situation on the part of all concerned, and that many of the misapprehensions under which Germany and other governments are now laboring would be dispelled. Of course Germany has a perfect right to make regulations to protect the health of her people, but she should first be careful to see that she is not living in a glass house herself.

Our Trade Relations with Canada.

A few days ago mention was made in these columns of the great increase of trade between the United States and Canada and the especial need of fostering these commercial relations in every way. This fact is most forcefully emphasized by a statement made by Lieut. Col. MacLean, of Montreal, who has been visiting at Washington the past week. He says: "It is a matter of regret that the people of Canada and the United States are not on more intimate terms. Canada consumes more of the United States manufactured goods than any other country, and the amount of raw material bought here is great. Canada buys three times as much stuff from the United States as it sells to this country. These facts should be weighed carefully by men who are fixing the duties on Canadian goods imported by the United States. The tariffs imposed on Canadian goods are now about twice as great as the Canadian government imposes on American goods. This is a condition which cannot continue. At its next session it is probable that parliament will enact laws increasing duties on American goods to about twice the present rates, and providing for a reduction to the present rate again in case the United States sees fit to make a similar reduction in the tariff on our goods. Canadians are clamoring for reciprocity. John Charlton, an American who is a member of parliament from Norfolk, Ont., is a warm advocate of a measure containing the reciprocal provisions which I mentioned. There can be but one result of the discriminating rates of the United States against raw materials, and that will be the erection of factories in Canada which will do the work which is now done in this country. Canadians are now making their own cheese and are preparing their own meats. We are getting to be a mighty good lot of customers and the United States cannot afford to overlook us. If care is taken of our trade the United States can always have a great market for manufactured goods in Canada." Truer words were never spoken than these. It is apparent in the remarkable growth of the Dominion at such places as the Canadian Soo that the country is capable of supplying its own needs in manufactured goods, to a large extent, if necessary, and it behooves this country to bestir itself in the matter of reciprocal tariffs with its northern neighbor, and to do it at once.

BRAKES AND FENDERS.

A boy was run down by a street car and seriously injured on East Fourth street on Saturday afternoon and a short time after the same car cut in two a dog that was standing on the track near the ambulance which was waiting to convey the boy to the hospital. The car was moving so swiftly that it could not be stopped in time to save the boy and killing of the dog was due to the high rate of speed at which the car was run.

It is surprising that more accidents do not occur on the East Fourth street line, as the cars are run daily at a highly dangerous rate of speed. There is only one car on that line and it is supposed to make a round trip from Fifth avenue west on Superior street, via Third avenue west, Second street, Sixth avenue east and Fourth street to Eighteenth avenue east within half an hour. When the number of stops to take on and let off passengers is considered, it will be seen that the cars must run very rapidly, to the imminent danger of every person crossing the streets. What is needed is another car on that line, so that a lower rate of speed could be maintained and the danger to life and limb reduced.

Another fact illustrated by Saturday's accident is the ineffectiveness of the fenders now attached to the cars. But even more important than fenders of the best pattern are effective power brakes for the protection of human life and limb on the streets. Had the car in question been equipped with effective power brakes, the speed of the car could have been greatly checked before it struck the boy. But it is a well-known fact that but few of the street cars in this city have effective power brakes. It is time to bring the street railway company to a realization of its duty to the public in this respect.

BOER RELIEF FUND.

Douglas A. Petre, of this city, who has taken a deep interest in the gallant struggle of the Boer republics in South Africa to preserve their independence, wrote recently to Mayor Harrison of Chicago with reference to starting a Boer relief fund in Duluth. Mayor Harrison turned the letter over to the secretary of the Governor Yates Boer Relief Fund committee, which is composed of Judge Edward H. Dunne, Mayor Harrison and Peter Van Vlissingen, and Mr. Petre has received the following reply:

"Governor Yates Boer Relief Fund Committee, Chicago, April 17, 1902.—Mr. Douglas A. Petre, Duluth, Minn.: Dear Sir: Your letter of the 10th inst. to Mayor Harrison having been referred to me, I take occasion to thank you for your kind offer of assistance in securing subscriptions to the Boer relief fund. I feel sure that your cooperation in Duluth will mean much toward the furtherance of the purposes of our committee in the collection of funds for South African reconcentrado camp sufferers.

"We are having blank checks printed, payable to the Boer Relief Fund Committee, but owing to some delay with the printer, we have not yet been able to send them out. We will take the liberty to send you some as soon as possible, and earnestly wish that you may be successful in getting them filled out. As frequently as a sufficient number of checks is accumulated, we shall make remittances to President Roosevelt, and we have assurances that he will forward the money in the most expeditious way to the camp sufferers.

• • • Very truly yours,

"JOHN O. KNIGHT,
"Acting Secretary."

It is evident from the enormous death rate prevailing in the reconcentrado camps in South Africa that the unfortunate prisoners must be suffering from a want of the necessaries of life, and there should be liberal contributions by the charitably disposed and humane citizens of Duluth to relieve their suffering. Any contributions given to Mr. Petre, 209 Trust building, will be forwarded by him to the committee at Chicago.

POSTAL CURRENCY.

The strong endorsement received from both the people and press of the United States of the post check bills now pending in congress should have a strong influence upon the senators and representatives and induce them to give favorable consideration to the measures.

One of the prominent problems in modern business life—how to safely transmit small sums through the mails when the sender has no bank account upon which to draw checks—seems to have been solved by this simple plan. The proposed post check is nothing more than an ordinary government note so printed as to permit its transformation quickly into a veritable check. By affixing a stamp and writing upon provided spaces the name and address of the payee, this note becomes a money order, payable only to the payee. Thus the substitution of the post check for the present form obviates the necessity of a special journey to the post office on the part of the sender. He merely takes a bill from his pocket book, properly inscribes it, stamps it and cancels the stamp with his initials, and the transaction is complete at his end of the line. The requirement that a signature be given by the payee is a protection against fraud and theft. Until so used the note circulates as at present as money. When used and cashed as a post check it ceases to exist for circulating purposes and is replaced immediately by a new note.

Probably the express companies will endeavor to prevent the introduction of this system of postal currency, because it would affect the large business they now do in transmitting money. Undoubtedly their money order business would be practically wiped out, but this is a matter that does not concern the public and should have no influence with congress, in view of the general benefit that would be produced by the post check system. The Herald trusts the senators and representatives from Minnesota will vote for the postal currency scheme. The people want it.

ROOT MAY GO.

Something is likely to drop around the war department in the near future and it may be nothing less than the head of Secretary Root. If the inquiry into the Philippine complaints, directed by the president, is merely a militiary investigation made by the militiary, then things may be quieted down, but if investigated through independent channels as is favored by the public, then there will be trouble. President Roosevelt realizes that he has got to satisfy the people now and he will try to do so.

The man who will be brought into most unpleasant relations with the public through the existing situation is Secretary Root. There is no need of questioning his sincerity of purpose in holding back the charges made against the army till he could get the other side to put before the people along with them, in order to condemn that action as a mistake. His motive was inherited in part from the conditions of a past era when it was still possible to carry out governmental policies without taking the people at large into the confidence of the powers that be. That day passed long ago. In these times all facts are bound to come out, and the worst appendage they can have when exposed is the stamp of attempted concealment. Here is where Secretary Root's training as a lawyer, excellent as it may have been in other emergencies, stood him in very bad stead. He did not fully realize how far public interest had been aroused in the Philippine disclosures, and how dangerous it was to let it go to an extreme. The unfortunate experience of his predecessor should have warned him, but it appears not to have done so; and, admirable officer as he has proved himself in a hundred ways, and far removed as he is from any countenance of cruelty toward the helpless natives of the Philippines, the belated disclosure of his knowledge that there were scandals which called for investigation may have a fatal effect upon his future. Already there is a clamor among his enemies for his withdrawal from the cabinet.

It would be a sad catastrophe to the president to lose Secretary Root, but stranger things have happened and it may be possible that the secretary's usefulness has been ended by an error in judgment, which has unfortunately became magnified before the public. If Secretary Root realizes this, it will not take him long to make up his mind to retire.

The German savant who has compiled a dictionary of "cuss words" must have a massive intellect. The book is divided into five parts, viz: 1, Cuss words for men; 2, cuss words for ladies; 3, cuss words for either sex; 4, cuss words for children, and 5, cuss words to be used against political parties and corporations. The last sub-division is extra stiff and children who consult section 4 are warned in a foot note not to turn over the leaf.

There is a page in congress that ought to be turned down. Representative Small, of North Carolina, called him for an errand and incidentally asked the boy if he knew his name. "No, sir, I don't," replied the youngster, "but I know the state you're from." "Well, what is it?" "O, you're from the state where the governor said to the governor of South Carolina, 'It's a long ways to the creek.'"

Palma's inauguration day is to be a national holiday in Cuba. It will be interesting to notice how the Cubans will celebrate. Will they use fire crackers or act more sensibly?

It is reported President Roosevelt will "go up in a balloon" with Santos-Dumont. If he would send up the Republican house leaders, it would be a wiser plan.

The doctors are puzzled to know where Queen Willie got her typhoid, but it is more important now to get rid of it than to find where it originated.

It is worthy of note that some of the ablest United States senators are strong champions of Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

The click of lawn mowers will soon be heard in the land. But it ought not to be heard anywhere before 7 a. m.

LINES TO A SMILE.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "The editor of the Manila Volcano has been arrested." "Wonder what they'll do with the crater?"

Chicago Tribune: "I see old Skimmerhorn is up for office again. I thought he had got out of politics." "Well, you're not far wrong. About everything he has he got out of politics."

Somerville Journal: Almost every business man by the time he gets to be 40 carries around with him all the time at least one little bottle of pills, and sometimes two.

Chicago Post: "Are they happily mated?" "I don't think so. I overheard his wife telling him that she thought mourning was very becoming to her."

Philadelphia Press: Lieut. Lovett (sentimentally)—I've come to say "good-bye." I've been ordered to the Philippines. Miss Giddy—How jolly! It'll be so interesting now to read the lists of the killed and wounded.

Baltimore News: "Young man," said the solemn-looking gentleman in the throng, "do you know you are on the path to quick destruction?" "I do," replied the youth as he detached himself and hastened forward, for he had only ten minutes to spend in the quick-lunch room.

Baltimore American: "And so," said the member of the investigating committee, "you are the gentleman in charge of the rogues' gallery?" "Yes, sir," answered the police lieutenant, "we are the committee on weighs and mieans."

This subtle connection of the management of the institution with the methods of congress raised dark suspicions in the minds of the committee.

Her Lover In the West.

The girl he left behind him, ah, how sad
She looked that day;
He saw her wipe her brown eyes when the train was whirled away;
He turned to watch her standing there,
and joy was in his breast,
Whose course lay o'er the prairies where the sun sinks in the west.
He saw the girlish form grow dim and pass at last from view,
"The way is long," he said,
"That stretches out ahead,
But I shall win where glories are and bring them back to you."

The girl he left behind him, ah, she sadly turned that day
And went to sit along and weep her newlearned grief away;
She felt his kiss upon her lips—the first he dared to claim—
And every sound she heard appeared, somehow, to form his name.
A feeling that was strange and new lay deep within her breast,
Her fancies all went winging to the golden-tilted west;
That night she watched the sun
Go down, and prayed for one
Whose plea she might but yesterday have answered with a jest.

The girl he left behind him, ah, she wiped her tears away
And later blushed to hear the words another had to say;
The golden-tinted, glorious west lost all its former charms;
She leaned against another's breast, held by another's arms,
And he that journeyed bravely where the world was rich and new Found one who waited for him there; her soulful eyes were blue—
"Poor girl!" he sighed, "I know
You'll wait back there, but, oh,
The lover whom you saw depart can ne'er return to you."

What Hill Did.

"Other men like Jay Cooke, Crocker and Stanford," said Ell Perkins, "built the Union and Pacific and Northern Pacific to the Pacific coast. They built them with the flag flying and an appropriation. But I was for Jim Hill to build a railroad, alone, from St. Paul and Duluth to Seattle without rallying round that flag once, and without receiving a one-cent appropriation from congress!

"It is Jim Hill who has brought $300,000,000 worth of wealth into this country. It is Jim Hill who now links the great C. B. & Q., Great Northern and Northern Pacific together—and they are to be the great trinity which will carry all freight and passengers between America, China, Japan, Russia and the Philippines!"

Van Sant's Popularity.

Norman county Herald: As evidence of Governor Van Sant's strength we cite Mower county. This county generally goes Republican by 2000. Van Sant's plurality in that county was 1013 two years ago and now it is estimated that he would not receive 500 votes there.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Greed to seize somebody else's honors is politely called ambition.

No woman ever cares whether she had money or not if her bills would get lost in the mails.

The woman who at 30 has known no children of her own is only half of what the Lord intended her to be.

The frightful thing about the woman who lies is that, when she does it, she actually believes she is telling the truth.

Significance of the Initial.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: The names of both of the great Boer generals begin with a D. The word which expresses British sentiment regarding their exploits begins with the same letter.

The Army's Greatest Victory.

New York World: Of all the victories won in the field by the army created for the war of 1898 none reflects upon it such credit as its triumph in the campaign against disease. Of that triumph the war department almost stagger belief. The army took charge of Havana when deaths were occurring at the rate of 21,252 per year. Now, with a larger population, they are but 520 per year. Smallpox, which had been for years epidemic, is entirely stamped out, yellow fever practically so.

Experts on the Witness Stand.

Brooklyn Eagle: There are scientific experts whose testimony is to be taken with respect. They deal in facts. For example, a chemist will find what proportion of poison is contained in a certain substance that may have been administered with mischievous intent. A physician will describe an injury and tell of results and causes where shot or stab wounds are involved. An architect will be able to explain how a bridge or building has fallen. But the too usual expert is none of these. He is a man who for a great price offers a personal opinion one in which human life or liberty is involved, should be conducted solely on evidence. Opinion is not evidence.

Rising Tide of Benevolence.

New York Tribune: The tide of benevolence and good will has risen to a greater height than ever before. Men and women of means are giving more bountifully, and their benefactions are more widely diffused than in any spring of earlier years. Libraries and hospitals and churches, universities and colleges, and charities and good causes and undertakings of almost every kind are fairly flooded with showers of gold.: The world goes very well now so far as the open hand can make it go.

Early Bird In Action.

Buffalo Express: It's an ill wind that blows nobody good. Enterprising Yankees have loaded a steamer for South Africa with clocks, pianos, organs, cocktails and other necessities, in the belief that American goods will now be more popular than British goods in South Africa.

THE PROGRESSIVE BOARDER.

By Angela Morgan.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

Perhaps it was because the Thornton boarding house was so sadly deficient in its masculine element that the arrival of Richard Preston caused such a happy commotion.

Preston was a distinctly different sort of being from the four meek male creatures who daily took their abashed places at the respective tables assigned them.

Twelve pairs of critical feminine eyes brightened in grateful recognition of the difference the moment the new boarder entered the dining room.

Preston was broad-shouldered, clean-shaven and well groomed. He had an "air." There was no mistaking his caliber.

The twelve pairs of eyes flashed expectancy as Mrs. Thornton appeared, following close upon the young man's heels. Where should she seat him?

There seemed to be some indecision at first. The various tables were all occupied at the time. The small one in the corner, however, where the trio sat, had room for yet another plate.

The trio be it understood, consisted of three mutually congenial young women who formed a little coterie by themselves. Some said that the comradeship was based primarily upon the peculiar coincidence of their names.

"Let me introduce Mr. Preston, young ladies," smiled Mrs. Thornton. "Mr. Preston this is Miss Brown, Miss Black and Miss Gray."

Naturally the young man's face betrayed amusement.

"I fear I shall spoil the color scheme," he remarked pleasantly, as he promptly took the seat indicated.

The young women reassured him on this point. Of course, there was no ice to be broken after that. Conversation flowed smoothly and delightfully.

The other women in the dining room cast covertly envious glances toward the cheerful group in the corner.

"The girls are entirely too talkative, considering they have just met him for the first time," whispered Miss Hapgood, one of the bachelor maids at the long middle table, to Mrs. Foster, the little widow at her left.

"I think so, too," was the quick response. "And it shows such poor taste."

Indeed, there were several bachelor maids at this particular table, besides Mrs. Foster and two of the meek male creatures. But, of course, the latter did not count.

"Well, it certainly looks better to see at least one man at the corner table," pursued the widow. "Don't the trio seem deided? I'm glad for their sakes, of course. It equalizes things, you know."

"Not at all," disagreed Miss Hapgood. "Things are more unequal now than ever." She lowered her voice. "Wouldn't you rather have one of that sort at our table than half a dozen of—these?"

"Oh, certainly. But it isn't likely we'll ever have the privilege. It's plain he sees no use in attempting to monopolize him."

However, the triumph of the trio was short-lived. The very next evening, at dinner, the new boarder was transferred to another table.

It was now the turn of Mrs. Foster and the bachelor maids to entertain him. This they proceeded to do with a zeal quite inconsistent with their previous criticism of the trio.

"No doubt Mrs. Thornton sees the wisdom of seating him where he will be edified by something else than the senseless chatter of three silly girls," observed Mrs. Foster during the after conference in the parlor.

Then Mrs. Thornton herself came in and destroyed the comfortable complacency of the two by a ruthless statement of the plain facts.

"I feel so put out about Mr. Preston," she confided. "I mean to say I have to transfer him from table to table. But his hours are so uncertain and we are so crowded just now that I scarcely see any other way to manage."

"Oh!" commented Mrs. Foster.

"I see," murmured Miss Hapgood, thoughtfully.

"But he's very good natured over it," added Mrs. Thornton.

"He seems to be," assented Mrs. Foster with a starched smile.

After Mrs. Thornton had left the room the two turned amused glances upon each other.

"I suppose the table in the bay window will be next honored by his presence," observed the little widow, dryly.

Mrs. Foster's surmise was correct. The next evening Preston was piloted to the table in the bay window.

The trio, furtively observant, exchanged mirthful glances.

"A sort of progressive arrangement," murmured Miss Black, laughing softly.

"It's getting to be quite interesting," whispered Miss Gray.

"Well, it will be our turn again soon, you know," reminded Miss Brown.

At the end of three weeks the "progressive boarder" had made himself quite indispensable to the Thornton household. He was so generally agreeable and entertaining, so thoughtful of the comfort and welfare of everyone, that he won his way into the hearts of all. He jokingly referred to his progression from table to table as having been the means of fostering the feeling of good fellowship.

However, one thing was evident. Preston's general interest was of a general, not a specific, nature. No one could justly boast of special favor.

But, of course, things could not long remain so. Sooner or later his general regard must give way to a particular preference.

Miss Hapgood began to hint delicately of his interest in her work in the studio. The Whitney girls mentioned his graceful manner of paying compliments. The trio spoke of his charmingly sympathetic nature. Mrs. Foster referred frequently to the striking agreement of his taste, and hers in matters literary.

Things had reached this interesting stage of uncertainty and expectancy when one day it was learned that Preston had left the city on a brief trip to Eastern points.

"He'll be back in a week or so," explained Mrs. Thornton.

"Oh, a business trip, perhaps?"

"N—no; he did not specify."

Mrs. Thornton smiled the tantalizing smile of one who might say more if she dared.

Perhap if she had told them that just before leaving, Preston gave up his single room and took the large second floor front, over the parlor, the boarders might have been spared the shock of subsequent developments.

About a week and a half later a carriage drove up to the Thornton house at breakfast time. The man who stepped out of it was no other than Richard Preston. But he was not alone. A dainty little woman in a smart traveling suit was helped out of the carriage by the evergallant Richard.

"His wife!" murmured a dozen tongues.

"Isn't it a lovely surprise?" cried Mrs. Thornton, with a beaming countenance. She hastened upstairs to welcome the bride and groom.

"So he was engaged all the time," whispered Miss Hapgood in the little widow's ear.

"Do you know," said the latter impressively, "that I suspected it from the first? I had that intuition."

Mrs. Foster's intuitions were always expressed after, not before, an event.

The comments of the other boarders were too numerous and varied to bear repetition.

Suffice it to say that all smiled benignly as Preston entered the dining room with his bride.

Another small table was brought in and placed in the corner opposite the trio. Such a cozy little table as it was, just for two.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston occupied it from that time on, as they do even at the present writing.

Check Rein on Tariff Managers.

Indianapolis Journal: United States Judge Grosscup of Chicago threw out a fine idea the other day when, in issuing a temporary order against rate-cutting, he said: "Personally, I believe that the railroad rates ought to be as stable as postage rates, so that every shipper would know, as certainly as the sender of a letter how much the shipment would cost, and the fact that no one else could send it for less." That would be an ideal state of things, but it can never exist without government control of railroads.

CUBA THEN AND NOW.

Baltimore American: To appreciate the meaning of the plans laid for May 20 one must call to mind the conditions and circumstances which have existed in Cuba for the last four or five years. Five years ago Cuba was devastated through a protracted guerrilla warfare waged in liberty's name by a modest army of dauntless patriots. The United States assumed the burden of freeing the island from Spanish tyranny, and in three months we accomplished more than had Cuba in a century of sporadic war and rebellion. We made freedom a fact, and guaranteed the early attainment of self-government once our original duty ended, but to have withdrawn would have been criminal. There was at that time neither order nor government in the island. All was chaos, with the ultra-radicals in control and inviting to extreme measures and policies. To have turned the reins of government over to this element and gone away leaving it to work out the island's salvation would have been an act more heartless and cruel than failure, since it would have invoked the ruin of Cuba at the hands of her own loyal but inexperienced people.

Unnecessary Haste.

Washington Post: One Western baseball official has committed suicide. He might have saved his family the disgrace by waiting for the opening of the season and becoming an umpire with a backbone.

Chicago Post: There is no reason why congress, even though it have the right, should seek to clear the record of any soldier except where it is shown beyond doubt that the odium in this record has been placed unjustly. The people are overwhelmingly with the president in his efforts to protect the honor list of veteran soldiers, not only from the insidious assaults of unworthy men, but from the acts of congress.

The Barracks at Managua Wrecked Causing Loss of Life.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 21.—A severe explosion occurred here the night of April 18. A large two-story barracks, situated near the lake front and in the center of the city was blown to fragments. Between 100 and 200 officers and soldiers are reported to have been killed and many soldiers and other persons are reported to have been injured. The National hotel, the Central telegraph station and the national parace were damaged or wrecked. President Zelaya was absent at Masaya at the time of the explosion, but he hurriedly returned to Managua on horseback. He has published a statement in which he attributes the disaster to the work of conspirators. He says that tons of dynamite and a large quantity of powder were stored in the barracks. The actual causes which led to the explosion have not yet been determined.

After the first explosion the police notified the terrified people to temporarily leave the city as it was thought the burning building still contained dynamite. Large numbers consequently fled to the suburbs.

The first explosion was followed by several minor ones, supposed to have been caused by the explosion of packages of gun powder. The fragments of the numerous dead, who were not blown to atoms, are being buried.

The present lowest estimate of the damage caused by the explosion, furniture, cannon and war material is 5,000,000 pesetas.

PLAIN PIE

Defeated In Debate By Romantic Ice Cream.

Indianapolis, April 21.—The Philokurian Literary Society of Butler university, is discussing a problem which has the university by the ears: "Is Pie of Greater Benefit to Mankind Than Ice Cream?" The male members presented pie as the American national embodiment of patriotism, the emblem of home and mother, while the young women of the club portrayed ice cream as dainty, refined and aesthetic, while pie was commonplace and unromantic. The chief argument for pie was presented by Robert Matthews, who arrested that the destiny of the whole human race was concernel therein.

"Shall they be nourished on this wholesome, delicious dish, or slowly poisoned by ice cream? Scientists have told us that no ordinary amount of cold can kill microbes, while a moderate heat will exterminate all germs. As pie has been subject to the fierce heat of the oven, all bacteria have been exterminated. Ice cream is a hot bed, rather I should say, a cold bed of germs."

Miss Edith Abbott and Miss Charlotte Griggs upheld the virtues of ice cream, and Charles F. McElroy was given the closing argument. He attacked Mrs. Rorer, whom Miss Abbott cited as authority, as a woman who had been subsidized to inveigle unwary housekeepers into trying new and unhallowed dishes.

"Russes, glaces, covered fruits and 57½ kinds of salads are some of the things she is trying to introduce," exclaimed McElroy, and then he held aloft a beautiful peach pie, smoking hot from the oven, while he exploited its merits, and proclaimed it as the emblem of home and mother. Then he cut the pie into three pieces, offering each judge a section, but the young women indignantly protested against this as an effort to subsidize the court, and the judges in self-defense returned a verdict in favor of ice cream.

A. M'LEOD IS DEAD

Former President of the Reading Railroad Passes Away.

Lived In Duluth Thirty Years Ago And Married Here.

Has Been Retired From Active Business--- Death Unexpected.

Archibald Angus McLeod, a former resident of Duluth and subsequently a financier and millionaire railroad magnate, died in New York on Saturday night. The death of Mr. McLeod was unexpected, though his illness was of the most serious nature. He never fully recovered from an operation for appendicitis, performed early in March, this year. Several times during the last few weeks he has been very low, and his death was hourly expected. Of late, however, he seemed to improve, and almost until the moment of his death strong hopes were entertained of his recovery. A short time before his death he was visited by his physicians, and they left him resting comfortably, it was believed.

Mr. McLeod was a resident of Duluth in the late '60s and early '70s and ran a pop manufacturing establishment here. In 1870 he was married to Miss Libbie Atkins, daughter of the late Capt. Bert Atkins, and a year or two later removed to St. Paul, where he went into the employ of Austin Corbin in the railroad business. He accompanied Corbin to New York, after the latter bought the Elmira, Cortland & Northern railroad. Mr. McLeod became engaged in the many other enterprises of Austin Corbin, and a few years later rose to be president of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company. The relations of both were of the closest business character and personal friendship, as well as mutually beneficial. Mr. Corbin had great faith in the executive ability and good business judgment, as well as the staunch and undoubted integrity of the man upon whom he would have to rely principally in operating properties of such magnitude as those of the Reading. After his connection with the Reading, Mr. McLeod devoted his time and attention entirely to the reorganization of the personnel and working forces of the company, and in the introduction of proper and effective economies that brought into physical condition and economical operation to a high standard, and by close attention to business and a careful study of the properties and their business he became thoroughly familiar with them and acquired a practical knowledge of all the details.

ARCHIBALD A. M'LEOD.

Mr. McLeod was appointed acting general manager of the Reading Nov. 19, 1886, and on Jan. 1, 1887, the board of managers elected him as general manager. On Jan. 10, 1887, he received a further promotion, in recognition of his able services to the company, by his election as vice president and general manager, and on April 9, 1890, he was elected a member of the board of managers. Later he became president of the company and was instrumental in building the road's splendid terminal in Philadelphia.

About ten years ago Mr. McLeod attempted to bring about a combination of all the coal roads, including the Erie, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and others, but failed for want of capital, and was forced to abandon the scheme. He was for a time interested in the Whitney-Ryan combination, then a controlling influence in railroad affairs. Mr. McLeod also was interested in the American Air Power Brake company and the American Railway company, operating trolley lines in various parts of the country, and at one time was president of the Boston & Maine railroad. He had been retired from active business several years ago, still holding, however, a large amount of stock in the American Railroad company. Mr. McLeod was president and director of the American Air Power company and a director of the Hartford & Connecticut Western Railroad company.

Mr. McLeod was about six feet tall, years of age, broad shouldered, and altogether a man of commanding appearance. His manner was unostentatious, but showed much force of character, and his face indicated clear-headedness, quick perception, good judgment, a keen eye, and resolution of purpose. His face and his character were indicative of his Scotch parentage.

SAME SYNDICATE

That Floated Steel Trust Handles Shipping Combine.

New York, April 21.—It is stated that the new company to control the Atlantic steamship lines just combined will be incorporated in New Jersey, with a capital of about $150,000,000, says the Journal of Commerce. The underwriting syndicate was organized on the basis of $100,000,000 stock and $44,000,000 in 4½ per cent bonds. The syndicate is understood to be virtually the same as the one which floated the United States Steel corporation. It was to have expired on May 15, but has been extended indefinitely, and it is understood that its profits are to constitute the first assessment on account of the shipping deal.

AMUSEMENTS.

"THE VIKING."

The Minneapolis young men who presented "The Viking" at the Lyceum Saturday evening met with as cordial a reception as they could have asked for. There was a large audience, although the house was not packed, and the efforts of the performers were met with much enthusiasm and a lively demand for encores.

"The Viking" is a very creditable opera with much pretty music and ample opportunity for comedy. The plot has a suggestion of "The Burgomaster," about it, in that Leif Erickson and his friend are put into a sleep from which they awaken several hundred years later.

The parts were all cleverly taken and a number of the young men made distinctive hits. W. D. Morse made a fine Leif Erickson. The comic character of Olaf was excellent both as to actions and make-up. C. F. Lane made a most dainty and coquettish ingenue, pretty, graceful, and wearing handsome gowns with much style and ease and quite captivating everyone. J. D. Shaw was a very clever comedian and in the part of Tryker, was constantly funny. Mr. Northway as the policeman, made a tremendous hit in his dancing specialty. Mr. Brooks as the impecunious actor, gave a fine impersonation of a difficult character part. C. Pillsbury as the Duke of Bedbroke was also very good and W. H. Card as Magnus Jarl, the old Norseman, was a fine figure and acted well. Mr. Stuart also made an effective hit in a female role. The dancing of the Norwegian ski dancers was one of the best things and in this D. J. Whittlesey caught the audience and, while not in a speaking part, no one received a greater share of favor.

ROSE COGHLAN.

Tall, of commanding figure, sweet-voiced, and with an accurate knowledge of her art, Rose Coghlan swept upon the stage in "Forget Me Not," as Stephanie de Mohrivart, mingling with the proudest of England's peers, prelates and dignitaries as a society function to go through three acts of a grim fight to maintain her position, using every weapon known to a desperate woman, displaying a marvelous power to depict the courage, will, tenacity and obstinacy of purpose, such a woman as Stephanie de Momrivart would require to fight off an exposure which meant social ostracism. Great as some of these intense dramatic scenes are, it is in the final disgrace and humiliation that come upon Stephanie that Rose Coghlan demonstrates her power.

Miss Coghlan and company will be at the Lyceum Thursday.

Has New Play.

The Adelaide Thurston company, under the management of Frank J. and Claxton Wiltsach, closed its season at Easton, Pa., and went New York to begin rehearsals in the new play especially written for Miss Thurston by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short, entitled "At Cozy Corners." The company will open a spring tour of six weeks in the new play at Mahanoy City, Pa., tonight. Among those who will appear in Miss Thurston's support are Sadie Stringham, Eleanor Sheldon, Minnie M. Allen, Lillian Wood, Alice Read, Francis X. Bishope, and Fred G. Hearn. The production will be staged by Frederick Paulding. Gates and Morange are painting the scenery.

FOR ROOSEVELT

Sheriff Taken and Given a Number of Ovations.

Ohama, Neb., April 21.—Sheriff John Power had a queer experience on the way to Evanston, Wyo., with requisition papers for William Heap, wanted in South Ohama. He was mistaken for Teddy Roosevelt. The sheriff has told Jailer Flynn all about it in a letter explaining why he is still at Evanston.

The sheriff resembles the hero of San Juan if one doesn't look too closely. When the train stopped at a little hamlet amid the cactus and the sage brush, near the Wyoming line, a cowpuncher astride a broncho at the depot saw him. The sheriff wore blue goggles, because the sun hurt his eyes. The cowboy had been with Roosevelt in the Cuban war.

As the train drew out of the station he spied Sheriff Power on the platform. The Douglas county official was attired in black, he wore a frock coat, lightly buttoned, like Teddy's, and his pompadour gave his forehead a Roosevelt resemblance. The sheriff had his glasses on and he was smiling, displaying his bicuspids.

The cowboy let out a whoop. The telegraph operator, elated at seeing the president on a hunting tour unbeknown to the public, telegraphed the news to the next towns. The inhabitants did the rest. At the next town Sheriff Power was still doing an observation on the rear platform, so he was recognized from the operator's tip. He shook hands with those who asked the privilege, but said he had a cold and could not make a speech. When the demonstration was repeated all along the line he began to be suspicious. Eventually he discovered that he was taken for the president. Previously he thought his own fame had spread to Wyoming.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for throat and lung troubles. Absolutely safe. Acts immediately. Max Wirth.

"EVERYBODY COME."

General Invitation to West Virginia Man's Wedding.

Parkersburg, W. V., April 21.—Usually the "new thing" comes from the great cities, but Rockland, the little hamlet down the river on the Ohio side, can lay claim to having produced as striking an innovation as has been seen in social circles for many months.

S. B. Swann, aged 55, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Rockland, having resolved to take unto himself a wife, posted the following notice in the postoffice and on the principal corners of the village:

"I hereby give notice to my friends that I will be married April 25 at 5 p. m. at the front door of my residence in Rockland. All are cordially invited to come."

The bride's name is still a secret.

THE IRISH LEAGUE

Further Steps Taken By the Duluth Organization Yesterday.

W. K. Redmond, M.P., Now In America, May Be Brought Here.

Charter Is Expected To Arrive By the Next Meeting.

The Duluth branch of the United Irish league held its regular meeting in Catholic Association hall yesterday afternoon. This was the second meeting of the branch, and a large list of names were added to the roll of membership.

In the absence of the secretary from the city, A. Murpry acted as secretary pro tem. Several members made remarks on the progress of the movement in Ireland and the steps that had been taken by the government to suppress the league. The coercion law has been put in force, and districts in which the United Irish league is very strong have been proclaimed by the British authorities which subject all advocates of the league to arrest and imprisonment for speaking in its behalf. The county of Clare was especially referred to for the gallant fight it is making in the cause of the league, one branch alone having ten of its members serving three months' imprisonment for their activity in the cause of the movement. The chief secretary for Ireland, Mr. Wyndham, in a recent report to the British cabinet, acknowledged that crime was unknown in Ireland. It is due to the influence of the United Irish league, which discountenances violence in any form. It is purely a peaceable movement, looking to the redress of national wrongs in Ireland by parliamentary legislation and the restoration of home rule in Ireland by the opening of the parliament house in Dublin.

Owing to the amount of work devolving upon the secretary, it was decided that he should have an assistant, and Augustine Murphy was unanimously chosen to fill the position and assist the secretary in the duties.

A committee of ten will be named by President C. P. Maginnis to solicit members for the organization, and they will report at the next meeting. The matter of bringing W. K. Redmond, M. P., who is making a tour of the United States in the interest of the league, was discussed. It is the intention of the Duluth branch to make arrangements, if possible, to have him come to Duluth and address the citizens in the work of the United Irish league, its aims and objects, and the plan of campaign of the new movement and the results which it expects to attain in the cause of self-government for Ireland.

The charter of the Duluth branch will probably be received by the next meeting acknowledgment of the application for it having been received by the secretary from the national treasurer of the organization in the United States.

The members are enthusiastic over the bright prospects of the branch in this city, and predict that Duluth will hold up its good name in this movement and prove that Ireland has good friends at the head of the lake who are willing to assist it in its demand for justice. The next meeting will be held at the call of the secretary.

MRS. RODGERS

New Chief Ranger Women's Catholic Order of Foresters.

Chicago, April 21.—The election of officers of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters resulted as follows: Chief ranger, Mrs. Elizabeth Rodgers; vice chief ranger, Mrs. Christina Hoffman; high secretary, Mrs. Katherine Hughes; high treasurer, Miss Kittie Birmingham.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rodgers, who was elected chief ranger of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, is probably the most prominent woman in labor circles in the United States. She joined the order of St. Crispin in 1878, and when that order became a part of the Knights of Labor she was an active member. In 1880 she was elected master workman of an assembly, the first woman ever to be so honored. She served two terms in that capacity, and at the Cleveland special convention of 1883 was elected general organizer for the order. It was by reason of her experience in the capacity of organizer that she was enabled to organize the order which has just honored her. Mrs. Rodgers in her girlhood was a shoe worker, and her husband is an iron molder.

FEIGNED ILLNESS

And an Obdurate Doctor Performed an Operation.

Denver, Col., April 21.—John Wilbert, who shammed sickness in order to get out of the county jail into more comfortable quarters in the county hospital, is now seriously ill as the result of an operation for appendicitis performed on him by Dr. C. B. Lyman, of the hospital staff. Wilbert pretended that he had appendicitis, described all the symptoms of the disease with great accuracy, groaned at the proper moments during the examination, and was a very sick man indeed until he heard that the doctor meant to operate. Then he demanded the external treatment, but the doctor was obdurate. Even in the face of the operation Wilbert would not admit his deceit. The shock of the operation dangerously affected Wilbert.

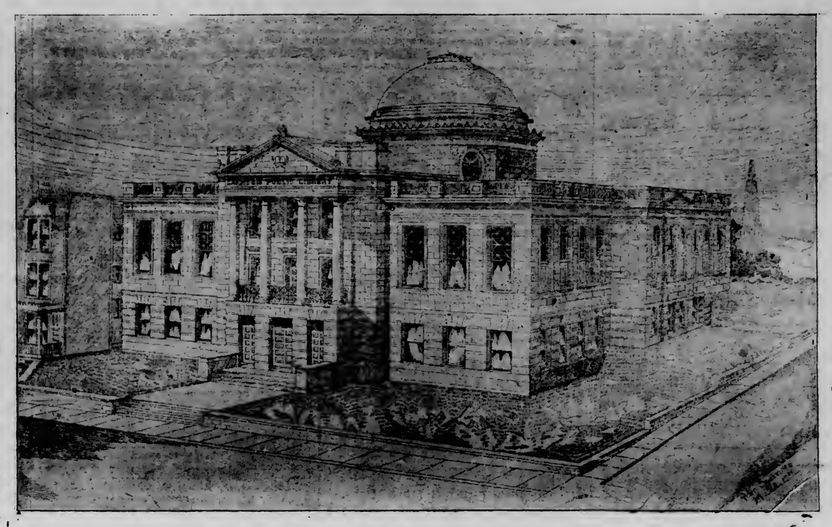
NEW PUBLIC LIBRARY BUILDING.



The new public library, donated to Duluth by Andrew Carnegie, is now open to the public.

Saturday afternoon and evening several thousand proud citizens inspected the magnificent building, congratulating themselves and every person connected with the building and the library.

The dedicatorial ceremony in the evening was short but impressive, and rather appropriate.

Secretary Codding, of the library board, read the letter of donation from Andrew Carnegie. A. F. Rudolph, the architect of the new library, speaking for himself and the contracting firm of Pearson & Fawcett, turned the building over to the library board.

Then came a double turn—the library board turned the building over to the city and the city turned it back to the board. During the evening Flaaten's orchestra played.

The building represents an expenditure of $75,000 and it was the opinion that the people of Duluth got their money's worth. In fact, there was more congratulation on this fact Saturday evening than there was dedication ceremony.

From the entrance opens a hallway and from the hall rise wide marble stairs with splendid bronze railings.

The stairway leads into the magnificent rotunda under the dome, which constitutes the larger part of the main floor of the building. From the rotunda to the left and right open the reading and reference rooms. On the right, just back of the reading room, is the juvenile room. Here will be kept all of the books and papers of interest to children. No children under the age of 14 will be allowed to enter the other parts of the library. Back of the juvenile room is the collection of early American history—the most valuable collection owned by the library. Back of this is the librarian's room, with its steel vault and cabinets.

There are two large stack rooms—one at the left of the rotunda as one enters from Second street, and one directly behind the distributing desk. In the former the literature and fiction will be kept, while the latter is filled with other classes.

Back to the left is the catalogue room where the complete catalogues of the contents of the library will be kept.

The stack room has two stories of shelves, with a glass floor between. This makes the room fireproof and facilitates the passage of light to the lower part. It is possible when the library grows to add another story, making three in all. This will give the stack room a capacity of over 100,000 volumes. It will be some time before this is necessary, however, as the library today only contains about 35,000 volumes.

The great dome was lighted by two rows of electric incandescent lights running all around the great circle. In the reading and reference rooms there are incandescent lights every little way along the ceiling, while there is a chandelier above every table to furnish lights for close reading.

The architecture of the building is classic throughout. The general scheme is the Greek Ionic. The color plan is white and green, making a very effective contrast.

The building is so arranged that all the rooms on the main floor—the only rooms which will be in use at present—are under the supervision of the librarian at the distributing desk.

TOUCHING WELCOME

Given to President-Elect Palma By the Cubans.

Was Greeted at Givana With the Utmost Enthusiasm.

Gen. Palma Makes a Short Address at Public Reception.

New York, April 21.—Gen. Tomas Estrada Palma president-elect of the Cuban republic, who arrived on the steamer Admiral Farragut from Old Point Comfort, Va., was greeted, says a Gibrara, Cuba, dispatch to the Tribune, with great enthusiasm. Gibrara's population of 6000 was augmented by as many more who came from all parts of the island, from Havana to Santiago, to pay homage to a man they love. During the voyage, the weather was magnificant, and Gen. Palma's forebodings of seasickness were not realized.

When the steamer anchored in Gibara harbor, a salute of twenty-one guns greeted Gen. Palma. His face brightened at the scene before him. How different was his return to Cuba. He left in chains and came back with his path literally strewn with roses. The harbor was a kaleidoscope of color and animation. From every craft flew the flag of Cuba libre and the stars and stripes. Old friends who had known Gen. Palma in the ten years' war and had shared with him the hardships and sufferings of many campaigns came on board and embraced him. Many were in tears. The vessel was soon crowded with members of committees, representing different cities, who came out in steamers and launches which were decorated from stem to stern, from the mast to the water line. After a quarter of an hour of informal talk Gen. Palma and his party were taken ashore in a launch. It was when he put his foot on the pier that the pent up enthusiasm of his countrymen broke forth in earnest. There were rounds of cheers by the natives as they crowded around their president-elect which could have been heard clear across the bay. Mayor Cespedes spoke a few words of welcome and then proposed "three cheers for the first president of the Cuban republic." They were given with a will.

With the village band playing the Cuban hymn a procession was formed to the principal street whence the president-elect and members of the committee were drawn in a carriage by a score of stalwart Cubans to the city hall. Every place of vantage along the route was filled. Men, women and children crowded and pushed to embrace and shake the hands of the veteran.

Arches had been built across every street which led to the city hall. Not a house in all Gibara was without decoration in some form. From every one flew the flag of Cuba, and from almost as many were displayed the flag of the United States, while the red and yellow colors of Spain were conspicuous on the Spanish houses. The Spaniards joined in the welcome. Garlands of roses and palms figured prominently in the decorations. A procession, headed by a detachment of the Tenth United States cavalry, commanded by Lieut. Hart, and made up of local civic societies, school children and women preceded with the Palma party to the city hall and then lined up on each side to allow his carriage to pass. Every woman and girl was armed with small bouquets which they threw into the carriage.

Gen. Palma sat with bared head, bowing in response to the crowd. He was deeply affected by the demonstration. The ceremonies at the city hall consisted of speech making by the mayor, members of the council, Gen. Palma and Gonzales De Quesada. Mayor Cespedes spoke eloquently of the gratitude that the Cuban people owed to Gen. Palma, and the honor of being the first to receive the first chief executive of Cuba libre. His countrymen, he said, trusted Gen. Palma implicitly and would aid him in every way toward a successful administration of his office.

Gen. Palma, in responding spoke with some difficulty, as he was almost overcame by the reception given him. He began by proposing cheers for Cuba libre and for the United States. He said the Cuban people should, with the inauguration of their independent government, abandon politics and give their attention to the betterment and reconstruction of their country. It was his ambition to bring the various elements together so that they may all work to one end, the building up of Cuba. He promised to devote henceforth all his time, knowledge and energy to bringing about this result. He frequently was interrupted with cries of "Viva Palma; viva Cuba libre." The mayor then granted him the freedom of the city.

Senor De Quesada in his speech said the happy union that now exists between the two people was an omen of future peace and prosperity; that their interests were so closely allied that it was to their mutual interest to continue the good personal relation so apparent in the demonstration.

Gen. Palma then held a public reception and was overwhelmed with congratulations and good wishes. The procession reformed and the party was escorted to a private house. It was with reluctance that they dispersed. All day there was a constant flow of visitors to pay their respects in person. The exercises culminated in the evening with a banquet and ball at the Union club.

Gen. Palma will resume his journey Monday evening. Holguin will be the next stopping place.

In the United States there are 245,000 miles of railroad track. This would encircle the earth nearly ten times. The Pioneer Limited train on the Milwaukee road travels in one year, between Chicago and the Twin Cities, just 300,000 miles—mileage enough to encircle the earth exactly twelve times. This beautiful train with its costly private compartment cars, library buffet smoking cars and dining car service the best in the world, is always the preference of constant travelers. Too much cannot be said in favor of the Pioneer Limited.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Hot Weather Report Caused Slight Flurry In Wheat.

Chicago, April 21.—After an opening flurry on the influence of the extraordinary hot weather in the Western belt, grains quieted down at prices slightly under Saturday's closing figures. Cables lent a stimulus to the buying movement, and May wheat started ⅝c to ¾c higher, at 73¾c. Reports from the wheat fields persisted in their bullish aspect but the weather bureau sent out a prediction of rain, and the bulls were fearful that it might be a general relief. Selling was popular for a short time and May eased to 73⅝c, steadying later at 74¼c. Local receipts were 28 cars, 3 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 260 cars, making a total for the three points of 287, against 287 last week and 390 a year ago. The world's shipments were 7,440,000 bus, compared to 5,900,000 bus last week and 8,286,000 bus a year ago. Breadstuffs on passage increased 244,000 bus.

Wheat continued to weaken on liberal selling much of it, so it was reported, for the Wall street account to keep prices down with a hope of supporting stocks. May slid off to 74⅛@⅜c, but on the continued hot weather West prices reacted, fairly and May closed a shade higher at 74⅝@¾c.

May corn opened ¼@⅜c to a shade higher, at 62¼@62¾c, with wheat and on lighter cables. There was some early buying on the continued small movement, but liberal selling by commission houses supposed to be for the Southwestern account, depressed the market and May eased off to 62¾c. Trade was waiting to see what wheat would move. Receipts, 106 cars.

Corn was dull the late end of the session and declined on the early wheat break. May sold as low as 61⅞c and closed easy ¼@⅜c lower at 61⅝c.

Strength in other grain and the effects of the drought on the newly sown oats brought a slight bulge in the opening oats market. Trade was active, but some liquidation pushed prices back. Commission houses were the best buyers. May opened 3¼@⅜c up, at 43¾@⅞c, and eased to 42¾c. Receipts were 147 cars.

Provisions started out weak again, influenced by a large run of hogs and weakening prices at the yards. Both packers and commission houses sold freely of pork and ribs depressing prices. Scalpers bought at the decline and steadied the market. May pork opened 15c off, at $16.45, and sold between that price and $16.50; May lard, 5c down, at $9.70, and eased 5c and May ribs 5c lower, at $8.02½.

Close: Wheat—April 74½c; May, 74⅝@¾c; July, 75⅛@⅜c; September, 75¼@⅝c; December, 77c. Corn—April, 61⅝c; May, 61⅞c; July, 62¾@¾c; September, 61⅝c; December, 48¼c. Oats—April, 52⅝c; May, 42⅝c; July, 35⅝@¾c; new July, 37¾c; September, 31⅛@⅜c; new September, 32¼c; December, 31⅞c; new December, 33⅝c. Pork—April, $16.42½; May, $16.42½; July, $16.62½c; September, $16.72½. Lard—April, $9.65; May, $9.65; July, $9.75@9.77½; September, $9.85. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago—Wheat—The market was active and irregular. The morning may showed no rains of consequence any where in the winter wheat country but high temperatures in the Southwest indicated possible rain for the same today. The weather bureau, however predicts showers pretty generally everywhere during the next twenty-four hours. On this there was considerable profiting early which accounted for the price reacted some on continued unfavorable reports from Kansas and Oklahoma. The gist of the reports is that where rains have been plentiful in Oklahoma little improvement has taken place and fears are expressed that the same conditions prevail in Kansas. Elsewhere there are no material changes in regard to condition of the crop. It is purely a weather market at the moment and conditions of supply and demand are of little importance.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, April 21.—There was quite a large trade in wheat at the opening today and several times through the forenoon, but the aggregate of trade was not especially large. Wheat opened strong on reports of very hot, dry weather yesterday through Kansas and Nebraska and in sympathy with higher Liverpool cables. Foreign markets sympathized with our strong... and Liverpool closed 3d higher for the day. The market closed firm, but called still a weak market and will break with any good rains throughout the corn belt or advance on continued dry weather. All others speculative factors are overlooked at the present moment and it is simply a question of rain or no rain. We are getting some reports from the Northwest that indicate precipitation through parts of Minnesota and South Dakota on account of lack of moisture. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 25 cars.

There was small trade in corn today with little fluctuation, trade being almost entirely local and commission houses doing very little. The market closed fractionally lower than Saturday in spite of strength in wheat. There was very little cash demand and the movement in the country continues light. There seemed to be no feature in corn and it is simply following the wheat market. Estimated receipts for tomorrow covering forty-eight hours, 140 cars.

Oats have been very dull today with very moderate speculation. There seemed to be a fair amount of May oats for sale all day at 43c, but very light demand at any price. No. 3 white oats selling freely at 1¾c premium over the May option. We note a better movement of oats in the country, especially in Central Illinois, where they had some good showers yesterday. The oats market like corn and wheat depends now entirely upon the weather for the next few days. Estimated receipts for tomorrow covering forty-eight hours, 325 cars.

Provisions opened very weak on large receipts of hogs and materially lower prices at the yards, ruled dull and heavy all day and closed at the bottom prices. We have never seen any valid reason for these high prices and believe we have an unusual large supply of hogs. Trade is small and is likely to be smaller under present state of affairs. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 25,000 hogs.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report retail trade was on a steady increase the past week with a slight falling off on the wholesale trade. Team horses and delivery horses for city use moved especially good. Farm mares for the northern part of this state had a better outlet than for some time. Prices ruled somewhat fluctuating on all classes and closed at $10 a head lower than any time before this week. Values:

DECLINE IN STOCKS

A Strong Demand Carried Prices Up at the Opening.

Heavy Selling Met Rise and Gains Were Wiped Out.

Another Drop On Supreme Court's Action In Merger Case.

New York, April 21.—The opening dealings in stocks showed very heavy demand which carried prices up with something of a rush, but there were some quick and sharp reactions. Reading and the Westerns and Pacifics were the favorites. Canadian Pacific was lifted 2⅜. Amalgamated Copper and Tennessee Coal also rose a point and there were gains of a bout a point amongst the Vanderbilts and trunk lines. Union Pacific was lifted a point on the purchase of 500 shares, but the next 10,000 shares sold simultaneously at 10⅜ to 10⅝, the latter being the closing figure and the stock subsequently fell beneath that figure. Atchison ran off a point after opening unchanged and Sugar fell a fraction. New York Air Brake sold up to 196, compared with 169 on Saturday. There were gains of a point over among local traction and some of the specialties.

Heavy selling met the rise and St. Paul, Southern Railway, Sugar, Colorado Fuel, Missouri Pacific, the Atchisons, L. & N., Tobacco and United States Steel preferred fell below Saturday's close. The advance in some of the trunk lines and coalers was wiped out. Illinois Central 2½ point rise and Canadian Pacific reacted 2 points. Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville lost 1¾ and New York Air Brake fell 11 points from the best. A few stocks showed decided strength, General Electric advancing 8½ and Brooklyn Union Gas, International Power, North American, Locomotive preferred, Northwestern, Great Northern preferred from 1 to 2. Prices continued to yield in the active quarter, Union Pacific falling 3¼ on Saturday. There was enormous selling of the grangers and Pacifics at steadily receding prices, until buying orders were put in for Readings and local tractions. A rise in Reading of 2, Manhattan 2⅜ and Brooklyn Transit 1⅞ did not affect the Western railroads, which continued to recede. Union Pacific lost 2¾, St. Paul 1¾, Atchison 1½, Missouri Pacific lost 2½, Sugar 1⅞, Colorado Fuel 2⅜ and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 2½. Losses in some of the Eastern railroads were nearly a point. Keokuk & Des Moines rose exceptionally 5½. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rallied a point over Saturday and International paper stocks over a point. Reading and the local tractions reacted. The large selling of Union Pacific controvertible bonds affected the bond market unfavorably.

Stocks continued to come on the market and prices to gravitate lower. Atchison fell 2 points, Colorado Fuel 3¼ and Canadian Pacific lost all of its 3 point rise. The smelting stocks lost over a point each. Reading resisted the decline and came up again to 5⅜ when the selling pressure decreased, and there was some recovery elsewhere. New York Air Brake, after reacting 12, rallied 7. International Power rose 4 and Westinghouse Electric 6. The rally brought Manhattan back to 136 and Reading to 65⅜. The market dropped back heavily when the leave granted by the supreme court to the state of Washington to file a suit against the Northern Securities company became known. Union Pacific fell 3⅜ under Saturday, St. Paul 3⅝, Missouri Pacific 2⅝, Illinois Central 2½, Atchison 2⅜, Rock Island and New York Central 1¾ and Southern Pacific 1¾. Reading reacted 1⅜ but rallied again to the top with Manhattan. St. Paul and Union Pacific also recovered a point each.

There was a general movement to cover shorts during the final hour which the bulls sought to emphasize by bidding up Southern Pacific to 69. Reading also rose 4½ points over Saturday and Manhattan, 3⅞. The Pressed Steel Car stocks rose a point each and the active list generally rallied 1 to 1¾c. The closing was about steady.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 21.—Cotton opened firm and 3 to 10 points higher on a scare of shorts, which carried May to 9.25, July to 9.24 and August to 8.90. The influence which contributed most to the early strength in cables showed spot cotton active at 1-32d advance. Futures were up 3½ points, or 1½ to 2 points higher than in our market and the advance proved short lived. After the call the market had a slight setback, but kept a strong undertone.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 1-16 higher; middling uplands, 9½; middling gulf 9¾; sales, 950 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: April, 9.19; May, 9.23; June, 9.25; July, 9.17; August, 8.96; September, 8.57; October, 8.13; November, 8.03; December, 8.02; January, 8.03.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Coppers were irregular and weak in spots today in sympathy with the New York market which declined as a result of unfavorable crop news. Atlantic advanced 4 points on scattering buying. There were big orders to buy Copper Range at 60. Calumet and Hecla declined on rumors that the dividend would be only $5 per share. As a whole the coppers stood the break in the New York market remarkably well. We continue bullish on the best of the coppers.

THE WILL

Of the Late Dr. Talmage Filed For Probate.

Washington, April 21.—The will of the late Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage was filed here today. It leaves an estate valued at more than $300,000, of which about $250,000 is in personal property consisting of government notes, United States 4 per cent bonds, stock and cash in banks; furniture, pictures and household effects.

The real estate is worth about $50,000, comprising his house in this city and property in East Hampton, L. I., and in Brooklyn.

The Washington Loan and Trust company, as executor, today petitioned the district supreme court to admit the will to probate. All the heirs at law are said to be entirely satisfied and have consented to the probate. The will gives "the widow's third" to Mrs. Talmage and the remainder shares and share alike equally to all of his children and their lineal descendants.

Tarentum, Pa., April 21.—All mines in this district are closed today on account of the miners' strike. A number of men attempted to go to work at the Isaman mines and were driven away by the strikers. The McFetridge Bros. have posted a notice ordering their former employes to remove their tools from the mine and call for their money by Wednesday. The factories are short of coal, and if a supply is not received in a few days they will be forced to close down.

INSURANCE RISKS.

"Accident insurance companies base their awards on systems of statistics that are supposed to show the outgrowth of highly modern research," said an insurance agent to the Galveston News. "All companies of any importance support a highly paid staff of experts, whose sole duty it is to figure out what a man's left leg or three fingers on a child's hand may be worth to him. The wonderful maze of figures which is necessary to these computations to an ordinary mind would be staggering as the higher calculus to a boy in common fractions. The expert can figure the precise difference in the risks of a railroad man in Texas and those of a lady teaching school in Boston. His tables take account of habit, temperament, diet, climate, occupation and various other conditioning circumstances. All this is supposed to be the outcome of scientific investigation reaching back only some fifty years, but though the method may be new the idea of paying for injuries according to a carefully adjusted scale is old, and was practiced in England and Germany long before Caesar conquered Gaul. When those early globe trotters, the Phoenicians, returned from venturesome trips along the west coast of Europe and told strange stories of a strange people who were giants in size and had light hair, these same blonde giants practiced elaborate schemes of justice that were based on tables of risks. They did not rate the price of a man as high as he may rate himself in a modern insurance company, he was worth in Saxon computations about 100 shillings; if he lost an arm or leg he could make the offender pay him simething like 50 shillings, while a serve wound might bring him 26 shillings. Today an arm or leg is worth about $1500, and a wound varies in proportion to its severity and to the closeness of your friendship to the attending physician. Ears in those days were looked upon rather in the light of superfluous ornaments, and the loss of one brought 12 pence in compensation. While, strange to say, you could indulge your wrath by biting off an enemy's thumb, if he would permit, at not greater expense. A finger was marked down yet 2 pence lower. The insurance expert is the life of the company, and his theories and figures are part of the bonst of civilization, but the idea of these piecemeal estimates originated with those inventors of beer and mysticism, the Teutons.

CASS COUNTY

Term of the District Court Lasted Only Three Days.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The term of district court held at Walker last week was the shortest term in the history of the county. But three days were consumed in disposing of the various cases on the calendar and also in adjusting several cases which were brought before the court and were not on the calendar. Of the twenty-four civil cases on the calendar the following were disposed of by the court, the others either being settled or continued till the next term: Powell vs. Hardy, verdict for plaintiff; Blattman Bros. vs. Carlson, referee appointed; Nimneman vs. county commissioners, judgment for plaintiff; Koop vs. Lezott, appeal from justice court, judgment reversed; Olson vs. Tedford, dismissed; O'Brien vs. Aygaard, verdict for plaintiff. Criminal cases—state of Minnesota vs. Oberg and Sommers, pulled; state vs. Wolkey, grand larceny, plea of guilty, sentenced to reformatory; state vs. Shores, grand larceny, plea of guilty, sentenced to state training school; state vs. Allen, practicing dentistry without license, bond forfeited; state vs. Sheehy, judgment reversed; state vs. King, forgery, plea of guilty, sentenced to five years at Stillwater penitentiary.

The grand jury made a report to the effect that they had examined the present court house of Cass county and found that the same was entirely inadequate and a veritable fire trap, and unfit to keep safely county records; that they endorsed the action of the county commissioners in passing a resolution calling for a special election for the purpose of voting on the proposition to bond the county in the sum of $30,000 for the erection of a new court house, which election will be held on May 14.

MISSING SON

Found To Have Been Killed Ten Years Ago.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 21.—Orin Greene, of the metropolitan police force, left for Oklahoma in July, 1891. No letters were received from him, and the family speculated much concerning his failure to communicate, and last month his father began an investigation, which developed no trace. Last week a friend at Zionsville, only twelve miles distant, called on the Greenes and incidentally remarked on the absence of their eldest son. Upon being told that he was missing he spoke of a stranger about his age who was killed in a railway accident at Zionsville on the day of the son's departure. The parents went to Zionsville and identified the clothing and also a photograph which had been preserved.

ASSAILED

Mormon Religion and Has Since Been Persecuted.

Findlay, Ohio, April 21.—Fred Finkelstein, a young man reared in Cleveland, belates to Prosecutor Charles E. Jordan, of this city, a worried tale of alleged Mormon barbarism. He claims he was persecuted in the Utah State asylum because he dared to assail the Mormon belief after he had become involved in a quarrel with one of the adherents on the streets of Salt Lake City.

After repeated torture he was finally released on condition of his departure for Alaska. Instead he went to Washington, but was preceded by a message from the Mormons to the municipal police calling him a murderous maniac. In Washington he claims he was again thrown in prison at St. Elizabeth hospital. He came here for assistance in getting a governmental investigation into his case.

FOUGHT

On a Narrow Platform Sixty Feet Above the Ground.

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 21.—Sixty feet above the ground on a space six feet wide two men engaged in a battle. For thirty minutes the two strong and active workmen fought desperately back and forth on the narrow platform in the air yet both men, although battered and bruised, are alive to tell of it. The fight occurred at the Ohio river bridge about the middle of the forenoon.

How it arose nobody is able to tell. The first intimation that the fellow workmen of the bridge gang had that there was trouble was the sight of the men struggling. One was known by the name of Nelson, the other "The Yellow Kid."

The latter was quite handy with his feet, and managed to plant them in the face of his opponent several times, terribly bruising and cutting him. Four teeth were lost by Nelson and an eye was badly injured by the foot of the "Kid." On the other hand, Nelson used a heavy maul to good advantage, landin- one blow upon the head of his gritty antagonist that cut the skin and made a severe wound.

At times the men closed in and fought with their bare fists, wrestling about over the edge of the bridge in a way to make the blood of the watchers run cold. Every minute or two it would seem that one or both of the fighters was doomed to certain death. Then they would work back to the center of the track, never ceasing to struggle. At the end of a half hour the fool-hardy men were compelled to desist from sheer exhaustion.

GROOM FAINTED

Just as Preacher Began the Marriage Ceremony.

Chicago, April 21.—The marriage of Harry S. Richardson and Miss Cornelia Helle, at St. Peter's church, was attended by a large number of Lakeview society people. A sensational episode of the ceremony was the fainting of the groom just as the bridal procession reached the altar. It was noticed as Richardson approached the chancel, accompanied by his best man, John Morley, of Cleveland, that his face was deathly white. As Rev. Frank Dumoulin started to perform the ceremony Richardson staggered and fell. Mr. Morley assisted by the rector, half carried and half dragged the fainting bridegroom through the chancel door. There was great excitement in the church, but Richardson was soon revived and the ceremony proceeded.

OWNS THE EARTH

And Giving It Away In Big Chunks.

Portland, Ind., April 21.—Walter Huddleson was taken in custody in Wells county and locked up. He thinks he owns the world and is giving it away in ten-million-dollar chunks. He is well educated and says he has daughters in Chicago and Nebraska who will not keep him. His insanity was caused by the use of drugs.

CATARRH

The treatment of Catarrh with antiseptic and astringent washes, lotions, salves, medicated tobacco and cigarettes or any external or local application, is just as senseless as would be kindling a fire on top of the pot to make it boil. True, these give temporary relief, but the cavities and passages of the head and the bronchial tubes soon fill up again with mucus.

Taking cold is the first step towards Catarrh, for it checks perspiration, and the poisonous acids and vapors which should pass off through the skin, are thrown back upon the mucous membrane or inner skin, producing inflammation and excessive flow of mucus, much of which is absorbed into the blood, and through the circulation reaches every part of the system, involving the Stomach, Kidneys and other parts of the body. When the disease assumes the dry form, the breath becomes exceedingly foul, blinding headaches are frequent, the eyes red, hearing affected and a constant ringing in the ears. No remedy that does not reach the polluted blood can cure Catarrh. S. S. S. expels from the circulation all offensive matter, and when rich, pure blood is again coursing through the body the mucous membranes become healthy and the skin active, all the disagreeable, painful symptoms disappear, and a permanent, thorough cure is effected. S. S. S. being a strictly vegetable blood purifier does not derange the Stomach and digestion, but the appetite and general health rapidly improve under its tonic effects. TESTS OF A LYMPH

That May Duplicate the Wonderful Discovery of Koch.

Startled Will Be Medical World If They Prove Successful.

Infusion Into the Blood of An Antiseptic Fluid.

Cincinnati, April 21.—According to Justus Goebel, of the firm of Lowry & Goebel, of this city, the discovery of Dr. Wilfred G. Fralick, of New York city, of a general treatment for disease will revolutionize the world of medicine, and when it is given to the world will create a greater sensation than the discovery of the famous Koch imyph.

Mr. Goebel has just returned from New York, where he has been undergoing the treatment for the past three months for catarrh and a throat affection that has troubled him for years. In speaking of the matter he told the following story:

"For years I was affected with throat trouble, and I tried every cure that is known to man. I received no relief, and some three years ago removed with my family to Arizona, hoping that the climatic conditions there would give me the relief that I had been unable to secure elsewhere. It seemed to do me but little good, and I still continued trying everything that I could hear of that was considered a cure. Finally one day I read a small article in a Western paper upon a wonderful discovery made by Dr. Fralick, of New York, and I decided to go there at once and see if there was any merit in it.

"I arrived in New York about three months ago and made a thorough investigation of the matter before I placed myself under the doctor's care. What I learned was satisfactory, and what I have learned and the benefit that I have derived from the treatment since has made me a firm advocate of it, and I cannot say enough of it. I wrote to my wife in Phoenix, Ariz., and told her about the benefits I had received, and told her to tell Judge Hanson Kennedy, of Carlisle, Ky., who is out there, that he could not do better than place himself under the same treatment. The judge told several others, and as a result a wealthy Arizonian, whose son is an invalid, came to New York and offered Dr. Fralick an immense sum of money to go there and treat his son. Of course, Dr. Fralick could not leave his patients, and had to refuse. Then it was that the thought struck me to establish the treatment in Arizona, believing that the climatic conditions would make that state the best in the Union for the thorough testing of the discovery. I spoke to Dr. Fralick, and he at once saw that my plan was a good one, and asked me to recommend him some good physician who could take hold of the matter there for him. I recommended Dr. Hanson Kennedy, of Phoenix, and within the next three weeks Dr. Fralick will go to Arizona and teach Dr. Kennedy the rudiments of his discovery, and the work will be begun there."

The Fralick's cure consists of an infusion into the blood of an antiseptic fluid, which is made from a secret formula which Dr. Fralick discovered while making one of his researches for an antiseptic for use in surgery. With this fluid Dr. Fralick explodes the old theory that air ror foreign substances, such as liquids, cannot be infused into the blood of human beings without great danger to life.

Dr. Fralick's mode of infusing the fluid into the blood of patients is through the veins, the veins of the wrist being most frequently used. He places the patient upon an operating table and suspends a small bottle of the fluid, heated to a degree exactly equal to that of the patient's blood, about eighteen inches above the body. An incision is then made in one of the veins of the patient's wrist. One end of a tube is then inserted into this vein and the other end is placed in the bottle so as to form a siphon, and the fluid is then forced into the vein by gravity alone, the pressure being equal at all times and no undue force occurring. This operation is repeated every four weeks.

The sensation produced by the fluid passing into the veins is akin to electrical, and every nerve of the body, from the head to the feet, tingles not unpleasantly. The brain or mind are in no wise affected by the infusion of fluid. The entire body experiences a warming sensation when the fluid begins to pass into it.

Mr. Goebel will return to his Arizona home. He is most enthusiastic over the discovery of Dr. Fralick, and said that he is willing to stake his entire fortune that the fluid will do all that is claimed for it. While in New York he interviewed a number of Dr. Fralick's patients and took stenographic accounts of the cures worked in each case, and he feels satisfied that the treatment will prove a sure cure for tuberculosis as well as all throat disorders.

It is understood that if the Arizona experiments prove successful Dr. Fralick will make public all details concerning his discovery.

ST. BERNARD

Leaped Into a Cistern and Rescued Little Girl.

Toledo, Ohio, April 21.—A big St. Bernard dog saved the life of Josie Smith, aged 9 years, who fell into an open cistern. Passers-by saw the dog sniffing and smelling around the curb, and then they saw him disappear through the hole. In a short time they heard muffled barks, and they at once ran to the spot.

They found the noble animal supporting the little girl's head out of water with its paws, while it kept up a barking for help. The girl was lifted out and then the big dog was assisted from the cistern. The animal followed the girl and watched over her until she was fully restored to consciousness.

Josie was visiting with friends just outside the city limits on Central avenue, and the dog, it is stated, is one of the Alta Kennel's which are owned by Mrs. Lee. There was eight feet of water in the cistern.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The large brewery of the Christian Moeslin company at Cincinnati, suffered a loss of over $100,000 from fire today, supposed to be due to spontaneous combustion. Andrew Moeslin was seriously injured by falling from his buggy en route to the fire. Richard Porter and Jack O'Keefe, firemen, were badly injured.

Fire in the southwestern portion of Kansas City Sunday afternoon destroyed eight houses, laying waste a strip of land a quarter of a mile long. The financial loss will probably not exceed $50,000, but fifty families of very poor people are rendered homeless and destitute. One death is reported.

Sunday at Omaha was the hottest April day in fifteen years. The thermometer at 2 p. m. reached 96 degrees, the highest previous record being 91. The intense heat was more oppressive owing to the excessive cold weather experienced up to Saturday night. The torrid temperature was responsible for several attacks of sickness, two occurring in church during service.

Bissett Rolgoger, a negro mute, of Chicago, while in a fit of rage, because he had been discharged, shot and killed his former employer, Lee Robinson, a colored barber, and fatally wounded James Jefferson, a customer, who was sitting in a chair.

Ida Mennessey, of Chicago, 17 years of age, who has been asleep since Saturday, April 12, died Sunday withmout regaining consciousness. She suffered an acute attack of epilepsy before falling asleep and relapsed into a comatose condition from which the physicians found it impossible to arouse her. She was in that condition 180 hours.

In a quarrel over baseball that was said to have been thrown into his yard by neighbors' children, "Abe" Slupsky, a prominent St. Louis politician, shot and fatally wounded Charles Pinckard, a saloonkeeper, with the latter's revolver. Slupsky who is under arrest, says he shot in self defense, after securing possession of Pinckard's revolver.

At St. Louis, the juhy in the case against William Strother, the negro charged with the murder of A. Doane Cooper, the millionaire, who was killed in a bathhouse several months ago, was unable to agree on a verdict after being out all night and at an early hour Sunday morning was discharged by Judge Ryan. The jury stood 7 for acquittal and 5 for conviction. Strother was present in court when the jury was discharged and appeared much relieved over the outcome of the trial. His case will go over to the fall term of court.

DRY IN BOSTON

Strict Enforcement of Blue Law Causes Discomfort.

Boston, April 21.—Never before has Boston seen such a vigorous enforcement of any law on the statute books as that given the Sunday laws yesterday. Drug stores, fruit dealers, bakeries and laundries were the objects of the police attack. From one end of the city to the other, soda fountains were silent, candy counters covered and idle, and fruit stores closed.

On the other hand hotels did a rushing business as liquor could be sold by them to patrons ordering food.

Druggists in many instances had notices prominently displayed upon their soda fountains, calling the attention of patrons to the peculiar condition of affairs, while one down-town soda fountain was draped in mourning and bore a sign which read:

"Owing to the unlimited number of cranks in Boston, no soda or candy will be sold today."

Others had similar placards such as "Nothing doing." "By order of the police this fountain is closed." "Don't ask for soda or candy; can't sell it."

AN ENGINE INVENTED

Which Will Revolutionize Question of Artificial Power.

Nitroglycerine Furnishes the Power That Operates the Marvel.

Had All Hard Luck That Attends Persistent Inventor.

Spencerville, Ohio, April 21.—William Myers, well-known to the oil men in this vicinity, having been connected with the nitroglycerine business for several years, but now located at Bowling Green, Ohio, says he has invented an engine which will revolutionize the question of artificial power.

The machine is very much like a gas engine, with the exception that it runs by nitroglycerine instead of gas. The engine is so built that a minute quantity of nitroglycerine is exploded in the cylinder of the machine, and, like exploding gas, forces the piston rod to move. The power of this machine would be limited only by the strength of its mechanism, he claims, as the awful force of nitroglycerine, when harnessed and put to work in the cylinder of an engine, would be beyond conception.

Mr. Myers claims to have labored for years and encountered all the hard luck that intends a persistent inventor. He says at one time he had a machine built and running, but as he used the explosive in its finished state the tank containing it let go and the building and engine were wrecked, almost killing him. He still walks a little stiff from the effects of this explosion, which broke his leg and arm and crushed in the ribs on one side. He went to work again on the invention as soon as he recovered, and now feels that he has the machine on a practical basis.

The machine which is to run the first engine was the danger of having any quantity of nitroglycerine around the machine, but this danger he has eliminated by inventing an apparatus that will mix the raw materials from which the explosive is made as fast as the engine uses it.

Nitroglycerine is composed of nitric and sulphuric acid and glycerin, all of which form the most powerful explosive known to science. The raw materials he has stored in tanks, and by a simple arrangement the very small quantity necessary to run the engine is mixed in the cylinder, where it is exploded. The nitroglycerine costs about 30 cents per quart when made in this way, and thus it will be seen that the main feature of his invention is economy, while the power derived will be almost limitless.

Mr. Myers says he is now having the castings made for a full size engine, and when completed he will demonstrate to the world the practicability of his machine.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

TOOMBS

Found Guilty of Carrie Larsen's Murder and Will Hang.

Chicago, April 21.—The jury in the case of Louis Toombs, on trial for the murder of Annie Larson on board the steamer Peerless on the night of Dec. 31, 1901, Saturday night returned a verdict of murder in the first degree and Toombs was sentenced to hang. The jury was out but twenty minutes and the verdict was reached on the first ballot.

The crime for which Toombs was convicted was one of the worst committed in Chicago in recent years. He was in charge of the steamer Peerless while it lay in winter quarters, and advertised for a cook. Annie Larson applied for the position, and on the first night that she spent on the boat he choked her to death and after treating the corpse in an indescribable manner threw it into the Chicago river. Robert Keissig, a boy, who was on the boat with Toombs, witnessed the crime, but was unable to save the girl. Toombs compelled him to assist in the disposal of the body, and two days later Keissig escaped from the boat and informed the police of the crime.

The river was dragged and the body of the girl recovered. The trial which ended Saturday night was the second in the case. In the first a saloonkeeper testified that at the time the crime is said to have been committed Toombs was in his saloon. Two brothers named Kane, who were on the jury, refused to vote for a verdict of guilty, claiming that they believed the evidence of the saloonkeeper in preference to that of Keissig.

FRANK STOCKTON DEAD.

Well Known Story Writer Expired at Washington.

Washington, April 21.—Frank R. Stockton, the well known novelist, died suddenly here yesterday morning from hemorrhage of the brain.

The cause of Mr. Stockton's death was paralysis immediately resulting from a hemorrhage of the brain. He was a guest at the banquet held Wednesday night, of the National Academy of Sciences, when he was taken suddenly and mysteriously ill. The ailment did not at that time appear to be serious and for a while the sufferer seemed to be improving, but a change for the worse came yesterday morning and death occurred at 12 o'clock. By his bedside were his wife, who was a Miss Tuttle, of Virginia, and her sister. He was 68 years of age.

The body will be taken to Philadelphia for interment.

Stockton had spent the past winter in New York, and had done very little literary work. He had come to Washington so he might attend the banquet of the scientists, intending then to go on to his beautiful home in Charlestown, W. Va. Mr. Stockton was a Philadelphian by birth; in early life was an engraver and draughtsman, but soon abandoned this occupation for journalism. Many years ago, however, he retired wholly from newspaper work and devoted himself to literature. His reputation as a story-writer was world-wide.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
An electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

LAWS NOT VIOLATED

No Cause For Interfering With British Camp.

President So Decides From Crowder's Report.

Washington, April 22.—The report of Col. Crowder, who investigated the shipment of horses and mules to South Africa from the port of Chalmette, La., was laid before the cabinet today by the president. While the report is incomplete, it developed that the conclusion was reached by the president, from what he had seen of it, that there is not sufficient evidence to show past or present violation of neutrality and consequently there is no warrant for intervention. Col. Crowder will make some additions to his report during the afternoon, and tonight he will go over the matter very thoroughly with the president and the attorney general.

In addition to Col. Crowder's report the cabinet disposed of a number of departmental matters.

AGED WOMAN MURDERED

Sarah Lynch, 75 Years Old, of Cleveland, Found With a Bullet Hole In Temple---Husband Placed Under Arrest.

Cleveland, April 22.—Mrs. Sarah Lynch, 75 years old, living at No. 603 Tod street, was found dead in the rear of her home early today, and her husband, Martin Lynch, 60 years old, is under arrest, charged with her murder. The woman was shot through the temple. Lynch, when taken into custody, was covered with blood and in a drunken condition. The neighbors heard no quarrel between the couple, or pistol shot fired. A revolver, freshly loaded, was found in the house. Five empty shells were found in one of the rooms. One bullet covered with blood, to which adhered a small piece of flesh, was discovered. Four bullets imbedded themselves in the wall, showing that five shots had been fired. Lynch declares that he found his wife dead when he returned from work this morning.

MYSTERIOUS ARRESTS

Chicago, April 22.—Mystery surrounds the arrest of four men made shortly after midnight on the charge of "conspiracy to do an unlawful act" in connection with a contest between the city of Chicago and the Union and Consolidated Traction companies in Justice Wood's court. Some time ago a circuit decision resulted that these companies should give transfers to these lines running into the suburbs for one fare. The citizens of Austin and the city government tried to compel the companies to grant the transfers, and numerous damage suits were brought against them on failure. The damage suits were brought in Judge Wood's court and have been lost. The sensation of today following sharply on the victories of the companies, have led to grave charges.

The men arrested are William J. Gallagher, a promoter; John O'Donnell, brother of P. J. O'Donnell, attorney for the traction companies in the recent damage suits; Walter C. Jones, constable in Justice Wood's court; Herbert Rothery, venireman. The arrests were made on information of Herman N. Green to William Kent. John M. Harlan and Walter Fisher, of the Municipal Voters' league. Green made affidavit that he had been approached to do an unlawful act in the interest of the companies. State's Attorney Dineen and Corporation Counsel Fifte have tried the cases in Chicago.

MORE TROUBLE FOR PROHIBS

St. Paul, April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local Prohibitionists may fail to secure a place for their nominees on the ballot at the coming municipal election. According to the decree of the supreme court their nominations by convention were invalid, owing to the new direct primary nomination law and nominations were then made by petition. However, the city legal department has advised the rejection of the petition, because many who signed it are known to have voted at Republican and Democratic primaries.

TWO SHOOTING ACCIDENTS

Brownton, Minn., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday Harry Swan, 16 years old, was accidentally shot and instantly killed while handling a gun in a boat on Lake Addie. A companion, Edward Grasinger, has lost his reason because of the nervous shock of the affair.

Long Prairie, Minn., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Schroeder, aged 17 years, son of Joseph Schroeder, a farmer living about four miles east of here, accidentally shot himself while hunting, inflicting a serious leg wound.

OLD REFORM SCHOOL BURNED

St. Paul, April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old state reform school at Rondo and Dunlap streets, occupied by Nels Nelson, who conducted a dairy farm there, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The building was burned to the ground.

As near as can be ascertained, the fire was caused by a defective chimney.

Mr. Nelson was away from home at the time and his son managed to get twelve cows and two horses out of the rear end of the building in safety. The loss was total. Mr. Nelson estimated that he lost about $1500 worth of property, insured for $1000. The building was practically worthless. A shepherd dog belonging to the family refused to leave the burning building and was roasted.

The building belonged to the state and was rented from the state board of control.

WOULD MORGANIZE LORDS

London, April 22.—Clinton E. Dawkins, of J. P. Morgan & Co., testified today before the house of lords committee which is investigating the question of underground transit of London. Mr. Dawkins referred to the world-wide character of the transaction of the Morgans, who would guarantee to find the money for the entire forthcoming new underground system. There was no doubt continued Mr. Dawkins that the money could be found in England, but if money was cheaper in America there it would be raised. Arrangements had been made to supply the rolling stock without having recourse to America.

Mr. Dawkins alluding to the tendency of the population to move away from the congested districts to the outer fringe of London, said he thought this ought to be encouraged on the ground of public health and pointed out that the only way to relieve the central congestion was to offer rapid transit facilities.

FORM MAKES NO DIFFERENCE

New York, April 22.—President James J. Hill, of the Northern Securities and the Great Northern Railroad company, who is in this city, says he is not in the least worried over the granting of leave, by the supreme court, to the state of Washington to file an original bill for an injunction against the Northern Securities company. He insists that the main point at issue is not affected by this decision.

"No matter what is done," he is quoted as saying, "our property rights cannot be taken from us. I feel confident that that which we own we shall be able to retain. If the courts decide that there shall be a change in the form of ownership, that cannot alter the actual conditions of control."

THE SULTAN OF SULU AND TWO TYPICAL MORO DATTOS.

There is more trouble in the Philippines. Colonel Frank D. Baldwin and 1,200 men are to invade Mindanao to compel the Moro Dattos to surrender six Moros who recently murdered a soldier. The Moros are the most savage fighters in the Philippines. They are ruled by the sultan of Sulu, and thus far they have been friendly. A war with them would be long drawn out and bloody.

AIR SHIPS.

General Conditions For the Great Race at St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 22.—General conditions to be observed in the airship race for the capital prize of $100,000 offered by the World's fair management have been agreed upon by the committee of aeronautic experts. The entire field including time of the runs, shape of the course, qualifications of contestants, conditions of entry, facilities for construction, experiments, allowance for size of machines and weight of engines, bearing of weather conditions, was gone over and tentative rules decided upon. These rules will have to be submitted to the subcommittee of the executive committee and to the executive committee itself, before they can be made public in their entirety. It has been decided that the subcommittee will submit drafts of the rules to engineers, students, aeronauts, and aeronautical societies in America and Europe and obtain their views on the subject, changing the rules if that course seems best.

It was decided definitely that the $200,000 appropriated for the contest by the board of directors of the exposition should be divided as follows:

Grand capital prize, $100,000; $50,000 to be divided into a number of subsidiary prizes; $50,000 devoted to the conduct of the competition and the payment of its expenses.

GOVERNOR M'BRIDE

Is Pleased That Court Will Hear Case.

Olympia, Wash., April 22.—When Governor McBride learned yesterday that the United States supreme court had decided to allow the state of Washington to file an original bill for an injunction against the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Northern Securities companies, he said:

"I am very much gratified at the news that the supreme court has decided to assume jurisdiction in the case. Attorney General Stratton is entitled to great credit for the skill and ability displayed by him in handling the case."

Governor McBride received the following dispatch from Governor Van Sant of Minnesota:

"Hearty congratulations upon acceptance of jurisdiction by supreme court in case of Washington against Northern Securities company; also please present greeting to Attorney General Stratton."

ASSASSINATION

Of Mauchin Officials at Canton Ordered By Rebels.

Hong Kong, April 22.—Chinese officials yesterday raided a house at Canton and captured six men who were known to have been sent to Canton for the purpose of spreading the rebel propaganda and for the purchase of arms and supplies. The prisoners carried orders from Kwok, the rebel leader, commanding the assassination of the Manchu officials of Canton. Five hundred armed braves left Canton yesterday for Wu Chow.

LITTLE INTEREST

In Amalgamated Convention During Committee Work.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 22.—The Amalgamated association today reached the committee stage and for several days there will be little of interest on the floor of the convention. This morning the three trustees, Taylor, of Pittsburg; Jenkins, of Youngstown, and Rudd, of Newport, Ky., make their report. The all-absorbing topic continues to be President Shaffer's report, just submitted to the convention. There is no doubt it has strengthened his position with the delegates. Ben I. Davis says he never witnessed in an amalgamated convention such an ovation as that tendered Shaffer when he concluded his five hours' address in which last summer's strike was detailed from start to finish.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

St. Paul, April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because her stepfather, Joseph Wilke, was forced to sell his old homestead on West Fillmore avenue to the Omaha railway, Mrs. Seraphin M. Heilnhart drank four ounces of carbolic acid and died soon afterwards.

THE MOROS SHOW FIGHT

Two Engagements Have Been Fought On Mindanao ---Red Flags Are Flying In Moro Villages Signifying Fight.

Manila, April 22.—Two engagements have been fought between the Americans and the Moros of the island of Mindanao during the last twenty-four hours. Moore, of the Twenty-seventh infantry, while out with a small party hunting for water, were fired on at long range. Lieut. Col. Frank D. Boldwin, with a battalion of troops and a mountain gun, went to the assistance of Moore's party and drove off the Moros, who lost seven men. The firing was at 1100 yards' range.

The Moro villages were flying red flags, meaning that they intended to fight to the uttermost.

Later, Sultan Paulo and a force of natives attempted to reoccupy the ground gained by the Americans, but the Moros were forcibly dispersed.

DESTINATION UNKNOWN

A Batch of Four Hundred Undesirable Immigrants Who Did Not Know Where They Were Bound Until They Landed.

New York, April 22.—Of the 5000 immigrants who have just arrived in the steerage of the liners Patria, Cymric, Zeeland and Gascogne, there were 400 in the latter vessel who were not sure of their final destination until they saw the American flag over the forts at the Narrows.

These immigrants were from Greece, and a rumor having spread among them that they were about to be kidnaped and shipped to South Africa to help England in the Boer war, they had flatly refused to go on board the steamship after their arrival at the quay in Havre from Marseilles on April 9.

In vain the officials pleaded, but not until two attaches of the Greek consulate at Havre arrived could quiet be restored. There were more than fifty who refused to believe, and the company's agents refunded their passage money.

QUEEN WILHELMINA BETTER

The Hague, April 22.—Dispatches from Castle Loo announce that the condition of Queen Wilhelmina, according to her physicians, continues to be satisfactory.

This morning's news from Castle Loo leads to the impression that a favorable turn has occurred in the queen's illness, which renders it possible that the affairs of state will soon resume their normal course. The rumors of the intention of the government to take steps looking to the establishment of a regency will, therefore, probably not materialize.

Professor Rosenstein, the pathologist of Leyden university, had a further consultation today with her majesty's physicians.

After a consultation lasting three-quarters of an hour, between Professor Rosenstein and the other physicians, the following bulletin was issued:

"There is a slight improvement in the queen's condition, manifested by the fall in her temperature, since morning. Her majesty's consciousness is maintained without interruption. The queen's general condition is satisfactory."

The above bulletin caused the greatest satisfaction here and elsewhere in Holland.

TWIN CHILDREN CREMATED

Des Moines, April 22.—The 3-year-old twin children of M. Shields, residing at Bear Grove, Delaware county, were found in debris resulting from a fire that consumed a barn last evening. The fire originated in a pile of rubbish and communicated to the barn. Unknown to the parents, the children were playing inside the building and no effort was made to rescue them.

BURGLARS SHOOT ENGINEER

Pittsburg, April 22.—Henry Stump, an engineer on the Western Pennsylvania road, was fatally shot this morning while attempting to capture a gang of burglars at Willow Grove. The burglars had stolen a safe from the Willow Grove toll house and were trying to open it when they were discovered by the crew of a freight train. The train was stopped and an attack was made on the robbers who opened fire on the trainmen. Stump received three bullets and it is feared will die. The burglars made their escape.

EXTENSIVE FOREST FIRES

Belvidere, N. J., April 22.—A forest fire in Scott's Mountain, in Belvidere, has denuded hundreds of acres of young timber and valuable buildings. The fire began yesterday and was started by a party of tramps who were camping in the woods. They fled as soon as they found the flames spreading.

The fire burned over the iron plant of Joseph M. Roseberry, where valuable machinery was destroyed. McMutrie & Co., of this place, are among the heavy losers by the fire, as a timber tract of theirs was turned over. The Nause Bros. lost valuable timber and sawed lumber. The farmers nearby lost fences and outbuildings. The neighborhood turned out to fight the flames and thus saved many houses and barns.

FIRST HOT, THEN COLD

Sudden Changes In Weather In Many States.

Crops Have Been But Little Injured Thus Far.

St. Paul, April 22.—A cloudy and threatening sky this morning gave promise of rain for this section of Minnesota, the mercury was only 48 at 7 o'clock, and another hot day was not anticipated. North Dakota points reported a drizzling rain and an excess of moisture, but South Dakota is still dry. Several points in Southern Minnesota and South Dakota report damage to crops from dry ground and hot winds, but the damage is not serious. North Dakota and Northern Minnesota have as yet felt no ill effects from the warm wave.

Rochester, in Southern Minnesota, reports a terrible wind blowing today and no rain in sight. At Pipestone, in Southwestern Minnesota, light showers fell last night, accompanied by lightning, fog and heavy clouds today, and the crops are in splendid condition. At Mayville, N. D., a severe snow storm is prevailing, seeding is delayed by the storm, and business generally impeded.

Denver, April 22.—The crop outlook in Colorado has been improved by the rain and snow that have fallen in the past few days, but the prospect still is that there will be insufficient water for irrigation in some localities this summer, owing to an unusually light snow fall in the mountains during the winter. Vegetation is not far enough advanced to be affected by the sudden and marked changes in temperature that have occurred of late. The recent moisture in the eastern part of the state has improved the condition of the soil for seeding and planting, which are generally as far advanced as usual, except in the south central region and on the Arkansas-Platte divide. As a rule winter wheat is in good condition and fruit trees sustained no serious damage during the winter.

There was a light fall of snow here last night, but the weather is clearing today.

Milwaukee, April 22—Record-breaking high temperature for April is reported from all parts of Wisconsin today. Unless there is a change soon, accompanied by showers, it is feared that the effect on the crops will be serious. There has been little rain this spring, and the ground is dry for a considerable depth.

Reports to the local weather bureau show higher temperatures than yesterday at Wisconsin points. It was 64 degrees, official, at 10 a. m. in Milwaukee.

Des Moines, April 22.—With heavy clouds hanging over the state there is every prospect that there will be rain before night, and thus confirm the prediction of the weather bureau. The wind is still blowing at a high velocity, carrying clouds of dust. There is no fear expressed with regard to damage to cereal crops. Crop Reporter Sage, of the state service, declares in a bulletin issued this morning that the ground is in excellent shape and that unusually good progress has been made this spring.

Memphis, April 22.—The weather in Tennessee during the last three days has been unusually warm and dry for this time of the year, but has been of advantage to the farmers. Planting operations are now going forward favorably, though the season is about two weeks later than the average.

Wichita, Kan., April 22.—A good soaking rain fell here after midnight, following two days of severe southern winds. The crop outlook in this section is good. The drought had not been severe, but the hard winds were damaging.

Detroit, April 22.—At 10 a. m. today the temperature in Detroit was 74 degrees, and Weather Observer Conger says that it will reach 80 before the day is over. Yesterday the thermometer reached 72. The thermometer rose rapidly all over the state last night. Rain is needed badly throughout the state; crops are beginning to suffer for lack of it, and vegetation generally is backward. There has been no heavy fall of rain in Southeastern Michigan this month. The high wind and heat, Observer Conger says, have driven all the moisture out of the air and there are no immediate indications of rainfall.

Chicago, April 22.—Although promised relief from the hot and dusty winds that put the thermometer to 84 degrees yesterday, Chicago is still experiencing unseasonably warm weather. At 10 o'clock today the temperature was 74 degrees and was rapidly rising. The weather bureau predicts that the present high wind will continue, but that probably by night showers will fall. The lack of rain is not thought to have affected crops.

Cleveland, April 22.—The government thermometer here registered 77 early today and the local forecaster predicted that the mercury would mount to 80 this afternoon. Storm signals are displayed for a southwesterly gale.

It is stated that crops in Northern Ohio are not far enough advanced to be affected by the premature warm wave.

Omaha, April 22.—The temperature at 7 o'clock was 48 against 72 yesterday, a fall of 24 degrees. The general conditions went from one extreme to the other during the night, and temperatures in Western Wyoming, Nebraska and Western Iowa this morning were below normal. A light snow is falling at Valentine, and there was freezing weather in Northwest Nebraska and parts of Wyoming. During the night there was a general precipitation of about .25 inch of rain. A heavy, but decidedly cooler wind prevails.

Crops in Nebraska have not been damaged by the excessive warmth, and last night's rains will relieve to some extent the semi-drought. The previous copious rains left the fall wheat in good condition to withstand the unseasonable heat, and the outlook for that crop is still good.

Western Iowa has experienced an almost unprecedented spring drought, and stockmen are suffering severely in many places for want of water.

Topeka, Kas., April 22.—The wind of the past three days has dried the surface of the ground, but reports from over the state indicate that the damage to wheat has not yet been so great as was feared. The wheat is several inches high which kept the dirt around the roots. Rain fell this morning at Wichita and at points in Central Kansas and if it becomes general within a short time the damage to wheat will not be great.

The temperature today was 55 degrees at 10 o'clock, the wind twenty-eight miles an hour with strong probabilities of frost tonight. The indications are for fair weather tonight and Wednesday.

Columbus, Ohio, April 22.—The warm wave and spring showers the past two days have caused the growing crops to shoot up rapidly. The season is very backward in Central Ohio.

The local weather bureau predicts shofers for tonight to be followed by a marked drop in temperature. The mercury is expected to fall possibly to the freezing point by Wednesday night, in which case considerable injury to unprotected garden crops is expected.

Peoria, Ill., April 22.—The temperature at 6 o'clock this morning stood at 65 degrees or 11 degrees higher than yesterday morning with partial clouds and good prospects for rain. The maximum temperature yesterday was 84 degrees. There has been plenty of rain and no apprehension is felt for crops at present.

St. Louis, April 22.—The unprecedented warm spell continues in St. Louis and vicinity, but it is somewhat abated today, the thermometer registering 70 degrees at 10 a. m. Local thunder storms are predicted for this afternoon.

Wheat in Missouri in Illinois is badly in need of rain, but it is thought can survive for several days without it. It is the concensus of opinion on change that the present hot spell has not had much additional deleterious effect on the wheat of this section, but may, if it should continue long.

Indianapolis, April 22.—The weather is not so oppressive today as yesterday. A strong wind is blowing.

The weather bureau predicts a cold wave with probably frost tomorrow.

Crops in Indiana are not retarded by weather conditions, but fruit is promising with the exception of peaches.

NEUMANN TOMB OPENED

Body of Bishop Removed For Purpose of Identification and Then Replaced In Vault and Sealed By Archbishop Ryan.

Philadelphia, April 22.—The tomb in which the body of Bishop John N. Neumann was placed forty-two years ago was opened today by a special ecclesiastical court, the proceeding being one of the final acts preliminary to the beatification of the prelate. The disinterment was made in secret and was for the purpose of identifying the remains of Bishop Neumann and to ascertain their state of preservation.

Two witnesses swore that they witnessed the burial of the bishop and two physicians wrote a minute description of the remains. They were then placed in a new coffin and restored to the vault, which was sealed by Archbishop Ryan.

The evidence collected by the ecclesiastical court during its inquiry, which has been in progress for several years, will now be forwarded to Rome.

Bishop Neumann was born in Bohemia in 1811 and came to America at the age of 23 years. He was made bishop of this diocese in 1852. He died suddenly in 1860.

BURGLAR IS IN QUARANTINE

New York, April 22.—A burglar in Jersey City has caused much amusement by breaking into a house harboring a smallpox patient. He gave his name as James Cotter. Entrance was effected through the basement, and Cotter was leisurely prowling about when the daughter of the smallpox victim heard him and attracted an officer by screaming. Cotter will be strictly quarantined for twenty-one days.

THE MAYOR SIGNS IT

Affixes His Signature to Highland Canal Company Franchise.

Thought That City Should Be Remunerated For Lighting Franchise.

But Is Unwilling to Jeopardize the Project By Veto.

Mayor Hugo has signed the Highland Canal and Power company franchise ordinance.

While he thought the city should have some remuneration for the commercial lighting privilege granted the company, he was unwilling to take the risk of a veto hanging up the scheme for an indefinite period.

In explaining his position, the mayor said: "It was not my purpose to obstruct or in any way delay a project that would be so beneficial to Duluth.

"In reading over the commercial lighting provision of the franchise, which was not submitted to me until a day or so ago, I could not help but think what the people of the city would do if a company would come in here and ask a 25-year commercial lighting franchise to do commercial lighting, as a separate proposition.

"Not for a moment would the citizens think of giving a strictly commercial lighting concern a 25-year franchise, and for a short term franchise some remunertion would be required.

"In examining this portion of the Highland company's franchise it occurred to me that the lighting privilege was in reality a separate commercial lighting franchise, and that something in the way of a tax on the gross earnings of the commercial business should be paid the city for the privilege.

"My idea was to have the council reconsider the franchise and hold a consultation with the officers of the company and insert a gross earnings tax provision in the franchise.

"The council did not see fit to act on this suggestion, and I do not feel like taking on myself the entire responsibility of indefinitely delaying, or probably permanently jeopardizing this big project which means far more to Duluth than the benefits that would be received from such a gross earnings tax remuneration. Therefore, I sign the ordinance."

Shortly after the mayor had signed a delegation of prominent business men, feeling a little apprehension and anxiety over the current report that a veto was inevitable, called at the office to urge the signing.

They were more than pleased when the mayor informed them that the ordinance was already signed.

BIGGEST YET.

An Event Which Will Surpass All Previous Ones.

The Barrett & Zimmerman company, who have already held two very successful auction sales of horses at their stables on West First street, are planning another in the near future, which will surpass in magnitude those they have yet given, and will prove a genuine surprise to everyone. Some entirely new features will be offered and the company has arranged to secure special rates on all steamboats and railroads centering in Duluth for this event.

The company makes a specialty of fine driving and family broke horses, as well as heavy draft animals, and guarantee everything in connection with each sale to be exactly as they represent.

Notice will be given later of the date of the next big sale. Private sales are held daily.

To Whom It May Concern.

The undersigned have, by mutual consent, dissolved the partnership heretofore existing between them under the firm name of Brand & Donald. Frank Brand assumes all the indebtedness and collects all outstanding accounts at the New Duluth store.

Alexander H. Donald assumes all indebtedness and collects all outstanding accounts at the West Duluth store.

To Lay the Paving.

Hugo & Tims expect to begin work tomorrow on their contract for paving the roadway of the Garfield avenue viaduct with cedar blocks. They have been ready to go ahead with the contract for some time back, but have been delayed by non-arrival of steel for the street car tracks. The street railway company was disappointed in delay of arrival of rails it had depended upon for this work. The rails have now arrived, however, and the work will be pushed forward rapidly. It is expected that the street car tracks will be laid and the pavement completed ready for travel over the viaduct within a couple of weeks.

NOT UNFRIENDLY.

Glasgow, April 22.—Representatives of the Anchor and Allan lines say that although their companies are outside the new shipping corporation they are not unfriendly thereto, nor pessimistic as to its effects, adding that if it furnishes uniform rates the combination will be regarded as an advantage to other lines.

OXHIDE LAKE DISTRICT.

More As to Iron Ore Finds There.

People that have lands in the Oxhide Lake district, where the Eastern Minnesota exploratory parties are said to have drilled into 75 to 90 feet of ore, are deeply interested in the news. Just which part of what was known as the Robinson lands this find was made on is not known. The Eastern Minnesota people are more reticent about their iron interests than any other faction in the business. It is said, however, that a good discovery has been made in section 15, 56-23. This was once held under state lease by Robinson. At least, the north half of the ne¼ of section 15, which abuts on the north shore of Oxhide lake, was so held. Then Robinson also held all of section 16-56-23, the s½ of the se¼ of 10-56-23, the s½ and the ne¼ of the se¼ of section 14, and the se¼ of the se¼ of section 11, also the se¼ of the nw ¼ and the n½ and sw¼ of the sw¼ of section 1. All these descriptions lie in 56-23, and it is understood that the Eastern people bought the leases covering them.

The properties are located about twelve or fifteen miles east of Grand Rapids.

Other exploratory work on the Western Mesaba includes five drills at work on H. Watson's property in 56-25; prospecting in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, and 10, 55-25 by Corrigan-McKinney interests; testpitting in the se¼ of section 33, 55-25, and by F. T. Moody and L. A. Lydiard, of Minneapolis, in 60-21.

IS AWARDED.

John Grandy to Build Loeb Building on Lake Avenue.

A contract for the erection of the Loeb building was let this morning by Architect Wangensteln to John Grandy. The building will cost about $32,500. It will be four stories high. The Michigan street floor will be used for wholesale purposes, the viaduct floor will be divided up into five retail stores, and the two upper floors will be built for a European hotel.

Radcliffe & Hill have awarded a contract for the construction of foundations for the new St. James Catholic church to J. D. O'Connell. The price is $2145, and the work is to be done at once. The church will be built at West Duluth.

Architects report an improved outlook for lighter building projects. The bulk of the heavy work that was contemplated at any time for this season has been let and is under way. For some little time people having in mind the building of homes, houses to rent, or flat buildings, felt cautious over the cost of labor and materials. Now, however, the necessity for more buildings here, and the desire of intending home-builders to have homes of their own seem to be causing a turn in the situation. There are no indications as yet that there will be any widespread building movement, but the outlook is much more hopeful. There is even some talk by local owners of unimproved residence property of improving with houses to rent or flats. As yet much of the new talk has not passed the contemplative stage, but the new condition is taken by men engaged in the building business to have a desirable significance.

TO PAVE ROADWAY.

The Northern Pacific engineering department is considering bids from contractors for paving a roadway from the present terminus of the pavement laid alongside the new freight warehouse through to Garfield avenue. It is said that one of the tracks the course of which would interfere with the pavement will be taken up. The strip to be paved will be about 40 feet wide and over five blocks long. The cost of the improvement, if made of granite, will it is said be in the neighborhood of $25,000. Alternative bids have been put in, however, which allow the road to choose either granite or block.

THE WEST END CLUB

Meeting to Be Held to Consider Permanent Organization.

Keeping In Close Touch With Twentieth Avenue Station Case.

Business Men Astonished At Portions of Road's Answer.

C. O. Nelson, chairman of the committee of West End business men that was appointed to draft a plan of permanent organization for a West End Commercial club, has issued a call for another meeting at 8 o'clock this evening, in the basement of the Sloan building, at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The committee is ready with its report, and the new Commercial club will be thoroughly organized. If the attendance is too large for the quarters another room will be procured.

The preliminary meeting was held in the Sloan building a week ago, at which time the West End business men discussed the Highland franchise and passed resolutions favoring its passage by the council. There are many other matters of great interest to the West End that the business men are anxious to get at, and which will be dealt with as soon as the new organization is ready for work. The old Commercial club at the West End was a strong and influential body in its day, and the business men anticipate that the new club will be even stronger.

One of the matters of importance to the West End people is the mandamus case begun by the state railroad and warehouse commission to compel the Northern Pacific Railway company to resume passenger traffic on the line between Duluth and West Duluth by way of the West End, and to reopen the Twentieth avenue station. The business men are keeping in close touch with the progress of the case, and last Friday evening Attorney Clapp of St. Paul, who is associated with the attorney general in pushing the case in behalf of the state, attended a conference of the business men and expressed his confidence in the termination of the suit in terms favorable to the West End.

Some of the business men profess astonishment regarding parts of the railway company's answer, particularly the demand for a jury trial and the denial that the growth of the business center in the neighborhood of Twentieth avenue west was attributed to the existence of the station, and the allegation that it was the result of the growth of the city westward on account of the topography of the land. The business men claim that when the officials of the old St. Paul & Duluth road established the station in the first place, it was distinctly stated by them that they did so because they regarded the West End as the natural and logical site for manufacturing interests that would demand a station.

VETERANS

Of the Confederacy Holding Twelfth Annual Reunion.

Dallas, Texas, April 22.—With the music of many bands and cheers from thousands of throats, the twelfth annual reunion and meeting of the United Confederate veterans began today at the Auditorium at the fair grounds—now called Camp Albert Sidney Johnston.

The crush of visitors was the largest in the history of Dallas. It was estimated in the morning that 75,000 visitors were in the city, while information from the railroads was that by night this number would be swelled to 125,000 at least.

A light shower came like a benediction early in the day, cooling the air and laying the dust which had been carried into thousands of eyes during the last forty-eight hours. The rain over, visitors were in possession of perfect weather. Owing to a delay of the trains considerable apprehension was felt before the meeting opened that the various speakers on the program would not reach the camp in time to participate in the ceremonies. Governor Sayers, Commander-in-Chief Gordon, Hon. G. B. Gerald and Private John Allen were among those reported not yet in the city.

While the thousands of visitors did not leave the business section of the city, the tents of Camp Johnston, two miles distant, were crowded. The great mess shed, seating 12,000, was opened at 10 o'clock. An army of cooks and waiters worked like beavers, while the veterans, with a hunger born of a night in the open, did their best in an able manner to keep the cooks busy. Tea, coffee and milk by the barrel, beans, meat, hardtack and accessories by the wagonload disappeared in marvelous fashion. "The boys is eatin' as if they'd been separated from the wagon train for about three days," is the way one Louisianan put it.

The convention building, seating 8600 people, was filled soon after the veterans were called to order by Gen. K. M. Van Zandt, president of the Texas reunion association.

Rev. J. William Jones, chaplain general, delivered the convocation, and Mayor Ben E. Cabel welcomed the veterans to Dallas.

Hon. William McCamy welcomed the old soldiers on behalf of the local societies of veterans, and Col. W. L. Crawford spoke for the Texas Reunion association and local veterans.

Interspersing the speeches the songs of the Southland were mingled with those of the whole nation. They were sung in this order:

"America," "Bonnie Blue Flag," "Dixie," "Star Spangled Banner," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and again the undying "Dixie."

The feature of the afternoon was the turning of the keys of the city over to Gen. Gordon. The "Kallph of Bagdad" and his retinue were present in all their splendor.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Northeaster Kicks Up Serious Disturbance In the Harbor.

Bunsen Goes Aground---Osceola and Adams Nearly Collide.

Peter Cowick Returns From Cleveland--Nothing New In Strike.

A forty-eight-mile breeze blowing across the Duluth harbor today made it very interesting for vessels, and especially for the small tugs that are temporarily doing the towing business of the harbor just at present.

A heavy sea resulted from the three days of northeast winds that has been the lot of mariners at this end of the lakes, and the waves swept across the bay with considerable force, enforced by a vicious current.

The steamer Bunsen arrived about 8 o'clock this morning and nearly got into serious trouble. She was trying to round to while she waited for orders, having come up light for ore, and the wind swept her across the bay toward the Ohio coal docks. She threw out an anchor, but this did little service, as the anchor dragged and the boat kept on going. She was saved from going upon the dock by going aground, and she was still on the bottom this afternoon, waiting for the wind to go down. She has plenty of water ballast and there will be no trouble in pumping it out and floating her that way as soon as the wind subsides.

The Osceola and Tom Adams nearly had a serious mix-up this morning off the Omaha slip. The Osceola was going into the slip, when the Adams, twisted by the gale and current, swung back across the entrance. A collision was narrowly averted by prompt work.

Last evening the steamer Codorus, of the Anchor line, swung against the dock at the old St. Paul & Duluth warehouse and broke a couple of plates.

COWICK IS BACK.

Peter Cowick, the Duluth member of the grievance committee of the Firemen and Longshoremen's Protective association, returned this morning from Cleveland, but his arrival did not throw much light on the situation. It was understood that he brought a proposition from the Great Lakes Towing company to be submitted to the firemen at their meeting tomorrow night. What this proposition is he would not say, and, in fact, he said that nothing would be known about the matter until the meeting of the association, which will take place tomorrow night.

It is now said that before he left Duluth Capt. Hill submitted to the firemen a proposition that would probably have been accepted if it had not been for certain conditions that accompanied it. The men had been offered $52.50 a month, and they asked for $60. Capt. Hill offered to split the difference, giving them $56.25 a month, providing the firemen would not tell how much they were getting, and providing, further, that they would agree not to go into any other strikes. The men would not accept these conditions, though they would probably have accepted the wage compromise unattended by conditions.

TUGMAN'S COMULAINT.

"I wish," said one of the tug captains, who is waiting until the clouds roll by, this morning, "that the vessel captains would quit blowing four whistles out in the lake at night. Every time we hear it, no matter what time it is, our first impulse is to jump out and go after the boat, and we are wide awake before we remember that we are out of the tug business."

Four whistles is the signal for a tug.

WHEAT RATE WEAK.

The wheat rate is down to bed rock. Tonnage was taken on the Duluth board of trade this morning at 1¾ cents per bushel on wheat to Buffalo, which is the first time this low rate has been reached for three years. Most of the stuff was taken by liners, though one outside boat took a cargo at that figure.

PALMA

Received With a Great Demonstration At Holguin.

New York, April 22.—When President-elect Palma arrived at Holguin, Cuba, the demonstration in his honor excelled even the welcome at Gibara, says a dispatch from Holguin to the Tribune. Before leaving the latter place the president-elect received a dispatch from Governor General Wood, extending to him his best wishes. Other dispatches to the number of 300 were received from all parts of the country.

All along the route to Holguin, Gen. Palma was the recipient of one great ovation. Every farmer displayed a flag and every village had its quota of citizens at the station to greet their first president. His private car stopped at Cantimplora, where Gen. Palma spoke a few words and received a present of a huge floral piece. Just at the entrance of Holguin was lined up a troop of mounted veterans and fired the national salute from three or four guns. At the station there was an excited crowd of 6000 men, women and children, each anxious to be the first to shake the general's hand.

Mayor Rondan and Capt. Watson, military commander, extended the official welcome to the city. It was at Holguin, the birthplace of Gen. Calixto Garcia, that Gen. Palma, twenty-five years ago was confined in prison by the Spaniards.

KING LEOPOLD

Non-Commital In Reply to Chamber of Commerce.

Brussels, April 22.—King Leopold has responded to the petition of the chamber of commerce, asking for his intervention in the present crisis, in a conciliatory but non-commital manner. Intimating that the government is carefully considering the situation and can be depended upon loyally to maintain the constitution and fulfill its duty, by adopting the policy which it deems most useful for the well being and tranquility of the country.

There was a general resumption of work this morning in the factories and coal mines of Liege.

SEVENTY

Persons Are to Be Accounted For In the River Wreck.

Cairo, Ill., April 22.—Nothing further has developed as to the disaster of Sunday. The underwriters are here and will go up to the wreck today. No more bodies have been discovered. Practically nothing has been done to search the wreck for bodies. The total number on board at the time of the fire, passengers and crew, from all reliable statistics, given from memory by officers, was 155, and it is known that seventy-five were saved. This would leave seventy to be accounted for. The corrected list of lost pucks is fifty and there must be in the wreck on the river twenty people. It is not yet determined whether there will be an effort soon of raising the bodies.

EARTHQUAKE

At Guatemala Did More Damage Than First Reported.

Guatemala City, Monday, April 21.—The details which are being received here of the result of the earthquake shocks which were general throughout Guatemala Friday, Saturday and Sunday, show that Solol, Nahuat, Amatillan, Santa Lucia and San Juan were badly damaged and that Queseltenango was partly obliterated. Fire added to the horrors at the last named place. Two hundred persons were killed, mostly women, and many people were injured.

At the capital three churches were slightly damaged.

The government is relieving the sufferers.

ACTIVE NIGHT

Was Put In By Indiana Candidates and Managers.

Indnanapolis, April 22.—Republican candidates and their managers spent an active and restless night. Almost every man was on duty until a late hour, and some did not see bed at all. Yet the candidates' headquarters were opened as early today as yesterday, when the aspirants and the men who are backing them for the convention which meets tomorrow were fresh for their work.

Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge and all the Republican members of congress of the state are here. More butterness is beginning to crop out in the contest for attorney general than there is between all the other candidates. The opponents of Miller, of Goshen, who still seem to have a leading position, are determined to perfect a combination, if possible against him. The politicians apparently have not changed their opinion regarding the race for auditor and treasurer.

Sherrick, many think, has the sentiment behind him for auditor, but Martin's friends say he has the better organization. There will be no nomination for governor.

THEATER IS LEASED

C. A. Marshall, the Superior Manager, Gets the Lyceum.

Lease Dates From May 1 and Is For Three Years.

Will Operate the Two Houses---Sunday Performances Barred.

Charles A. Marshall, owner and manager of the West Superior Opera house, has secured the lease of the Lyceum theater. The lease was closed this afternoon. Mr. Marshall is one of the most popular theater managers in the Northwest. He undertook the management of the West Superior house four years ago and has made a marked success of it.

Up to that time the Grand Opera house had never been a paying property. Mr. Marshall employed a consummate tact in winning friends for his theater that very soon made it a most popular house. It is believed that the exercise of the same quality here as well as of general good management will make the Lyceum one of the most popular as it is one of the finest theaters in existence. Mr. Marshall will, it is understood, make Duluth his residence and headquarters and give the theater his personal attention.

It is understood that it will be Mr. Marshall's aim to open the theater more frequently than it has been, and to play all good attractions for two nights in Duluth and one in Superior. He will keep it open as much as possible during the summer.

As West Superior is considered an excellent theater town for one night stands, the placing of Duluth and Superior houses under one management is considered to be an excellent plan. Both houses in the past have been at considerable disadvantage in booking attractions on account of being under different management.

Little & Nolte have received many applications from various parts of the country, as well as several Duluth parties, and after carefully considering the merits of all, came to the conclusion that Mr. Marshall was the man for the place.

It may not be generally known, but the Lyceum theater is one of the most perfectly appointed theaters in the country. The stage is also one of the largest, and from a fire standpoint, is second to none. No money was spared in its construction to make it as near fireproof as a theater can be made. Since it was sold, March 1, Little & Nolte have given the matter of fire prevention for the theater careful study, and having had many years of experience in the fire insurance business, were especially fitted for this work. They have made many important changes. The theater is being rewired in the most modern way. The new switch board, when completed, will be a model for safety and efficiency. A new Gamewell fire alarm box is now installed, connected with the city fire department, and with the asbestos fire curtain, which is raised and lowered once at each performance, Duluth theater-goers may have no anxiety regarding fire.

The lease is for three years from May 1. There are no unusual conditions, further than that it shall be run as a first class house, and that the house shall not be used for theatrical performances on Sundays.

In spite of numerous reports to the contrary, E. Z. Williams did not make a bid for the lease of the theater. It is said that at one time he thought of doing so, but finding so much competition for the lease, and having plans outside of the theatrical business that he thought would be more profitable, he finally concluded not to.

Among the other men who were after the house were L. N. Scott, manager of the Lyceum theaters in the Twin Cities, with whom was associated in this connection Jacob Litt, the Twin City, Milwaukee, Chicago and New York producer and manager; W. W. Walker, the Winnipeg and Grand Forks circuit manager; Roy Smith, representing himself and John Hoeffler, a company manager, and Oscar Vanderbilt, of St. Paul, who has a house at Grand Forks and is interested in one at Butte. Klaw & Erlanger, the New York booking agents, never at any time considered the question of taking the management of the theater, as has been reported.

Suing For Damages.

Peter Blesi and Henry Graichen, two woodsmen who were sentenced from Hibbing last January for breaking a smallpox quarantine, have begun suits for damages for false imprisonment against Justice Levke, of Hibbing. They were released on writs of habeas corpus, the district court holding that the justice court had exceeded ts powers.

Suit For Grain Loss.

The Northern Elevator company has begun suit against the Security Insurance company to recover $824.71 on a policy of $5000 on grain stored in a Port Huron elevator and burned there. The elevator company claims that the grain was burned Nov. 4, 1901, involving a loss of $18,679.61, covered by insurance to the amount of $113,250, of which the defendant's share was $824.71. Proof of loss was sent, but the defendant refused to pay, claiming that the contract was not valid, and that its agent was not authorized to write insurance outside of Duluth, and that he wired for permission to write this policy, which was refused. J. L. Washburn and W. D. Bailey are the attorneys.

TWO MORE

Arrests of Bowery Saloonkeepers For Selling Bad Whisky.

The municipal court searchlight is again focused on Bowery whisky.

Two more saloonkeepers were arrested this afternoon charged with selling fusel oil and amyl alcohol in whisky that was supposed to be free from poisonous adulteration.

The saloonkeepers are Gust Levin, of the Windsor hotel, and Charles Carlson, of 513 West Superior street.

The complaint was sworn out by Otto Gafvert, the local inspector of the state dairy and food commisison. It charges that on Nov. 13 last the two men sold to W. W. Wall, two pints of supposedly pure whisky which conatined the poisonous substances mentioned.

The saloon men are represented by C. O. Baldwin, who recently made a hard technical fight for Capt. Henry Savage, charged with the same offense. Both Mr. Levin and Mr. Carlson entered pleas of not guilty, and the cases were set for a jury on May 20.

It is reported that warrants will be issued immediately for other Bowery saloon men.

The case against Capt. Henry Savage will shortly be taken up to the supreme court.

AN ERROR.

Court Did Not Give Hugo All Ballots He Claimed.

The statements made yesterday that the decision in the mayoralty contest gave Hugo every ballot he claimed and deprived Truelsen of every ballot he claimed was mistaken. Had it been true Mr. Hugo would have won out by many more than he did. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hugo lost more votes on the contest than Mr. Truelsen did. The latter lost but two, while six were taken away from Mr. Hugo. The official canvass of the votes gave Hugo 3654 and the judges cut this down to 3648. The canvass gave Truelsen 3645, and the judges gave him only two less, or 3643. One of the ballots that was taken from Truelsen had a man's name written upon it, and under the decisions of the supreme court could not possibly have been counted for him.

The matter of individual ballots cut very little figure in the case. It would hardly have been possible to give Truelsen the contest without throwing out the ballots that lacked the initials of the judges, and the principal controversy was on this point.

THE STORM.

Wind Reached a Maximum Velocity of 48 Miles.

The northeast gale that has been lashing this end of Lake Superior for the past three days reached its heighth this morning. The wind has been blowing quite steadily at a velocity of from 30 to 36 miles per hour and the maximum velocity of 48 miles per hour was reached a few minutes after 10 o'clock. Since then the wind has lightened. Local Forecaster Richardson says that the wind will likely veer into the northwest during the night, blowing strong and probably accompanied with snow. The rapidity of the change will depend largely on the movement of the area of low pressure that has hung over the southern part of the state today. Despite the threatening weather conditions several of the boats left the harbor during the night and today.

The rough water outside the harbor has prevented the dumping of material from dredges on the outside and the dredging work has been suspended until the storm abates.

A weather bulletin from Chicago at 1 p. m. said: The northeast storm central over Minnesota has increased in energy. High northeast winds and gales shifting to northwest tonight, with rain or snow.

Chicago, April 22.—The high wind that has been blowing over Chicago and the northwest has developed a velocity of 60 miles per hour. According to the weather bureau the northwest sweep that is almost sure to follow the southwestern gale promises to be dangerous and storm signals are flying at all upper lake ports. Unusually large numbers of vessels are on Lakes Superior and Huron and efforts are being made to warn them of the probable coming storm.

TO TRY SMITH

President Dissolves Court-martial and Will Appoint Another.

Manila, April 22.—By orders from Washington, the court-martial ordered to try Gen. Jacob H. Smith, who was in command of the United States troops on the island of Samar, on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, has been dissolved. The members of the court which will try Gen. Smith will be named at Washington.

Washington, April 22.—Although no statement is yet obtainable as to the reasons for dissolving the military court-martial, it is understood that the president is desirous that he himself should review the proceedings of the court-martial instead of having them reviewed at Manila, as would have been the case had Gen. Chaffee convened the court. It also is understood that the court will consist of the same members named by Gen. Chaffee, so that there is no reflection upon that officer involved in the course adopted.

POWERS FOR MILES

Are Provided In Bill Introduced By Senator Hawley.

Is a Measure to Increase Efficiency of the Army.

Commanding General At Present Has No Legal Status.

Washington, D. C., April 22.—Senator Hawley, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, today introduced a bill to "increase the efficiency of the army." The most important section of the bill is the following:

"Subject to the command of the president and general direction of the secretary of war, the lieutenant general shall exercise general command over the military forces of the United States, shall issue 'army orders' and direct inspection of the troops. He shall be charged with the instruction, training, discipline and distribution of the army with the preparation and maintenance of detailed plans for the mobilization of the military forces, for the preparation and maintenance of scores of offensive and defensive operations and with collecting and compiling military information. It will be his duty to see that the army is suitably and amply supplied and equipped, that the munitions of war are of the best material and of suitable character. He will recommend suitable persons for promotions and for military honors and rewards. He will be assistant in his duties, but his orders will be convened and executed through the agency of the general officers and general staff of the army."

The above provision is intended to give the commanding general a legal status which at present he has not, and it is understood to be in the interest of Gen. Miles. Other portions of the bill relate to details of the administration of the army.

During the consideration of routine business today, Mr. Hoar (Mass.) presented a resolution providing for an adjournment of the senate from Thursday, May 1, to Monday, May 5, the object being to afford a time for a spring cleaning of the senate chamber. The resolution went over under the rules.

The senate then proceeded to the consideration of a bill providing for a union railroad station in this city. Mr. Patterson (Col.) made an attack on the measure on the ground, as he said that it was a gift of a great amount of money to a few corporations. Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) a member of the District of Columbia committee, pointed out that the great bulk of the money to be paid by the United States and District was to be expended for street railway crossings and as indicated by Mr. McMillan, chairman of the District of Columbia committee, the government and the District of Columbia paid no part of the railroad construction but simply paid for the street improvements and for the construction of a plaza made necessary by the location of the new station.

Washington, April 22.—After some routine business the house, today went into committee of the whole and took up the consideration of the senate amendments to the omnibus claim bill. As passed by the house the bill carried about $200,000 for the payment of claims. To this the senate attached all the findings of the court of claims under the Bowman and Tucker acts for captured and abandoned property, French spoliation claims aggregating about $800,000 and many miscellaneous claims aggregating in all over $2,800,000. Mr. Mahon (Pa.), chairman of the committee on war claims, desired to non-concur in all the senate amendments and send the bill to conference, but there was objection to this course on the Democratic side.

Mr. Underwood (Ala.), moved to strike out that portion of the senate amendment covering the findings of the Selfridge board—$1,107,425; churches and schools, $62,974; state claims $422,271 and miscellaneous claims $177,260.

THE FERRY.

People that go down to the sea in ships are much perturbed today over the service between Lake avenue and Park Point.

The terrific nor'easter has been piling up heavy seas inside the canal, making the landings for the ferry boat rather difficult.

The Park Pointers claim that for this reason the boat has abandoned its regular schedule and on one trip this morning when women and children were compelled to stand out in the gale and driving rain for forty-five minutes while the ferry was tied up in the Lake avenue slip.

They say that in rough weather the schedule should be increased and they also say that there is less danger to the boat in the heavy seas than there is to the health of women and children that are compelled to stand out for three-quarters of an hour at a time without any protection from the weather.

The Mayflower is now in the Park Point service while the Estelle is being overhauled in the yards of the Superior Shipbuilding company.

There is a strong sentiment among city officers in favor of the tug E. T. Carrington for the Park Point ferry service during the coming season. It is expected that it will be the banner year for Lower Minnesota Point, so far as passenger traffic is concerned, and it will probably be the last year of the steam ferry service, as it is expected that the electric aerial ferry will be in operation by the opening of navigation next year.

The Carrington is 76 feet in length, has 17-foot beam and draws 5 feet of water. She was built at Bangor, Mich., in 1876, but has been greatly improved since coming to Duluth. It is said that she can carry from 300 to 400 passengers at a trip without danger. Capt. Walter Lloyd has an option on this boat for the ferry service.

Bidding against him are Smith and Ackley, owners of the tug Sarah Smith. This boat is about as large as the Carrington, and considered one of the very best that could be put in this commission. The advantage of the Carrington over her at present is that the Carrington has fire-fighting apparatus and can throw 2½-inch streams of water in case of fire.

Owners of the Sarah Smith say they can fit her out with just as good fire-fighting apparatus as is on the Carrington. The Carrington bid is for $32.50 a day, while the Sarah Smith is $30 a day.

Capt. Ryan is still in the fight with his steamer Estelle, and says that when she comes out of the docks she will be as seaworthy as the day she was launched. His bid is for $25 a day, and he offers to put in fire-fighting apparatus.

LEFT FOR THE DOGS

The Filipinos Lay In the Trench Where They Fell.

Were Slain By the Bullets of the Water-Curists.

Almost Every Soldier Had Native Woman For a Wife.

Natick, Mass., April 22.—Michael Snee, who returned from the Philippines a few weeks ago, was interviewed here and told a startling story of the methods in vogue in the island of Samar to suppress insurrection. Snee served in the Cuban campaign in Company H, Twelfth regulars, enlisting at Worcester May 17, 1898, and being discharged Dec. 25, that year. He took part in several skirmishes, and was at the battle of San Juan and the siege of Santiago.

He returned home after his discharge and enlisted in Company M, Ninth regulars, at Boston, 1899. The regiment landed at Manila in April that year, and after more than a year there went to China and took part in the siege of Pekin by the allies. Capt. Ahern was taken sick, and from the time the command went to China till Snee was discharged, Company M was under the command of Lieut. John B. Schoeffel, of Rochester, N. Y.

After the China campaign the regiment returned to Manila in June last year, and in August Company M was sent to the island of Samar. The company was divided in two detachments of about thirty men each, one under Lieut. Schoeffel, in which Snee remained, taking one small village. The regiment was a part of the command of Gen. Jacob C. Smith, who is to be court-martialed, and Private Snee says that the men were given a pretty free hand by Lieut. Schoeffel, who, he says, presumably was carrying out the orders of his superiors.

Private Snee said:

"Just as soon as we reached Samar we were sent on expeditions into the hills surrounding the town. The purpose was to get in the insurrectos who were reported by the friendly native police to haunt the hills. All the people were ordered into the town, and those who were found in the hills were there at their peril.

"Every two or three days Lieut. Schoeffel sent out a squad of men into the hills under a non-commissioned officer, and I went on many of these expeditions. Our orders were clear and strict. Everybody found in the hills—man, woman or child—was to be killed. 'Shoot all hogs and dogs,' was the order, and we were not instructed to spare the children, though never to my knowledge did we find any of the latter.

"We were ordered to get what information we could about the insurrectos from those we found, and to use the water cure to get it. Many of us did, in fact all of us, disliked to do it, but we had to obey orders under pain of severe penalty. I saw as many as twenty Filipinos given the water cure. We did it in the hills where we found them, and much of it was done at the camp of the detachment in the village.

"The method was severe. First, the soldiers tried to get the prisoner to tell what he knew of the insurrectos. If he refused, his hands were tied behind his back and he was pinned, face upward, on the ground by them. Then the neck of a bamboo bottle was forced into the native's mouth and water was poured in.

"I have seen two or three buckets poured in, making several gallons, and swelling the native's body to twice and three times the natural size. Then he was rolled on the ground and the water got out and the process was repeated. The native, of course, resisted, and the soldiers rubbed the bottle across his mouth, lacerating the flesh and breaking the teeth and leaving the man's face covered with blood.

"After the water cure was over the prisoner was shot, and if it happened to be in the hills outside of town the body was left there for the dogs, which sooner or later feasted on the remains. Sometimes a hole was dug and two or more bodies were thrown into it.

"I remember an excursion one moonlight night last November, well. A native had murdered a soldier, and I was sent out in a squad of seven men under Sergeant Nelson to hunt for him in the hills. We surprised him with seven old natives in a shack. The old men were harmless, and the only weapons in the shack were two bolos. There was no fight, as we took them unawares. The native interpreter pllied them with questions, but they refused to tell anything. A native policeman tied the seven old men in a row.

"A hole was dug behind them, and the sergeant ordered us up in a row opposite the natives and ordered us to fire. Every one of the unfortunates wes killed and fell into the hole, where they were left for the dogs, and we went back to the camp with the murderer a prisoner.

"That was the method. Every few days I was sent out in my turn on some expedition or other. We always killed a few natives and if the prisoner was considered of importance he was brought back to the village and given the water cure to get him to 'peach' on the insurrectos. They almost never told anything, and when they did they only lied. We could not depend on what they said.

"Another incident occurred in the camp. The soldiers were giving the water cure to a native who had been brought in. He tried to prevent the bottle being forced into his mouth. His teeth were knocked out and he was a mass of blood. The soldiers found it hard to force him and the quartermaster came up and, putting his pistol at the Filipino's head blew out his brains.

"I left Samar Dec. 19, my three years expiring in January. Just before I left, a prominent wealthy native, named Cebu, was arrested and brought into camp. They gave him the water cure, using salt water. This was often done to make it more terrible. If a bottle was not handy a thick stick of wood was forced into the native's mouth like a gag and the water was then poured in.

"Almost every man in the detachment was married to a native woman. It did not matter much whether or not the woman was already married. They did not want to marry the soldiers, but were forced to for fear of death. The ceremony such as it was, was short and performed by the presidente of the town, himself a native. The women had great aversion to men with beards, and the soldiers generally shaved off their beards and moustaches to make it less hard for the unfortunates.

"The women were given a few cents a week to buy rice, and that was about all there was to the family ties.

"All these things were done with the knowledge and approval of Lieut. Schoeffel, and I must say that I have seen enough of it. Many of the other soldiers felt as I do, and we were sick of it during the four months I was there, but we were forced to kill and burn everything, and dared not disobey the officers."

Private Snee stated that he was perfectly willing to make oath to the truth of his statements, and is willing to testify at Washington if he is wanted.

QUIT MEAT BUSINESS.

Indianapolis Grocers Find It Is Unprofitable.

Indianapolis, April 22.—A large number of the grocers of this city, who have for years conducted a meat business have discontinued the sale of beef and beef products and notified their customers that they would not resume the trade until there is a substantial reduction in prices.

Several butcher shops not connected with groceries have also closed and some others refused to buy from the Chicago packers, giving as a reason that they were losing money because of high prices.

A movemnt has been started among the butchers to buy their own cattle on the hoof and do their own slaughtering.

CROP CONDITIONS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Report.

Washington, April 22.—The Weather Bureau's weekly summary of crop conditions is as follows: The week ending April 21 was warmer than the average in the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain regions, in the Missouri valley and the Northern districts to the eastward; it was too cool in the Middle Atlantic Southern states and decidedly dry over the greater part of the central valleys and Middle Atlantic states. Rain is badly needed throughout the Rocky mountain districts and Central valleys, and would prove beneficial in the Middle Atlantic states, while excess of moisture has hindered farm work in portions of the Central Gulf states. The latter part of the week is marked by abnormal temperature in Kansas and Nebraska intensifying the drought conditions in these states. The general weather conditions although not conducive to rapid advance of vegetation were very favorable for farming operations in all parts of the country.

The progress of corn planting has been rather slow, except in Missouri and the other Northern states, this work being about finished in the Central and West Gulf districts. A large acreage of ground is prepared for planting in the states of the central valleys and some planting has been done in Southern Illinois, but none elsewhere northward of the Ohio. The early planted is coming up in Southern Kansas, where cultivation has begun. Winter wheat has continued to make slow growth and on the whole is in less promising condition in the principal winter wheat states of the Central valley than at the close of the previous week. Moisture and milder temperatures are generally needed for this crop through these districts and also in the Middle Atlantic states. The outlook in California continues promising and the crop has experienced improvement on the North Pacific coast.

The germination of early sown spring wheat over the southern portion of the spring wheat region has been slow and seeding has been retarded by freezing in North Dakota. The Red River valley lands in Minnesota, are drying nicely and seeding began on April 15. Some re-seeding will be necessary in Minnesota as a result of the dust storm of April 10 and 11. Seeding has progressed favorably on the North Pacific coast.

In the Missouri and Central Mississippi valley states, oats are making slow growth and are much in need of rain and warm weather. In the Southern states a very general improvement is indicated. Seeding is well advanced in the Northern districts, excepting New England and the Northern portion of the Middle Atlantic states.

Very good progress has been made in cotton planting except in some portions of Tennessee, the Carolinas and Florida, and planting is nearing completion over the Southern portion of the cotton belt. Over most of Texas cotton is up to satisfactory stands and plowing and chopping are well under way.

In Maryland and Tennessee, tobacco plants are doing well, but in Virginia, the Carolinas and Kentucky, they are small and in places irregular. Some transplanting has been done in South Carolina. The general outlook for fruit, except for peaches in portions of the Ohio and Central Mississippi valleys, continues promising, no injury having resulted from frosts in the districts east of the Rockies.

Grass is very backward generally throughout the central valleys and is in need of warmth and moisture.

BOND ISSUE

Of Steel Corporation Will Be Announced Saturday Or Monday.

New York, April 22.—It has been definitely decided by the United States Steel corporation to issue the circular, giving details of the proposed bond combination next Saturday or Monday. Copies of the circular have been mailed to foreign shareholders and final announcement will be simultaneously made here and abroad. In addition to the plan to retire $200,000,000 of 7 per cent pfd stock and issue $250,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds, the circular will, it is expected, outline numerous improvements contemplated by the operating officials. It is understood that fully $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 of the corporation's new capital will be devoted to modernizing the plants of the constituent companies. With the extra $50,000,000 derived from the bond issue, the steel corporation will have more than $100,000,000 working capital. It was was said today that there is no foundation for the report that the United States Steel corporation proposes to change it charter from a financial or holding company to an operating or a manufacturing concern.

According to a high official of the corporation this has never been contemplated and no purpose would be served by the obliteration of the various underlying or subsidiary companies.

McKinley, South Carolina, called on the president today and asked his support for the Crumpacker resolution and the bill introduced by Representative Irwin providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the condition of the negroes. They declined to discuss the details of the interview, but said it was an entirely satisfactory one.

KEEP AWAY FROM SHOPS.

South Bend, Ind., April 22.—The union strikers of the Singer Sewing Machine factory here, after a big procession and an accompanying meeting last night, resolved to keep away from the shops today; and this doubtless had much to do with the peaceful resumption of work today by a few hundred of the 1800 employes this morning.

SHIPPING TO DULUTH

Flax Beginning To Arrive In This Market From Chicago.

Crushers Are Not Pleased With This State of Affairs.

Is Contract Grade But Low In Oil Producing Quality.

The flax crushers seem to be up against it. They have been buying all the supplies of seed they could in Duluth, and shunning the Southwestern flax that has been marketed at Chicago. They had no kick coming on the grade. They admitted that the inspection was all right at Chicago. The seed was up to weight, and it was sound. True, it was a little dirty, but dirt is taken care of by docking the weight, which shrinks the price of the bushel just that much. Now Chicago is shipping this seed to Duluth to fill short sales here.

It seemed to be a way nature had of beating flax inspection and the crushers. They studied how to make the seed grade anything less than No. 1, but they could not do it. There was no way of considering in the grading what came out of the seed after it had been crushed. It looked like good self-respecting seed. There was not a blemish to indicate that it was wearing a very hypocritical appearance. Yet this Southwestern seed did not yield over sixteen or seventeen pounds of oil to the bushel, while the Duluth flour of the same grade yields about nineteen pounds. The oil is said to be worth what is equivalent to 16 to 25 cents a bushel of flax.

The result has been a relatively much stronger demand for flax in this market than in Chicago. Sales for the May delivery here are said to be about 1,500,000 bushels. Yesterday's weekly elevator statement showed that there were about 1,300,000 bushels in store here. The largest part of the sales against May are claimed to be hedges by the elevators here that bought the seed. It is claimed further that there is little truth in a report that the short interest here, aside from that part covered by flax actually in store, is quite large. An elevator man declares that the reason Duluth has gone to about 9 cents over the Chicago market is to be assigned to the greater demand for Duluth flax, and that that demand is due to the fact that the crushers get more oil from it. In fact, he considers the situation, as far as Duluth is concerned, is a perfectly legitimate, instead of a speculative one.

Three cars of the Chicago flax have been received here. It is reported that it is the intention to move a great deal more to Duluth to apply on short sales for May delivery. The Chicago warehouse statement shows only about 60,000 bushels in store there, but as the private elevator stocks are not given in the public report it may be that there are large accumulations there of this defective Southwestern seed. The flax already received here graded No. 1 and went into store as such. It is intimated that if there is an extensive movement, the flax will be underground in—that is, perhaps shipped via Minneapolis and then rebilled there, so as to give the impression that it is not Southwestern seed. Nobody can see how the crushers are going to refuse to accept the flax on their May delivery purchases. The only thing they can do is to try to have their brokers refuse to buy May from those to whom this Southwestern flax is going.

May flax closed here yesterday at $1.77¾ and Chicago May closed at $1.69. It is said that difference would fairly represent the cash positions. If so, it would allow the man that ships from Chicago to apply on May contracts 8¾ cents for his freight. At one time, it is claimed that as low as 7 or 8 cents per 100 pounds eastbound, was obtained in the way of freight between Duluth and Chicago. Whther a rate of that kind can be gotten now or if it can be made to apply to shipments westbound is considered to be quite a question. But nobody is shipping the flax here for the fun or novelty of the thing.

A. Gabrielson Lectures.

Much interest is being manifested by the Scandinavians of this city in the temperance meetings that are being held here by Alfred Gabrielson, of Eau Claire, Wis. Mr. Gabrielson, although a young man, is considered one of the most eloquent and forcible speakers of the Minnesota Total Abstinence association. His first meeting was held in the Norwegian Lutheran church at First avenue east and Third street, Sunday evening. He will speak at the Norwegian Lutheran church at Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street, Wednesday evening of this week. His lectures are delivered in the Norwegian language.

Big Buck Interferes With Progress of Government Launch.

Calumet—The government launch Tangent almost ran into a large buck recently. The boat was in Portage lake, near the Sturgeon flats, making for the Portage entry, when the movements of some animal in the water were noticed by Capt. Louis Slock, who was at the wheel. He checked the speed of the boat and the launch barely grazed the animal and the men could almost reach the deer. The men on the launch state that it was the largest buck they ever saw, and estimated its weight at over 240 pounds. The animal was crossing the lake from the south to the north side.

Newberry—While repairing an acetyline gas engine, William Kremple, of the grocery firm of Kremple & Taylor, of Dollarville, was seriously burned about the face and hands by an explosion. He will lose his eyesight. John Stevenson was also seriously burned in the face.

Houghton—The annual meeting of the directors of the Lake Superior Produce and Cold Storage company, of Houghton, will be held in its offices May 14, when a proposition will be submitted to increase the capital stock from $100,000 to $500,000. At a preliminary meeting of the directors a decision to increase the capital of the company was reached. It is understood that the majority of the stockholders favor the step about to be taken, and that the proposition for the proposed increase will be voted through. The action of the concern is the result of its decision to embark in the wholesale grocery business in Houghton. The deal for the store now occupied by Graham Pope will be closed with the Shelden estate at once. The company will also purchase the lake frontage east of the Pope dock at the foot of Shelden street. Some alterations will be made in the Pone store and warehouse. Mr. Pope will vacate about the first of the month.

THE DAKOTAS.

The Saloons at Bowdon Closed After a Hard Fight.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Sheriff St. Jacque has closed the saloons of Bowdon after a prolonged fight made by Editor Moore and the better element of Bowdon. The Guardian editor forced the sheriff to take action. Editor Moore's life was threatened unless he gave up the fight, and he has been armed for any possible trouble that might arise. The saloon men say their places of business will be closed only temporarily and that in a few weeks Bowdon will be as warm a town as ever.

There is a great scarcity of farm help in Statsman and other counties of the James river valley and unheard of wages are being offered. Many farmers are unable to work all their teams owing to the lack of men to drive.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The cattle thieves who for two or three years committed wholesale depredations in the region embracing the eastern portion of this(Minnehaha) county and counties adjoining in Iowa and Minnesota, but who ceased operations some months ago, have again resumed operations. Several farmers living in the vicinity of Garretson have recently reported the loss of stock. Efforts will be made to run down and break up the gang, which appears to be a regularly organized one.

John Davis, of Sisseton, who was brought to the city by Deputy United States Marshal Collins, was taken before Judge Carland, of the United States court, and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with selling liquor to Indians belonging to the Sisseton agency. He was fined $100 and sentenced to a term of sixty days in the Grant county jail at Milbank.

The prolonged litigation between the state board of railroad commissioners and some of the railroad companies having lines in the state, for the purpose of securing a reduction of freight and passenger rates, has been brought to a close by the filing with Clerk Pendar of the United States court in this city of orders of dismissal in the several suits, which were instituted in 1898. This action is the result of the leading railroad companies voluntarily reducing their freight and passenger rates a few months ago.

Montrose—Two horses, a harness and buggy were stolen from Rev. Mr. Wendell, the Baptist minister.

Lead—Fire destroyed the office and a warehouse of the Stearns Lumber company, causing a loss of $500. The buildings were the property of Emil Faust and were insured for $500.

Sturgis—At the recent session of the board of county commissioners of Meade county, that body declined to appropriate $90 or any sum for a South Dakota exhibit at the St. Louis exposition.

Huron—The leadle county Republican central commatee fixed May 13 as the time for electing delegates to the Republican state convention and Sept. 2 as the time for nominating candidates for county offices.

New Sleepers Between Twin Cities and Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee road has just placed in service two brand-new sleepers to be operated daily between the Twin Cities and Milwaukee.

They are of the twelve-section drawing room and smoking room type, and the handsomest cars ever built by the Pullman company. The names are "Nepahwin," which means sleep, and "Ewayea," which means lullaby.

The cars leave on the Pioneer Limited from the Twin Cities every evening, and are set out at Milwaukee at 7 o'clock the next morning. Passengers, therefore, are not disturbed until the usual time for getting up. This splendid service is a boom to travelers between the Twin Cities and Milwaukee.

THEY GET AROUND IT

Railroads Meet Injunction Against Cutting Rates Below Tariff.

Give Three Days Notice And Post Rate In Some Depots.

Simply Means More Red Tape to Rate Quoting System.

The Milwaukee road's action in openly announcing a cut in the lake and rail tariff on flour from Minneapolis to the seaboard is said to be but one of many. Indeed, it is talked among railroad men that since the federal court at Chicago issued injunctions against a number of Western roads, ordering them not to quote rates lower than published tariffs, fully 500 notices of reductions in published rates have been served on the commisison. The other notable reductions in which Duluth shippers were concerned were the lumber tariffs east and southwest and to Minneapolis points.

While the presidents and general traffic officials of the various roads seem elated over the firmness with which the tariff rates are maintained since the injunction was issued, yet it is claimed to be a fact that rates on all kinds of freight are continually being reduced in the same manner as that adopted by the Milwaukee & St. Paul. The only difference from the old condition of affairs is that, instead of cutting rates secretly and paying rebates to favorite shippers, the cut rates are published and filed with the interstate commerce commission as provided for by law.

Under these provisions ten days' notice has to be given of intention to advance rates, but only three days' notice is necessary to cut them. This notice, it is understood, can be given by wire, and the publication required to be made by posting a copy or two of the new tariff in some depot of the road, and then everything is ready for new rates. The new formula is a little more formal and adds more red tape to the system of rate-quoting, but if there is any especial desire to get around the manifest purpose of the law, and at the same time obey it implicitly in letter, it is pointed out that this can be accomplished very easily.

All a large shipper has to do to get a cut rate is to go to the chief traffic official of a road and tell him that he has 100 or more cars of freight to ship but cannot afford to pay the regular high tariff rate. An agreement to take this freight at a reduced rate is quickly reached, and notice is at once sent to the interstate commerce commission that the rate has been reduced to the rate named to the shipper on that particular class of freight.

No other course was open for the roads to pursue than to make these open reductions. When the injunctions were issued from the United States courts the roads had a large number of contracts on hand at cut rates. These contracts could not be fulfilled without placing the roads in contempt. They could not be ignored without rousing the wrath of the shippers. To escape these two evils tariffs were filed with the commission making cut rates regular tariff rates. Since then the practice has been followed whenever extra large shipments of freight are offered that cannot be secured at the agreed association rates, and which are admittedly too high.

JAY GOULD'S PARTNER

In a Poorhouse, But He Is Happy.

New York, April 22.—Josiah Lynn, once Jay Gould's partner, is spending the evening of his life in the poorhouse in Karsville, N. J. He is blind, but philosophical. He has just passed his 73rd birthday.

"You look at me, sitting here in the poorhouse, an old man, blind, friendless, with apparently nothing to live for, and you wonder that I should smile.. That is because you are wrong. When you grow older your griefs will not be so poignant. You will become more philosophical, and if you live right and have a sound, sane judgment, when you come to die you will look back and say. 'How foolish I was to allow anything to make me unhappy.'

"For, after all, there is nothing in this world that can happen to us which really ought to cause us a moment's unhappiness. Take myself, for instance. I have been a wealthy man in my day—a wealthy man with plenty of friends and a wife whom I loved devotedly. They have all passed away—wife, friends and fortune—and I am left to end my days in the poorhouse. Could I have foreseen such an end when I was an ambitious young man or even so recently as twenty years ago, I should have gone mad, I suppose. But instead of that I find myself not discontented, not unhappy—certainly much happier than many so-called fortunate people.

"I am not unhappy simply because I have learned to look at things philosophically and all my life I have not attempted to hunt for happiness outside of my own mind and heart. So much is written and preached on the subject of happiness—so much nonsense—that people have grown tired of the word. It has become a mockery, and the man who declares himself happy is usually considered either an egotist or a fool."

Lynn was a partner of Gould over fifty years ago. They made money in a tannery and in other ventures. In after years Gould helped his former partner with tips on the stock market. Bad investments swept the old man's fortune away. Then came the death of his wife and children and total blindness.

AT WEST DULUTH

With the several different propositions advanced by West Duluthians for better street car service in this portion of the city, the West Duluth commercial club will have food for thought and discussion at the special meeting called for this purpose Friday evening.

Yesterday Thomas Lowry, who controls the lines at the head of the lakes, paid West Duluth a visit and had a talk with various citizens. Mr. Lowry realized the differences in opinion as regards a new line or an extension, and before leaving the city he said that as soon as the West Duluth people could settle on some one plan he would be pleased to hear from them; that he was disposed to do everything reasonable toward the betterment of the service to this part of the city. He said that the company is ready to go ahead with the West Third street extension, or to build a line elsewhere, as the people may decide and the plan is feasible. There are practically four plans now being considered by the citizens here, all of which have their advantages. It is evident that those who have been fighting for the West Third street extension are not going to give up readily, especially those having property along the street which the extension would benefit. There are many who favor an extension of the West Third street line up Fortieth avenue west to Norton avenue, thence along the residence portion of the hill to a terminal point about Sixty-third avenue west. The advantage claimed is that all grade crossings would be avoided. The argument against the plan is that with street car service so far from the business section of West Duluth and in direct connection with Duluth, the people would naturally go to Duluth to do all their trading and the business interests here would be injured.

Another plan, one mentioned several days ago, which is meeting with favor, is a loop system from the old West Duluth line at Central avenue and Ramsey street, the track to run on Central avenue north to Norton avenue, west to Fifty-ninth avenue, west on Sixty-third avenue west, then down to Grand and back to Central avenue.

The latest plan suggested is somewhat similar, except that the road, instead of coming back on Grand avenue, could connect with the old line on Raleigh street.

It seems to be up to West Duluth people to determine which system they really desire.

GOES TO BE MARRIED.

Frank J. Lynch, night operator for the Northern Pacific company in the yards at Seventieth avenue west, will leave this evening for Rush City, Minn., where he will be united in marriage tomorrow to a young lady of that city. Mr. Lynch will be accompanied by James Rossiter, of West Duluth, who will act as best man. Mr. Lynch is well known in this part of the city, having until recently held a position at the Norhern Pacific depot here.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The athletic club that was formed by a number of the longshoremen last winter held an entertainment for members only last evening and a soft glove contest was put up by Messrs. Pasqual and Cody. The latter won out in the fourth round, Referee Chaurette rendering his decision on points.

The West Duluth brewers ball team has changed its name and henceforth the aggregation will be known as the West Duluth ball team. Several of the members objected to the name of Brewers and it was decided to eliminate the word. The team is now fully organized and getting in trim to meet any of the amateur clubs of the city.

There is no lack of employment at the present time for the lumber pilers. Several boats are tied up at West Duluth lumber docks. Boats are now loading at the Merrill & Ring, the Mitchell & McClure and the Duncan & Brewer mill docks.

The bicycle thief is said to be getting in his work in this portion of the city during the past week and three wheels are reported as missing. A. W. Lindgren found a wheel on Grand avenue one night this week that had evidently been stolen. Nobody has called to identify and claim the wheel.

C. H. Martz, of the board of public works, has suggested another plan for a bicycle path between West Duluth and Duluth. He suggests filling in the space between the street railway tracks with cinders.

John D. O'Connell has been awarded the contract for the excavation and foundation for the new St. James' Catholic church. The contractor will begin work within the next few days. The work is to be finished in sixty days.

R. L. Cochrane will furnish the lumber for the sidewalk contract recently awarded Mr. Preston. Over 1,000,000 feet of lumber will be used. The stringers will be of tamarack.

Miss Mary Holmes, of Riceville, Iowa, arrived this morning to visit her sister, Mrs. H. R. Patterson.

Miss Minnie Crosby left today for a visit at Seattle and Tacoma. She will make her home in one of the coast cities.

Chris Murphy, of Grand Marais, has returned to his home after a visit here.

Charles Murphy, who is living on his claim near Drummond, is here for a short visit.

William Coyle will leave Thursday for the Pacific coast, where he expects to locate.

Henry Dreaney, of Stult Ste. Marie, Canada, was here on business yesterday.

For wall paper go to S. J. Nygren's.

AS INDIAN FARMER.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 22.—Capt. Robert E. Bradford of this city has been notified of his appointment as Indian farmer at the Tongue River Indian reservation. He will leave the last of the week for the reservation.

FAVORABLE TO BABCOCK.

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., April 22.—The Republican county convention was held here last night. Nine delegates were unanimously elected to attend the Third district congressional convention at Lancaster, April 24. The delegation is favorable to Babcock's renomination.

WHY BEEF IS HIGH

Secretary of Agriculture Blames the Short Corn Crop.

Believes That Relief Will Come In About Two Months.

Cost To Be Cheaper When Grass Cattle Reach Market.

Washington, April 22.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson discussed the beef situation from the standpoint of a farmer and stock raiser. He attributes the present high prices to the short corn crop of last year. He says farmers have been feeding cattle corn worth 60 cents a bushel and have been selling beef for 7 cents a pound on the hoof. The average beef steer, he says, dresses at fifty pounds to the hundred, making the cost of the dressed animals 14 cents a pound.

Secretary Wilson predicts a fall in the price of beef in two months. He says:

"I predict a fall in the price of beef as soon as the grass cattle are ready for market. There is nothing to hinder the butchers in this city from making an agreement among themselves to put an agent in one of the Western markets for the purpose of buying cattle, having them shipped to their city, slaughtered, and sold at a profit, providing they can get the same transportation rate given to every one else. Whoever gets a lower rate becomes a monopolist, as he is at once given a great advantage over all those who are discriminated against.

"I do not know whether or not there is a combination on the part of the packers to put up the price of meats, as I have no means of knowing. I do know, however, that owing to the shortness of last year's corn crop the farmers were not able to feed cheap corn to their cattle so as to fatten them for market.

"There is plenty of grass cattle in the country. Corn is high and the farmers have been giving it to their cattle at double the ordinary price—namely: 50 to 60 cents a pushel. They sent South for cotton seed oil so as to help to tide over.

"The farmers have been getting 7 cents a pound for cattle on the hoof. The average steer going into Chicago dresses at fifty pounds to the hundred. It is easily estimated that if a calf costs 7 cents a pound on the hoof it will cost 14 cents when dressed.

"First-class beef dresses at about sixty pounds to the hundred," continued the secretary, "and the world's high water mark along this line is between sixty and seventy pounds, but the average is about fifty pounds. This will give some idea of what meat costs the butcher. The choice cuts are always run up in price and this is why we have to pay so much for our meats.

"While beef will be cheaper when the grass-fed cattle are in marketable shape, this cause will not operate to reduce the price of the products of the hog, as that animal cannot fatten on grass.

"These are some of the prime causes for the high prices for meats. There are others of equal importance. Wages are good. In fact, they are higher than ever before. This enables every one to eat whatever he fancies. This condition creates a heavy demand for food products, and all of them are unusually high.

"Another cause for the increase in the price of beef is the drain on the corn supply to fatten horses and mules for our foreign markets. There is a large demand for mules and horses for use in South Africa. These animals must be fattened the same as cattle in order to bring a satisfactory price. These are some of the natural causes which contribute to bringing about the existing condition, but it is impossible for me to say whether, in addition to this, the packers have arbitrarily added anything to the price, as that is a matter with which I have nothing to do.

"If every one secures the same transportation rate it is not possible for the packers entirely to control the selling prices. Of late years the Chicago packers have sent meat to nearly every city and town in the United States, and the old method of the butchers raising beef for the local markets has disappeared. The packer saves everything and uses every part of the cattle. Nothing is wasted.

"If there should be an investigation to determine whether there is a combination of the packers for the increasing of prices, those conducting it would have to inquire into all the factors which influence the price. If such a combination exists it probably would be found in lower transportation rates, but, of course, I would not presume to say the railroads discriminate in favor of the packers, for I have not means of knowing.

"One of the features of an investigation of this kind would be to get at the rate allowed by the transportation companies. From the field to the slaughter houses the rates are regular and uniform, so far as we have been able to learn. But what they are from the slaughter houses to the consumer is a question on which I have no information whatever.

"There is evidently a large supply of stock—steers, sheep and hogs—but not enough corn to fatten them. The supply of cattle at Chicago shows that fat cattle are scarce. In about two months there should be some relief, as grass fed cattle will begin to reach the market within that time. This depends on the locality, however. Cattle have been on grass since April 1. Those which were in good condition at that time will be ready for the market early in June."

WOMAN'S BONES

So Brittle They Broke If She Moved.

Philadelphia, April 22.—Mrs. Jennie W. McFarland, aged 56 years, died at her home on Sellers street, where she had lain partially incased in plaster of paris for weeks.

The disease of which Mrs. McFarland died changed her bones to a chalky substance and several times she fractured her legs and arms by slight movements of her body. Once while her leg was raised to afford her ease the bone snapped and at another time she broke her leg while resting in a sitting posture.

So brittle did her frame become that the doctors feared her neck might be dislocated and she was placed in bed in such a position that she could only move her head a few inches. She could not speak or take nutriment or medicine without some one being on hand to prevent her lower jaw dropping and breaking. Her lower jaw was braced by a support placed under her chin.

CORNER IN CABBAGE.

Chicago Man Controls All the Old Stock.

Chicago, April 22.—While public attention was centered on operations of the meat packers, poultry, butter and egg men, B. D. Anguish, a South Water street specialist, kept his eye on the cabbage situation. Now he practically controls the entire supply of old cabbage in the country.

Two weeks ago fancy retrimmed New York Danish cabbage was selling at $17 a ton. Today it is bringing $40, and it is expected it will sell for $50 next week, and possibly go as high as $60 a ton. Conditions favor the corner. In Chicago there is but one car of Wisconsin cabbage in storage, and none elsewhere. New York state Holland and Danish cabbage is the best produced, and the only supplies left are of that kind. California shipments have stopped. There is little coming from Texas, and the crop is scarce in Florida and high priced.

Supplies large enough to interfere with prices are not expected to come from any source until Mobile begins to ship, which will not be until May 10 or May 15. By that time Mr. Anguish will have his holdings entirely disposed of. He is known on South Water street as a cabbage and watermelon specialist, and is one of the heaviest dealers in these lines.

SMALL BOY

Works To Pay For His Funeral Expenses.

New York, April 22.—John Bassechal, 10 years old, was found by a policeman curled up and asleep in a corner of a Fordham car on Saturday night. At the station the boy said his father and mother were dead. He had been earning his own living the last month by selling newspapers. He earned enough to keep up the 10 cents a week payment on his own life insurance policy, which would pay his funeral expenses when he died.

When asked where he slept at night, the boy said the conductors on the Bronx cars were kind and some of them allowed him to ride the length of the road and return for one fare at night. He went to sleep as soon as he got on board, and did not wake up until the car reached the starting point.

Magistrate Mott turned the boy over to the Children's society.

TEXT OF DECISION

Ruling of Court on Uninitialed Ballots In Contest Case.

Burden Not On Voter To See That Initials Are There.

Court Admits Authority On Both Sides of That Point.

Probably no election contest decision ever given in the state of Minnesota was so interesting in all its bearings as the decision of Judges Ensign and Cant in the election contest of Truelsen against Hugo, handed down late Saturday afternoon. Aside from the closeness of this election, and the fact that on a former occasion these same men had another close finish and another contest, the importance of the main question involved, its newness in this state, and the effect of the decision upon future elections, made the case one of state-wide interest.

Broadly and roughly speaking, as the case appealed to the layman, the question presented was whether the spirit of the Australian election system, to give a secret ballot free from fraud, was to be preserved, or whether this was a minor consideration to that of opening the door to the destruction of a well-intended ballot by the carelessness or bias of the election judges.

The court has decided in favor of the latter branch of the question, and if this decision is upheld by the supreme court, and the effect is harmful to the Australian ballot system, the fault lies at the doors of the legislature for not more certainly safeguarding the spirit of the system.

Briefly, the findings of fact by the court are these: The canvass by the council showed 3654 votes for Hugo and 3615 for Truelsen, giving the election to Hugo by five votes. The recount, after setting aside 129 disputed ballots, gave Hugo 3591 and Truelsen 3602. Of the 129 disputed ballots the court throws out 41, counting 88. Of the 88 counted, 47 are given to Hugo and 41 to Truelsen, leaving the election to Hugo by 5 votes. Of the 41 ballots thrown out 31 were discarded, because they appear to be for both candidates at the same time; 1 Truelsen ballot is thrown out because the voter wrote his name upon it, supposedly for purposes of identification, and are counted for neither party, though the findings do not disclose the reason.

The main question, of course, was whether the ballots unsigned by the judges are to be counted or not. There were ten without any initials at all, and thirty-eight with only one judge's initials. These two classes are not separated by the judges, but all are counted. Thirty-one of these were for Hugo and seventeen for Truelsen, and had either of the two classes been thrown out Truelsen would have been elected. It is doubtful if enough of the other disputed ballots could have been thrown out to effect Truelsen's election, so these considerations are of minor importance. On the question involved, the court says:

"Aside from the bare fact that certain ballots found in the ballot boxes did not bear the initials of the election officers on the back thereof, there was no evidence whatever of wrongful practices, no evidence of fraud and no evidence of or claim that other than duly qualified electors cast their votes at this election.

"With respect to the uninitialed ballots, the question to be determined is, whether the provisions of our statute, which provides for initialing the ballots by the judges of election must be strictly complied with, in the sense that if uninitialed ballots are placed in the boxes, through the oversight of the judges or otherwise, they shall not be counted, and the voters casting them be thereby disfranchised, or, whether such provisions are intended merely as wholesome directions to the judges, to be followed by them at their peril, and which, if faithfully followed, would effectually prevent the casting of fraudulent votes, but which, if disobeyed, would not of itself disfranchise innocent voters. In other words, less carefully expressed, whether the provisions are to be considered as mandatory or as directory only.

"The contention of the contestant is that the absence of initials on the back of the ballots in itself condemns them beyond all redemption; that even as against conclusive proof that the ballots were genuine official ballots, furnished by the proper judges and cast by duly-qualified electors, they must still be rejected; that this is a field of inquiry upon which a sound policy will not permit us to enter; that courts should not hear proof or make findings upon such points, but should determine the validity of the ballots alone by their appearance as taken from the box, and that as taken from the box, uninitialed ballots cannot be counted.

"The contestee claims that the genuineness of the ballots here in question has been fully demonstrated, and further, that whether this be true or not, uninitialed ballots as such, and for that reason only, when found in the box, are not to be rejected. The one claims that the provisions are mandatory within the meaning hereinbefore given; the other, that they are directory only.

"The judicial decisions in this country upon this general question may be separated into two groups, first, those which insist upon a strict compliance with those provisions of the statute aimed at the prevention of fraud and the security and secrecy of the ballot, even though innocent voters may be disfranchised thereby; and second, those in which the uppermost thought is, so far as possible, to assure to every bona fide elector who has marked and cast his ballot in good faith, the right to have such ballot counted as cast.

"Minnesota is, and always has been, unmistakably of the latter group. Its decisions go as far as those of any state in announcing and adhering to that doctrine: 10 Minn., 107; 18 Minn., 46; 38 Minn., 222; 82 Minn., 328. These views have led our court to announce the rule, prevailing also elsewhere, that statutory provisions which apply to the elector himself and require the performance by him of some act as a necessary condition or accompaniment to the exercise of the elective franchise, and which, if violated, are so by reason of his fault, shall be considered mandatory, and that those provisions which apply only to the election officers over whom the elector has no control, and which are designed to effect an orderly conduct of the election, shall be construed as directory only unless the contrary is expressly, or by necessary implication, declared by statute. This is the decisive test in all cases.

"Applying this rule to our statute, the question is, whether there is any provision thereof which fairly and clearly makes it the duty of the voter to see that the initials of the judges are upon the back of the ballot which he casts, or whether such duty in reference thereto are imposed upon only the judges whose duty it is to initial the ballots.

"Section 94 of the general statutes provides that two judges of election shall place their initials on all the ballots used at the pending election. Section 95 provides that no ballot without the initials of two judges of election thereon shall be placed in the box. The ballots are placed in the box by one of the election judges to whom they are handed after being marked by the voters.

"By sectoin 104 it is the duty of judges to hand to the voters such ballots only as have the initials of the judges thereon. The only other provision to which our attention has been called, having a bearing on the question, is the sixth sub-division of section 105, as follows: 'When an elector has prepared his ballot he shall so fold it, concealing the face thereof, and all marks thereon, as to expose only the endorsement and the facsimile signature and initials of the judges on the back thereof.'

"In our opinion this incidental reference to the initials of the judges, assuming as it does that they have been placed on the ballot as required by law, falls far short of making it the duty of voters, at the hazard of losing their votes, to supervise the judges in the performance of their duty and see in every instance that they do what the law has in plain terms, under penalty, said they shall do, viz., place their initials on every ballot handed to electors for the purpose of voting.

"If it had been the design of the legislature to place this burden upon the individual voter, the employment of language which would clearly so indicate would have been a comparatively easy task, but a most careful reading of our statutes in their bearing upon this question leaves the impression unmistakably upon the mind that the duty of marking and folding the ballot which is given him devolves upon the voter; but that he is obliged to examine the ballot to see if it has been properly resigned, or has upon it the proper names, or has been printed as required by law, or has been properly initialed by the judges, there is nothing whatever to suggest. The statute devolves these duties upon the officers and printers, not upon the voters.

"Although the provisions in question be held as applicable to the judges only and not to the voters, they might still be mandatory if the statute expressly or by necessary implication so declared. The expression most relied upon as having the effect is, that no ballot without the initials of two judges of election on the back thereof shall be placed in the box. In our view this is wholly controlled by the language of sections 129 and 133, hereinafter referred to, and other provisions of the election law considered in connection therewith. But treating it independently of those sections, we are of the opinion that such language is to be held as a direction to the judges only. They could refuse to receive a ballot not properly initialed from any voter. This rule if followed would give the voter an opportunity to call for a ballot properly initialed, or, possibly, to have the judges initial the ballot then presented; but if the judges fail, or wilfully neglect to initial a ballot, and then fail or decline to discover the infirmity so as to give the voter, often uninformed, the opportunity of having it corrected, the latter is not for that reason to be disfranchised. Such is our conclusion from the general attitude taken by our court upon similar questions. There is direct authority both for and against this view.

"Any other view would result in disfranchising the voter through no fault of his own but merely because of the inadvertence of the judges of election or their wilful design. This is not to be permitted. It is not in accordance with the theory of our election law nor in harmony with the decisions of our court.

"We therefore conclude that the language of our statutes which provide for initialing the ballots is directory only and does not by any fair or correct construction impose a duty upon the individual voter in reference thereto.

"In all schemes of legislation designed to provide for the exercise of the elective franchise the lawmakers, of necessity, balance in their minds the possibility of disfranchising large numbers of honest voters if stringent provisions are adopted, with the possibility of fraud and illegal voting if the more liberal provisions are adopted which are designed more especially to effectuate the intention of honest voters regardless of technical violations of the law.

"In some states one view has been adopted and in some the other, with the resulting decisions along the same lines of cleavage to which reference has already been made. In many states it is specifically provided that uninitialed ballots shall not be placed in the box, and if placed therein, shall not be counted. Though this is easily said, our law makers refrained entirely from using the expression, except in a different connection hereinafter mentioned. Our statutes have gone further than perhaps those of any other state in the express provisions to be found therein allowing a freedom of choice in the marks so to be employed and designed to insure the counting of all ballots, disregarding technical errors, soiling or defacing, where the intent of the voter can be determined, and requiring a substantial compliance only with the provisions of the law.

"But it is Section 129 and the following sections which show most clearly that the legislature did not intend to condemn uninitialed ballots for that reason only. In that section is not employed the most felicitous langage for covering the whole ground in the most satisfactory manner. It is apparent that some things are left unsaid and that conditions may be suggested which that section does not, in terms, fully cover, but it does clearly appear that it is only when there is an excess of ballots in the box that uninitialed ballots can be rejected. The language is, that the uninitialed ballots "shall be preserved and laid to one side and not counted if the total number still be in excess of the proper number as shown by the poll lists." The undoubted meaning is, that it is only in the event that the total number of ballots is in excess of the proper number as shown by the poll lists, that such ballots are not to be counted, and the construction no doubt would be, that only to the extent of such excess could such ballots be rejected. Both Sections 129 and 133 assume that, with the single exception of an excess of ballots, those which are uninitialed shall be counted. There is no express provision against it anywhere. Our statutes recognize that mistakes of various kinds made in good faith will occur and that uninitialed ballots will from time to time be deposited in the box, and their many liberal provisions, the absence of the express prohibitions against counting uninitialed ballots, the provisions peculiar to this state of Sections 129, et seq., all harmonize with the theory, and with no other, that, whether right or wrong, the legislature of this state had in mind that the danger of fraudulent voting was less to be feared and avoided than the danger through over-technical rules disfranchising honest voters, and that, among other things, uninitialed ballots, not otherwise tainted, found in the proper box, and where there was on excess, should be counted. The careful and reasonable provision that in the event of there being an excess of ballots those which are uninitialed shall not be counted, is equivalent to an express provision that in all other cases, and with that single exception, they shall be counted as other ballots are.

"Upon this branch of the case we have consulted at length authorities from other states, but the problem at all times has been, in large measure, to discover by a careful analysis of our own decisions and of our own statutes what the rule with us must be."

Your Decision This Day Is All-Important.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Guarantees a Freedom From Disease and Sickness.

Indifference and Carelessness Lead to Physical Shipwreck and the Grave.

The weak, ailing, sick, and diseased have now more than ever before under their control their physical condition. They are free agents, and almost wholly responsible for their future. When the brain is not affected, and the mind can discern between right and wrong, a duty to themselves, their friends, and country loudly demands a marked decision—prompt and determined action when health is impaired and life is in danger.

It is the part of wisdom that true decision be made today; tomorrow may be too late. In thousands of cases the checking and banishment of disease depends upon instant action; an hour lost frequently means the snuffing out of some precious life.

Few people in our country are without some knowledge of the wondrous, life-giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that guarantees release from the diseases common to life.

What will your decision be today, poor sufferer? Will you give Paine's Celery Compound the fair and honest testing that others are giving it, and its certain reward of health, strength, vigor, or happiness, or will you remain indifferent and careless, content to pass your few days or weeks in misery, agony, and wretchedness until the dark grave claims you as its victim?

It is almost needless to enumerate the blessed results that flow from Paine's Celery Compound, and when used promptly in springtime, as you and your friends have a knowledge of them. Of this you may be assured; the seeds of disease are banished, the system is fortified, the blood is enriched and pure, the nerves braced, digestion regulated, headaches, sideaches and backaches forever dispelled, and sweet restful sleep takes the place of insomnia.

ON VIADUCT

Street Railway Is Tearing Up Tracks To Relay There.

The street railway company has put in a portable switch on the interstate line at Thirteenth avenue west and a single track will be used from that point to the south end of the Garfield avenue viaduct. The company will begin immediately to tear up the other track on West Michigan street between Thirteenth avenue west and Garfield avenue and the rails will be used to complete the track over the viaduct for the northbound cars.

The situation regarding the new viaduct is somewhat peculiar. The Northern Pacific Railway company, which has been obstructing the partial use of the viaduct by refusal to remove its tracks at the crossing at the lower end of the viaduct, will not permit the use of the viaduct at all until it is finished, and this, the company holds, means util such time as the paving is completed. The paving cannot be done until the street railway tracks have been put down and the street railway company has been unable to get new rails. The rails on West Michigan street now being taken up for use on the bridge are said to be in good condition, though not so heavy as the new rails put down on West Superior street last summer and fall. The single track will cause some delay in the interstate traffic, but as the switches on West Michigan street and on Garfield avenue are practically in sight of each other, the delays will not be so annoying as they might be in case the cars were to meet at the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan street.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROSE COGHLAN.

Rose Coghlan will appear in "Forget Me Not" at the Lyceum Thursday. Miss Coghlan has been presenting this play for some years and has achieved great success in it. The role of Stephanie enables Miss Coghlan to prove that her power of dramatic expression is as great as her purely comedy gifts, and as a comedienne, since the retirement of Miss Ada Rehan, her peer has not been found. This season's performance of "Forget Me Not" establishes the fact that Miss Coghlan in an emotional role is one of the most accomplished actresses on the American stage. With her pale flowing cashmere hemmed with black fox, her charming stage presence, her great height and her powerful voice, she succeeds in rousing her audiences to a pitch of enthusiasm which is ascribed only to her magnificent portrayal of a heartless and desperate woman.

RURAL DELIVERY.

New System Around Duluth In Effect Next Year.

A system of delivering mail in the country adjacent to Duluth will go into effect July 1, 1903. Postmaster Fisher is sending out letters to farmers of the vicinity to find out how many will take advantage of the system. Next September the postmaster will advertise for bids for carrying the mail. The new arrangement does not call for collection of mail, but a carrier cannot refuse to take a letter if it is handed to him. It is possible that some arrangement will be made to collect the mail. To get the benefit of rural delivery the householder will have to erect a mail box in front of his premises at such a height that the carrier will be able to deposit the mail without leaving his horse or vehicle.

There are but two "star" routes from this postoffice. One goes to Canosia, and the other to Nea, by way of Arnold.

It fills the arteries with rich red blood, makes new flesh, makes sick people well. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents. Ask your druggist.

COUNCIL REFUSES

Declines To Reconsider the Highland Canal Company Franchise.

Six Aldermen Opposed the Motion and Thus Defeated It.

Report of Health Board On the Emergency Hospital.

The council last night:

Refused to reconsider Highland Canal company franchise.

Made offer of $140,000 for West Duluth water plant.

Expressed the sympathy of Duluth for the Boer cause.

Invited Oom Paul Kruger to visit Duluth very soon.

Passed ordinance extending cement walk district.

Received emergency hospital investigation report.

Made Dr. W. A. Coventry assistant health officer.

Confirmed the Jenswold street subway contract.

Considered boats offered for Park Point ferry.

Received street-cleaning offer from Kelley-How company.

Order construction of long list of new sidewalks.

Ordered bunch lights installed on Duluth heights.

Ordered estimates for installing "public conveniences."

Considered appropriation for Duluth Heights sewers.

Elected A. H. McDonald member of the health board.

The new council has evidently acquired a taste for business of magnitude. Numerous matters of great general importance were discussed last evening.

Alderman Barnes, representing the administration on the floor, moved a reconsideration of the Highland Canal and Power company's franchise ordinance.

Instantly half a dozen aldermen demanded reasons, and Mr. Barnes informed them that the mayor had discovered that they had given away a commercial lighting privilege without any special remuneration to the city, and suggested a provision in the franchise for a gross earnings tax on all commercial lighting business.

Chairman McEwen, of the committee on ordinances and resolutions, in a rather warm reply said that the mayor had an abundant opportunity to offer such a suggestion before the ordinance committee, but did not avail himself of the opportunity and the franchise discussion should not be reopened.

Other aldermen opposed the earnings idea on the ground that they did not believe the city has the right to collect a gross earnings tax, and that a financial benefit received from the conversial lighting privilege of the Highland company would have a tendency to discourage municipal ownership.

Aldermen Cullum, Kerr, Neff, Schaffer, Tessman and Haven voted against reconsideration. It takes a three-fourths vote to reconsider and this received but ten.

Friends of the administration warned the opposition that it meant a veto of the entire franchise and the opposition answered back that the franchise would be passed over the veto.

Alderman Barnes endeavored to have the meeting adjourn till tonight, but failed.

The purchase of the West Duluth water plant was brought up on a resolution presented by Alderman Neff offering $140,000 for the system, less $15,000 which the Duluth Light and Water company owes the city.

This would practically mean a cash outlay of $125,000 by the city. The plant can be duplicated for $130,000 to $135,000.

Some opposition developed last evening because the proposed purchase price of $140,000 was $5000 more than the maximum cost of duplication.

However, the city is under contract to pay $12,250 annually for nineteen years to the West Duluth company for hydrant rentals, and several of the aldermen expressed the opinion that an excess of $5000 on the purchase price would be highly commendable if the nineteen-year contract would be wiped out.

At the request of several of the aldermen, the action on the resolution presented by Mr. Neff was postponed for one week.

Then the aldermen proceeded to invite Paul Kruger to Duluth, declaring the sympathy of the city for himself and his people.

This resolution was offered by Alderman McEwen and is a gem of Boer literature. Every alderman voted for it with more or less enthusiasm. The resolution is as follows:

"Whereas, the heroic efforts and great sacrifices made by the Boers in South Africa for the protection and preservation of their homes and country challenge our admiration and enlist our sympathies;

"Whereas, the valor and patriotism displayed by the Boers in mortal combat with one of the greatest powers of the earth entitles them to be ranked as worthy peers of Leonidas, the renowned Greek; Kosciusko, the brave Pole; Kossuth, the daring Hungarian leader of liberty and self-government, and the nameless heroes that offered up their lives on the altar of human rights;

"Whereas, Paul Kruger, a representative of the Boers, and recognized by them as one of the fathers of their South African republic, may be induced to visit the United States, and as a token of sympathy that the people of Duluth feel for him and his people; therefore be it

"Resolved by the common council of the city of Duluth, that invitation be and hereby is extended to Paul Kruger to visit Duluth and be its guest at a date as early as practicable, and we hereby tender him the freedom of our city on the occasion of his visit."

Alderman Moore's ordinance extending the cement sidewalk limits in the East End was passed.

The newly-annexed territory in which wooden walks are prohibited is as follows: Superior street between Twenty-third and Tewtny-fourth avenues east; East First street between Twenty-first and Twenty-fifth avenues; East Second street between Tenth and Twenty-first avenues; East Third street between Tenth and Sixteenth avenues; London road between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues; Tenth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues East from London road to Third street.

The board of health made a long report to the council giving the result of its recent investigation of the emergency hospital as follows:

To the Honorable T. W. Hugo, Mayor, and to the Honorable Common Council of the City of Duluth:

Gentlemen: So much complaint has been recently made, and publicity given to the same, that the board of health considered it advisable to thoroughly investigate the condition and management of the detention hospital. In that investigation the health board gave ample opportunity for all former patients to be heard, and personally visited the hospital. This investigation covered from the first day of January, 1902, down to and including the 15th day of April, 1902. The charges investigated were as follows:

First—Insufficient supply of provisions and preparation of food.

Second—Cleanliness.

Third—Care of patients.

Fourth—Insufficient supply of medicine.

Fifth—General supplies and no telephone service.

Sixth—That the help employed was incompetent.

Upon these charges your health board finds:

First—That ample food supplies were ordered and delivered at the emergency hospital, as is shown by the vouchers in the office of the health department, and as is further confirmed by the check list furnished by the visiting physician; that from the 10th day of March to the 1st day of April much of these supplies was poorly cooked; that the food furnished to the women, as they were assisting in the kitchen, was much bettter than that furnished to the men.

Second.—That during the month of March the hospital was far from clean; that the rules of the institution had been disregarded; that the bed linen was not properly washed; that some of the patients had been admitted in an unclean condition, and had not been directed to clean themselves; that some portions of the hospital, the men's ward in particular, had become infested with vermin; that the women's ward was clean. That this state of uncleanliness was caused largely through the incompetency of the head nurse, but partly through the carelessness of the patients themselves, and the inadequancy of the water supply.

Third.—That in visiting the hospital the attending physician, Dr. Taylor, gave all necessary medical attention to the patients that was necessary or required by the board of health.

Fourth.—That generally there were ample medical supplies at the hospital, the only exception being that on two occasions the mouth wash requested by the patients was not in stock; that Dr. Taylor erred in not reporting the same to the health commissioner, in order that Dr. Robinson might supply the same.

Fifth.—That the general supplies were ample; the lack of kerosene for one night being due to the patients using kerosene to light fires, against the orders of the board of health; that the insufficiency of telephone service was unavoidable, and due to the fire at the central station of the Zenith Telephone company.

Sixth.—That the housekeeper in charge of the hospital was incompetent; that she was employed on Jan. 22, 1902; that up to March 1 she fulfilled her duties satisfactorily to the health commissioner and the patients, but that after March 1 she did not attend to her duties; that Dr. Taylor failed to report this condition to his superior, Dr. Robinson, although the regulations required him so to do, until the 23rd day of March, and not until this incompetency and condition of the hospital had been called to his attention by his superior, when he admitted that matters were not as they should be at the hospital; that the health commissioner at once, through an inspector, procured another housekeeper, and notified the former housekeeper that her services would not be required after April 1, and that the health commissioner, together with his assistants, as soon as possible, proceeded to clean thoroughly the hospital, but that the health commissioner erred in not requiring more detailed reports from his assistant and his inspectors as to the conditions of the hospital, and in not visiting the hospital during the month of March, himself.

That there is no evidence but that the hospital was in good condition as to cleanliness prior to the 1st of March, 1902, and after the 7th of April, 1902.

That, in explanation and extenuation, it might be said that the hospital has been managed without complaint since the organization of the board, and according to the rules and regulations, except the month of March, 1902, though the building is poorly equipped, and often overcrowded, and is badly situated. We again urge the necessity of an additional emergency hospital, situated nearer the city, and as outlined in the report of our health commissioner.

As a sequel to the report Health Commissioner Robinson sent in the appointment of Dr. W. A. Coventry as physician at the emergency hospital and the council confirmed the appointment without making any inquiries.

Alderman Barnes, who is constantly on the alert for the proposed Jenswold street subway improvement, secured the adoption of a resolution authorizing the department of public works to sell timber in the present Jenswold street viaduct system and devote the proceeds to the permanent improvement fund.

The improvement is not yet quite assured though the outlook is better than it has been at any stage. The subway is designed to lessen the danger of street car traffic on West Duluth and at the same time to furnish more rapid transit.

It seemed like former times to hear a hot discussion on the Park Point ferry. The finance committee reported in favor of giving the contract to Capt. Walter Lloyd of the tug Carrington at $32.50 per day. The Carrington has a good fire pump and the aldermen concluded she would be available in case of a fire along the harbor front.

However, the bids of Smith and Ackley and Capt. M. J. Ryan were lower, Capt. Akley offered to put fire pumps on the Sarah Smith and Capt. Ryan, not to be outdone offered to put fire pumps on the Estelle.

Matters became so mixed that it was referred back to the board of public works for further investigation.

The Kelley-How company made the city an offer for keeping the street free from paper. This concern offers to install 20 waste paper boxes at various points in the down-town business district for the privilege of exclusive advertising space on these boxes, the city having the right to purchase the receptacles after three months' for $14 per box.

The offer was referred to Aldermen Barnes, Tessman and More.

A resolution by Alderman Haven directed all boards and the Zenith Telephone company, leaving streets and sidewalks in bad condition after making improvements, to properly repair them within thirty days. It was adopted.

Mayor Hugo sent in a veto to the council's resolution appropriating $100 from the police fund for a poundmaster and park police at Woodland. The mayor's objection was not on the poundmaster idea, but because the council had appropriated the money from the wrong fund. The veto was sustained.

The council ordered new sidewalks built as follows:

A 6-foot walk on the west side of Fifth avenue west from Second street to the alley between Second and Third streets.

A 10-foot walk on the east side of Second avenue west from the alley between First and Second streets to Second street.

A 6-foot walk on the west side of Second avenue west from Fourth street to the alley between Fourth and Fifth streets.

A 6-foot walk on the east side of Second avenue west from Fourth street to the alley between Fourth and Fifth street.

An 8-foot walk on the west side of Second avenue west from Second street southwardly 5 feet;

An 8-foot walk on the west side of Second avenue west from First street northwardly 100 feet.

A ten-foot walk on the east side of Third avenue west from the alley between First and Second streets to Second street.

A six-foot walk on the east side of Third avenue west from Mesaba avenue to Fifth street.

A six-foot walk on the west side of Third avenue west from Fourth street to Mesaba avenue.

A ten-foot walk on the west side of Fourth avenue west from First street to the alley between First and Second streets.

A six-foot sidewalk on the west side of Seventh avenue west from First street southwardly fifty feet.

An eight-foot walk on the east side of Garfield avenue from the avenue to a point 135 feet north of Elm avenue; from a point 160 feet north of Elm avenue to a point 150 feet north of Nelson avenue; from Birch avenue to the north line of lot 6, government lot 2, Duluth proper, Second division.

An eight-foot walk on the west side of Garfield avenue from the avenue to a point 300 feet north of Maple avenue; from Elm avenue to a point 60 feet north therefrom; from a point 110 feet north of Elm avenue to a point 295 feet north of Nelson avenue, and from Birch avenue to Ash avenue.

A resolution by Alderman Moore appropriating $1000 from the permanent improvement fund for resurfacing portions of London road, went over one week under the rules for appropriation of money.

At the request of Alderman McEwen, the Commercial Light and Power company was ordered to install the branches of electric lights on Duluth Heights, assigned to that portion of the city several months ago.

Alderman Kern's resolution calling on the board of public works to report locations and estimated cost of "public conveniences," similar to those in Paris, was adopted.

A resolution presented by Alderman Schaffer and adopted called on the board of health to report the number of cases of glanders and the advisability of opening the drinking fountains at an early date.

Alderman McEwen presented a resolution of great interest to Duluth Heights people. The sewer system of open ditches on the "heights" has been in a disabled condition for years. Mr. McEwen asks an appropriation of $500 to clear out these ditches and drain the sewerage into Brewery and Buckingham creeks. Under the rule appropriating money the resolution could not be acted on last night.

A. H. Donald is now a qualified member of the board of health. He was recently "nominated" by the mayor and "elected" by the council last night. He is a west Duluth and New Duluth grocer. Six Democrats voted against him for party reasons.

A petition was received for a Fifth street depot on the Seventh avenue west incline. It was referred to Aldermen Cullum, Schaffer and Trevillion.

The following poundmasters were appointed by the mayor: First district, Samuel Wenberg; Second district, Ignatius Galoz; Third district, A. A. Daniels; Fourth district, Aaron Olson; Fifth district, David Doyle.

PLANS FOR THE YEAR

Thomas Lowry Comments On West Third Street Extension.

To Rebuild East and West Fourth and Woodland Lines.

No More Double Truck Cars, Company Having Equipment Enough.

Thomas Lowry said yesterday afternoon before returning to Minneapolis that he was willing to make any changes in the route of the West Third street extension of the street railway system that was in reason.

"Regarding the West Third street extension, the court has ordered that the line shall be built, and we shall go ahead with its construction," said Mr. Lowry. "We are anxious to comply as nearly as we can with public sentiment in the matter. Just now public sentiment seems to be somewhat divided. They told me they were going to have a meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club in a few days, and that they would bring it up at this meeting and try to ascertain what public sentiment seemed to point to.

"I told some of the gentlemen interested in the matter, with whom I talked today, that when they were agreed as to what they wanted, we would be glad to hear from them. We shall try to give them what they want, and at any rate will be glad to do anything within reason.

"We shall also rebuild the Woodland and East and West Fourth street lines the coming summer. At least, we shall do all that is necessary to rebuild them. There will be quite a little work done in Superior in order to widen the lines there and bring them up to standard.

"No plans have been made for adding any more large cars as yet. The shops are full of cars, and we seem to have more equipment here just now than is absolutely required by the traffic. Of course we expect business to continue developing here very fast, now that good times have come again, and Duluth is prospering so well, and we stand ready to add to or improve our equipment as fast as traffic will warrant."

AFTER THE SHERIFF.

Superior Citizens Committee To Collect Overcharges.

Interest is being manifested in the next meeting of the Douglas county board of supervisors that will be held in West Superior tomorrow on account of matters that are to be brought to the attention of the board by Attorney T. L. McIntosh, of the citizens' committee, and because of the fight in prospect over the appointment of certain county officers by the county board.

Mr. McIntosh will make a formal demand that an accounting be arranged with Sheriff Sommer, of Douglas county. If the board refuses to consider the request the matter will be taken into court and the sheriff will be asked to refund fees that are alleged to have been illegally collected since he assumed the duties of the office. The amount that the sheriff is said to owe the county is estimated between $10,000 and $15,000.

If you contemplate a trip to California, consult the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway.

Every Tuesday during the season a high-class Pullman tourist sleeping car will leave St. Paul and Minneapolis, running through to Los Angeles without change—arriving Los Angeles Saturday morning, four days.

The line is via the celebrated C., M. & St. P., "Hedrick Route," to Kansas City, thence over the A. T. & S. F. railway, making the most popular and interesting route to the South Pacific Coast.

This service includes the "personally conducted" feature west of Missouri River—a special conductor accompanies each car, whose duty it is to carefully look after the wants of each individual passenger.

Write for the cheapest rates and for copy of the "Sunshine" folder, containing full particulars of this famous route.

HOLDS A LEADING PLACE

St. Paul Review: The Duluth Herald modestly called attention last week to the fact that it had started on the twentieth year of its existence. The Review heartily extends congratulations to the management that it has weathered the storms which wrecked so many similar crafts and now holds beyond a peradventure a leading place among the newspapers of the Northwest.

The Pay of the Navy Chaplains.

Again the chaplains of the navy are agitating the question of more pay, although it is not understood that they ask for any shorter hours. Several religious bodies have passed resolutions advocating greater pay and a better uniform for the chaplains and a greater impetus is thus given to the movement. It is very doubtful if they will accomplish what they desire. Secretary Long was opposed to an increase in salary, as he claims they were receiving all they could reasonably expect, and that they are far better paid than outside ministers of religion. The uniform matter was supposed to have been settled long ago as quite a change had been ordered by Secretary Long. Chaplains now wear the service coat (blouse) cap and regulation trousers of the commissioned officer, but without any gold lace, black mohair braid being substituted. In former times the chaplain wore a single-breasted black frock coat with standing collar, and a soft felt hat, black of course. It is quite true that chaplains receive good pay compararively speaking, but for that matter so does every other naval officer. When a chaplain enters the navy he is paid at sea $2500 per year, and five years afterward he is paid $2800. He gets no further increase no matter if his term of service should be thirty-five years. Other officers receive on shore allowance for quarters according to rank. The chaplain, although a commissioned officer with rank as high as a post chaplain, gets no allowance beyond the pay as stated. It is possible that some things may need adjusting between salaries for army and navy chaplains, but as a whole the naval parsons are well paid and ought to save a large part of their salaries.

No Virtue In the Hot Springs.

The thousands of people who believe they have been cured, or at least greatly benefited by the waters of Arkansas w... be shocked to learn that the chief chemist of the department of agriculture has decided that there is more action than truth in the claims of wonderful curative properties. Dr. Willy, the chemist, made an analysis of the waters at the request of the treasury department which has charge of the reservation on which the springs are located. He says: "I secured samples from about thirty-nine springs and found that I ha... almost an equal number of different kinds of water, the springs varying greatly in temperature, amount of gas, and the kind and quantity of minerals they contained. While there is no doubt that people are frequently benefited by visiting the springs, I ascribe the improvement to the diet and change in the method of living rather than to any curative properties claimed for the waters or baths. I found nothing in the mineral waters that could assist in the cure of rheumatism, for instance, but people suffering from this trouble are usually benefited by a stay at the Hot Springs. In my opinion their improvement is brought about by the careful diet to which they are restricted, the absence from business and the quiet and mental rest they secure. Of course, the application of the waters, and the massage treatment are both good. Some of the waters have a pleasant effect on the movement of the intestines and to this extent are beneficial, but so far as the hot baths go I think hot water from the Potomac, or any other river, would be just as helpful as the hot springs of Arkansas." It makes but little difference what an analysis of the springs shows, if a person can be benefited by an application either from imagination or virtue in the goods, the result sought for has been accomplished, and that is all that is wanted.

SHOCKING CRUELTIES.

Gen. Jacob H. Smith is to be tried by court-martial for promulgating orders to "kill, burn and destroy" natives of the Philippine islands and with countenancing various atrocities. This follows the recent suspension from duty of Gen. Smith. Maj. Edward E. Glenn and Capt. James Ryan, under orders from the secretary of war, pending an investigation of the serious charges made against the conduct of these officers. The recent acquittal of Maj. Waller was largely based upon the claim that the wanton killing of Filipinos under his directions was done in accordance with orders received by him from Gen. Smith. The testimony before the senate committee has shown that these are not the only officers who have at least countenanced the barbaric treatment of natives and made no effort to stop the tortures to which the poor wretches were subjected. The charge of cruelties and barbarities practiced by some of our officers and soldiers upon Filipinos was persistently denied and was not long ago specifically, positively and officially denied by Secretary Root, who scored Gen. Miles because that gallant officer mentioned the unusual severity with which the war was being conducted and had the temerity to propose a plan which, he felt very confident, would end the war without further bloodshed.

But at last the fact that there is considerable truth in the charges can no longer be concealed, and the force of public opinion has compelled the administration to order a searching investigation. The official eyes were opened in consequence of the recent trial of Maj. Waller, who was acquitted on his trial for the barbarous murder of Filipinos, he having testified that he acted according to orders from his superior officer. Brig. Gen. Smith, who, according to Waller, gave him instructions for his action in Samar in these words: "I wish you to kill and burn. The more you kill the more you will please me. The interior of Samar must be made a howling dilderness. Kill every native over 10 years old." This is one specimen of our work of civilizing and benevolently assimilating the Filipinos. It is thus, through such officers as Smith and Funston, that, to quote Gen. MacArthur, "inspiration and hope go with the flag."

The barbaric "water cure" is used to civilize and inspire hope and inspiration. This species of torture consists of filling a "nigger" forcibly with water, he being tied hand and foot, and his mouth pried and held open by a bayonet, while a faucet or syringe is injected therein, and the water turned into him until he overflows; then, sometimes, a cord is drawn around his body and the water expelled, and the process, if necessary, repeated. Thus the civilizing officers have fun with the "niggers." Another man, an officer and a gentleman, states that this "cure" "appears to be generally applied," especially by the Macabebes. George Kennan, the celebrated Siberian explorer, who is cordially in sympathy with the government's general policy in the Philippines, published an article about a year ago in the Outlook, in which he made similar charges, and yet Secretary Root professed to be astonished to hear of such a thing. W. H. Clark, a returned soldier, published weeks ago a statement in the Kansas City Journal, in which he said: "The water cure has been administered to thousands of natives in the Philippines, at least in Panay. * * * We did not do it in the spirit of malevolence * * * but the water cure is the quickest remedy for non-communicativeness and mendacity which has yet been discovered in the Philippines. It is probably a relic of the Spanish inquisition." He added that the treatment usually made the victims sick, "and some of them never recover. I have seen kerosene and cocoanut oil used instead of water, but the effect is the same." And as an illustration of how war with an inferior people brutalizes the superior soldiers, he said that "this is the only way to get along with them." Before the senate committee yesterday, a lieutenant testified that he had seen the "water cure" applied to numerous natives and "in the cases of several old men it caused their teeth to fall out."

Rumors of these cruelties have been thick for two years past, and yet the administration has steadily denied them. Now when the facts have been sworn to by responsible soldiers and others and concealment is no longer possible, an investigation is ordered with a view of lessening public indignation.

"PASSING OF DEPEW."

The passing of the great American after-dinner speaker is the subject of a discourse by the Philadelphia Record, which holds that Chauncey M. Depew "never was an orator, but he was a second-hand humorist." The Record says Depew won his reputation by studiously cultivating all the funny stories he came across. "His memory was excellent and his nerve was great." It mattered not how antique was the story, if he could work it over and use it. He made a reputation as the dispenser of funny tales and was in frequent demand. Depew owed much to the newspaper reporters, whom he cultivated carefully. He gave the desirous newspaper man "copy." The reporter reciprocated and Depew was everywhere quoted.

It is a well-known fact that whenever Depew was taken seriously and given an opportunity to display real oratory he was invariably dreary, stale and unprofitable. He was not big enough for the occasion and could not rise to it. Anyone who read the set speaches he has delivered in the senate, the recent one on the ship subsidy bill, for instance, must have been surprised by its commonplace character and the lack of eloquent passages. At the Platt dinner in New York a few weeks ago, where even the senor senator shone resplendently. Depew made a failure. He tried some jokes and they fell flat. Then he tried to be serious and only succeeded in being tiresome. The Record says his speech was "solemn, laughless and depressing, as cheerless as a volume of trade statistics." The fact is, Depew has always been overrated. In the nature of things he has had an excessive publicity that has wearied his public. His wit aside, he was a very common sort speaker, and he has had his day.

CHILE'S CONDITION.

The future of Chile from a financial standpoint does not present a very bright outlook, a somewhat startling revelation, as Chile has always been regarded a very prosperous country. Chile is short of funds, and not long ago attempted to secure a loan in London, but failed. The market value of Chile's securities has declined gradually for one reason and another, and loans growing harder for her to get. Her 4½ per cent bonds of 1886 fell from 87 in December, 1900, to 79 in December, 1901, and her 5 per cent bonds, in the same space of time, fell from 92 to 87. The financial plight Chile is actually in may be perceived, however, from a few recent facts of record. Thus, in January of this year, to raise funds, the Chilean congress voted to impose an additional duty of 10 per cent on all imports. In February indefinite delay was ordered in making some official payments. In March an increase of export duties on nitrates was considered, and so was a further issue of paper money. True, on March 20 the officially inspired announcement was made that negotiations for a loan had been abandoned as unnecessary. But at the same time, in the same utterance, it was admitted that the money was needed and was to be raised, in lieu of a loan, by sales of public property.

There is a strong prospect that the nitrate beds of Chile will give out in a few years, and with that source of revenue exhausted a large percentage of her revenue will cease. The blame for Chile's financial plight is twofold. Some of it is to be laid upon government officials who have squandered funds. El Chileno recently exposed the fact that the ministry of public instruction had, since 1885, purchased lands to the value of $432,000, which had never been used, but were still occupied by private parties. This, it was said, was only one example of what had been widely done in various departments. As a result of the exposure, the president is now conducting an investigation into the matter. Still more blame is to be laid upon the state of "armed peace," for which Chile is responsible. For years her restless and belligerent disposition has entailed upon herself and her neighbors the necessity of maintaining costly armies and navies, and even now, in her present straits, she is considering the possibility of making further additions to her fleet. This, of course, cannot be done with her limited resources. Chile is all right in her place, and should keep there, and she will come out all right in the end.

Canadians who are clamorous for preferential tariff in favor of the British colonies see their chance in England's "bread tax." The Montreal Star points out that in these corn and flour duties there is a "great opportunity for colonian statesmen," for "the imperial budget has been framed upon a war basis, and there are excellent prospects of an early peace. By the time the colonial conference meets in London the British government may be in a position to sacrifice part of the revenue anticipated from the corn and flour duties by the admission of colonial corn and flour free." If this be done, the Canadian wheat growers will have a great advantage over their American brethren.

Young men who want to enter any orthodox ministry find Adam and Eve even more dangerous than Jonah and the whale. Two candidates for license to preach have been hung on the tenter-hooks of apprehension by the presbytery of Elizabeth, N. J., because they declared that in their belief Adam and Eve were mere myths, that evolution was the truth, and that while they still held to the descent of the human race from one pair, that pair began in a very low civilization. This seems to knock out the fall of man and any number of old doctrines derived from the Adam and Eve narrative, literally received.

The federal taxes on stock transfers are to fall on July 1; nevertheless the commissioner of internal revenue is to do all that he can to enforce his recent ruling that securities put up for collateral on loans of money are subject to tax as if sold outright. He has referred his ruling to the attorney general and expresses confidence that it will be sustained. If it is, the collection of the tax back to July 1 of last year will be undertaken. The amount involved must be very large, and Wall street is especially disturbed about it.

The Washington Star explains that the San Francisco transport scandals arose out of "the appointment of unfit men in the service, whose incapacities or worse cost the government heavily." When the war broke out there was a tremendous rush of "influence" to the White House and the war department, and most appointments were made not for fitness, but on account of political "pulls," and these scandals, exposing the squandering of millions, are a part of the results.

Dr. Max Grossman said in public in New York the other day: "Indigestion has been responsible for more than one lie, and its cure has often been followed by a return to truthfulness. A tendency to lie can sometimes be cured by medicine." The Boston Globe recalls that one stern New England remedy used to be to wash the mendacious mouth out with soapsuds.

Not all of the numerous trust promotions which continue to appear are meeting with success. The proposed $25,000,000 potteries combination has fallen through, and it is now said that the $200,000,000 combination of independent steel and iron concerns, which was to have been incorporated last week, will not materialize.

"If it is heresy to view the story of Adam and Eve as being allegorical, then there are plenty of heretics preaching sermons in Presbyterian pulpits today," says the president of Union Theological seminary. The president of Union may be tried himself, if he is not more careful.

"The easiest, simplest and surest way to cheapen the market price of any commodity is to diminish the consumption of it. Cannot this method be adopted with meat?" states and asks the Washington Post. Will the Post people set the example?

If the number of red corpuscles in the blood can be doubled in two hours in a balloon ascension, as Dr. Gaule, of Switzerland has proved, the apparent suggestion for sufferers from anaemia is to hurry to an aeronaut.

Governor Dole can return to Hawaii in a happy frame of mind. The charges against him were investigated by the president and found to be unfounded, and he has been dined and wined and can feel that he is thoroughly vindicated.

The Nebraska man who wrote the sermon for his own funeral knew a thing or two. The newspapers would never lack for copy if public men were allowed to write their own obituaries.

Admiral Crowninshield may not go to the coronation because it is feared he would become seasick, never having ventured on the ocean before.

The Boston Globe has been trying to define the difference between sanatorium and sanitarium. The only difference is in the charges to patients.

One of Boston's sewing circles has decided to fine any one of its members who gossips. It will probably decline in membership very rapidly.

The majority contest will now be appealed to the state supreme court, which in this case is "the court of last conjecture."

Britannia no longer "rules the waves." She has been deposed by J. Pierpont Morgan.

KINNEY THE FAVORITE.

Ely Miner: Congressman Morris announced to his friends by letter Wednesday his determination to not make the race for his present position. This leaves the coast clear for a dozen or more aspirants for the place. From ideas and sentiments expressed on the ranges, it would seem that Hon. O. D. Kinney is the choice. The ranges, and in fact St. Louis county, recognize in Mr. Kenney a champion eminently qualified to represent the richest district in the state with honors. He is fully aware of all the needs of the district and his pleasing personality and determined manner would insure him the election if nominated. Two years ago when the name of Mr. Kinney was brought forth for the place, the gentleman declined the honor owing to the bad state of his health. It is not so at present. His health is good and, to tell the truth, his chance for the congressional nomination is better.

YOU ARE NOT SO MANY.

Say, when you think you own the earth,
And be some right or royal birth
You think you are of nobler blood
Than those of us who're made of mud,
And by that are the best of any,
Go count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, when you feel that you are what
The vast majority of men are not,
And cannot be, because your make
Is far superior to theirs, please take
A little tumble, if there's any,
And count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, if you have an idea that
You of us all know where you're at,
And while mankind remains in doubt
You know just where you're coming out;
Collect your wits, if you have any,
And count yourself—you're not so many.

Say, brother, if you have the gall,
To think you really know it all;
To feel that you are better than
The ordinary, average man;
And that hereafter you will rise
To higher glory in the skies
Than those who do not have a penny,
Go count yourself—you're not so many.

—WILLIAM J LAMPTON

The Second Green Cottage

By Frederick A. Smith.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

My friend Bernard was telling me the story of an outing epedition which, he said, had given him more pleasure in the recollection of it than any other experience in his career as a hunter and disciple of Izook Walton. We were sitting on the veranda of his pretty country home in Maine, our feet elevated to the top of the railing, and our bodies stretched in luxurious ease after a hard day's tramp in the mountains.

"I had been covering the great Chicago railroad strike for an illustrated magazine," said my friend, "and was pretty thoroughly exhausted on the day I sent out my last page of copy. After I had been trying to find some way to amuse myself for two days our circulation manager whisked into town on a fast train from some place, and before I could offer him a cigar he was proposing a trip into the wilderness of Wisconsin. He said he was fully as tired of smoke, noise and work as I could be. He did not need to ask me twice.

"They say the Southern people are the most hospitable in the world, but I want to tell you that you can find some Westerners that are as near being the salt of the earth as they make them. Wendell, that was the circulation manager, had once thrashed the brooks of the Superior region for trout with Ike Tenning, the financial editor of one of the Chicago dailies, and a famous Nimrod. We made Tenning our confidante and he told us to go to Lost Lake, Wisconsin. He said the most surprising fish stories were put to shame there every day by grim realities.

"'Spoon hook or casting,' he said, 'it is all the same. The bass and muskalonge up there are thicker than office seekers after an election.'

"Tenning gave us a letter to the editor of a village paper that told the residents of Appletown all about the status of the hog market, and how much money the latest church social netted the Ladies Aid society. Appletown is not far from Lost Lake, and the editor divided his time religiously between his type cases and Washington press and the hunting and fishing around thereabout.

"'Glad to see you sure enough,' said Editor Hodgkins upon our arrival one afternoon, after Ike Tenning as good as a banker's affidavit with me. You want fish? Take my boat. It is down there in the channel, just nosing around. My wife has nothing to do. My guns and tackle are in the back room, there. Take them and welcome. You want a place to put up and get a snack after you get tired of fishing. I've got just the thing for you. I'm the agent for the biggest cottage on the biggest island in Lost Lake, and want to turn the property over to you for as long as you like. It's cozy, roomy and it'll make you think of heaven. I swear, if that county fair was on another date I would take a turn out there with you and show you the feeding grounds.'

"'Fishing trips arranged while you wait,' I said as we climbed into Hodgkins' boat, after dumping a considerable portion of Hodgkins' earthly possessions under the seats. 'He is a peach,' exuberantly commented Wendell.

"It was a beautiful lake. A high wind arose as we were rowing down for the channel, and by the time we reached open water it had become a gale. We cleared for the biggest island we could see. Our instructions had been to look for the second green cottage from the south end of the island, and we had not the least difficulty in finding it.

"Wendell unlocked the door and we took possession. Such a cottage! Rugs, Oriental couches, a piano, music rack, well-filled book case, bric-a-brac and all sorts of dainty furnishings.

"'Shows the touch of a woman's hand,' said Wendell. 'It is like a sacrilege to smoke a pipe in this fairyland.' We invoked blessings upon the head of Editor Hodgkins as we pouched our eggs and fried our bacon in the well-appointed kitchen that night and we made the invocation more fervent later in the evening as we settled into easy chairs and, through wreaths of tobacco smoke, discussed plans for the next day.

"Wendell hung his coat and waistcoat on a corner of the music rack and took off his heavy outing shoes. I did likewise and we were about ready to retire for the night when an unexpected interruption occurred. The door swung open and we arose to confront two very charming but startled young women. Wendell looked at them, at his stockinged feet and then at me and back again. I looked at the taller of the two girls and involuntarily began to wonder when she would speak. They took in the room and its contents at a glance and I saw the color rise in the face of the taller one. She looked like a Gibson girl in boat costume. Finally she spoke.

"'My I ask what is your business here?'

"Wendell was managing this trip and so I allowed him the privilege of seizing the horns of this strange dilemma without unnecessary interference from me.

"'Really,' he said, pleasantly, 'I was just on the point of asking you ladies how we could serve you.'

"'I do not understand your presence here,' said she of the Gibson figure. 'You would oblige us greatly by—getting out.'

"'Now, look here,' said my friend, 'let's not get unduly excited over this little affair. Somebody has stumbled into the wrong flat, or cottage, I mean. What we all want more than anything else is explantions. I wish to say that Mr. Bernard and I are here on the invitation of Editor Hodgkins, who gave us the keys and told us to take possession at once. Now may I ask who you are?'

"The tall girl startled us by a merry laugh.

"'Ha, ha!' said Wendell quietly, 'I must be a wag, an unconscious well of humor. So pleased to entertain you.'

"'I beg your pardon, sir,' said the girl, 'but it really is too funny. Why, we are the Jones girls. I see it all now. Mr. Hodgkins thought we had gone to Hepburn to join mamma, as we had intended. That explains how he came to send you here. I am so sorry.'

"Wendell and I smiled weakly. We pulled on our shoes in silence, emptied our pipes into the grate and put them into our coat pockets. We quickly donned our clothing and silently picked up our baggage from the floor of the lady's dining room. As we reached the door we both paused to offer apologies, and then we went out into the night. We were without doubt the cheapest looking mortals that ever cast tiles. The girls were considerate enough not to smile, but it was bad enough to know that they wanted to.

"'We are not criminals, are we, Barney? And it is decidedly cool to think of our getting out in such haste. You ladies are doubtless in the wrong house. This is the Jones cottage, isn't it? It is the second green cottage from the south end of the island, isn't it? Editor Hodgkins, of the Appletown Observer, is the agent of the property, isn't he?'

"'That is all true, of course, but if you are gentlemen, as you seem to be, you will tell us at once what your business is here.'

"This was commencing to look like an unwarranted interference with our little rural contentment, and there might have been a trace of tartness in Wendell's next response.

"'We had thought of making this cottage our headquarters for a few weeks while we beguile the festive bass and muskalonge into our landing nets. Why did you ask?'

"The younger and smaller girl had spoken not a word, but her eloquent eyes had been talking all the time. At Wendell's air of calm assurance she muttered 'Horrors,' and looked as if she were going to faint. And, sure enough, she did swoon the next minute. I promptly Wendell insists eagerly, caught her and laid her on a divan and ran for water. When I returned Wendell and the Gibsonesque interogator were leaning over her talking ..e magpies and almost bumping their heads together in their efforts to restore the other. The patient soon opened her eyes and immediately showed symptoms of hysteria. Wendell and the tall girl resumed their formal demeanor and stood as before glaring at one another.

"That night we propped the boat up and slept under it wrapped in blankets. We had a roaring fire of brush and logs at our feet and along toward daylight we recovered our tranquility. The next day we engaged the other green cottage that had no bric-a-brac nor books. I think the girls felt sorry for us, for they violated all social conventions by calling upon us the very next morning with some luscious soda biscuit and honey. They were a little diffident under the circumstances, but we soon became well acquainted. Mrs. Jones came home two days later and proved as agreeable as could be. The girls, we learned, had taken a trip down the lake and their return had been delayed by the storm. That was why we found the cottage deserted.

"Well, we spent three of the happiest weeks of our lives fishing and strolling and hunting and laughing over our odd mistake. It certainly was a grand time.'

"That story would be better," said I, "if you had ended in the orthodox way and said you married the tall girl and lived happily ever after."

"I did," said Bernard, removing his pipe from his mouth and knocking it against his heel. "And there she comes now to announce dinner. By the way, Hodgkins is coming to see us next week. I'm going to give him the freedom of the place. He's a brick."

"Yes," I persisted, "but what about the girl who fainted?"

Wendell winked at his stately wife and merely said, "Ask Wendell."

I said, "Oh, Barney, do hush. You know it isn't to be announced till November."

STYLISH SPRING COSTUME.

Long Carriage Coat—Trimming of Perforated Straps.

Our illustration shows an exceedingly rich and handsome long coat of black taffeta cut with jabot vest effect and trimmed with perforated straps over white satin. It has a large tucked taffeta collar supplemented with another of embroidered linen and a tasteful garniture in white appears on the ruffles around the bottom. All the stitching is done with Corticelli stitching silk in black and in white and the garment is lined throughout with white satin.

Some yokes are made of lace and rather a pretty effect is gained by adding a row of lace insertion an inch or so below the yoke and joining it with a lattice of narrow velvet ribbon. The fancy for black and white effects is evidenced in the number of white lawn, organdy and mull gowns trimmed with black lace, both edging and insertion, and the quantity of black and white effects, running from lawns and mulls through the various mercerized fabrics to foulards and silks.

THE WATER CURE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

(Air: "Marching Though Georgia.")

Get the good, old syringe, boys, and fill it to the brim,
We've caught another "nigger" and we'll operate on him—
Let some one take the handle who can work it with a vim,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

CHORUS.

Hurrah! Hurrah! We bring the jubilee;
Hurrah! Hurrah! The flag that makes him free!
Shove in the nozzle deep and let him taste of liberty,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

We've come across the bounding main to kindly spread around
Sweet liberty wherever there are rebels to be found—
Come, hurry with the syringe, boys, we've got him down and bound,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

Oh, pump it in him till he swells up like a toy balloon!
The fool pretends that liberty is not a precious boon,
But we'll contrive to make him see the beauty of it soon,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

Keep the piston going, boys, and let the banner wave,
The banner that floats proudly o'er the noble and the brave,
Keep on until the squirt-gun breaks or he explodes, the slave—
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

CHORUS.

Hurrah! Hurrah! We bring the jubilee;
Hurrah! Hurrah! The flag that makes him free!
We've got him down, so let us pump him full of liberty,
Shouting the battle cry of freedom.

AT THE HOTELS

M. A. Isaacs, who is a guest at the Spalding, was a loser by the fire that destroyed the Vincennes apartment hotel in Chicago yesterday. He lived in the hotel, and this morning was anxiously awaiting the receipt of news. Finally, a telegram, the envelope of which was merely addressed to "Isaacs," with no address, was handed to him. It was from his wife and told of the fire and the family was all right. The Vincennes was a large apartment hotel, containing about 150 small flats occupied for light housekeeping, but with a special view to furnishing patronge to the cafe in the hotel. The furnishings were largely owned by the hotel, so the individual loss was not so great as the total might indicate.

The Gospel of Beauty.

Boston Transcript: Apropos this "gospel of beauty" which is so much in the mouths and minds of women nowadays, a mere man wishes to offer a comment or two. He says he has read at various time and has also heard at such times as he has been an involuntary eavesdropper that a sure eradicator for ugliness, wrinkles old age and all the detail of the "shelf stage" is to look pleasant—no matter what happens, to look pleasant. But the strict observance of this prescription for this purpose, he declares, is worse in its effect on the face of woman than is that w...ch follows the practice of honesty only because it is the best policy upon the moral outfit of a man.

STEEL TRUST

Proposes To Directly Operate All Its Constituent Companies.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—The reorganization of the United States Steel corporation, the obliteration of the names of the constituent corporations of the greater one, the changing of its purposes from a purely financial concern to an operating and manufacturing company, which shall operate directly all the properties now owned and controlled by it, is the latest project of the financial and manufacturing giants at the head of this enterprise.

It was learned from excellent authority that the project is to be launched during the present year.

President Schwab will become the director of all mills, railroads, coal and coke plants, steamship lines and furnaces. All of the various branches of the corporation will be divided into departments and the constituent companies will lose their identity. The buying and selling for the corporation will be under a single department with the individual purchasing departments left in the hands of different members of the committee. It is understood that the same official will control the general company, with the same board of directors and executive committee and the officials of the operating department.

Upon President Schwab will devolve under the new conditions the bringing into complete harmony and union all of the interests now separated by the previous construction of the United States Steel corporation, and to make them one. The change is understood to be intended to take place about July 1 of this year.

GNAWED BY RATS.

Seven Persons In Colored Family Found Dead.

Chicago, Ill., April 22.—Dead in a stuffy bedroom in a crowded tenement quarter in State street, the bodies of an entire colored family, numbering seven persons, were found last night, gnawed by rats and in an advanced state of decomposition. The police are inclined to a theory of murder and suicide by poison. The family is that of Jones Butler, an upholsterer, and consisted of Butler, his wife and five children. They had been dead for eight days.

While the members of his family were either partly or wholly undressed the body Butler remained dressed. He had seemingly thrown himself in desperation across the corpses of his wife and children some time after the poison had acted on them. Butler had frequent difficulties with his wife and he had been heard to make threats to make way with them.

LAST PATIENT DISCHARGED.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village authorities of the village of Farris, in Hubbard county, four miles west of Cass Lake, have just discharged the last of the patients who were afflicted with smallpox there. During the winter there were fourteen cases of smallpox within the limits of Farris village. Of these ten were confined in the Arlington hotel, and the hotel was quarantined during the major portion of the winter.

SOCIAL DUTIES KILL.

Mrs. Hotchkiss of New Haven Overtaxes Strength.

New Haven, Conn., April 22.—Mrs. Jane Louise Trowbridge Hotchkiss died here Sunday. Worn out by social duties, she went South for her health two months ago and was stricken with paralysis at Camden, S. C. She was brought home by special train, and died Sunday morning.

Mrs. Trowbridge probably was the most prominent society woman in Connecticut. Her husband Henry L. Hotchkiss, is the president of the rubber trust. She was the daughter of Henry Trowbridge, the wealthiest West Indian merchantman of his generation in New England. Her great grandfather was Noah Webster. Her mother's brother is Bishop Southgate of Long Island. She left the following children: Henry Stuart Hotchkiss and Elizabeth Trowbridge Hotchkiss, of this city; and Mrs. Helen Southgate Garrison, of Hartford.

Miss Hotchkiss was the hostess at three large functions within a comparatively short time. The first was the marriage of her daughter, Helen, to Elisha E. Garrison, the former Yale football manager. At the time of the Yale bicentennial Mrs. Hotchkiss' house was crowded with an assemblage of brilliant statesmen and educational leaders, who were present at the celebration. Late last fall the Hotchkiss home was given over to the wedding of her niece, Miss Denton, who came from Paris to wed the Yale athlete, Lewis P. Sheldon. The duties of these functions caused a physical collapse, from which Mrs. Hotchkiss never recovered.

BAD FIRE.

Saw Mill and Lumber Destroyed at Quincy, Ill.

Quincy, Ill., April 22.—Fire which originated yesterday afternoon in the Gem City sawmill, destroyed property valued at $200,000, and caused the death of one woman from shock. After consuming the sawmill and planing mill the fire burned over nearly ten acres piled with lumber. Two of the city fire steamers were abandoned in the flames by the firemen and converted to molten metal. The fire also burned parts of two bridges on the Carthage branch of the Burlington road, together with several freight cars, and destroyed Wabash Union and Illinois District poles and wires for half a mile along the Burlington road. The stables of the sawmill company, with several horses, were burned, also a large ice house and its contents, belonging to Carnes Cardonaugh, of St. Louis, and a number of residences.

Several firemen were overcome by the heat and flames, but all were saved. The sawmill was running with some 300 hands. It is probable the mill will not be rebuilt. It is owned by a stock company, the stock being held here, at Hannibal, Mo., and at La Crosse, Wis.

McKEEVER LOST FIGHT.

Philadelphia, April 22.—After having the better of the bout up to the sixth round at the Washington Sporting club last night, Charlie McKeever lost it to Young Peter Jackson by the action of one of his seconds jumping into the ring and claiming a foul. It was a good, hot contest up to within a minute and a half of the end of the sixth and last round. At that juncture one of McKeever's seconds jumped through the ropes and claimed that Jackson was butting McKeever. Referee Roapp, however, did not allow the claim, saying that Jackson was not butting McKeever, but was punching him on the stomach while McKeever hung to him. The referee then stopped the bout.

Salient Points About Our Prescription Department.

We have every needed utensil, we have a stock of the finest drugs obtainable, we are adequate reference library, and the prescription department is arranged in accordance with modern ideas.

No one who has a prescription to be filled should be satisfied with anything less than our perfect service.

CAUSE IS ABNORMAL

Chief of Bureau of Statistics On Exports and Imports.

Not To Be Discouraged By Reduction of the Former.

Explained By Drought Which Spoiled the Corn Crop.

Washington, April 22.—A reduction of $59,000,000 in exports and an increase of $79,000,000 in imports do not seem to discourage the chief of the bureau of statistics with reference to the condition of the foreign commerce of the United States.

"I do not see that there is the slightest cause for anxiety," said Mr. Austin. "It is true that the value of our exports in the nine months ending with March is $59,000,000 less than in the correspondign months of last year. Yet the causes of the reduction in the export figures are so clearly due to abnormal and temporary conditions that the falling off does not indicate a decrease in the popularity of American products abroad or a reduction in the demand for them. On the contrary, I think we may consider ourselves very fortunate that our export figures held up as well as they did.

"The chief reduction in our exports," continued Mr. Austin, "can be traced to the destruction of our corn crop by the drought of last year. Corn has become so important a factor in our export trade, both in its natural state and in the condensed form of beef and pork, that the loss of one-fourth or one-third of the enormous crop means a great reduction in the surplus. In the last four years the exportation of corn has averaged about 200,000,000 bushels per annum. In the present fiscal year it will not amount to one-fifth of that quantity. In the nine months ending with March, 1902, the exportation of corn amounted to only 24,00,000 bushels, against 145,00,000 in the corresponding months of last year. These are the preliminary figures, but they do not differ much from the completed figures which we shall have a fortnight hence. The value of the corn and corn meal exported in the past nine months was but $15,000,000, against $68,000,000 in the corresponding months of the preceding year.

"But that is not all of the effect of the loss of the corn crop. The shortage of corn at home has compelled many farmers to use a larger share of oats in the feed of their live stock, and as a result the value of the exportation of oats and oatmeal in the nine months just ended was but $4,500,000, against $9,500,000 in the same months of last year. In these two items of corn and oats, in which the reduction is wholly due to the drought of last year, the exportations have fallen $57,000,000, while the total reduction in the value of all exports is but $59,000,000.

"Another item which shows a material reduction in value of exports is cotton, yet this is wholly due to a fall in price abroad and not to a reduction in the quantity exported. On the contrary, exports have increased materially in quantity, although the value has fallen. The total exportation of cotton in the nine months ending with March was 3,074,568,421 pounds, against 2,740,568,107 in the same months of last year. This is an increase of 334,000,000 pounds; yet, owing to the reduction in price, the value is actually $13,00,000 less than in the same months of last year, the figures for the nine months just ended being $251,000,000, against $264,000,000 in the same months of last year.

"Thus, in corn and oats, in which the reduction is wholly due to the drought of last year, and in cotton, in which the reduction is due to a fall in prices abroad and not to a reduction in quantity exported, the reduction in value of exports amounts to $70,000,000, while the grand total of exports shows a reduction of but $59,000,000.

"Regarding the large increase of importation," continued Mr. Austin, "I see no cause for anxiety, but rather the reverse. We have not received the details of the March import figures, but, judging from those of the preceding months, the increase is chiefly in manufacturers' raw materials. In the eight months ending with February the increase in manufacturers' materials imported was $57,000,000, while the total increase of imports was but $71,00,000; and it is probable that the details of the March figures when received will not materially change this condition in our import trade.

"At the risk of being considered a statistical Mark Tapley," continued Mr. Austin, "I venture the assertion that there is nothing discouraging about the conditions on either side of our foreign commerce account. So long as the increase in importations is chiefly in articles which we can not produce at home and indicates a growth in manufacturing, the increase will be welcomed by all; and so long as the reduction in exportations is due wholly to abnormal conditions, which may be looked upon as only temporary, we need feel no serious anxiety on that score, especially as we are still to have, even this apparently adverse year, a favorable balance of trade of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000.

DANGEROUS

To Life and Liberty Are Sedition Laws of Philippines.

Washington, April 22.—Senator Teller yesterday introduced a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the sedition laws in force in the Philippines should be repleaded. The resolution is preceded by a preamble citing the arrest of the editors of the newspapers "Freedom" and "Volcano," published in the archipelago, and asserting that they are to be tried under these laws by judges who owe their appointments and tenure of office to the government commission for the criticism of which the men are to be tried.

The last paragraph of the preamble and the resolution are as follows:

"Whereas, by the enactment of such laws and the denial of trial by jury to those accused under them, and the administration of such laws by judges appointed by the officials against whom the offenses are alleged to have been committed, and who have reserved to themselves the right to remove said judges at pleasure, every vestige of civil liberty is destroyed, personal liberty and property are without the security of law and the Filipino people are being taught to hate the United States even as much as they hated Spain; therefore, be it,

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the senate of the United States that the said sedition laws and all of them should be immediately repealed and prosecutions under them immediately cease, and that no person shall hereafter be punished by death, imprisonment, or fine in the provinces of the Philippines in which armed resistance to the authority of the United States has ceased, unless the accused upon demand has been tried before a jury of his peers and lawfully pronounced guilty, and further, that thereafter in the courts of said archipelago when the offense charged consists of words spoken or written against any citizen or official or department of said government, the truth of said words spoken or written may be given in evidence and shall constitute a full and perfect defense."

BABE SICKENED AND DIED

After the Mother Eloped With a Gambler.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 22.—Adam B. Bates, a hard-working farmer living near Macedonia, Pottawattomie county, Iowa, passed through Sioux City in pursuit of his runaway wife. She is 20 years old, handsome and the mother of five children.

Ten days ago she asked her husband to drive her to the train, ostensibly to visit relatives at Hastings, Iowa. She took with her $135, Bates' savings of the winter, and left her 2-year-old babe with her husband. A few days later Bates found his wife had disappeared in company with "Slim" Brewer, a local gambler and tough.

The babe, for want of a mother's care, sickened and died. Brewer is under arrest at Bingham Lake, Minn., where Bates goes to try to win back his wife.

SILVER AND SKELETONS.

Ancient Mines of Great Size In Arizona.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 22.—Word reached here yesterday of the finding in Northern Sonora of ancient silver mines of immense size. In Altar district, near Tubutama, a party of American miners, headed by Con O'Keeffe, an Arizona mineral expert, came upon a mine dump of enormous size grown over with timber. Searching further they found a sealed entrance to the workings, and breaking this down, discovered what once was a mine of extraordinary size.

Near the entrance was a big pile of silver ingots and tools, and further in were a number of skeletons. They partially explored the workings and found millions of tons of silver ore in sight.

It is believed the mine had been worked by Toltecs or Aztecs and closed hundreds of years ago, when the Indians drove the race from the country.

The Vincennes apartment hotel, Thirty-sixth street and Vincennes avenue, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. Fanned by a high wind the flames threatened to spread to adjoining structures and it was with difficulty that the fire was restricted to the hotel. There were 150 apartments in the building, but all the occupants escaped in safety. The loss is $150,000.

The Woman's Catholic Order of Foresters, in convention at Chicago, elected a medical examiner and attorney after one of the sharpest struggles ever known in the order. The successful candidates were Dr. Anne Dwyer, a Chicago physician, and Francis A. McDonnell, a Chicago attorney. Minneapolis will be the next meeting place, in August, 1904.

POISON IN WHISKY

Three Men Held For Trial At Bemidji For Murder.

Charged With Killing Eugene McGlauchlin With Knock-out Drops.

Extract of Fishberry Was Used to Dope Woodsman.

Bemidji, Minn., April 22.—The first case of death plainly traceable to the use of knockout drops in this county is being vigorously investigated and justice is close on the trail of the murderers. Already the state has captured and jailed three men who are implicated in Eugene McGlauchlin's death, and charged two of them with murder in the first degree. George LaDue has been found guilty by a coroner's jury and a justice court, and was taken to Crookston Saturday to await the action of the grand jury. Joseph Seguin and C. A. Williams have also been arrested as accessories to the murder, but on motion of the county attorney the case against Williams was dismissed. Seguin's examination yesterday resulted in his being held for trial. John Barry waived examination on the same charge.

Eugene McGlauchlin was a native of Canada, who had made this vicinity his home for three years. He owned a homestead near Lakeport, which he later sold, and had spent most of his time in the woods as a common laborer. His reputation for sobriety and industry was good. On the night of April 4 he came to Bemidji from a lumber camp with money in his pocket. He took a few drinks and afterwards a sleep in a chair in a saloon run by Frank Gagnon, known as "Spider's Place."

Early the next morning he awoke to find his watch missing. He complained to the bartender, Joseph Seguin, who, on account of a canine expression under his nose, was called "Dog-Faced Joe." McGlauchlin regretted the loss of his watch, but rejoiced that the thieves had not found their way into his pants' pocket, which contained about $35 in money. He bought a watch of the bartender, and while relating his woes he was approached by George LaDue, who became an interested listener. Subsequently John Berry came in for his morning "opener." Being an old boarder and habitue of the place, he climbed up and sat on the bar, from which point he established an acquaintance with McGlauchlin and also with LaDue. LaDue proved to be a lumberjack, and prevailed upon McGlauchlin to go into the rear room with him, where two or three drinks of whisky were taken by them, Berry being in the room also for a short time. About 7 o'clock in the morning, before either of them had had a breakfast, officials LaDue, Berry and McGlauchlin went out of a rear side door of Spider's place and went up to the "hill" across the street to another place operated by Gagnon, and the three entered the wine room and drank some more whisky. After a short time LaDue and Berry started out together, leaving McGlauchlin sitting at the table in a wine room. They had a dispute with the bartender as to how much money McGlauchlin had handed the barkeeper for the drinks, LaDue stating it was $20 and that he was entitled to his share of it, and the barkeeper insisting that it was only $5 and that there was nothing to share.

Before they reached the door the bartender had paid McGlauchlin his money, and finding him in a sleepy condition, called LaDue and Berry back and compelled them to take him with them. Berry accompanied McGlauchlin around the corner, where McGlauchlin sat down upon a sawdust banking, at which place witnesses testified that Berry went through his pockets. Berry and LaDue then rejoined Seguin, and returned to the original Spider place where Berry was shortly afterward arrested. LaDue got wind of the fact that McGlauchlin had been discovered in a comatose condition and had afterwards died at the hospital, and left on foot over the Great Northern railway track for Solway, where he was discovered on Sunday. Under the sweating process Berry gave up facts enough to enable the county attorney to run the case down. Berry implicated Joseph Seguin, who was at once placed under arrest, also C. A. Williams, barkeeper at Gagnon's second place. The arrest of Williams seems to have had a beneficial effect upon him, as he had been theretofore an unwilling witness.

County Attorney Street, who devoted last week to ferreting out and getting the evidence in shape before the court upon the preliminary examination, feels that he now has a good case against both George LaDue and Joseph Seguin for the murder of Eugene McGlauchlin, which was accomplished by dosing his whisky with the extract of fishberry.

LIGHT AND DARK,

Day and night, sunshine and shadow are not more different from each other than a healthful from a sickly woman. The healthful woman carries light and sunshine with her wherever she goes.

The woman who suffers from ill-health casts a shadow on her own happiness and the happiness of others. She cannot help it. Those who suffer cannot smile and sing.

Ill-health in woman is generally traceable to disease of the delicate womanly organism. Many women have been restored to happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"I feel it my duty to inform you that I had been a sufferer for many years from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications," writes Mrs. O. N. Fisher, of 1351 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. "I was constantly going to see a physician or purchasing medicine for this or that complaint as my troubles became unbearable. In the spring of 1897 my husband induced me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After taking one bottle and following your advice I was so encouraged that I took five more bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and then I did not take any more for several weeks as I felt so much better, but still I was not completely cured. I commenced taking it again and felt that I was improving faster than at first. I am not now cross and irritable, and I have a good color in my face; have also gained about ten pounds in weight and one thousand of comfort, for I am a new woman once more."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

RED STAMPS.

Grand Forks Retailers Give Them Grand Bounce.

Grand Forks, N. D., April 22.—At the last meeting of the retail merchants it was decided to discontinue the use of the red trading stamps which had gained quite a foothold in that part of the country. All merchants are interested in the new move, and all have signed an agreement that they will throw these red stamps out of their business and will fight the National Stamp company if the latter decides to force them to continue their use.

Twenty of the merchants who were using the trading stamps of the National Stamp company were present at this meeting, and others who were not present, it was represented, would sign the agreement to throw them out.

CAN GO TO HEAVEN.

Young Rockefeller Says Riches Do Not Bar One.

New York, April 22.—"Riches don't bar one from salvation. Salvation depends on whether the man possesses the gold or the gold possesses him."

Thus, epigrammatically, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who some day will inherit a fortune of more than $300,000,000 expresses himself before the young men's Bible class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist church.

"When Jesus said that it was as impossible for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven as it was for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, in my opinion, he did not mean that his words were to be construed in the literal, broad sense.

"If ambition and pleasure are the ruling passions of one's life, they should be thrown aside. Christ should come first. If the rich man places his possessions first he cannot enter the kingdom of heaven.

"But the possession of wealth will not bar one from heaven. It is the improper use of it. The improper use of any ability or earthly possession is equally offensive in the sight of God."

WHEAT IS STEADY

Market Opens At a Decline, Advances and Then Recedes.

Continues a Weather Market, Governed By Southwestern Conditions.

Fairly Active Trading On Local Board --- Flax Slightly Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 22.—The wheat market started out with lower prices this morning, due to the rapid changes in temperature in the Southwest and the continued lack of needed rains for the growing wheat crop. Slightly lower cables also had a bearish influence. Prices fluctuated considerably during the early part of the session and then a better demand turned the market stronger. The higher price brought out a good many sellers and the market again receded, and the close was but little changed from that of yesterday.

The Liverpool market closed ¼-¾d lower. Antwerp was ½c higher and Paris, ½@¾c higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 361,600 bus, last year 361,000 bus. Shipments were 252,000 bus, last year, 201,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 209,000 bbls; Bradstreet reported a decrease of 6,650,000 bus in the world's visible supply. New York reported 10 loads of wheat taken for export.

Cash in the Chicago market was stronger, advancing ⅜c. Oats advanced the same amount. Primary receipts of corn were 313,000 bus, last year, 222,000 bus. Shipments, 15,000 bus; last year, 550,000 bus. Clearances were 50,000 bus. The world's visible supply of corn, according to Bradstreet, decreased 576,000 bus last week.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 179 cars, and at Chicago, 57, a total of 236 cars, against 134 last week and 302 last year.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was fairly active. The market opened ⅝c off at 74⅝c, fell to 74½c at 9.35, sold back to 74⅝c at 9:40, fell to 74¼c again at 10 and then turned stronger, selling up to 75c at 12:15, and closing at 74⅞c, a decline of ⅛c. Chicago closed a shade lower and Minneapolis a shade lower.

Cash prices continued at May price for No. 1 northern 2½c under for No. 2 and 4½c under for No. 3. Sales were 20,000 bus.

Flax trading was very light and the market sold ½c up to $1.78, and closed there. Cash and to arrive also advanced ½c. Corn was up ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 74⅝c; No. 1 northern, 74⅝c; No. 2 northern, 72½c; No. 3 spring, 70½c. To arrive—No 1 hard, 74⅝c; No. 1 northern, 74⅝c; May, 74⅝c; July, 75½c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Scanty Showers Put the Bears In Better Spirits.

Chicago, April 22.—Scanty showers over isolated spots in the wheat belt were sufficient to put bears in a better spirit and the opening in grains was easy. May wheat started 7@7½c to 1@1⅛c lower at 74@c to 74⅝c on this influence and the slightly lower cables. Trade was very light early because the crowd was still in a guessing mood. Locals sold freely at the start and May was depressed to 73⅝@73¾c. There was, however, still a fair commission house demand and prices rallied to opening figures and steadied. Local receipts were 57 cars; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 179 cars, making a total for the three points of 236 cars, against 134 last week and 302 a year ago.

Weather continued the dominant factor in the wheat pit most of the day. After low prices had been reached Bradstreet's report of a decrease of 6,650,000 bus in the world's visible supply started a smart buying rally and May touched 75c. Doubts as to the extent of Western rains caused speculators to waver again and prices eased, May closing steady, a shade lower at 74⅝c.

May corn opened ⅛c lower to unchanged at 61⅝c to 61¾c in sympathy with wheat and on fairly steady cables.

Trade was light and of a waiting character, though September was bought rather freely and made slight advances. When wheat slipped off, May corn sold off to 61¼c and then steadied around 61⅜c. Receipts were 127 cars.

Corn continued dull and May declined to 61¼c. At this price, however, there was nothing to be had and on the contrived small country movement May receded to 62¼@62⅜c, closing firm ⅜c up at 62¾c.

The reports of rains in the Southwest had an easing effect early on oats, the local crowd selling and the sending May down to 42⅝c after an opening ⅛c lower at 42¾c. Although the trade was quiet, commission houses bought in a little and May rallied to last night's closing figure, 42¾c. Receipts were 248 cars.

A weaker hog market and the early easy grain situation depressed provisions. Scalpers, however, bought a little and packers supported, including small upturns in all the lists. May pork opened 5c lower to 2½c higher at $16.37½ to $16.45 and sold to $16.50; May lard 2½c off at $9.02½ and gained 5c; May ribs unchanged at $8.5⅛ and advanced to $9.05.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market is active and irregular. There were fair rains reported through Central Kansas and Nebraska this morning and the market opened lower. Later on the strength in corn and the bullish Bradstreet report reacted about 1c. Later in the day scattered showers were reported west and this again eased the feeling. It is purely a weather market at this moment with rain predicted, followed by colder weather pretty much everywhere. If these materialize they will likely affect the market by a further break. Bradstreet makes the world's visible supply decrease 6,650,000.

Chicago Record-Herald: The country man has not appeared as yet in any force in the wheat market, although the price is up 5c in less than three weeks, and although the motive dry weather is one theory the man should know. So far the wheat buying has been on orders from the speculative interests rather than on orders from innumerable customers scattered throughout the West. This is not proof that the buying move is not a good one. The county man is the last one to come into a bull market. He waits until there is a question of damage. When he does start he makes what is called the "old fashioned bull market." But the St. Louis man risks the long side of wheat long before it is a certainty that a winter wheat crop is seriously damaged, and the Kansas City man takes his risk on the bull side a little in advance of the St. Louis man. The Chicago speculator is the slowest of all to put in appearance, but even he takes a chance on an advance of the county man. When the latter does decide to buy he makes a market for all the others who have preceded him from the beginning from the smallest trader on the Kaw to the constitutionally skeptical speculator in Chicago.

Winnipeg to Paine, Webber & Co.: The crop outlook in Canadian Pacific territory is considered the best in the history of the country. The season has been begun three weeks earlier than usual. The acreage it is estimated will the 28 per cent larger in Manitoba than last year and in other territories it will probably be 100 per cent greater.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The map shows fair rains in Central Kansas and Nebraska and generally broken conditions with threatening appearances elsewhere. At the moment the weather is the controlling factor in the market. All other influences are unimportant. The cash situation in corn and oats remains strong. Supplies are limited and interior prices for both are equal or better than Chicago.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, April 22.—The wheat market after opening lower on showers in Kansas and Nebraska later rallied on predictions of fair and colder weather with probable frosts in Kansas, also on a larger decrease in the world's visible supply, as reported by Bradstreet, namely 6,000,000 bus. Toward the end of the session the market eased off on realizing, but closed fairly steady, unchanged to ⅛c lower than yesterday. The general opinion is that the rains have been insufficient and what is needed are good soaking rains. Foreign markets were generally quiet. Liverpool closed ¼-⅜d lower for the day. Continental markets were irregular, some higher, some lower. There was a good demand for cash wheat here by local millers, but export demand both here and at the seaboard was quiet. Trade was large all day, but mostly all of a professional character. Should dry weather continue a few days longer the outsiders would undoubtedly become free buyers. Both Western markets reported good buying there for outside account. Estimated tomorrow, 45 cars.

The corn market ruled firm all day and the principal feature was the heavy buying by a prominent commission house said to be for Eastern account. Their purchases absorbed the offerings and caused a good advance. The market closed firm, May ⅜c, July ⅞c and September ⅝c higher than last night. Foreign marets were quiet. Liverpool closed ¾d lower for the day. Country offerings continue light. Cash demand was rather quiet. Unless we get a good set-back in wheat we look for corn to go higher as there is a growing bullish sentiment owing to dry weather, advance in price of mill feed and extremely small visible supply. Estimated cars tomorrow, 60.

There was a fairly large trade in oats today and the market ruled firm in sympathy with corn and unfavorable crop reports. May closed ⅝c, July ¼c and September ⅛c higher than last night. Country offerings were light. Cash demand was good. While immediate future of market depends a good deal on the weather still we believe July and September oats are cheap around present prices. Estimated cars for tomorrow, 165.

Provisions opened weak on further decrease in hogs. Market was given some support and rallied a little, but ruled very dull all day and closed rather heavy. The strength in grain again had no effect and trade was very light and mainly for local account. The break of 3c per pound on pork loins showed the effect of agitation against high price market and cuts off the packers' profit entirely, so that no matter how small hog receipts are they will not advance hog prices, and have turned their plants to work on making ribs, and with fair receipts we can be assured of good increase of stocks. We see nothing bullish in the situation. Estimated for tomorrow, 27,000 hogs.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Houghton to Paine, Webber & Co.—There have been no new developments at the Atlantic on section 16. The mine, however, will this year make its largest production of copper. The crop on section 16 has been extended over 100 feet from the test pit and is now appearing in trap rock.

Paine, Webber & Co.—We think there is going to be a big rise in Amalgamated and very quick. It will affect all coppers and we believe the whole list a purchase.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—The Boston and Montana directors have declared a dividend of $2 a share. The directors did not state as to whether the dividend just declared is to be considered as quarterly, semi-annually or annual payment. The previous dividend was $5 declared Dec. 2, 1901; $5 was declared on July 9 and $10 on April 13, 1901.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Officials of the Copper Range Mining company pronounce the report that negotiations are on foot for the absorption of the Atlantic Mining company property as absurd. They say that nothing of the sort has been considered and that there is no prospect that it will be.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: While the reaction in the stock market caused considerable disappointment it is regarded tonight as healthful. Large operators say it is only an incident in the bull movement and that such technical and legitimate conditions must result soon in a renewed advance. Corn damage reports are believed to be exaggerated. As was the case when the rise of Louisville & Nashville threatened a corner, the news that the supreme court had permitted the state of Washington to bring suit against the Northern Pacific merger has resulted in weeding out a lot of weak accounts. The stocks thus sold have passed into strong hands. It is argued that the supreme court's decision does not introduce, as some contend it does, a new factor in speculation, as it is already known that the government is taking steps as rapidly as possible to test the validity of the merger. The buying of St. Paul is believed to be of a sort which will be good before long, there being a prediction of a price in the 70s for the stock. Notwithstanding denials the buying of Reading looks like buying for control. It was started some days ago by Philadelphia, with the orders emanating from Drexel and Welch. Baltimore & Ohio is thought to have figured in it later. Pennsylvania owns about 25 per cent of Baltimore & Ohio stock, and there is a theory that the company will control or partly control the Reading through the Baltimore & Ohio. The West has also been a big buyer of Reading corn, and is a firm believer in its future, taking the ground that the stock will go to a dividend basis this year.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—The stocks which have been in the lead suffered a reaction yesterday just as was expected. They should be bought now. Brooklyn Rapid Transit is nearly ripe for a 20 point advance. Ice around 15 is a buy for 10 or 20 points advance.

BUYING OF READING

Looks Like Attempt to Get Control of the Road.

Renewed Selling Early of the Grangres and Pacifics.

This Was Due to Continued Drought In the Southwest.

New York, April 22.—A wide opening in Reading of 10,000 shares sold at 66¾ to 66½, compared with 66½ last night, marked the continuance of the speculative campaign in that stock. The price sagged below last night. There was renewed selling of the grangers and Pacifics on the continued drought in the Southwest, but some support was offered Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific. American Grass Twine rose 3 points and International Power 1⅛. The market showed yesterday's unevenness and heaviness in spots. St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Atchison, St. Louis & San Francisco and Texas Pacific were a point off and other important stocks lost fractions. Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis and Smelting fell 1½@¾ and Sugar broke 1⅛ to 125½ and then rebounded to 12¼. Amalgamated rose from 64⅝ to 65¾. Manhattan from 137.8 to 138½ and the Readings made net gains of 1¼ to 2¾ with the first preferred leading. The Eries later joined the advance, the common touching 41. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rose 11⅛ to 119. New York Air Brake and American Smelt fell 2@2½. Keokuk & Des Moines preferred sold at 84, compared with 55 at the last sale a year ago.

The market became firmer in tone, but still showed irregularity on realizing. Readings common, Manhattan and Sugar reacted a point and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis after touching 122 gave way 7. Northwestern and Chicago Terminal preferred sold 1½ under yesterday's close. The advance in Eries reached 1@1⅜ and other third and soft coalers were lifted. C. & O., Norfolk & Western, Ontario & Western, Delaware & Hudson, Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburg, Columbus, Cincinnati & St. Louis and Pennsylvania rose a point or more and the Detroit Southern stocks improved 7½ each. Sugar was lifted a point over last night and Amalgamated touched 66. Louisville & Nashville and International Power increased their gains to 2 and 3⅜ respectively. Long Island jumped 7½ and Manhattan Beach 3¼. A rally to above 170 in St. Paul helped the Pacifics and Southwesterns slightly. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred gained a point. The bond market was irregular.

Southern Railway was lifted to 37⅝, and St. Paul and Union Pacific recovered a shade to above last night, but realizing checked the advance. Reading reacted 1⅝ to below last night and Manhattan fell more than a point under last night, Long Island reacted 4½. Keokuk & Des Moines advanced 5¼, Cotton Oil, 1, and Virginia, Carolina Chemical, 1⅝. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rallied 4½. International Power's gains were increased to over 6 points. The market became dull and steady.

Atchison worked up to 82, but the market fell abruptly later, on large dealings. Some of the leading specialties, including Manhattan, Colorado Fuel and Sugar declined to the lowest of the day. The grangers and Pacifics were also offered freely and reached a lower level than during the forenoon. The trading was very active on the break and grains were mostly wiped out. Reading dropped to 65¼, and Manhattan to 135½. National Lead pfd, rose 2.

There was some buying of Reading at the decline which caused a rally of a point. Southern Railway rose to near the best and Copper touched 66⅝. Wells Fargo jumped 9 and New York, New Haven & Hartford 6. Selling met the advance again. General Electric dropped 3⅞ and United States Express 3. Sugar broke to 122⅜ and the market generally returned to a lower level than before. The closing was active and weak.

Your Rent is Going To Be Higher!

Why? Because the present rents paid does not cause any one to build to supply you with equal accommodations for the rent you are paying. The rent that caused the house to be built that you live in was considerably higher than you are paying now.

More people are coming to the city who will be willing to pay more than you are and the first thing you know you will be moving further from the center of the city than you are at present living.

Houses and lots are still being offered at less than it cost to build the house. It is not too late to buy at low figures.

We have about thirty houses and lots for sale which have been practically rebuilt in the last four years, taxes and assessments all paid, which we offer to sell for $100 to $150 down and the balance to be paid on terms that are as easy to pay as rent and you are in the way of getting a home. TORTURES

Inflicted In Philippines Explained By a Literary Soldier.

Indianapolis, April 22.—Jesse Conway, a newspaper man of this city, who recently returned from three years as a soldier in the Philippines, is well versed in the famous water cure, which cuts such a figure in disciplining recalcitrant Filipinos, as he has seen it administered. Says Conway:

"Place a man on his back and press on the gullet until all the air is out of his lungs, and then pour about a pint and a half of water in his mouth just as he is allowed to breathe and you have the water cure. The first application is generally sufficient to attain the desired result."

Conway says that quite a little water flows into the lungs, and generally when a native has been subjected to the water cure he does not recover very quickly.

If the dose was immediately repeated the victim would be strangled, and a person with weak lungs might be killed thereby. Conway also talks of other methods of punishment in the new American possessions. One captain under whom Conway served tried the standing-up process on the natives with good results.

If a native was captured on information from the secret service, and was under suspicion of having a rifle, he would either have to give it up or stand in the guardhouse until he surrendered his coveted treasure. If after two or three days he did not show signs of weakening then he would be treated as other prisoners, forced to work, and eating good rations, but detained as a prisoner until his gun was surrendered by his family or friends, or some friend brought in some other rifle to exchange for the prisoner.

A milder form of punishment was to tie the hands of the native together until he gave up the desired information, and he had also heard of natives being strung up by the neck until it was thought he was about to die, and then let down to breathe a little, when he would possibly talk to avoid a second stretching.

Solitary confinement also proved effective. Conway relates one instance at Dasmarinas, Cavite province, where an insurgent officer, known as Antone, was caught in the full uniform of a lieutenant in the Filipino army, and he was kept without food until he was ready to talk. Three days later he surrendered, and he walked about town, pointing out sixty of his soldiers, and surrendering 10 rifles.

SHOE BUTTON

Found In Girl's Lung By X Ray and Removed.

Chicago, April 22.—Little Louise Dishliner, of 2945 Quinn street, inhaled a shoe button, and her life was despaired of, yet through a surgical operation believed to be the first of its kind, she is at the Hahnemann hospital, looking forward with the assurance that health will be the reward for the pain she has suffered.

The shoe button, after an X-ray examination, was taken from her left lung. It is said to be the first instance in which a foreign body imbedded in lung tissue has been removed by an incision from the exterior.

Dr. Howard Chislet, of the surgical staff of the hospital, performed the operation. His patient has survived the shock of the operation, and is considered out of danger.

Louise inhaled the button when she was playing with it about three years ago. She was 7 years of age then.

NO TRACKS

Needed For This New Kind of Trolley Car.

Franklin, N. H., April 22.—"A trackless trolley" system, the first of its kind in America, is being installed in this town and will have its first trial shortly. The city council has just granted permission to Artemas D. Upham to erect poles and wires for the system between the two railroad stations here, and construction work will begin at once. In this system in place of the usual overhead trolley wire, there are two side wires which serve the ordinary purpose of the overhead wire and rail.

Two trolley poles connect the car with the wires, allowing play enough for the car to deviate about ten feet when need be from its ordinary course. When cars have to pass the motorman of one merely has to remove his trolleys from the wires for a moment while the other car glides past. The scheme of the trackless trolley is attracting attention of street railway men all over the country, and the management is flooded with queries.

"THANK YOU,"

Said Blume to Judge As He Made His Escape.

Indianapolis, April 22.—An unusual thing occurred Saturday in the criminal court. The grand jury had made a final report and among the prisoners arraigned was William Blume, much wanted for burglary and grand larceny. A number of dismissals had also been recommended, the list embracing Phillip Shope, colored.

When Shope's name was called Blume responded, and upon the court saying, "You are released," he bowed to the judge, thanked him and walked out and was gone before the mistake was discovered. Shope wondered why Blume answered, but afterward thought he was mistaken in supposing his name had been called.

The police are chagrined over the escape, but compliment Blume's nerve.

UNCLE MARK

Asked to Furnish Cash to Dig Noah's Ark.

St. Louis, April 22.—The man with the scheme that will produce riches galore for the "angel" who will furnish the money to carry it out hobs up frequently during the progress of preparing for a World's fair. Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, known generally to be a man of wealth and sagacity, could not escape the scheme fiend.

A few days ago the senator received the following letter: "On the top of Mt. Ararrat there is still preserved, buried amid eternal snow, Noah's ark. I am organizing a company to dig it out and bring it to the United States. You can help me to make a lot of money if you will go into the scheme, because the original Noah's ark would be the best paying attraction at the St. Louis World's fair."

Up to the present writing Senator Hanna has not invested in the Noah's ark scheme.

IT WAS A REPORTER

Gave Information That Landed the Boodlers In St. Louis.

Would Not Accept Their Money and Keep Silent.

For Years "Red" Galvin Was Investigating the Boodling.

St. Louis, April 22.—The vigorous crusade for honesty in municipal legislation in this city, which has resulted thus far in the indictment of a dozen prominent men and the flight of some of them to foreign countries to escape penitentiary terms, is directly attributed to one man, James M. Galvin, a newspaper reporter.

The almost incredible degree of rottenness in the municipal assembly outlined in the report of the last St. Louis grand jury has existed for years. In a general way the people knew it. The reform element had made spasmodic attempts to secure convicting evidence, but had each time thrown up its hands, appalled at the strength of the grip in which the assembly gangsters and the men who paid them from without held the city. With each failure the boodlers grew bolder, till a condition resulted that was worse, if possible, than that in Chicago, when the "Gray Wolves" ruled the legislative branch of the city government.

Hope of relief was dimmer than it ever had been when, a few weeks ago, the city was electrified to see arrayed several men prominent in its business and social life for bribery, conspiracy and perjury. Since that time other arrests have been made of men equally prominent, large bonds have been "jumped" by men of former high standing, and every prospect has suddenly appeared that boodling in the St. Louis municipal assembly is at an end.

When the excitement incident to the first arrests subsided it was found that the city had "Red" Galvin to thank for ridding it of the corruptionists.

For several years Galvin had awaited a combination of circumstances from which could be secured legal evidence on which to convict the boodlers. Chicago's "Gray Wolves" showed the public the skill with which they could keep legal evidence of their guilt from the authorities. The St. Louis gang was equally skilled. With confidence that his ability to uncover their tracks was equal to theirs to hide them, Galvin kept on the wolf hunt. He said nothing, worked assiduously and at length found his chance when influential traction men and their tools in the assembly began to quarrel over the disposition of $135,000 that had been placed in a safe deposit vault to promote vicious legislation.

With an array of provable facts he went to State's Attorney Folk, and the first gun in the fight for civic purity in this city was fired. Meanwhile, when the gangsters finally began to realize that they had been outwitted and that the situation was growing serious, they sought to check the attack by calling off the man who prompted it. Tremendous pressure was brought to bear on the reporter, who had positive knowledge of the facts, but it did not drive him from his purpose. He had "landed a big story" and his sense of reportorial duty precalled over the lavish inducements that came from men of wealth and high position who saw impending their arrest and probable conviction of the crime of corrupting the city's servants.

The man who, single handed, has worked the greatest reform in the history of this city, was born in New York, a child of adversity. At the time Eugene Field, Stanley Waterloo and other newspaper men, who later achieved celebrity as literature, were trying to keep alive the old Journal, Galvin reached St. Louis and began work at the only available vocation, blacking boots and selling papers. Field and his coterie patronized the keen-witted bootblack, and through them Galvin became the circulation manager of the Chronicle. But the desire to write for newspapers was strong within him, and he set out on a course of self-education.

The late Joseph McCullagh, of the Globe-Democrat, was the only editor who thought enough of Galvin's prospective reportorial ability to give him a chance. The salary was $3 a week and the assignment the suburbs. One night a Missouri Pacific train was robbed of $105,000. At his own request Galvin was allowed to work on the story. The detectives had arrested the only thing left in the car, Frotheringham, the express messenger, who had been beaten and robbed, but the new reporter held him innocent and started a search of the purlieus for a man who had an excess of cash. In his search he caught up with Moriarity, one of the robber's partners. The chase that followed this meeting was long and cautious, but some time after, on information furnished by Galvin, Jim Cummings and another partner named Weaver were arrested while running a coal yard in State street, Chicago, and sent to the Missouri penitentiary.

This bit of work, for which the detectives got most of the credit and all but $200 of the big reward, after $95,000 of the money had been recovered, was the first of a series of similar achievements by Galvin.

Not long afterward the train bearing Governor Stone and staff was held up near Pacific, Mo., and looted. From the governor down to the train porter the passengers stated that seven men had done the job. Galvin found a buried valise containing the effects of Sam Wilson, who had been employed by the 'Frisco road at Lebanon, and Wilson was arrested. His confession, that he held up the train single-handed, was obtained from Wilson in the office of Galvin's paper, and the newsboy reporter again scored a big scoop.

Recently Galvin prevented the reappointment of a prominent officeholder by forwarding to President Roosevelt positive proofs that the man had made a practice of charging the government with mileage when he traveled on passes. There was no other applicant for that place and the officeholder was in Washington awaiting what he considered the mere formality of being handed his commission. He made no effort to refute the statements of the reporter.

In this place the party managers tried hard to shake Galvin in his determination to prevent the appointment, but succeeded no better than did the men who sought to have him desert the trail of the municipal assembly boodlers.

"Red" Galvin's remarkable record for bringing important scoops to his paper is attributable to the simple desire to realize the ambition to be a good reporter. In a business way he never had any other ambition. Extraordinary energy and tenacity and an unusually accurate knowledge of men are his characteristics. While not posing as a reformer, he has the reporters' dislike of "crookedness" in men in public positions to more than the average degree.

Although a bachelor, he finds time to exercise a paternal influence over five young boys of which he is guardian. In this city he is the newsboy and gamins' best friend. Nearly all of a $7000 collection of jewels owned by him were gifts from those he had befriended in time of need, and his time when not working for his modest salary is devoted to the service of those from whom he has nothing but grattude to expect.

An Unsinkable Ship.

Experiments are being made on a new apparatus for use in case of collision on the ocean. By turning a small wheel in the pilot house, twenty watertight doors are instantly closed, and these compartments are more than enough to keep any vessel afloat. If it is a success it will make ocean travel as free from danger as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does the road through life. It is a splendid tonic, free from all injurious narcotics, and one that the most delicate system can retain. In the spring, when the weather is so variable, it is very beneficial as it protects the system from sudden colds and la grippe. Don't fail to try it. It also cures indigestion, dyspepsia, insomnia, headache, nervousness and biliousness.

CURRENT

From Static Battery Used Successfully to Cure Cancer.

Savannah, Ga., April 22.—Dr. J. R. Daniel, of Savannah, has created a sensation before the Medical Association of Georgia by a report on the cure for cancer by the use of the X-ray. He has successfully used this means of treatment. His use of the X-ray in cancer treatment began last December with two cases. He was careful at the very beginning to make no promises of cure. The results, however, have been a revelation. Since Dec. 6 he has had thirteen cases under treatment. Four patients have been discharged as cured, and the others show satisfactory progress.

In his treatment Dr. Daniel uses the static electrical machine, and not what is known as a street current. The principal cases desired were those in which the cancer infection was in the face. Some of them were of long standing, one covering a period of twenty-four years. The static current, Dr. Daniel said, does not destroy the healthy tissues, and for this reason its use is preferred. With large areas of cancer infection to be treated Dr. Daniel protects the normal or healthy tissues, and only exposes to the X-ray the diseased portion, and with small areas of infection he incloses the Crookes tube in a lead-lined box and exposes the cancerous growth opposite an opening in the box.

In the six cases which Dr. Daniel reported to the association, one was that of a woman 48 years old, with no positive history of cancer in the family, though one brother was supposed to have died with cancer of the stomach and a sister with cancer of the intestines.

The patient had been affected twenty-four years and had been twice under treatment in a New York hospital, where the results of the treatment were only temporary. Dr. Daniel began his treatment about the middle of December. The case was an extremely aggravated one, the cancer extending from both eyes to the mouth, completely destroying all the tissues within that area. The first exposure to the X-ray was of ten minutes' duration, and was followed by similar exposures for three succeeding days. The treatment was then suspended for two weeks, after which it was resumed and continued every day for a week. At the end of the week a new condition was apparent. The patient suffered no pain whatever from the disease. It seems to have been arrested.

TRAGEDY AT NOME

Actress Hacked Off Lover's Head As In the Play.

"A Woman's Vengeance" Re-enacted At Hotel of Jack Kirk.

He Left Her and She Stabbed Him to Death.

Seattle, Wash., April 22.—The trial of Lulu Watts, who in a jealous rage murdered and decapitated Jack Kirk, the young miner whom she had expected to marry, at Nome, Alaska, elevates what at first appeared a sordid and wretched affair into a tragedy worthy of the pen of a Balzac or a Sardou.

All through the remarkable crime savors of high tragedy on the stage. When Lulu Watts became convinced that her own life was a tragedy, with a villain in it like the villain of the piece she played nightly, she meted out to him the same vengeance which her hand wreaked at each performance upon his mimic prototype.

She had a little money, some jewelry and was well provided with wearing apparel. The latter included several stage costumes. She let it be understood on her arrival that she was an actress, but when, attracted by her beauty, one of the local theater managers offered to employ her in the dual capacity of music hall singer and dispenser of drinks among the masculine audience, she gave him a haughty stare and said:

"You offer me an insult, sir. I am an actress."

All Nome knew of this retort the next day and there was a scramble among the more civilized miners and men of business to make the young woman's acquaintance. This desire was rendered the more ardent by the success of her first public appearance.

"Red" Galvin's remarkable record for bringing important scoops to his paper is attributable to the simple desire to realize the ambition to be a good reporter. In a business way he never had any other ambition. Extraordinary energy and tenacity and an unusually accurate knowledge of men are his characteristics. While not posing as a reformer, he has the reporters' dislike of "crookedness" in men in public positions to more than the average degree.

Although a bachelor, he finds time to exercise a paternal influence over five young boys of which he is guardian. In this city he is the newsboy and gamins' best friend. Nearly all of a $7000 collection of jewels owned by him were gifts from those he had befriended in time of need, and his time when not working for his modest salary is devoted to the service of those from whom he has nothing but grattude to expect.

Her beauty was undenied. Probably her characterizations had the crudeness to be expected of a student of elocution in a small country town, but the rough miners of Nome hailed her as a genius. When the absent manager returned his ears were filled with praises of Lulu Watts. There was nothing for him to do but let to engage her, and to set about rehearsing such a tragic vehicle for her talent as might be expected to win the community from the rival attractions of ladies who handed around glasses of beer to their own accompaniment of risques, songs and dances.

From the first Jack Kirk was foremost among the young woman's champions. His antecedents were but little better known than those of Lulu Watts. He was young, fairly good looking, of gay spirits, dressed in the best Nome fashion and bore vestiges of former sedate and respectable associations. He was a good deal of a gambler, but it was generally believed that one of his several claims worked by a half a dozen ruined miners yielded him more than sufficient gold to warrant his extravagant style of living.

Lulu Watts had the satisfaction of knowing that she had easily won him from the side of the most fascinating of the two Carlisle sisters, but the knowledge did not cause her to exhibit any exultation. She accepted the attentions of Jack Kirk at first as no more than the due of one of her superior endowment and training.

Discussion of the play in which Miss Watts was to make her debut is well remembered by those who were in her confidence and her manager's. At the outset the young woman said, as though disposing of the matter finally:

"I don't dance or sing, and I won't peddle beer in the audience."

"That's all right," answered the manager, soothingly, "we're not going to ask you to. You shall give 'em tragedy. But it must be the real thing—no half-hearted imitation. Now, I've an idea that if you should play the part of a calous woman betrayed and deserted by her lover and you lured him to a lonely spot, stabbed him to death, cut off his head and held it up before the audience—I've got a stage manager who can arrange it all—the boys would be tickled to death.'

"Whoever heard of a woman exhibiting the bloody head of her victim on the stage?" asked Miss Watts, with scorn.

"How about Salome and the head of John the Baptist?" demanded the manager in triumph.

So the manager and the stage director set to work and produced the manuscript, properties, scenery and costumes of a local tradgedy, such as they believed would lure the entire population away from the Carlisle sisters.

It was called "A Woman's Vengeance." It was produced with tremendous success and had an uninterrupted run up to the day of Lulu Watts' arrest for the murder of Jack Kirk.

An outline of the final situation of "A Woman's Vengeance" shows plainly where Lulu Watts got her inspiration for the crime for which she is now on trial. She played it with extraordinary effect upon her crude and ingenious audiences.

But not until Jack Kirk had grown weary of his tragedy queen and left her as he had left the Carlisle girl—this time for a new divinity at the rival theater—did Lulu Watts play this scene with her full power. In the last performance she fairly electrified her uncultured audience with the furious passion with which she uttered the final speech, holding the supposed severed head aloft:

"Thus do I avenge the wrong you did me! Thus should all women avenge the wrongs men do them!"

In her boarding house it was known that she brooded. Jack Kirk made no effort to conceal his new passion. He even took his charmer to see "A Woman's Revenge," and laughed when she shuddered at the tragedy of the denouement. He gave her jewels, more costly than he had ever bestowed on Lulu Watts. Finally it was gossiped that he would give her what he never had really intended giving the tragedy queen—his hand and fortune.

The young miner's hotel was only a short walk from the theater where Lulu Watts played. His rooms were on the first floor and easy of access to anybody—he kept no valuables there, beyond the comparatively valueless watch he wore and a small supply of ready money or gold dust.

This was a gala day at the opposition theater. That is, perhaps, the reason why no one saw Lulu Watts emerge upon the street or office where she went. In the same way the fact may be accounted for that no one saw the girl enter Kirk's hotel.

The murder was discovered by one of Kirk's fellow lodgers. Hearing strange sounds in the next room and remembering that the young miner had not been feeling well that day, he started to his assistance. While in the hallway he heard a woman's voice. The tones seemed familiar. He pushed open Kirk's door and stood amazed before what seemed a repetition of the last scene of "A Woman's Vengeance."

Lulu Watts stood beside Kirk's bed hacking with a knife at the miner's half-severed head. Knowing the history of their love affair, he realized in an instant the whole situation. As nearly as possible in her over-wrought state the girl had duplicated with horrible reality her final scene in "A Woman's Vengeance." The voice he had heard was that of Lulu Watts as she hacked at Kirk's throat, after stabbing him through the heart.

KEYNOTE SOUNDED

For Indiana Campaign By Senator Beveridge.

Ship Subsidy Bill Ignored By the Platform.

Indianapolis, April 23.—The committee, which has had in charge the formulation of the platform to be adopted at the state convention which convened at 2 o'clock this afternoon, held a short session this morning and adjourned to meet again at noon. It is hardly likely that the document will be drawn up before night. It has been definitely decided that there will be no allusion to the ship subsidy bill and the Chinese exclusion act will also be ignored. It is agreed that it will be best to omit mention of measures now pending before congress. There will be an energetic plank against the trusts.

As far as the candidates are concerned, there was little change in the situation over night. The main fight still continues to be over the attorney generalship, and this Miller, of Goshen, continues to hold his own, his strength being about equal to that of all the other candidates combined. With some factions of the party, the declaration is still industriously circulated that he is the candidate of Senator Beveridge, who recently secured a federal judgeship for a Goshen man, the object being to injure Miller by the assertion that Goshen is receiving more than its share of the patronage. Senator Beveridge has persistently denied that Miller is his man, although he declares he is friendly to him.

Senator Beveridge was chosen the chairman of the state convention and was given a very enthusiastic reception. His speech was awaited with interest, as it was understood he would strike the "keynote of the campaign." The senator said, in part:

This is the first convention of the first campaign of the twentieth century. Let our declarations be worthy of the hour. The American people are abreast of the

A SPECIAL GRAND JURY

Is Asked By the Republican Executive Committee of St. Paul to Investigate Alleged Frauds at Recent Primaries.

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Hascal R. Brill, of the district court, was waited on this morning by a committee of the Republican executive committee which asked that a special grand jury be summoned to investigate alleged election frauds. The committee consisted of Chairman W. B. Webster, Renville Chinnock, J. N. Kirby, Fred C. Schiffman, D. R. Freeze, D. L. Walther and W. L. Ames.

Judge Brill informed the committee that the calling of a special grand jury was a matter so important that he would not act without consulting the other judges. He said he would try to take the matter up with them today.

In the meantime, he suggested, if there was any fear that the guilty parties might escape, the petitioners had the usual recourse of warrants before the municipal court. From Judge Brill the committee went to Assistant County Attorney O'Neil and asked for warrants for the arrest of Charles Frolgh, James Thornton, William Backus, James Kenney, George F. Fries, George Brown and J. X. Kelley, the men alleged to have made fraudulent registrations.

Mr. O'Neil asked to see the poll books before taking action.

During the conference the statement was made that the police knew the alleged repeaters and were able to lay hands on them if warrants were issued. Mr. O'Neil declined to take the responsibility of issuing the warrants without consulting with Mr. Kane, who is engaged in a criminal trial. He will discuss the matter with Mr. Kane at noon and give his reply to the committee this afternoon.

AN AERIAL SPEEDWAY

St. Louis, April 23.—The conference of airship experts yesterday decided upon a figure 8 course as the aerial speedway over which all contests in competition for the world's fair capital prize of $100,000 shall be winged. The course has been laid out by experts, with its start marked by a huge captive balloon above the Washington university tract of the exposition site and its elliptical orbits sweep outward over the open court to the southeast and then northwest. Captive balloons will mark the measurement of ten miles in the air over which distance the airships must fly in the shortest available time of a series of trials to capture the prize.

A CURB PUT ON GEN. FUNSTON

Washington, April 23.—By order of the president, Gen. Funston has been directed to cease further discussion of public questions.

The president has telegraphed Gen. Funston not to speak at the Middlesex banquet in Boston.

Denver, April 23.—To a reporter of the Associated Press, Gen. Funston said, with reference to the statement from Washington that the president had directed him (Funston) to cease further discussion of public questions, that he had not as yet received any such order from Washington. Continuing the conversation, the general said that in future his public utterances would be free from any reference to the Philippines, intimating that his speeches as printed, as a rule, were full of misstatements and very badly garbled.

TWO KILLED BY BURGLARS

Chicago, April 23.—Peter Fafinski was instantly shot to death and his 19-year-old son Julius probably mortally wounded while resisting two robbers who attempted to loot the cash drawer in Fafinski's grocery, 49 Bradley street, early today. Several hours after the shooting Thomas Glynn, with a bullet wound in his arm, gave himself up to the police. He said that he and a man named R. Smith had tried to hold up the proprietor of the store and his son, and that a revolver duel followed, in which he was shot. He said he knew one man was killed in the affray, but he was in doubt as to whether he or Smith did the killing.

LEE WAS DEAD WHEN BURIED

St. Paul, April 23.—A La Crosse, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The grave of George H. Lee, the Minnesota man who died rom falling from a buggy on the Mississippi wagon bridge, was opened to satisfy the clamor of neighbors, and it was conclusively proven that he was not buried alive. He got into the buggy after the accident and drowsed into death. As no doctor was called, the story became current that he had been buried alive.

MANY SEARCH FOR BODIES

Cairo, Ill., April 23.—Many arrived here today in search of the bodies of friends lost by the burning of the City of Pittsburg last Sunday. Most of the visitors went with the insurance men, wreckers and divers to the wreck at Turner's Landing, where the hull is still reported burning. Only two of the four bodies found out of the seventy lost have been identified.

The names of E. L. Blackwell and daughter, Fannie, and W. D. Blackwell, of Boyle, Miss.; of Glen Bowman, of Portsmouth, Ohio, and Miss Laura Dowell, Bayou Mills, Ky. have been added to the list of the lost.

REEVES IS PARDONED

His Release Was Ordered By Governor General Wood.

Was Found Guilty of Complicity In Postal Frauds.

This Action, Though Expected, Has Caused Much Comment.

Havana, April 23.—Governor General Wood issued an order yesterday pardoning W. H. Reeves, who was recently sentenced to ten years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $35,516 for complicity in the Cuban postal frauds. Reeves was liberated at once.

Gen. Wood says he pardoned Reeves because he was a witness for the state. The order pardoning him did not come as a surprise, for it has been generally understood ever since Estes G. Rathbone was first accused of connection with the postal frauds that Reeves had been promised immunity by the military government. This had been denied, as well as the fact that the government had been using Reeves as a witness for the state. The matter was referred to by counsel for Rathbone in summing up their client's case. Rathbone's lawyers declared that this promise of immunity had influenced Reeves to make statements against Rathbone.

AN ALL-AMERICAN ROAD

Will Be Built In Norway This Summer to Reach Large Quantities of Iron In the Norwegian Mines.

New York, April 23.—A party of engineers will construct this summer the first American built railroad in Europe and will sail this week. The road will be built to reach large quantities of iron ore at the Norwegian mines. The engineers in the party are former State Engineer Adams, his son, Frank, and Arthur O'Brien. On reaching Bremen, they will meet Henschel Roberts, former deputy state engineer, who has charge of the biulding of the new road and will accompany him to Moo, on the west coast of Norway, 300 miles north of Christiania, where the mouth of a rock-walled ford will be made into a great harbor. From the docks there, the new railroad will run to the ore fields, eighteen miles away. Three thousand laborers will be employed in the work. The Gillison Ore Mining syndicate of London is the backer of the scheme. A director of the corporation is Thomas A. Edison. Most of the material used will be sent from the United States and the rolling stock will be of American make. It is estimated that the total cost of the road will be, or exceed $1,000,000.

BOCAS DEL TORO RETAKEN

The timely arrival of the reinforcements on the Hercynia and a threat of bombardment on the part of the government gunboat by Gen. Pinzon impelled the insurgents to capitulate to the government forces.

HAD A GRAFT FROM THE DOG

Saginaw, Mich., April 23.—Physicians of the college hospital have performed a remarkable operation, that of grafting a piece of a dog's skull upon a human head. The patient is John Olberg, of Kenton, Houghton county. He is now recovering from an old affliction. Olberg's skull was fractured four years ago. Over the hole, which was an inch and a half in diameter, there formed a foreign growth. This pressed on the brain and caused convulsions. When it was decided to operate on Olberg the doctors chloroformed a dog and removed a piece of its skull. The piece taken was then implanted in the opening in Olberg's head.

M'CARTHY IS WILLING

Grand Rapids Senator Is Ou For Congress.

Yields to the Pressure of His Friends.

Senator C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for congress. Mr. McCarthy made the announcement at the St. Louis this morning.

The senator arrived in town last night. His friends have for years urged his name for the nomination. Unlike many others with such a strong and urgent following, however, Mr. McCarthy insistently remained in the background. There was plenty of time, he answered to those that besought him to allow them to make authorized use of his name. Finally, when the opposition to the renomination of Judge Morris culminated in a rigid search for opposing candidates and Senator McCarthy's name was used generally and with so much freedom as to indicate authority, he came out and declared that as long as Judge Morris continued to be a candidate for the office he would never accept the nomination.

The senator returned from last winter's regular session of the state legislature determined to leave politics for the continuous practice of his profession—that of the law. At that time it was generally accepted that Judge Morris would again be a candidate for the congressional nomination. Since the latter's positive withdrawal from the field, Senator McCarthy's friends have redoubled their efforts to induce him to consent to run.

After being urged this morning to declare his position, Senator McCarthy said:

"Well, you may say that I am a candidate for the nomination. Any man that has lived in a place for ten or twelve years, who has not gained enough friends who desire to push him forward, is not very fortunate. I have been fortunate enough since coming to live in this part of the country to have made some pretty good friends. They have long urged me to become a candidate for congress, and have used considerable pressure to influence me to do so. I have steadfastly refused to authorize them to use my name in any way in connection with the nomination as long as Judge Morris did not declare his withdrawal from the field. Since the judge has withdrawn, however, the friends who so long have tried to get me to turn to a political career have again urged me to make the race. I have hesitated about coming to a decision for several reasons. You may now, if you wish, however, say that the Republicans of the district are at liberty to consider my name for the nomination if they choose.

"The only other candidate seems to be Mr. Bede, for whom I have a most friendly feeling. I would not say or countenance anything against him to gain the nomination.

"There seems to be no, strictly speaking, Duluth candidate. The fact that this city has not a name to present leaves me freer to decide as I have done."

Mr. McCarthy declared that he had not come here too investigate the situation at all. His mission, he said, was some law business. He had been unable, however, to keep away from the discussion of the congressional subject, and while he had not intended to speak positively at this time, he had finally concluded to do so.

It is said that, as between Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Bede, the intimate personal and political friends of Judge Morris would without question declare their preference for the Grand Rapids senator. Whether they will do so before waiting further developments in the situation is considered somewhat doubtful.

CLAIMS RIGHT OF TRIAL

Theodore Bung, Once a Brooklyn Druggist Who Has Been In Asylum For Eighteen Years, to Be Tried For Murder.

New York, April 23.—Claiming as his right under the constitution trial by jury for a murder committed nearly eighteen years ago, Theodore Bung, one a wealthy druggist, has made before Judge Marean, of the supreme court in Brooklyn, so strong plea for liberation from the state hospital for the insane at Matteawan, N. Y., that the judge has declared him sane and committed him to the warden of the Tombs to await the trial for which he asked.

Bung, who says he has been sane for the last four years, was produced in court by Dr. H. E. Allison, medical superintendent of the asylum, in answer to a writ of habeas corpus Judge Marean had issued to lawyers who had taken sufficient interest in Bung to institute the proceedings in his behalf.

Bung became insane in 1884. He suffered from the delusion that a well known actress was trying to make him marry her and was following him from place to place. He was then 34 years old.

Among Bung's friends was a druggist, whose name was Nocklin. Bung became a victim of the idea that Nocklin was in league with the actress, and shot him to death.

Bung was held responsible for the murder and indicted, but a sheriff's jury pronounced him insane. Since that time he has been confined in the asylum.

Bung, now, after eighteen years, has appeared in court and presented such a strong plea that the judge ordered a jury trial on the old indictment.

WATER CURE NOT BAD

Lieut. James Who Has Taken It From Natives Says That He Would Prefer the Treatment to a Sound Beating.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 23.—Charles E. James, formerly first lieutenant of the Thirty-sixth regiment, U. S. V., who is now a resident of Los Angeles, said in an interview that the present agitation against the use of the "water cure" in the Philippines, is due to the untruthful and exaggerated reports which magnify the cruelty of the operation.

"I have taken the "water cure" and know what it is, since it was administered by the Filipinos," said Lieut. James. "I have seen it administered to several hundred natives and know its effects. In the first place, let me state that I never knew of the 'water cure' killing a victim. When the statement is made that the subject is given water until his lungs are filled, it is an untruth. Any one of common sense knows that a man would strangle to death in a very short space of time in such circumstances.

"My own experience took place in June, 1900. Capt. Jack Roberts, a son of Gen. Roberts, a private by the name of Gallion and myself were scouting just north of Blacanabato Pass, out from San Miguel, when a force under Gen. Treson surrounded us. We were taken into the mountains and forced to march three days without food. We made eighteen to twenty-two miles a day. This starvation was carried out with the intention of forcing us to divulge army news. It did not succeed, however. At the end of that time we were given uncooked rice to eat, and in the evening we were introduced to the "water cure" by natives called "tubig."

"Regarding the effects of the cure I will state that the distension of the stomach and the accompanying pain is all there is to it. I strangled once, but one quick cough ended it. The cure is not pleasant, but I would rather it than receive a beating. My companions suffered no after effect that I could notice."

IN DEMAND.

Building Improvement Loans Are Being Sought For.

Loan agents report a greatly improved demand for loans for building improvements. Money is easy—one of the things whose price in the matter of loans at least nobody can object to. The enlarged demand is taken to indicate that there is more general intention to build this season than there was for a time just after the spring season opened. Many prospective builders of dwelling houses are visiting loan agencies to see what they can do. They find plenty of incentive in cheap money and plenty of it, provided they have legitimate security to offer.

A great many people who have vacant property are figuring on making it remunerative. They reason that it would be a great deal better to improve it and have the property earning something toward meeting interest and tax charges, even at the prevailing cost of building. As far as loan agents can discover there are few plans for flat building.

COLLECT THE TAXES

Sheriff's Deputies Will Go After Personal Property Taxes.

If They Are Not Paid, Deputies Will Seize Property.

How Costs Pile Up If Taxes Are Not Paid.

The Sargent Collection agency will start operations in a few days.

The Sargent referred to is William C. Sargent, sheriff of St. Louis county, but this does not mean that he has embarked in a new enterprise. The collections are for St. Louis county, and they are of delinquent personal property taxes. Warrants are being prepared now, and in a few days the deputy sheriffs will start out with them. The warrants direct the sheriff to collect the taxes, and if he cannot get the money any other way to distrain property belonging to the delinquents in order to satisfy the county's claims.

The number of warrants this year is about the same as last year, but as there are more taxpayers this year than last the proportion of delinquents is not so large. The lists must be returned by June 1.

With the tax as the groundwork, the proceeding of collection after the tax has become delinquent works up quite a pyramid of cash.

First comes a penalty of 10 per cent, then clerk's fees of 25 cents, then the sheriff's fees, including 50 cents for the warrant and more for mileage, together with 5 per cent for collecting. If the taxes are not paid when the warrants are presented they go to judgment, and then more clerk's and sheriff's fees, with interest, are added to the pile.

The policy of the county officers in these proceedings is much more rigid than it used to be. Formerly the collection was a more or less perfunctory matter, and if people did not pay after a certain amount of pressing they were let alone. Of late the tendency has been to push the collections all along the line. Up to within a year or two the law requiring the seizure of property to pay the taxes was disregarded, except as an empty bluff. Now it is carried out in all that the law requires.

Formerly when taxes went to judgment they were left there. Now executions are taken out, and delay in payment only means that the tax will amount to very much more. A small tax carried to judgment, with a little time elapsing for interest to run, amounts before the end to quite a large sum.

IS HEAVY.

Westbound Lake and Rail Freight Movement Is Active.

Lake and rail line men report that the westbound movement of merchandise, via their route, which was light for some time after the early opening of navigation has now become quite heavy. They believe its volume will be well maintained during the entire season of navigation. The general prosperity of the country, they think, will be sufficient reason for a large volume of this traffic. While traffic with the central and trunk line roads is falling off, it is reasoned that this is due in large part to the fact that traffic is rapidly becoming diverted now to the lakes.

Shingles and lumber from the Pacific coast have begun moving east, via Duluth and the lakes, but the movement is not very large as yet. This is not due to any diminution in the demand for either coast shingles or lumber, but is explained by the fact that navigation has opened so much earlier than the trade was prepared for that it will be some weeks yet before all shippers are in shape to handle business on a normal spring basis.

SHAKESPEARE'S

Birth Is Being Celebrated at Stratford-on-Avon.

New York, April 23.—Stratford-on-Avon is celebrating the occasion of the festival commemorating Shakespeare's birth with such thoroughgoing enthusiasm, that it almost amounts to an orgie, says a London dispatch to the Herald. The celebration began a week and a half ago and the festival is not going to end for another week and a half. The chief feature of the celebration is the usual elaborate series of Shakespearean performances, which take place nightly. Stratford is full of devout pilgrims from everywhere, among them being many Americans.

AFFECTS THE CROPS

Blizzard In Wheat Country Will Further Delay Seeding.

Floods of Few Weeks Ago Had Already Caused Delays.

No Decrease In Wheat Acreage Expected--- Corn Will Increase.

The snow storm of yesterday out in the Northwest will, it is believed, add to the influences that have already worked to reduce the wheat acreage of North Dakota and in the Red River valley of Minnesota.

The wheat raising area in the Red River valley and west of there in North Dakota was already several weeks behind time. Seeding began only last week in the Red River valley, and very little progress had been made when yesterday's blizzard occurred to still further retard progress. The combined effect of the heavy snowstorms three weeks ago along the Great Northern and of the floods along the Northern Pacific was to make the ground so wet that seeding operations were impossible up to a few days ago. Yesterday's storm, it is felt by grain men here, will add another obstacle of the same kind to the situation.

The wet condition of the soil will not result in a decrease of the total grain acreage. The result of not being able to get wheat put in in time will be to add to the acreage devoted to corn, flax and other grains.

Whether there will be any actual reduction in the wheat area as compared with last season is another question. So many new farmers are going in to North Dakota all the time and breaking additions to the arable area that every year the extent of the tilled acreage surprises the trade. This development will be particularly notable this season in such old country as that between Bismarck and Fargo. New farmers who settle there work land that theretofore had been considered too far from railroads to pay. This is also true of the territory lying between the Great Northern spurs running north from the main line. Then, besides this, it transpires every year that large owners of farm land who have not plowed up all their holdings conclude to make use of more of it.

It is considered pretty certain, however, that the wheat will be very largely less than it would have been with favorable weather conditions for seeding. It is said in this connection that the largest comparative increase in acreage in the Northwest is likely to be in corn. This impression is gained from the demand this spring for corn implements.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Will Be Made On Denver & Rio Grande Roads.

Denver, April 23.—Following the filing of articles of incorporation of the Rio Grande, Pueblo and Southern companies, the announcement that the D. & R. G. is preparing to make improvements in the system both in Colorado and Utah, which will cost several million dollars, is made.

Manager Herbert of the Rio Grande says that the Rio Grande, Pueblo & Southern was to construct in the future a line to take the place of the joint track and to be the main line of the Denver & Rio Grande from Pueblo south.

"When the new line will be built, I cannot," said Mr. Herbert. "It will place Walsenburg on the main line of the Rio Grande and will shorten the southern route. At present the Rio Grande runs south to Cuchara Junction, some distance from Walsenburg."

A BURNING BLACKSMITH

Changed Food and Put Out the Fire.

Even sturdy blacksmiths sometimes discover that, notwithstanding their daily exercise and resulting good health, if their food is not well selected trouble will follow, but in some cases a change of food to the right sort will quickly relieve the sufferer, for generally such active men have fine constitutions and can, with a little change of diet, easily rid themselves of the disease.

I. E. Overdorf, Vilas, Penn., a blacksmith, says: "Two months ago I got down so bad with stomach troubles that I had to quit my business. About ten o'clock each morning I was attacked by burning pains in the stomach so bad I was unable to work.

"Our groceryman insisted upon my changing breakfasts and using Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food instead of the ordinary breakfast of meat, potatoes, etc. So I tried and at once began to mend. The new food agreed with my stomach perfectly and the pains all ceased. I kept getting better and better every day and now I am able to follow my business better than before in years. I am a thousand times obliged to the makers of Grape-Nuts for the great benefits the food has given."

Gentlemen:—"I suffered with pain in my right side for over eight years. Doctors said my liver was affected. My complexion was dark and yellow, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and was tired all the time. I took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I read in the paper of Peruna, and decided to give it a trial. I felt better before the first bottle was gone, and after taking three bottles I was cured, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."

LENA HILTON.

Miss Lena Hilton is president of the Wednesday Whist club, of Los Angeles.

As a spring medicine peruna is a never failing remedy. It cleanses the blood through digestion, and gives tone to the whole system by increasing the nutritive value of the food. "Spring fever," as it is sometimes called, which produces a tired out, sleepy feeling, and inability to do much mental or physical work, is the result of a sluggish digestion.

The great popularity that Peruna has is due to the fact that in all such cases it at once corrects digestive derangements and enriches the blood by purifying this very important source of that vital fluid.

Mrs. J. E. Finn, 82 East High street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete change and rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look around for other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated it, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need. "MRS. J. E. FINN."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MUST REOPEN SHOPS.

Omaha Takes Action on Union Pacific's Move.

Omaha, April 23.—The city council at last night's session unanimously passed a resolution demanding that the Union Pacific railroad retain its foundry in this city and that it be reopened at once.

The foundry was closed ten days ago and the matter brought to the attention of the city authorities by the Moulders' union. The resolution passed cites the fact of an agreement entered into between the city and railway company, whereby the city granted certain concessions in the matter of streets and other property and the railway agreed to maintain its shops perpetually in this city, and it demands that the company live up to the contract.

CHARGES ARE HEARD

Railroad Commission Investigates Conduct of Inspector J. A. Mead.

Accused of Receiving Money From An Elevator Company.

Complaint of a Scale Company Is Also Taken Up.

C. F. Staples and J. G. Miller, of the state warehouse and railroad commission, held an investigation at the Spalding hotel this morning of charges against James A. Mead, a deputy state grain inspector. It was claimed that Mead had been receiving money paid for the purpose of influencing him in the determination of grades of wheat. It is understood that the charges were preferred by the Zenith Elevator company. No decision in the matter was formally announced by the commissioners, but it is reported that the testimony showed that the money had been lent to Mead, instead of paid to him as consideration for bias of his official judgment.

The story as it leaks out is that Mead had borrowed some money from Mr. Bagley of the elevator company. It is said that he sought to borrow some more for some specific purpose or another, and that a disagreement arose between the two which culminated in Mr. Bagley preferring charges. The only official information that could be obtained about the matter this afternoon was that charges that money had been used or solicited with improper purposes has been made and that the charges had been investigated this morning. It was said further that the testimony went to show that the offense had not only been committed once, but several times. Further than that nothing could be learned.

Another source of information has it that the investigation proved merely that Mead had arranged with Mr. Bagley for a temporary loan, and that when it came to be made a disagreement arose as to the terms or the amount, and that the preferring of the charges was a result of this dispute rather than of the mere act of asking for a loan. It is said the loan was to be made in a legitimate way, and for no other consideration than the interest.

The commissioners, it is understood, had intended to take up another complaint that had bee made to them about an action of State Weighmaster J. B. Sutphin. This complaint was made by the Standard Scale company, which was disappointed in the failure of its scales to be retained in the new Northern elevator at West Superior. Eighteen scales were put in place by the Standard, involving about $7000 or $8000. When they came to be tested by State Scale Expert Neale the scales, it is said, were found to be defective. They were subsequently removed and the same number of scales were bought of the Fairbanks Scale company, whose price was about $3000 greater. The matter of the test of the first scales put in naturally became a matter of public record in the weighmaster's office. The complaint of the discruntled scale company was that Weighmaster Sutphin had no right to give to the successful company the records of the matter, which it claims were used in publicly advertising the failure of the test to the disadvantage of the Standard company. This complaint was finally not taken up, and Mr. Staples left for St. Paul on an early afternoon train. Mr. Sutphin's defense is said to be that the test record was a matter of public record and he could not withhold it from the competing scale company any more than he could from anybody else.

Be Wise Today!

'Tis Madness to Defer!

THE USE OF

Paine's Celery Compound

In Springtime Means Banishment of Disease and the Establishment of Strength, Vigor, and Permanent Health.

Well meaning and really worthy people often err when sickness and disease come to them. Too often they are content to follow blindly the advice of second rate physicians, who in nine cases out of every ten fail to properly diagnose the ills they are called upon to cure. Too frequently our sick people put their trust and confidence in common, advertised pills, nervines, sarsaparillas, and other liquid concoctions. Terrible disappointments and results come to the users of such medicines; sickness and disease are aggravated—their dangers vastly increased.

Happy are the people who, when disease has laid its hand upon them, use Dr. Phelps' life-giving prescription, Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that stands without an equal for feeding nerves, purifying the blood, and building up the weakened and run down system.

Weakly, sickly, and disease-laden mortal, it is madness to defer the use of that health-giving medicine that has rescued and saved its tens of thousands in every land.

Paine's Celery Compound is the one true specific recognized and prescribed today by our most eminent and our most honest practitioners for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system. You need its use this very day; your condition demands it; common sense and a knowledge of what Paine's Celery Compound has done for others, should be your guide at this critical time of your life. PAINE'S is the kind that makes sick people well! See that the name is on both bottle and wrapper. Do not be induced to take a substitute or any imitation; you need the kind that has cured others.

THE DAKOTAS

Charles Betz Living Near Harvey Takes His Life.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—News has been received of the suicide of Charles Betz, residing near Harvey. His wife had gone for a pail of water and on her return found him unconscious on the bed. Before she could give him an emetic he was dead. He was despondent and had talked of ending his life. He leaves a wife and child.

Martin Aamot, residing near Fessenden, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. His head was blown off. A man who was riding with him in a wagon was handing Aamot the gun when it went off. Aamot was 22 years of age, and had come from Long Prairie, Minn, to take a claim.

Grand Forks—Contracts were let for the erection of the Masonic Temple. All go to local people. The cost of the lots, building and furnishings will be over $30,000.

Jamestown—At a special session of the city council the contract for a standipipe waterworks system was let to Horton & Co., of Chicago, whose bid was $4525. The contract for laying connections and furnishing the material was let to Fairbanks, Morse & Co., whose bid was $2615.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The latest arrival at the Sioux Falls penitentiary is George McElvain, who was brought here by Sheriff Rathgaber, of Yankton county, and who will serve a term of four years for manslaughter in the second degree. One night last fall, while at Gayville, McElvain entered a saloon and was invited by two brothers to drink. Beer was called for by McElvain, but the brothers refused to permit him to drink it, insisting that he take whisky. He declined, and a fight resulted. During the struggle McElvain used a knife with such effect that one of the brothers fell dead from his wounds.

About fifty of the leading business and professional men of Sioux Falls have completed the work of organizing a new golf club, which will be known as the Thistle Golf club. A fine club house will be erected on the links south of Sioux Falls and it is intended to make the club a feature of the social and athletic life of this part of the state.

A settlement has been effected between Charles H. Krause and Rev. Charles E. Giddings, and the case against the latter on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses has been dismissed. In the complaint, Krause alleged that Giddings borrowed $2500 of him, giving as collateral security 750,001 shares of mining stock in the Colorado-Dakota Mining company, representing to Krause that this was a control of the stock. Giddings afterwards informed Krause that it was only one share more than a fourth of the stock, as the capitalization had been increased to 3,000,000 shares and Krause had not been permitted to see the minutes of the meeting at which the increase was voted. Giddings settled by giving Krause the control of the new capital stock as security for the loan.

Lead—E. T. Kochler, an engineer on the Burlington, fell from a forty-foot trestle, striking on a concrete wall, death ensuing in a short time.

Yankton—Janna & Wagner's Lesterville store was entered by burglars, who robbed the safe and the cash drawer of all the money they contained, about $32. A saloon was also robbed of some goods and cash in the drawer.

Pierre—Bids were opened for $150,000 in revenue warrants, to run one year. Eleven were submitted, the lowest being at 4 per cent. Three South Dakota banks made equal bids, the Sioux Falls National, First National of Deadwood and the First National of Lead City. The loan will probably be divided among the three.

COMBINE OF MINES

In Cripple Creek District Will Soon Be Effected.

Will Control All the Greatest Producing Properties.

Its Capitalization Is Placed at Sixty Million Dollars.

Colorado Springs, Col., April 23.—The Gazette today says: A movement is on foot and will probably be carried through within a few weeks that will bring into one company, with a capitalization of $60,000,000, the greatest producing mines of the Cripple Creek district, the Colorado Springs & Cripple Creek District railroad and the Portland mill, located in this city.

The companies to which the suggestion has been made by President Burns of the Portland, and which have now endorsed the plan as one that would result to the great advantage of all parties to the consolidation, are as follows:

The Portland Gold Mining company, the Strong Gold Mining company, the Ajax Gold Mining company, the Gold Coin Mining and Leasing company, the new consolidation recently announced by the Woods Investment company, the Anchoria-Leland Mining and Milling company, the Midland Gold Mining company, the Gold King Mining company, the Colorado Springs & Cripple Creek District Railroad company and the Portland mill.

times; the Republican party must keep abreast of the American people. Party victories, as such, are nothing; the progress of the American people is everything. Harmony with the onward movement of the nation makes a party invincible. Opposition to the progress of the republic means deserved defeat. And so it is that issues are not invented by men. Issues are ordained by events.

From the foundation of the government the natural movement of natural forces has dictated platforms and won campaigns; and politicians, statesmen, parties have triumphed or gone down as they have interpreted or opposed those eternal powers. What then is the movement of those natural forces today?

In our internal commerce and industry it is toward co-operation and combination. This is only another way of saying that civilization is progressing. Originally it was each man for himself. Then came business partnerships. Then a time came when a partnership was no longer strong enough to transact the larger business demanded by increasing civilization, and joint stock companies became a necessity of the commercial world. Labor obeyed the natural law of combination, and workingmen's organizations became and are today, when wisely directed, a mighty force for good; workingmen are abler, nobler, more self-respecting.

Just as the law of co-operation developed in the labor world, so it has developed in the world of capital out of natural conditions and the necessities of the people. For example: The farmer ships his grain to distant points, hundreds, thousands of miles away. He needs cheap rate and quick dispatch. Short and separate lines of railroad were inconvenient, high-priced, unsafe and slow. The business man required his mail by the swiftest means; delay of a day, an hour, may mean disaster. Thus transportation men found that their profit lay in meeting the necessities of the producing and the business world. Here in Indiana segregated roads were consolidated into the "Big Four" lines. The old "J. M. & L.," "Vincennes" and "Vandalia" were absorbed by the Pennsylvania. What followed? Improved service, increased employment of labor, higher wages, regular pay, reduced rates on freight, lower fares for travel, directness, speed and safety.

Or take a manufacturing corporation as an illustration—the steel trust: It employs over 20,000 more laboring men now than the total number employed by all the establishments which were consolidated into this single company. The steel trust employs today more than 150,000 laborers and pays them more than $165,000,000 a year in wages, not including officers and salaries. The average wage to each laborer is 20 per cent larger than before consolidation, and aggregate wages are over 40 per cent greater than before.

Has this movement oppressed the people? It has not oppressed the workingmen, because more laborers are now employed at higher wages than ever before in history; and in saving banks alone American workingmen have on deposit today over $2,500,000,000—more than enough ready cash to buy out any ten of the greatest corporations of the world. Is it said that this movement throws labor out of employment? When the railroad came, the stage-driver and horse-dealer thought they were thrown out of employment; but, instead, new and better employment was provided. When the self-binder came, harvesters thought their occupation gone, but, instead, new and better occupation came. This whole development, throwing men here and there out of employment for a day, furnishes permanently increased employment for the ever enlarging number of American workingmen; and where 4,251,613 wage-earners were employed in manufacture ten years ago, nearly 6,000,000 workingmen are earning higher wages now in the single occupation of manufacture alone. This movement then has not oppressed labor. It has not oppressed the agriculturalists because American farmers in the last six years have paid mortgages on their farms to the amount of $300,000,000; and the American farmer could today with his live-stock alone pay the entire national debts of England and Germany, and still have over $250,000,000 left. It has not oppressed any class, because the well-ebing of the whole American people is the astonishment and envy of the world.

But while we are in harmony with the times, we are not blind to the evils which cling to the great trunk which itself is sound. But we insist that the tree shall not be felled because of the evils. When combinations of capital attempt to arbitrarily raise prices from motives of mere greed or unjustly reduce wages merely to increase dividends, they must be prevented, punished. But apply a remedy—do not administer a medicine of death.

What, then, does common sense suggest as the first step toward a reasonable remedy? It is to test the applicability of any existing law on the subject, is it not? And this is the method that the president of the United States has pursued. What is the next step which practical thought suggests for preventing the evils of modern combination of capital and labor? It is clear that we cannot destroy them. But we must prevent their frauds, chain their violence, and, as the president of the United States has said, "muzzle their greed," just as we do with evil men. A method must be found to supervise their operations, to give the people information of their purposes and condition. It must be a national method, for the great twentieth century combinations of capital operate throughout the nations. In the republic's internal trade state lines have been abolished; and commerce is hardly conscious even of the confines of countries.

All over the world we seek new markets—seek to increase existing markets. One market for part of our surplus is at our doors; and to seize that market the Republican party will establish reciprocity with our wards in Cuba. This island, which we have made anew, bought from all the world even under the paralyzing rule of Spain over $8,000,000 worth of products every year. Absolutely everything the people of Cuba need is produced in American factories and farms. Cuba's purchases in the future will increase in ever accumulating volume. Where Cuba under Spain annually bought over $8,000,000 worth of products from the world, Americanized Cuba in ten years will annually buy $200,000,000 worth of products. The Republican party proposes that Cuba shall be permitted to spend that $200,000,000 in the United States. And that is what the first Republican measure of reciprocity means.

It is said that our reciprocity with Cuba is not broad enough, we answer that there must be a beginning, and from its results we can extend the policy if successful—modify it where defective; abandon it if advisable. The problem of reciprocity with the world is as delicate as the problem of supervising the commercial and industrial developments within the republic itself. All business is adjusted to

MAY GET THE PLANT

City and West Duluth Water Company Not Far Apart.

Difference In Price Between the Two Is About $5000.

City Also Claims Considerable Amount Due From Company.

The city may soon own the West Duluth water plant.

An offer of $140,000 will probably be made the Duluth Light and Water company.

That amout is practically $5000 less than the valuation at which the company holds its system at present, and $5000 more than the city figures it could parallel the system, in case it settled down to a municipal ownership fight.

The West Duluth system consists of thirteen miles and 879 feet of excellent water pipe, much of which is 16 and 12-inch main. It covers all territory west of Thirty-fourth avenue west and east of Sixty-third avenue west.

It has no pumping system, the water being furnished through the city's plant at Lakewood, and at present sold to the West Duluth company for $800 a month though at one time it was as high as $1200.

About a year ago negotiations were started for the purchase of the plant, but the company desired $156,000, and the city could not meet the price. Negotiations were then dropped.

Now the board of water and light commissioners recommend that an offer of $140,000 be made, less $15,000 due the city from the West Duluth company for water furnished.

Under a contract that has nineteen years to run, the city is bound to pay hydrant rentals to the West Duluth concern at the rate of $12,250 annually. If the city should purchase the plant it would save $231,750 on this contract.

There would probably not be any great reduction in water rates to the West Duluth consumers if the system came under municipal ownership. At present the city rate for a five-room house is $6 a year, while the West Duluth company charges the same amount for a four-room house.

The negotiation for the purchase of this plant will probably be taken up in earnest by the council next week.

Damaged Dock Rigging.

The heavy wind of yesterday is said to have damaged the coal dock now being built for the Jones & Adams company in St. Louis bay, to the extent of about $1000. The damage occurred when the wind was the highest in the morning and the steel rigging that was being erected was thrown thirty or forty feet down to the ground. The loss will fall on the Brown Hoist company, of Cleveland, which was erecting the steel work.

PROGRESS

Is Made In the Business of the Amalgamated Convention.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 23.—The Amalgamated Association is getting well on with its business. The last of the official reports, that of three trustees, has been made, and today and tomorrow the convention will have little or nothing to do while the committees are wrestling with the reports.

The committee on good of the order had an interesting fight on in a proposition to remove the general headquarters from Pittsburg. The Western lodges favor removing the offices from that city to any point further west. The Second district delegates want the office located at Wheeling, as the association is stronger in this section than it is in Pittsburg, Columbus and Youngstown, Ohio, are claimants. The division of the opposition to Pittsburg may result in the retention of the headquarters at that place. Another proposition the good of the order committee is considering is the plea of the national stogie makers for recognition of their league independent of the cigarmakers.

The committee on constitution and general laws has several propositions to consider, most of which are of interest only to associate members. An effort is being made to secure the repeal of the law prohibiting discussion of political or economic topics. The socialists are back of this, and their claim is that instead of assuming a non-partisan attitude, the association should take an active interest in political economy. It is not likely this proposition will meet with favor.

That Tired Feeling

Is a Common Spring Trouble.

It's a sign that the blood is deficient in vitality, just as pimples and other eruptions are signs that the blood is impure.

It's a warning, too, which only the hazardous fail to heed.

They cleanse the blood and clear the complexion.

DROWNED AT MANILA.

Wisconsin Boy Loses Life After Varied Experience.

New Richmond, Wis., April 23.—Intelligence has been received of the death by drowning in Manila bay, March 2, of Private William J. Callahan, Troop D, First U. S. cavalry, who is a son of John Callahan, of Erin. The boy left home about a year ago and was heard from early last autumn in South Africa, where he was fighting Boers. He secured his release from the British army, sailed to San Francisco and there enlisted in the above company. He was 18 years old.

IMPURE BAKING POWDER SEIZED.

The New York Board of Health Find It Contains Alum and Rock, Declare It Dangerous to Health and Dump It Into the River.

The New York papers report that the health department of that city has seized as dangerous to health nearly two tons of cheap mixtures sold for baking powder, and dumped them into the offal scow to be destroyed. More of the powder was found in a Sixth avenue department store. The report of the analysis of the health department stated that it was "an alum baking powder" containing alum and pulverized rock.

The different health authorities seem to have different ways of repressing the sale of bad baking powders. In England they have prosecuted the grocers under the general law and broken up the traffic. In Missouri the sale of alum baking powder is actually prohibited by law. In New York city they seize the unwholesome stuff and cast it into the river, without any discussion. The latter way is certainly effective.

The alum baking powders are usually offered at a low price, 10 to 20 cents a pound, or with some prize, as a temptation to the housewife.

Consumers can protect themselves by buying only high-grade baking powder of established name and reputation. Do not be tempted by the grocer to take something else as "just as good" or "our own brand," for the trials show that the grocer himself is often deceived by unscrupulous makers and is selling an alum powder without knowing it.

There are several good powders on the market; let the housekeeper insist on having what she knows is right, and not be induced to risk the life of the family for an imaginary saving of a few cents.

IN MICHIGAN.

Six Men In Gasoline Launch Had Rough Experience.

Gladstone—A party of six men started Monday afternoon in a gasoline launch for the lightship, near Washington island. Late at night they had not returned and a tug put out in search of them. The tug found the launch at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning about four miles south of Escanaba. It was dragging its anchor in a gale, having exhausted its supply of gasolene. The launch was near some shoals, about a mile from shore, and help came none too soon. Those who composed the party were Mr. Joplin, of Marquette, and Austin Farrell, G. J. Sliming, E. J. Hudson, P. White, J. Olson, of Gladstone.

Sault Ste. Marie—A drunken row occurred yesterday afternoon between Italians in the Metropolitan saloon which may result in the death of Paul Misdell. The saloon was full of Italians and the most of them were more or less drunk. Misdell and a companion got into a row and a fierce fight followed. The combatants were separated and one of them was pushed out the front door and the other out of a side door. Once outside the two got together again, and in the mixup Misdell was stabbed with a dirk knife in the back and in several other places, the most serious being a deep cut just above the kidneys. He will probably die. His assailant escaped.

Hancock—Peter Goerling, who has been one of the proprietors of the Hotel Northwestern at Hancock for the past two years and a half, has sold his interest in the popular hostelry to his partner, Powhatan Bowling, who will continue the business. Mr. Goerling has purchased an interest in the Veilis house, at Wausau, Wis., and left for that place Sunday afternoon. Wausau is Mr. Goerling's old home.

Quincy—It cost Matti Hanaki, of the Quincy location, $85 for hurling a stone through a plate glass window of Peter Welsenen's saloon, on Tezcuco street, Saturday evening. Hanako was ejected from the saloon for some reason or other, and for revenge broke the glass. James Tamblyn, who owns the saloon and lives next door, saw Hanaki in the act and collared him until Marshal Lee came along. The matter was settled in Justice Finn's court yesterday, and Hanaki deposited $100 to defray all costs.

A DOCTOR'S SAD PLIGHT.

"Two years ago, as a result of a severe cold, I lost my voice," writes Dr. M. L. Scarbrough, of Hebron, Ohio, "then began an obstinate cough. Every remedy known to me as a practicing physician for 35 years failed, and I daily grew worse. Being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, I found quick relief and for ten days have felt better than for two years." AT THE HOTELS

The feature of a "conversazione" in a parlor in one of the Duluth hotels the other day was the discomfiture of some bright and clever young men by a raw bell hop. The boy was "new help" and the term was written all over him in appearance and manner. He acted as if he had just come out of the depths of the woods and had never before seen a street car and kindred things of civilization. As before remarked the young men referred to are adept in the use of bon mots, repartee, jokes and everything that goes with them. They rang for a boy, and the unsophisticated young fellow referred to appeared on the scene in quite a gawky manner. The guests wanted some cigars. They tried to explain to the boy what they wanted, and then concluding that he was too green to understand concluded to have some fun with him.

"We want some cigars," he was finally told, "and we want you to go down to the cigar counter and tell them to send us up some 'Undertaker's Delights.'"

The boy was a little puzzled. He was a singed cat. He wasn't quite such a fool as the crowd had taken him for. Though it was Sunday, he didn't have on a frock coat and high hat, but he could feel a thing if it were handed out hard to him, and he realized that a joke was being played on him.

Going down to the cigar counter he told the young man in charge about his experience and said he guessed he wasn't quite so green as "does guys upstairs" took him for.

When the boy returned to the parlor in which the young men were awaiting his arrival with suppressed excitement and snickers, he fished out of his pocket a 5-cent package of cheap cigarets. It is said that he was given half a dollar by each of the jokers in the hope that the real term of it would not leak out.

Why Meat Prices Are High.

The beef trust tells the people that the high prices of meat are caused by the scarcity of beef; that the law of supply and demand is regulating the prices and the monopolists of the trade have nothing to do with it. It would be a difficult matter to make the people believe this, as there is a well formed belief that the beef trust is taking advantage of the existing conditions to increase its profits. Still there is unquestionably a scarcity of cattle, and the principal cause is the great expansion of the meat trade of the United States to almost the entire civilized world. This has drained the cattle farms and ranges until the supply is becoming exhausted. While our packers are supplying the world with meat they are making times hard for home consumers. There is no probability of the foreign trade diminishing; on the contrary, the packers are constantly increasing it in every way possible. There is one thing that can and should be done for the oppressed consumer. The cattle industry is well protected by tariff provisions against competition from abroad. This protection was well enough as long as it was needed. It is not needed now. The cattlemen are thriving too highly at the expense of the whole people. What is needed, and needed urgently, is relief for the millions who are forced to pay extravagant prices for one of the necessities of life. Congress should throw down the protection bars and permit the ingress of the cattle of Mexico, of Canada and of other convenient countries. This would not do away with the present trouble, but it would help. The way to meet a condition of scarcity is to open all available sources of supply. If congress will suspend the tariff provisions which now effectually bar out Mexican and other foreign cattle and sheep, and the administration will push the fight against the beef trust with all expedition, the outlook for the consumer will not long remain so dark as it is now.

Improving the Consular Service

It is universally admitted that the consular service of the United States is sadly in need of revision and so general has the sentiment become that it is now a question of a suitable scheme for reorganizing the whole service. Congressman Adams, of Pennsylvania, has reported a bill from the committee on foreign affairs that seems to meet the necessities of the situation and would place the service in far better condition. It provides for dividing the consuls general, the consuls, vice consuls and consular clerks into classes and abolishes the title of commercial agent. All fees of every kind are to be turned into the United States treasury. The salaries are graded according to class, and the members of any one class are to be interchangeable as to location, at the discretion of the secretary of state. The persons now in the service are entitled to continuance therein, upon fulfilling the fixed conditions of examination prescribed for candidates. New appointments are to be made to the lowest grade, and promotions are to be made only after special examination and without overstepping any grade. The consular service is the branch of the administration that has received perhaps least attention from congress by way of improvement since its establishment in 1790. For sixty-four years thereafter there was no legislation concerning it, save only the annual appropriations. Then a slight enlargement of the service was made and certain abuses in the matter of fees were corrected. This was in 1856. In 1882 congress swept away entirely the fees allowed to consuls for services to American shipping, reducing their emoluments in many cases far below what competent men would accept. Many anomalies in compensation were thus established, and they still exist. The United States, from a business standpoint alone, cannot afford to be less competently represented abroad than its competitors, which is the case at present, and prompt consideration should be given the bill now before the house.

Joseph Jefferson, the actor, relates that in driving from Buzzard's Bay to Onset, Mass., he encountered a woman in bloomers, who had dismounted from her bicycle and seemed to be in a quandary. She hailed him with the query: "Can you tell me if this is the way to Wareham?" "The way to wear 'em?' repeated Jefferson, looking at the bloomers. "Certainly, madam; it's the way I wear mine."

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Statistics which are now obtainable for the first time show a great increase throughout the United States in the number of cities which own their own public utilities. Nearly every municipality in the country owns its sewerage system; over half own their public water supply; one-eighth or more own electric lighting plants. Very few places own gas works, only one city owns and operates a street railway system, and not a single municipal telephone exchange is reported. There are, however, some municipal telephone fire alarms, and possibly police telegraph systems. Of the less common municipal services, a few cities own ferries, and a few others own conduits for underground wires, but none own commercial central heating stations.

According to the Municipal Year Book, which contains an accurate statement of these statistics, the North Central states lead with 65.3 per cent of their cities and towns having municipal ownership of waterworks, and 20.5 per cent of the electric light plants in the same category. The South Central states make the smallest showing (39.5 per cent) for public ownership of waterworks, and the New England states the smallest (9.7 per cent) for electric lights. Indian territory, New Mexico, Nevada and Idaho have no public waterworks, and there are fifteen states and territories with no public electric light plants. Over 75 per cent of the places in Vermont, Massachusetts, Georgia, Michigan and Colorado own their waterworks. Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota are the only states in which over 35 per cent of the electric lighting plants reported are owned by the municipalities, and in none of these does the percentage exceed 43. Twenty-three municipal gasworks and two plants under joint ownership are shown.

There has long been an occasional demand for a list of places having private sewerage systems. Such a list is made public for the first time. It includes forty-seven places, in five of which there are also publicly owned sewers. Some at least, and probably a considerable number, of these sewer systems serve only small proportions of the population, but the same is also true of many of the sewerage systems classed as public. New Jersey, Texas and Pennsylvania have twenty-two of the forty-seven private sewerage systems, and in these and a few other states it appears that formal franchises have been granted by the municipalities. Of the eighty-two cities reported as having ferries, some ten or twelve are said to be owned by the municipalities, including those at New York, which are leased to private companies, and those at Boston, where there are private ferries also. Of the 232 cities and towns which reported that some of their electric wires were underground, the ownership was divided as follows: Private, 228; some private and some public, 7; public alone, 7.

It is not always well for any city to hurry the ownership of its public utilities, but it is safe to say that during the next decade the figures as shown at present will be very largely increased throughout the country.

LOCAL OPTION.

Maine, Kansas and New Hampshire, especially the first two states, demonstrate daily that prohibition by state law is a failure, there being as much liquor per capita consumed as in other states, while no revenue is derived by the public from the traffic. Yet, despite these well-known facts, the Prohibition party continues to make campaigns and nominate state tickets, with the result that votes are thrown away that might accomplish some good, if cast in some other direction.

A religious paper prints some statistics, which are presumably correct, unde the heading, "Prohibition's Progress," which show that saloons are not licensed in 56 out of 66 counties in Alabama, in 50 out of 76 in Arkansas, in 30 out of 45 in Florida, in 143 out of 147 in Georgia, in 74 out of 99 in Iowa, in 90 out of 119 in Kentucky, in 71 out of 75 in Mississippi, in 84 out of 115 in Missouri, in 60 out of 90 in North Carolina, in 70 out of 96 in Tennessee, in 120 out of 246 in Texas, and in 40 out of 54 in Virginia; and adds that "Minnesota has several hundred prohibition towns." So have other states "prohibition towns." But prohibition prevails, and to some extent succeeds, in these counties and towns, not by virtue of a state prohibitory law, but through the application of the principle of local option, by which a county or town can have saloons or not, as it desires, and where public sentiment in a locality is strongly against saloons the law can there be in a large measure enforced.

Thus it will be seen that, if prohibition is progressing, it is doing so, not in consequence of state prohibitory laws, but of local action under laws providing for local option.

AS TO TRAMPS.

Professor John J. McCook, in the New York Independent, estimates that there are now 50,000 tramps in the United States, against 56,986 in 1901, and 63,000 in 1893, of whom 30,000 attended the World's fair at Chicago. He thinks there were only about 17,000 tramps in 1870, 46,000 in 1880, in 1873, 40,000, and in 1894, 62,000. The latter number was increased in 1895, but began to decrease in 1896, and fell off 18 per cent from 1897 to 1899, the war beginning in 1898, reducing the number materially. Many enlisted, and in some respects made good soldiers, for they were tough, in more ways than one, and knew how to endure hardships and take care of themselves.

Professor McCook estimates that the 50,000 tramps now afoot cost the country $11,000,000 a year, while they produce nothing. Most men who take to the road in panic years, like 1873 and 1893-5, do not leave it when prosperity returns, because they have acquired the tramp habit and learned to hate work. To check the tramp nuisance he would prevent the young men from becoming tramps and whip older ones back into regular work; he would check drunkenness, compel thrift, break up blind baggage traveling, and stop indiscriminate charity."

Like many other "estimates," the professor's figures are not of much value, being based solely on Massachusetts reports. Conditions in the West and South are not the same as those in New England, and the latter's statistics cannot be fairly applied to the whole country. Nor are the professor's remedies of any greater value. It is easy to say what should be done, but his plan presupposes the power of the law to make men do just what he and other reformers think they should do. No law can do that. There were probably several times 62,000 tramps in the United States in the 90s and there are undoubtedly more than 50,000 now. A continuation of prosperous times and the enforcement of uniform laws and effort in the various states may cut down the number of tramps to very small figures, but it is equally certain that another period of hard times would send thousands more out "on the road."

The Atchison Globe tells a pathetic story of how an Atchison lawyer was called into the country to write a will for a dying man. "The light was poor," says the Globe, "three women present sobbed, the wind whistled mournfully without, and it was a weird moment full of sadness." And the Globe further recounts ...at in the weird moment full of sadness the man willed away two mules, a bull calf, a couple of plows and some chickens.

MISHAP AFTER MISHAP.

An Unlucky Load of Lumber at Bayfield.

Chicago, April 3.—During the winter John Claney & Co., lumber dealers, had several million feet of pine manufactured and stored on the dock at Bayfield, Wis., ready for shipment to Chicago at the opening of navigation. According to the Wisconsin laws all lumber remaining on the docks on May 1 must pay a state tax of 75 cents per 1000 feet. In order to avoid this expense the steamer Niko and barge Annie Peterson were chartered by the firm to bring their product to Chicago.

While going after their first cargo the two boats ran into a gale on Lake Superior, in which the Peterson was driven ashore and the Niko lost her pilot house. To take their places while being repaired Chaney & Co. chartered the steamer Jim Sheriffs and barge Mowatt. The Sheriffs broke a piston rod off Evanston and was forced to return for repairs. After getting fixed up they again started out. This time they got to Waukegan, when the engine of the Sheriffs "went through itself." This will necessitate a delay of several weeks.

Not entirely discouraged the lumber firm has now chartered the steamer Charles Neff to help bring down the unlucky batch of lumber.

HER LIFE INSURED

While Her Voice Is Undergoing Training.

Ventura, Cal., April 23.—Miss Minnie Newby, a local school girl, has a wonderful voice, in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Eaton, of Boston. This voice Mr. and Mrs. Eaton wish to be developed, under conditions, one of which is that Miss Newby's life be insured for $25,000 or more in the names of her patrons.

"The quality of her voice is wonderful, and I predict a great career for her," said Mrs. Eaton.

About May 1 Mr. and Mrs. Eaton will leave for New York, accompanied by Miss Newby. Miss Newby will be taken to hear the great singers of the world, and no expense will be spared either to verify or to shatter Mrs. Eaton's faith in her protege. After her Eastern training she will go to Europe.

One of the first of the features of the adoption of Miss Newby will be the insuring of her life, when it has been adjudged she has a future. According to Mrs. Eaton it is a business venture in many respects, and it is for the Eaton's protection that the girl's life will be insured. Miss Newby will be under the direct charge or management of Mrs. Eaton, who desires some security for the money to be expended. In case of the death of Miss Newby the Eatons would be reimbursed. If the young woman develops into a famous singer, as is expected, she will pay back all the money expended on her education by the Eatons.

Mrs. Eaton heard of Miss Newby, and, upon hearing her sing in Ojai Valley, she became captivated with her voice. This was a year ago last fall. When the Eatons returned to Boston Miss Newby was not forgotten. Upon their return to Ojai Valley last winter Miss Newby was a welcome visitor to their home.

Chatter of The Street

A Duluth real estate man is receiving considerable chaffing from his friends over an episode that occurred at his home, in which he played a rather comical role, although to him it was entirely serious.

The family had been without a servant for some time and his wife's sister, who had been visiting there for some time finally announced that she would make a determined effort to get one and started out that afternoon bent upon that errand. She returned toward evening and announced that she had found one at an intelligence office and that she would be out at about the dinner hour.

"She is a French girl and acts rather peculiarly and I will not promise much for her, but she will be better than none, I guess," she said.

The family was practically through the evening meal when there was a knock at the rear door and the lady of the house answered it and found the French girl. Her appearance was not at all reassuring, but the situation was rather desperate and the girl was put at work. She acted very peculiarly about the kitchen, awkwardness seeming to have reached the very summit in her. A few moments later a gentleman, living at the house, appeared for dinner, being late on that occasion, and the new domestic was sent in to wait on him.

Her conduct in the dining room was no less promising than in the kitchen, in fact, she soon had the man on the verge of nervous prostration. After she had spilled the contents of a glass of water down the back of his neck and tipped various things over on the table, he fled in dismay.

A few moments later the mistress of the house appeared and, calling a family consultation, announced that the girl would never do and must go at once. To her husband she said:

"You must go and tell her to go. I don't know just why, but she makes me nervous and I am afraid of her."

He demurred but his wife pleaded anxiously that he do it and he consented.

Mustering up his most dignified air he marched into the kitchen, assumed a very decisive tone and announced:

"Marie, you do not suit us and we have decided that you must go."

"But I like ze place," pleaded Marie.

"Well, the place doesn't like you, nevertheless, and you must go," he said firmly.

"I do not like ze man what come in ze kitchen," retorted Marie, with a toss of the head.

"Well, then, the matter is easily settled," announced he, as he planted himself in a chair and faced her with determination, "I propose to stay in the kitchen and as you do not like the man in the kitchen, you will have to get out, which is just what we want you to do."

Then the maid took a new tack. Walking up to him she took his hand and stroked it gently, pleading with him, "But I need ze work, I like ze place, I like your wife, and want to stay."

This situation rather upset his dignity and the appeal touched his sympathies somewhat. "Well, it is too bad, Marie, but really we can't keep you. You haven't done any work as yet, but here is 25 cents, and you can undoubtedly find another place."

"Give me feefty cents," said Marie, seeing that it was useless to plead farther.

"Well, all right," said he, handing out the money, "but you must leave at once," which she did.

As soon as the maid had left the house there was a grand lauch from the two women and the other gentleman. The man of the house could not see where the laugh came in and demanded to know the reason for such hilarity.

It was then unfolded to him that Marie, the French maid, was a well known young woman of the East End who, for a lark, had undertaken to do exactly what she had been so successful in carrying out.

The sister and the young woman arranged the matter in the afternoon and she attired herself in a wig, gowned herself to fit the part, appeared in the evening and carried out the plan as recounted. The mistress of the house was fooled for some moments but after the young woman had been in the kitchen some little time her actions were so peculiar that she aroused suspicion, and the woman gave her a searching look and discovered her identity. She quickly fell into the spirit of the joke and did her part in carrying it through.

"But she took my 50 cents," he ejaculated in astonishment.

And she has it still.

A Duluth feed store man tells this story of little joke on himself that happened the other day.

He was called to the telephone and received an order for a sack of oats to be sent to an address that was given by the man at the other end of the telephone. When he got the order he suddenly remembered that he had not been told to whom the oats were to be charged, so he called out a sharp "Hello, to the man that was ordering them.

"Well?" said the man.

"Who are the oats for?" inquired the feed man.

"Who are they for?" answered the men at the other end of the wire, in a tone giving every evidence of profound disgust. "Why, for the horse, you blank fool! Did you think they were for the bired girl?" And he hung up the receiver with an angry jerk.

FLETCHER AND TAWNEY

Again Defeat the Republican House Leaders.

Washington, April 23.—The Minnesota "insurgents," with the aid of the Democrats, won another victory over the Republican house leaders yesterday. Mr. Fletcher called up the London dockage bill to eliminate the charges on American cargoes of flour and other commodities at London, Liverpool, Grosvenor, Payne and Dalzell tried to prevent consideration, but Tawney demanded a vote, and the house voted, 124 to 44, to consider the bill. It is now unfinished business and will come up again on the call of committees.

CARNEGIE HAS DESIGNS

To Outdo Rockefeller In Benefactions to Universities.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 23.—Andrew Carnegie plans to extend the Western University of Pennsylvania, and by his gifts rival the magnificence of Rockefeller to Chicago and Leland Stanford to California. Acting Chancellor Brashear, of the university, was sent for by Mr. Carnegie in New York, and together the two rode from New York to Pittsburg. During this ride Mr. Carnegie gave an outline of what he intended to do. The Western University of Pennsylvania is built on a hill overlooking Allegheny City. It is to be moved to Pittsburg and located adjacent to the new Polytechnic institute, the library, art gallery and museum.

SEIZED VALUABLE LOT.

Helena Man Picks Up $12,000 Lot In Missoula.

Helena, Mont., April 23.—A sensation was created in Missoula Monday afternoon by Ed Hicklin, of Helena, who put a force of men making a fence around a vacant lot, valued at $12,000, which he claims under the old government townsite act. As soon as this was done he went before Judge Webster, deposited a $7 fee and petitioned for allowance to claim the property.

The property is in the business section of the town, and was supposed to belong to the First National bank. Officers of the bank made a vigorous protest and ordered Hicklin to cease building the fence, which he declined to do. Application was then made to the district court for an injunction but this was not granted. Hicklin asserts the bank never entered the lot on the assessment of lots, although asserting ownership since the town was platted, in 1880.

TAKE NATURE'S OWN MEDICINE.

Nature provides a cure for everything if we know where to look for it, and SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR is a medicine of her own making.

Among the roots and herbs which grow in old Vermont there are some which have been shown by experiment and experience to be the best, quickest and safest cures for blood troubles, malaria, rheumatism, scrofula and all ailments of the liver, kidneys and stomach—that is to say, more than ninety per cent. of all known diseases.

These roots and herbs are compounded in Smith's Green Mountain Renovator and offered to you as the best medicine which can be made. As a matter of fact, it isn't made at all—it is simply compounded skillfully and scientifically.

Any dealer in medicines will tell you that New England, and particularly, the State of Vermont, is one of the hardest places in the world to establish a business. The people up in that section of the country are very careful what they buy, decline to buy new things and never make two purchases of an unsatisfactory article. Yet up in Northern Vermont you will find that almost everybody uses Smith's Green Mountain Renovator, and on every hand you will hear words of the highest praise for it.

This has been the case for more than twenty-five years, and this remarkable medicine has grown stronger and stronger in popularity as the years go by, although, until its present owners got hold of it, it has been advertised only by word of mouth.

This proves better than pages of argument that here we have a medicine that meets every possible requirement and is really good and reliable.

You ought to use it for yourself and your family. We are glad to be in a position to offer it to you and to recommend it.

When the unmistakable signs that your blood is out of order appear, take Smith's Green Mountain Renovator at once. The bad complexion, the dull eye, the lack of strength and endurance, the loss of vigor, all tell the story of impure blood. Pains in the back, rheumatism, constipation and all other diseases due to the liver and kidneys can be immediately relieved and permanently cured by this purely vegetable product of the Green Mountain State.

It is the first and foremost duty that you owe to yourself and your family to see that everybody is kept well, and you ought further to see that no harmful, dangerous drugs are used.

This medicine is the safest and best for every member of the family, young or old.

It is a renovator of the entire system.

Of course, you want blood that is purity itself, and you want sound, firm flesh, strong muscles and nerves, and clear complexion and a continual feeling of brightness and cheerfulness. These all come from the use of Smith's Green Mountain Renovator, and if you will give it a trial you will say, as thousands of others do, that no medicine you ever knew anything about was its equal.

We sell it with the strongest kind of a money-back guarantee.

Any sufferer may come and buy this medicine, give it a fair trial and judge it by the results. If the results are not beneficial, all you have to do is to ask for your money back and you will get it promptly.

S. F. BOYCE, Sole Agent.

MEMORIAL

Service For Dead Comrades Is Held By Confederate Veterans.

Dallas, Tex., April 23.—A solemn memorial service for their comrades who fell in the cause of the confederacy was held at today's meeting of the United Confederate Veterans.

At noon all business was stopped and the great auditorium hushed. While the veterans sat with bowed heads, Chaplain General William Jones, of North Carolina, led in an eloquent prayer, mentioning Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee, Albert Sidney Johnston, Wade Hampton, Stonewall Jackson, Joseph E. Johnson, Beauregard, Kirby Smith, Joe Stuart, Nathan Bedford Forrest, Sterling Price, Dick Taylor and other leaders of the confederacy, to whom he paid glowing tributes. He made special reference to the late Miss Winnie Davis, "the daughter of the confederacy" and spoke of her as the "crowned queen of our affections."

The convention opened with special memorial service in honor of the memory of Gen. Wade Hampton. This service was held apart from the general memorial.

The convention of the Sons of Veterans began this morning. It was stated that only routine business would be transacted.

The Kalipha parade tonight will be the main feature of the day's entertainments.

Crowds of people continue to pour into the city and the railroad yards were clogged with trains. The bureau of information stated that they had found lodgings for 140,000 people since the reunion opened.

Gen. Gordon declared that "It looked as if the Dallas reunion crowd would be the biggest in the history of the United Confederate Veterans." Perfect weather conditions continue.

LEADERS GOT BUSY

And Registration In St. Paul Was Heavy.

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The political leaders of both parties got busy yesterday afternoon with the result that the registration, which had been light during the early part of the day, became very heavy before the polling places closed.

It is estimated that the registration for the day was very close to 5000, making a total of more than 24,000 for the first two days.

Two years ago the total registration was 25,641. It is expected that on the last day this year the total will be raised above this figure.

HURTS THE BUTCHERS

The High Price of Meat Threatens Life of Small Shops.

People Are Learning to Get Along With Less Meat.

Those Able to Buy Are Cutting as Well as Others.

The experience of butchers in many of the large cities, where meat men have been driven out of business by the high prices, are likely to be repeated here.

It is said that if the present high prices of meats of all kinds are continued another month there are several meat dealers, among the smaller tradesmen, that will be driven out of business.

The reason for it is that it is utterly impossible to get out of the class of patrons that keep up these smaller prices that will put the butcher even. The cheap grades of meat, which this class of patrons use almost exclusively, are now as high as the best cuts were before the rise began, and people have simply stopped using meat. This is especially true, of course, of the small dealers, those whose patrons are mostly of the poorer classes.

It is true in a lesser degree, however, of all butchers. Every one of them has noticed the falling-off in business.

"You would be surprised," said a leading butcher yesterday afternoon, "to see the difference between the meat orders now and those that we got before the jump began. You would also be surprised to see who some of the people are that have chopped down their meat orders. Many and many a family that has been accustomed to having meat two or three times a day right along is getting along with meat once a day now, and many are not doing that well. You might think the butcher was making his fortune at these increased prices, but I fail to see where it came in. We did not realize what a snap we were having when the wholesale price was fairly decent, and we—the retailers—were doing all the gouging there was done.

"People are getting into a very bad habit of living with half the meat they thought necessary not long ago, and that puts the butcher down to the necessity of getting along with much less profits than he got then. We don't make as much money, even if the orders were as large, as we did before the squeeez began, and it is all because people do not buy as they did."

A man happened to be in the shop at this time buying a modest little allowance of meat. He apologized for buying so little.

"Some day," he said, "I will be down with a wheelbarrow full of money and buy a whole pound."

Another phase of the matter is extremely disturbing to the butchers. They fear that the people who have been used to eating meat two and three times a day will, now that they find that they can get along with much less and feel quite as strong and healthy, if not even more so, continue in their present way of living after the price of meat drops again—that what they are now doing from necessity, they will continue to do from choice, and in the interest of their pocketbooks.

NO BENEFIT.

Agents See No Gain From Partial Steamship Consolidation.

Men engaged in the steamship ticket agency business here wonder what can be gained by the consolidation of five of the transatlantic lines if the rest are left outside the combine. The chief troubles of the transatlantic business are said to consist of complications arising from the paying of commissions for the sale of tickets.

There is so little business for each ocean line outside the larger cities that the only feasible basis of remuneration for agents seems to be the commission system. So much is paid for each ticket of a certain class that is sold. So great a competition resulted from the growth of the commission business that it is said the lines finally had to get together and agree on a schedule of commissions and a gentlemen's agreement that no larger commission than the schedule should be paid. This agreement is now said to take the form of a contract, but still ...e various lines that are parties to the agreement are said to suspect each of the others of paying more than the standard commission. The railroads have tried to settle the matter by threatening to do no more business with any line that got away from the contract scale.

If all the lines were in the new consolidation it is freely admitted that the commission trouble could be reduced to a minimum. It is conceded that Mr. Morgan may be able to use his big combine as a club in a moral way and so bring the independent lines to the point of upholding the schedule for fear that he might cut the life out of the business.

WOULD RESTRAIN

Ball Players From Playing In American League.

St. Louis, April 23.—Proceedings were brought in the circuit court today by attorneys representing President Frank De Haas Robison of the St. Louis National league baseball club to restrain Harper, Wallace and Heidrick from playing with the American league St. Louis team. The cases against Harper and Wallace were brought up before Judge Talty and that of Heidrick before Judge Fisher. Judge Talty postponed the hearing until next Monday and Judge Fisher refused a temporary injunction against Heidrick but ordered him to appear tomorrow morning and show cause why a restraining order should not issue. In his petition against the players Mr. Robison states that Harper had signed in 1901 to play with the St. Louis National league club at a salary of $2500 a year and that Wallace and Heidrick each signed in 1900 a two years' contract for $2400 a year. The last two named had each been paid $300 bonus, which the petition stated is still retained by them.

AT WEST DULUTH

Shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a west-bound street car struck the delivery rig of Frank Lee, who runs a meat market on Central avenue, and completely demolished the wagon. The accident occurred at Forty-ninth avenue west and Oneota street. James Lee, who was driving the rig, escaped without a scratch and the horses ran into a vacant lot nearby, where they were captured. The contents of the wagon were scattered all over the roadway. Lee was driving in the same direction as the car. He turned the rig on ahead of the car and the motorman was unable to check it. The front windows were shattered, the corner of the car was stove in and the motorman was cut by pieces of flying glass.

REDLICH-LYNCH.

Miss Minnie Redlich, of Rush City, Minn., and Frank F. Lynch, of West Duluth, were united in marriage today at Rush City, Minn. The ceremony took place at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and was performed by Rev. Father Kane, of St. Mary's Catholic church. Mr. Lynch is the day operator at the Northern Pacific company's yard office in Duluth. The bridal couple will arrive here this evening on the Lake Superior limited, and will be tendered a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lynch, 1107 Fifty-seventh avenue west, where they will make their home until arrangements are completed to go housekeeping for themselves. F. J. Lynch left this morning for Rush City to attend the wedding. James Rossiter, the best man for the occasion, went down with the groom yesterday.

BACK FROM SOUTH.

M. J. Crothers has returned from a two-years' sojourn in the South. He has been located in Tennessee and recently lived at Pine Bluff, Ark. Mr. Crothers is a flier and will remain here for the summer. He says that lumbering operations are becoming more extensive in the South as the demand increases and the available supply of lumber in the North decreases. He believes that the heaviest lumbering operations of the country within the next few years will be found through the immense timber sections of the South.

MILL STARTS UP.

The St. Louis mill has started up for its season cut. It was the last of the West Duluth sawmills to get in operation this spring, the others having been cutting for some days. The St. Louis Lumber company is not sawing its own lumber this season, but is sawing on contract. The contract upon which the mill company has begun is one of 700,000 feet for the Morgan company, a large sash and door manufacturing concern of Oshkosh, Wis. Other contracts that the St. Louis mill will saw on this summer are with John O'Brien & Co., Musser-Sauntry company and F. L. Gilbert. The mill has about enough sawing in sight to keep it running steadily on a day shift all the summer.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Did Hickory camp, No. 1555, will entertain the rest of the Woodman camps at the head of the lakes in the Great Eastern hall this evening. The program for the evening consists of a long list of musical and athletic attractions and the local camp expects to give its brethren one of the best times they ever had. Chartered cars will bring the West Superior and Duluth contingents.

E. P. Tims has gone to Houghton, Mich., to look over the plans for government work the coming season. The work will not begin for several weeks yet.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lauermann are expected this evening rom Aberdeen, S. D., where their marriage took place yesterday.

John Kilkelly and Joseph Sabera, of Alpena, Mich., arrived yesterday to make West Duluth their home for the summer.

Kastriner & Neumann, of the Great Eastern store, are receiving today the stock that the firm had in its branch store at Eveleth.

Ada, the 15-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Merritt, of 817 Central avenue, died last evening. The funeral will take place from the house at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial at Oneota cemetery.

For wall paper go to S. J. Nygren's.

I sincerely thank my friends and neighbors for their sympathy and kindness during the illness and death of my beloved wife.

DROUTH IS ENDED

Heavy Snowstorm Furnished Ample Moisture For Northwest.

Too Much Moisture Will Delay Seeding In Some Sections.

High Winds Did Considerable Damage In Wisconsin Cities.

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday's storm put an end to the drouth for the present. The Northwest storm extended from the great lakes region to Colorado in a southwesterly direction and extending north into Manitoba and as far West as the Rockies. Snow prevailed over the northern half of the storm area, covering the ground for a depth of from five to thirty inches. The snows were proceeded by rain, thunder storms and high wind. The southern portion of the storm area received a general rain, accompanied by high winds, in some localities reaching the proportions of a tornado.

This morning the temperature had fallen from 30 to 60 degrees below the record for the previous forty-eight hours. While this storm will be of great value to the farmers in the localities where drouth was beginning to be feared, it must necessarily delay plowing and seeding in Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and other sections where the land was really suffering from too much moisture.

Milwaukee, April 23.—Late last night the gale which swept this city struck the Milwaukee railroad shops at West Milwaukee and caused a wreckage which represents a loss of $2500. The destruction of the steaming building, the demolished roof of the pattern and cabinet makers shop and filing plants were evidences that the storm was of cyclonic force.

Thomas Rodeman was blown from a platform in the Elmore coal yard and probably fatally injured. He sustained a fracture of the skull.

At Seymour, Wis., the storm blew down the smokestacks of the electric light plant, which took fire. Lightning struck the barn of Charles Zembeke, who was probably fatally burned. All his farm buildings were burned.

A special to the Journal from Oconto, Wis., says: During a heavy wind storm last night twelve barns, near this city, were wrecked, as well as numerous smaller buildings.

La Crosse, Wis., April 23.—This morning is clear and cold after the hurricane which struck this city yesterday. The mercury fell to 36 degrees, and the wind, which had been blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour, let up and its velocity this morning is fifteen miles. Numerous reports of damage by the storm were received during the morning. At Mabel, Minn., near here, a forest fire burned the farm house and barns of John McMillan, the loss being about $12,000. It is said that a child started the fire by rubbing two corn stalks together.

Philadelphia, April 23.—The temperature today was 10 degrees higher than yesterday, the thermometer in the United States weather bureau registering 6 degrees. This is the hottest April day this city has experienced in over thirty years.

IS STILL COMING

Chicago Flax Continues to Arrive Here to Fill Contracts.

Three Cars Out of Eight Fail to Reach the Grade.

Divided Opinion as to the Effect on This Market.

The movement of Chicago flax to Duluth is daily growing larger. The arrival of flax here yesterday amounted to eight cars, and of these six were Southwestern flax which had been shipped here from Chicago because of the higher price obtainable here. It is said by one man who follows the flax market closely that he knows of 11,000 bushels that has already left Chicago for Duluth.

"Southwestern flax contains 10 per cent less oil than Duluth seed," said this authority. "Our seed is good for about 19½ pounds of oil to the bushel. That is why the Chicago flax market is 9 or 10 cents lower than Duluth. The crusher men have bid up this market because the greater value is in the seed.

"There is this much, however, that may make the experiment of loading out the Chicago stocks for shipment here a little less profitable than is expected: So much of the Chicago seed will go through the sieves that it seems questionable to me if the dockage may not wipe out the margin of profit.

"I don't know who is making the shipments, but it is rumored that it is Dickinson. They are said to be made to A. C. Johnson, and I understand the flax is going into the Consolidated elevators. Of course, it's a plain business deal. The inspectors here are obliged to grade the stuff No. 1, and the elevators naturally have to take it as such. Still, it seems to me that the receipt of very much of this Southwestern flax here will injure the reputation of the Duluth market. Duluth has always had the reputation for furnishing Northwestern flax which tests out well in oil. This Southwestern flax must, of course, be accepted on future delivery sales made with the original intention that the purchaser would get Northwestern flax. If the flax delivered on contracts here tests out 10 per cent less in oil than the reputed standard of Northwestern seed, it seems to me that the market here will suffer an injury.

"The only precaution that the crushers can take is to try to keep track of where the Chicago flax goes and try to fight shy of accepting it. Still, I don't see how they can refuse it. There is one hopeful thing about the matter, and that is that this movement is pretty sure to shut itself off pretty quickly by narrowing the Chicago-Duluth spread so much that it will be impossible to ship here at a profit."

The shippers of this flax, however, received a setback yesterday, for the inspection department graded three of the cars received as rejected instead of No. 1, and they are therefore not deliverable on contracts in this market. They were deficient in test wheat. The Daily Commercial Record says with reference to these shipments of flax:

"Some fear seems to exist that it will hurt the market, but this is rather doubtful, as the amount is not large enough, in the first place, and in the next place, the location of it is pretty well settled, and any buyer of May who gets the receipts will find a means of disposing of them. It is rather probable that the concern that is shipping this flax here has lost as much in the esteem of the Duluth trade as they have in actual money loss."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The supreme court of Wisconsin handed down a verdict in a case from Kenosha, that franchises far street railways and other such privileges cannot be granted to individuals, but to corporations only.

Superintendent Kimball, of the life saving service, ex-Congressman Scudder, of New York, and President Livingston, of the Lake Carriers' association, were heard by the house committee on commerce in favor of the bill to pension men in the life saving service, at rates equivalent to those paid privates in the army and seamen in the navy.

A tornado passed over Hebron, Wis., Tuesday afternoon, blowing down two barns, and killing Gillett Reed, a farmer, and six head of cattle. The barns were owned by Adin Reymonds and William Potter and Reed was in the Potter barn when it was blown down. The cattle were killed at the same place.

William G. Van Horne, an attorney of Salt Lake, was appointed judge of the court of first instance at Cairo, Egypt, according to the Telegram. The position is a life one. The court of first instance is an international body, maintained by the various maritime governments, and passes upon questions arising out of the Suez canal traffic and kindred matters.

Carl Dallman, the leader of the trio which attempted to blow up the locks in the Welland canal and who is serving a life sentence in the prison at Kingston, Ont., denies that he is Luke Dillon, brother of John Dillon, the Irish agitator. Dallman is quoted as saying that the recent announcement that he was Dillon was a scheme on the part of some people to block the efforts of his friends in securing him a pardon.

QUEER STORY.

Man Says He Was Involved In Killing of Goebel.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 23.—Ira Gillespie, alias "Dock" Hill, a man past 50 years of age, has been arrested and has confessed, it is said, to Sheriff Shields, at the Sevier county jail, that he was implicated in the murder of Governor William Goebel, of Kentucky, although he denies having fired the fatal shot. With Gillespie when arrested was an unknown woman, a giant in strength and weighing over 200 pounds, who attacked the officer and fought desperately until finally subdued at the point of a pistol. Gillespie himself was disarmed of a revolver. He claims the woman is his wife, though the officers do not believe this.

He was arrested at Pigeon Forge, seven miles south of Sevierville, by Constable J. W. Wynn, on a description of one "Dock Hill," wanted in this city for an alleged hold-up. He is of slight build, has stooped shoulders, blue eyes, 5 feet 8 inches high, and weighs about 135 pounds. He begged Sheriff Shields not to allow Knoxville officers to take him, as he felt that Kentucky detectives would get him at Knoxville. He then confessed that there is a $500 reward offered for his capture for complicity in Goebel's murder, and that he has been a fugitive from Kentucky since Goebel's death.

He denied having himself fired the shots which terminated Goebel's career, although he did not deny participating in the plan to effect his death.

Sheriff Shields at once wired the sheriff at Lexington, Ky., of Gillespie's arrest and confession, but has yet failed to receive an answer.

Gillespie stated that Lexington had been his home, and admitted having relatives in Nashville, Tenn. Sevierville is far off from a railroad and telegraph line, and news of the confession was 'phoned to this city this afternoon.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROSE COGHLAN.

Miss Rose Coghlan's appearance at the Lyceum tomorrow evening will be the first visit of this delightful actress to Duluth in a number of years. Upon the last occasion she presented "Forget Me Not," the play in which she will appear tomorrow evening, and made a profound impression. It is a powerful play and Miss Coghlan's portrayal of Stephanie is a strong impersonation of a role which, though not one that appeals to the sympathies, certainly offers to an emotional actress unlimited opportunity for the exercise of her talent.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Saturday afternoon and evening at the Lyceum Miss Blanche Walsh will make her appearance surrounded by a strong dramatic company which includes in its membership Robert Lowe, Raymond Whitaker, Mason Mitchell, Emmet Shackleford, Forrest Flood, Frederick Harris, R. Paton Gibbs, Thomas Hayden, Denman Maley, Oscar Barrett, Robert Harold, Jr., William Morris, Richard Fitzgerald, Percy Wynn, Harry Reeves, Rose Braham, Harriet Sterling, Emily Baker, Mrs. J. R. Haywood, Fanny Marinoff, Rose Anthon, Dora Nortton, Laura Foley, Adelaide Reeves, Ethelyn Clemens and Beatrice Norwood. Her offering this year will be a new play by H. J. W. Dam, entitled "La Madeleine." The author is a well known journalist, who made an international reputation by his reports to American newspapers from Rennes, France, of the Dreyfus trial.

PECULIAR CASE.

Joseph Morris, Witness of Recent Killing, Insane.

Joseph Morris, who was with a woodsman named John Brown when Nelson Porter, a colored tamaie man, hit him a blow that resulted in his death, was found to be insane in probate court yesterday afternoon. He was found about midnight Monday wandering around Lakeside, talking wildly about various things, and he was taken in by the police. He said among other things that there was a little heaven at Lakeside, where he could see the face of his dead sister. He also claimed to be talking to the spirit of John Brown, his former companion.

SHOT AT AITKIN.

City Marshal Stops Douglass Parks With Bullet.

Aitkin, Minn., April 23.—At an early hour yesterday morning Night Marshal Tim Madden shot and dangerously wounded Douglass Parks. Parks met Madden on the street during the night and struck him in the face, knocking him down. Madden procured assistance and followed Parks, whom he found near the Northern Pacific depot. Parks made an attempt to run away and Madden ordered him to halt, but he paid no attention to the command. Madden then drew his gun and shot with the intention of winging the fleeing man. The aim was poor and Parks received the bullet in the middle of his back. He was taken to the county jail and an examination showed that the bullet had lodged under his shoulder blade. It was decided that he should be taken to the hospital at Brainerd on the noon train for treatment. Mr. Madden regrets the shooting very much.

THE WEST END CLUB

Commercial Organization of Business Men Is Perfected.

Establishment of Branch Library Taken Up With Board.

Twenty-Second Avenue Sewer Outlet Engages Club's Attention.

The Duluth Business Men's club was successfully organized in the basement of the Sloan building at the West End last evening, with a charter membership of nineteen of the West End business men. The club is a successor to the old Commercial club of that portion of the city, and is starting out under auspicious circumstances. As soon as the organization was completed last evening the business men took up matters of interest to the West End of the city, and there was an interesting session until nearly midnight. When the meeting adjourned it was to await the call of the president, which will be issued as soon as the several committees appointed last evening are ready to report.

The object of the new club is a broad one, being the promotion of the business interests of the West End and the city of Duluth at large.

The meeting was called to order by C. O. Nelson, temporary chairman. The organization committee made a report decommending that all merchants, manufacturers, professional men and men owning property in the city be eligible to membership. The committee had set the membership fee at $10, but after much discussion this was reduced to $5, with $5 annual dues. The report was then adopted.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, C. O. Nelson; vice president, S. W. Hill; secretary, R. D. Haven; treasurer, J. J. Moe.

President Nelson appointed N. O. Nelson, W. H. Leonard, J. Callahan, John Sundeen and R. D. Haven a committee of five to draft a set of by-laws. The committee on membership is comprised of M. Fedje, U. G. Halloway and S. W. Hill.

The club will also have an executive committee, but the appointment of the committee went over until the next meeting.

After the election of officers, President Nelson declared the club duly organized and open for any business that might come before it. John Sundeen introduced a resolution that a committee of three be appointed to urge the council to take immediate action for the removal of the obstruction under and along the railway tracks to the outlet of the Twenty-second avenue west sewer. If the obstruction is not removed it was resolved that the business men would hold the city of Duluth responsible for any and all damage that might occur by the flooding of the basements along Superior street. It was directed that copies of the resolution be served on the mayor, city council, city engineer and board of public works.

Several members spoke relative to the obstruction of the sewer previous to the adoption of the resolution, and Alderman D. R. Haven said that the city engineer's office is already considering measures to eliminate the trouble.

U. G. Holloway introduced the following resolution:

"Resolved, that the Twenty-second avenue west open sewer outlet, located as it is within a short distance of a densely populated neighborhood, is an intolerable nuisance and is incompatible with the health and comfort of those who reside in the vicinity.

"Resolved, that a committee of three be appointed by the chair whose duty it shall be to apprise the health department of the existence and nature of the nuisance."

R. C. Sloan, John Mair and John Sundeen were appointed a committee on resolutions.

It was further suggested that the committee investigate the pond in the vacant lot west of R. R. Forward & Co.'s store, on West Superior street, which is claimed to be in an unsanitary condition, and see if anything can be done to drain the lot.

President Nelson also suggested that an unhealthy sink hole at the foot of Eighteenth avenue west and another frog pond near the old ice house in the vicinity of the same avenue would bear investigation.

R. D. Haven, who was chairman of the committee appointed at the citizens' meeting a week ago to confer with the library board regarding the West End branch library, presented a report that showed that the committee has been very active.

Mr. Haven said that the committee had seen several members of the library board, that Mr. Denfeld stated the report abolishing the West End branch was introduced by Mr. Codding after careful investigation and the board had adopted it, believing it to be all right. The committee urged the matter and found that the board had acted in the belief that it was going to save considerable money. Mr. Denfeld told the committee that a special meeting of the library board would be called and the committee could appear before it and present the claims of the West End people. The branch, he said, would be closed for the present, but the board was disposed to make any arrangements that would leave the matter open if it was satisfactory to the West Duluth people.

Mr. Haven said a conference would also be arranged with Mrs. C. R. Keyes, of West Duluth, a member of the administration committee, and that the indications strongly pointed to a sentiment in West Duluth in favor of the old plan, a branch at both the West End and West Duluth. Mr. Haven had an array of figures showing the attendance and book deliveries at the West End branch as compared with the central library and the West Duluth branch that the club thought would be a strong argument against the discontinuance of the branch at the West End. The committee, said Mr. Haven, feels confident that the agitation will result in the re-establishment of the station as soon as the board understands the situation.

The last order of business of the evening was one that lies very close to the hearts of the West End business men, the Twentieth avenue station matter. There was a long discussion regarding the matter, in which a number of members took part.

W. W. Allen, who was one of the old settlers at the West End when the old Lake Superior & Mississippi River road came into Duluth, gave some interesting history of the fight between Duluth and Superior for the location of the road, the valuable land grants given the company by settlers to get the road here, the reorganization of the company into the St. Paul & Duluth company, and final absorption by the Northern Pacific. Mr. Allen held that the old roads faithfully kept the promises made the West End citizens, but that the Northern Pacific company broke faith as soon as it gained control of the road.

The following names were signed to the articles of organization: C. O. Nelson, N. O. Nelson, R. C. Sloan, M. Fedje, J. J. Moe, R. D. Haven, S. W. Hill, A. Freimuth, U. G. Holloway, J. Callahan, A. G. Anderson, G. W. Davis, C. H. Dibbell, R. Hoch, G. H. Huseby, W. W. Allen, Sundeen & Johnson, Moir & Walker, Benson & Gustafson, R. R. Forward & Co., W. H. Leonard.

THE GREAT DISMAL SWAMP

Of Virginia is a breeding ground of Malaria germs. So is low, wet or marshy ground everywhere. These germs cause weakness, chills and fever, aches in the bones and muscles, and may induce dangerous maladies. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malarial troubles. They will surely prevent typhoid. "We tried many remedies for Malaria and Stomach and Liver troubles," writes John Charleston of Byesville, O., "but never found anything as good as Electric Bitters." Try them. Only 50c. W. A. Abbett guarantees satisfaction.

ANSWER IS FILED.

Davidson Company's Version of Two Harbor's Accident.

The Davidson Steamship company has filed an answer to the suit for damages brought against it by the United States, due to the collision of the steamer Shenandoah with the government breakwater at Two Harbors last summer.

The steamship company claims that the government had given no public notice of an extension of the old breakwater. It also alleges that prior to the year 1900 the outer end of the breakwater had been marked by a red light and that, prior to July 24, 1901, the plaintiff had constructed a 500-foot extension to the old breakwater, which was under water and not visible to a vessel approaching from the lake. The company claims that when the Shenandoah struck the breakwater on the night of July 24, a strong wind was blowing and the boat had difficulty in making an entrance to the harbor; that at that time there was a red light as usual at the end of the pier and another white light on a pole some distance from it; that the officers thought the light was from a vessel or a nearby dock.

The company claims that the boat was backed with all speed after the collision and avers that there were no danger signals on the breakwater.

Contagious Blood Poison

DOES POTASH AND MERCURY CURE IT?

Experience says not, and thousands whose health has been ruined by the use of these poisonous minerals, stand ready to testify that, while Mercury and Potash may mask the disease—drive it from the outside for a time, it comes back with renewed virulence as soon as these drugs are left off, and thus the fight between Contagious Blood Poison and Mercury and Potash is protracted for months and even years, resulting in a broken down constitution, spongy and tender gums, excessive salivation, decayed teeth, pains in the stomach, nausea, ruined digestion, nervous dyspepsia, dizziness, and other distressing symptoms which always follow the use of these poisons.

They mask the hideous form of this serpent-like disease, but the deadly virus still hides in the system. There is an antidote for this awful poison; a reliable, certain and permanent cure for Contagious Blood Poison—and that remedy is S. S. S.—the greatest of all blood purifiers, and an experience of fifty years has proven it to be a true specific for this vilest of all human diseases, which not only threatens the life of the one contracting it, but is transmitted to posterity with more certainty than Cancer or Consumption.

Why continue the Mercury and Potash treatment, when by so doing you only complicate the disease, burden the blood with another poison, in time producing Mercurial Rheumatism, Sores, and a long train of evil consequences.

A COMMON EXPERIENCE.

About three years ago I had a severe case of Contagious Blood Poison, and tried doctors without benefit, so I concluded to go to Hot Springs. After remaining there some time the sores and eruptions left and apparently the disease was cured, and I left for home. In about three months after leaving the Springs the trouble came back worse than ever. I had often heard of S. S. S., and wrote for your book. At that time I was unable to work and had lost flesh until I did not look like the same person. I began taking S. S. S. soon after I heard from you, and in a short time found to my great joy that every sign of the disease was gone, and I had gained 32 pounds. I now weigh 10 pounds more than I ever did.

Tiptonville, Tenn. G. F. GLISSON.

S. S. S. being purely vegetable, leaves no bad after-effects, but invigorates the whole system while cleansing the blood of the virus. S. S. S. is the only known antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the only medicine that is able to unmask this venomous reptile and drive it out of the blood. It has rescued thousands from the clutches of this horrible malady, after Mercury, Potash, Hot Springs and everything else had failed to cure, and it will do as much for you. The idea that Contagious Blood Poison is incurable, or must run its course in spite of all human efforts to stop it, is the veriest nonsense. S. S. S. does cure it radically and permanently, removing all traces of the original disease from the blood and system, as well as the evil effects of the Mercury and Potash. If you are a victim of Contagious Blood Poison, no matter what may be your present condition, whether the disease has just started or has reached a more dangerous stage, begin S. S. S. and a thorough and lasting cure is an absolute certainty.

You can consult our Physicians at any time and as often as you please about your condition, without charge. Write them a history of your case and receive helpful advice that will enable you to treat yourself at home. All correspondence is conducted in the strictest confidence.

DELAY IS ORDERED

Gen. Chaffee Instructed to Hold the Samar Expedition.

Other Methods Will Be Tried to Capture Moros.

Chaffee Cables the Details of Movement Already Made.

Washington, April 23.—The war department has instructed Gen. Chaffee to delay the departure of the proposed expedition into Mindanao until after the receipt of further directions from Washington. The president desires to exhaust all other means of effecting the capture of Moros who murdered American soldiers before dispatching an armed expedition for that purpose.

Meanwhile, however, that portion of Gen. Davis' command which was selected for the journey will still be held in readiness, and all preparations up to the point of actual departure will be made.

Adjt. Gen. Corbin yesterday afternoon made public the following telegram, received late in the day from Gen. Chaffee:

Manila, April 22.—Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.: With reference to my telegram of the 15th and yours of the 21st:—When at Malabang, I authorized Baldwin to continue clearing the trail toward the lake, if not opposed, but he was not to move in force until the expedition was fully prepared, which I expected would be accomplished by the 25th.

On the 18th he pushed his advance from his camp eight miles out, with orders to clear the blockaded trail and halt when it reached sufficient water, which was not found until the second crossing of the Malilang river, where it issues from Lake Dapao. The advance consisted of one battalion of the Twenty-seventh infantry, under Maj. Scott. He reached Dapao without opposition, but found the trail badly obstructed by fallen timber. Baldwin arrived at the same place at noon of the 20th with Moore's battalion and a mountain battery. In order to find a defensive camp and grazing to the north of him, he sent forward Moore's battalion, with one gun. Moore was fired on from the hills in front and to his left. He returned the fire, but did not advance. Baldwin brought forward the rest of the battery and three infantry companies and drove off the assailants, firing a distance of 1100 to 1300 yards. The enemy was driven two miles and scattered. There were no casualties to our troops. Seven more bodies were found, and the opposing Moros, from Pinellis village, whose fort is in sight, were flying the red flag.

Yesterday morning a delegation arrived at Baldwin's camp from Genesal, making an absolute surrender to United State sauthority under the terms of my proclamation. There was an affair of a few minutes yesterday morning with the sultan of Punlao's men, who attempted to reoccupy the grounds cleared the day before, and they were forcibly dispersed. Baldwin says it will be necessary to reduce the fort at Pulas, if it continues hostile, before passing it. Davis says he has ordered Baldwin not to assault any fort or to occupy any hostile places until the two weeks expire which I granted to Moros to surrender murderers.

In order to expedite matters, yours of yesterday was sent at once to Davis and was received by him at 10:50 p. m. He has ordered Baldwin to abstain absolutely from any aggressive movement, and to favor in every way possible friendly conference. To withdraw all our forces will ruin our prestige; to withdraw part of our force will be dangerous. I have ordered the trail cleared to the real quickly. Eight miles were well opened when I was there. Shall maintain our position but not advance further until you are heard from. Febiger, with battalion of 200, is in reserve. Baldwin's advance to so great a distance was premature, but was occasioned by an opportunity to seize advantage in the situation and secure a position for camping troops.

Boishing, at Ilagan, says everything is quiet there. He is confident that the Moros on the north side have no idea of rising. CHAFFEE.

FATHER AT 83 YEARS.

Theodore Roosevelt Hardings' Sire Over Four Score.

Trenton, N. J., April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt Harding was born in Trenton Sunday, the father, John Harding, being 83 years old and the mother, Julia Harding, 20.

There is a romance behind this statement of fact. Quite a few years ago John Harding adopted a little girl as his daughter. Being wealthy he gave her advantages, and saw her mature into a beautiful young woman. Suitors came, but she turned a deaf ear to them all. Her extreme fondness for the old man led him to question the girl one day, and John Harding, aged 32 years, found that his 19-year-old adopted daughter was in love with him. The old man married her.

Business reverses have overtaken the Hardings and they are comparatively poor, but John Harding said:

"I am a rich man now. I am going to write to President Roosevelt and tell him that I am 83 years old and the father of the brightest and nicest looking baby boy in the city of Trenton, and that I have named him Theodore Roosevelt Harding."

"I was troubled for seven years with my stomach," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I could get nothing to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. Max Wirth.

PAINTER

Went Mad and Fine Picture Was Nearly Ruined.

New York, April 23.—F. W. Falls, an artist from Philadelphia, is suffering from temporary insanity caused by the strain of painting a big panorama in oil of Long Island, the sound and the surrounding country.

Mr. Falls made a specialty of such work, and there was a great demand for his services from railroad companies in various parts of the country, which desired panoramic views of scenery along the line for photographic reproduction in their time table folders and advertising pamphlets.

About five months ago Mr. Falls was engaged by the Long Island railroad to paint a panorama of the territory reached by its lines. The picture was to be twelve feet long and four feet high, and Mr. Falls received instructions to spare neither time nor money to make it the finest picture of the kind that he had ever attempted. It was to show the beaches, the woods, the elevated parts, the dunes, the bays and the rivers, villages and towns of the Island.

The artist set to work with determination, and for several months he traveled up and down and across Long Island, taking notes and making sketches and photographs and familiarizing himself with the landscape. Then he retired to his studio and made a close study of all the maps the railroad company would supply. Finally he succeeded in impressing upon his mind a vivid picture of how the country would look from a balloon, and he began to put it on canvas. Every bit of the topography was indicated, each feature by a different color. Village roofs peeped out of tree tops. Brooks and ponds appeared among the meadows, and the work was nearly finished when one day the image in the artist's brain became blurred, and he could not use the colors aright. Red spots appeared in the ocean, a sand bank covered a thriving town, and the painting was danegrously near the point of ruin when the trouble was discovered by some one who had come to visit the artist.

Mr. Falls was well liked, and the report of his illness caused general regret. He was removed by his family to an asylum near Philadelphia, where he is said to be on the road to recovery. In the meantime the picture, which had suffered but little, has been repaired and finished by another artist.

SURRENDER

Of Bocas del Toro Is Described By Eye Witnesses.

Mobile, Ala., April 23.—The surrender of Bocas del Toro, on April 17, has been reported by cable. The fruit steamers Hispania and Mount Vernon arrived here yesterday and brought news of the battle and also of the unsuccessful effort to secure the return of the American launches seized by the Liberals.

The Hispania left Bocas early on the morning of the 17th and the Mount Vernon left five hours later. Dr. J. E. Terry, of Greensboro, Ala., who was on the Mount Vernon, witnessed the fight and described it. The excitement the day before in Bocas was intense, upon receipt of the report that the Liberals were marching on the city in overwhelming numbers. The American residents were greatly alarmed, and appealed to the commander of the United States gunboat Machias for protection. The women and children were speedily taken aboard the gunboat, but the men preferred to remain and look after their places of business. To protect these a number of marines were landed and a picket line thrown around the American business quarter. When the Liberals approached the city they also threw out a picket line, between the American line and that part of the city occupied by the conservatives, or government troops, which was done to prevent the conservatives taking refuge inside the American line.

At daybreak the battle began with the Liberals, and for hours it raged without any sign of weakening. The smoke could be seen from the deck of the Mount Vernon, and the rattle of the musketry, even the cries of those who were wounded, was heard. After that the fire became scattering and the conservatives were in retreat. Before the Mount Vernon left the battle was over, and but an occosional shot was heard. As the fighting progressed in the early morning the demand for protection by Americans was very great. Nearly every house was seen flying the American flag.

CONFERENCE

Of Republican Senators Results In Cuban Bill Program.

Washington, April 23.—The question of reciprocity with Cuba formed the subject of an important preliminary conference on the part of a majority of the Republican senators yesterday. This conference was held in the room of the senate committee on finance, during the afternoon sitting of the senate, and was extended for some time after the adjournment. The meeting was called largely as the result of a general exchange of ideas on the floor of the senate. In the main the senators invited to participate were those friendly to reciprocity legislation, but some of the opposition Republican members were present. In the absence of Senator Allison, who is chairman of the Republican caucuses and the Republican steering committee, Senator Hale presided.

The result of the meeting may be summed up as follows: There will be an early meeting of the senate committee on relations with Cuba to take up the question on the basis of the house bill, which is now before that committee; the Republican members of the committee will act together in formulating a substitute for the house bill, and none of them is to co-operate with the Democratic members of the committee; the bill thus agreed upon by the Republican members to be submitted to a Republican caucus of the senate and made a party measure.

With the exception of Senator Spooner all the Republican members of the Cuban committee attended yesterday's meeting, and it is understood tacitly or openly gave their adherence to the program. The leaders of the movement express confidence that it will be possible to report a bill out of the committee, and say their confidence also extends to the point of the passage of the bill by the senate.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

James Noonan Arrested For an Old Crime.

Helena, Mont., April 23.—James Noonan, who has lived in Helena fifteen or twenty years, was arrested on the charge of having committed a murder in Preston township, Fillmore county, Minn., Oct. 18, 1874.

It is charged that Noonan, in Minnesota, as Patrick Noonan, killed John Shinner. The authorities had given up hope of ever finding the murderer until recently when there arrived in Preston a man from Montana, a former resident of the township, who had been working here. He told of having met a man named Noonan, who corresponded in appearance with the Patrick Noonan who killed Shinner. The grand jury soon afterward met and the man from Montana was called before the jury. An indictment was returned April 9 charging murder in the first degree. Noonan is about 57 years old and is well known.

Noonan denies his guilt, and says a mistake has been made..

BIG BULGE IN WHEAT

Wheat Makes An Advance of Better Than Two Cents.

More Rain Badly Needed In the Winter Wheat Belt.

Flax Market Steady But New Crop Futures Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 23.—This was the strongest day that wheat has had in many months and it was a weather market. Prices opened higher and a further advance was made during the morning. The chief influence was the great need of a further rainfall in the winter wheat districts. Crop reports generally assert that the crop will be seriously damaged unless more rains come soon. The cables were stronger and the receipts were light. There was some uneasiness over the condition in the Northwest owing to the heavy storms yesterday, but they were not as general as at first feared.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of 2@2½d.

Primary receipts of wheat were 262,000 bu, last year, 320,000 bu. Shipments were 446,000 bus, last year, 296,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 228,000 bus.

Corn had a great bulge in the Chicago market, closing with an advance of 2¾c. Oats was also strong, closing 1¾c up. Primary receipts of corn were 182,000 bus, last year, 179,000 bus. Shipments, 230,000 bus; last year, 676,000 bus. Clearances were 33,726 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 169 cars, and at Chicago, 26, a total of 195 cars, against 144 last week and 295 last year.

Trading on the Duluth board was fairly active and the market strong. It opened ¾c up at 74⅞c, sold up to 75¾c at 10:35 and 75¾c at 11:25. The bulge continued to the close, which was at 76¾c. This was an advance of 1⅞c. The July option was even stronger, closing with an advance of 2⅝c. Chicago May was up 2¼c and Minneapolis 2¾c.

There was not a cash trade in wheat made on the Duluth board today.

Flax was steady, closing unchanged at $1.78, but selling ½c up to $1.78½ at one time. The September option was stronger, closing 2c up, October unchanged. Corn in the Duluth market advanced 2¼c and rye was up 1c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat: Cash—No. 1 hard, 75¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 74¼c; No. 3 spring, 72¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 75¾c; No. 1 northern, 75¾c; May, 76¾c; July, 77¾c. Manitoba—No. 1 northern cash, 75¾c; May, 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¾c. Oats, 40¾c. Rye, 56c. Flax—To arrive, $1.77½ cash, $1.77½; May, $1.78; September, $1.39; October, $1.32. Corn, 64c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 11; last year, 26; oats, 3; flax, 7. Receipts—Wheat, 34,571; barley, 958; flax, 5045. Shipments: Wheat, 152,313; oats; 77,661; barley, 28,911; flax, 24,874.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bulls Started Grains on an Upward Trend.

Chicago, April 23.—In spite of the government report that fairly good rains had fallen over most of the wheat and corn region the bulls in grains started prices on the upward trend at the opening today because of their views of the weather situation. Crop reports generally maintain that additional rains are needed to save the crop of winter wheat; and, as these had not fallen, shorts covered and commission houses bought heavily. Cables also were strong and these, with light receipts, had a bullish influence. Trade early was rather heavy and the selling was only of a scattered nature. May started 1c to 1¼c up at 74⅞c to 75c and easily advanced to 75½c. Local receipts were 26 cars; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 166 cars, making a total for the three points of 135 cars against 141 last week and 286 a year ago.

Crop damage scares sent bulls to pushing prices upward as the day advanced, and the short crowd were nearly all pinched out of the market. Cash business was good and cash wheat was reported scarce. Outside markets felt the influence of the lack of sufficient rains and helped the market. Prices shot up in grain of ¾c with rapid jumps. May sold to 77c, and every option closed strong. May, 2¼c up at 76⅞c; July, 2⅜c higher, at 78⅛@⅛c, and September, 2⅜c advance, at 78¼c.

Corn felt the general bullish influence of wheat and stronger corn cables developed a strong market. Renewed buying by the prominent bull crowd that started buying late yesterday frightened the shorts and accounts were hurriedly covered. Commission house demands were fair. May opened ⅝c to ½c higher at 62⅝c to 62¾c and quickly sold to 63½c. Profit taking eased the market for a time but later prices held firmly around 63c. Receipts, 73 cars.

Bull enthusiasm struck the corn pit shortly after the opening hour. Wall street was said to be under the market, especially when it was seen that the big bull crowd was buying largely. May soared quickly and closed very strong, 2½c up, 64¾c.

Oats were much stronger at the opening, feeling the buoyancy in wheat and corn. Trade was quiet but offerings were restricted owing to fears over the weather effects on the growing crop. May opened ¼c higher at 43¼c and at once jumped to 43⅝c. Receipts were 75 cars.

Opening business in provisions was light but the tone was improved, aided by the firmness of grains and a steady hog market at the yards. Products were not offered freely and packers supported pork to some extent. Scalpers were fair sellers. May pork opened 5c up at $16.45 and advanced to $16.62½; May lard 5c higher at $8.37½, and May ribs 2½@3c higher at $8.07½.

Close, wheat, April, 76¾c; May, 76⅞c; July, 78⅜@¾c; September, 78¼c; December, 79½c. Corn, April, 64⅝c; May, 64⅝c; July, 66⅞c; September, 64⅞c; December, 49¾c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan Chicago: Wheat—The market here is active and buoyant. The tone of the cables is encouraging and export business better. The principal incentive here to the speculative buying is the crop situation. The threatening weather has come and gone without rain in the winter wheat belt. Reports of damage, particularly from the Southwest, are increasing rapidly, and buying orders from that section are coming with them. Until some relief comes to the dry conditions the tendency would seem to be strongly upward.

A. H. Farnum's Chicago morning gossip: Wheat—The government crop bulletin says the week has been too dry and too cold. Wheat growth has been retarded and in sections has gone back during the week. Heavy frosts through Kansas last night and scrge rain in Iowa, Missouri, Illinois. Cables ½c to ⅝c higher. The market is a purchase on any decline.

Corn—The difference of a cent between May and July corn will help the shipping business from here which is already fair. Supply of corn so small the market can't help responding to any good buying. Some of the strongest interests in the business are looking for 70c.

Oats—With favorable weather condition oats will probably turn out all right but so far, as a whole, the start has not been a good one. While July and September are somewhat higher than two weeks ago we think they are still cheap and advise buying them. Cash oats are being marketed quite easily at a good premium over the price of May.

The weather map this morning shows rain in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois, followed by frost and clearing weather. So far rains have been insufficient and the feeling at the opening is likely to be strong. Strength in corn and oats may have effect on wheat.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, April 23.—There was a very large and active trade in wheat today with considerable increase in outside speculation. Yesterday's rain proved to be only showers and quite insufficient. As we said before, good general soaking rains are badly needed. There were a good many unfavorable reports regarding the growing crop received; in fact, some almost sensational. The situation is critical, and we must have rain immediately or the damage to the winter wheat crop will be serious. As it is we believe there has been irreparable damage already done, but to what extent it is a little too early to tell. Today's market was the largest we have had for a long time, and the outside public bought freely all day. The market closed at the highest price for the day, May 2¼c, July, 2⅜c, and September 2⅜c higher than yesterday. Foreign markets were firm. Liverpool closed ¾d to ⅞d higher for the day.

Continental markets were also higher. Receipts keep small and movement in the country is practically nothing whatever. What wheat the farmers have they will surely hold on to until they can find out more about the growing crop. Advices from the Northwest complain of unfavorable weather for spring seeding, especially in North Dakota, where very little work is said to have been done. There was a good demand for cash wheat here by local millers and rather more inquiry from abroad, but advance in the market checked business. Predictions are for clear and cold weather tomorrow, which, if realized, will undoubtedly give us higher prices. Cars tomorrow, 20.

There was a very large trade in corn today and the market ruled strong under active buying by bulls and in sympathy with the strength in wheat. Country offerings continue very light, while there was improvement in the cash demand. The market closed at the highest point of the day, May 2½c, July and September 2⅝c higher than yesterday. Foreign markets were firm, Liverpool closed ¾d higher for the day. The market has had a good advance, but unless we get good general rains prices are likely to go still higher. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 85 cars.

Oats ruled firm all day under active buying by bulls as well as covering by shorts, owing to unfavorable weather, and bad crop reports. The market closed at the highest point of the day, May 1⅜c, July 1⅝c and September 1⅜c higher than yesterday. Country offerings were light, cash demand fairly good. The market now depends a great deal upon the weather and unless we get rains very soon prices will go considerably higher. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 135 cars.

Provisions opened firm although hogs were in excess of estimates and prices lower. There was given instant support by leading bulls who bought aggressively all day, and the strength in grain made the local crowd bullish and there was a material advance, closing at best prices of the day. Outside trade not large, but larger than a week ago., considering the boycott on high priced meat. The market for lard and ribs are almost up to top prices of the recent advance but offerings were light all day and general bullishness in everything prevented holders taking profits. Action of market shows bulls have control and we may see further advances. Estimated for tomorrow, 25,000 hogs.

A LARGE CONTRACT.

Cudahy Packing Company Buys Boxes In Duluth.

C. J. Petruschke, the West Duluth box manufacturer, will begin, May 1, to manufacture lard crates and English meat boxes on the large contract closed some weeks ago with the Cudahy Packing company, of Sioux City, Iowa. The contract runs to May 1, 1903, and will amount to 312 carloads of boxes. The factory at West Duluth will turn out a carload of boxes a day on its contract with the Cudahy company. This will not interfere with the other contracts that Mr. Petruschke has, and the factory output will amount to about eight carloads a week. Commencing May 1, Mr. Petruschke will double his crew and work a day and night shift. He has installed all his new machinery since the first of the year and bought all the box timber necessary for the season's run.

Mr. Petruschke says that he has plenty of orders ahead; that the demand for boxes is steadily increasing in the Southwestern markets, and it will only be a question of a little time until he has to increase his factory force to 100 men. The factory has been running the past year steadily with a day shift of from twenty-five to thirty men.

In making the contract with the West Duluth factory, the Cudahy company expressed itself as very well pleased with the grade of boxes manufactured here.

Deeds Are Filed.

Deeds covering the site of the new wholesale Kelley-How Hardware company building were filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. One deed runs from the Phillinsburg National bank, of Warren county, N. J., to Pulford, How & Co., covering two-thirds of the property, and the other runs from Theodore B. Casey, of Boston, covering the remaining third. The consideration in each case is $1, but the revenue stamps indicate a valuation of $18,000. Pulford, How & Co. have transferred the property to the hardware company. The property consists of lots 1 and 2, block 5, Munger's sub-division.

REACTION IN STOCKS

Was Continued and Sugar Declined Suddenly On Liquidation.

Large Selling of Stocks Based On the Grain Damage.

Specialties Moved Widely, Brooklyn Union Gas Rising Ten Points.

New York, April 23.—There was an active and well distributed demand for stocks in the opening dealings. Especially heavy blocks were taken of the grangers and the Pacifics. The strength of Atchison was most conspicuous with a gain of 1¾. Sugar and Detroit Southern made an equal gain and there were large fractional advances elsewhere. New York Air Brake dropped 2½, and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, 8 points.

The market leaders declined after the opening, the reaction running to a point in Sugar, Atchison and Canadian Pacific. Sugar rallied and there was a rise of 1⅛ in Manhattan which steadied the market. There was a considerable reduction in the volume of dealings, but there was more doing in minor stocks. Cotton Oil pfd., Virginia-Carolina Chemical, the Linseed stocks, the bicycle stocks, International Silver pfd., International Power, eneral Electric, the Toledo, St. Louis & Western stocks, the Wisconsin Central stocks, Detroit Southern pfd., Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, Long Island and Grass Twine rose 1 and 3 points. Reading 1st pfd and Texas Pacific also gained a point and Northwestern, 3. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis recovered 5½. St. Louis & San Francisco lost 1¾ and rallied a point. The strong opening in the wheat market made stocks turn heavy again.

Manhattan reacted a point when the grain carrying roads declined, but the general movement was soon arrested by bidding up of the coalers. The Readings, the Erles and New Jersey Central rose 1 to 3¼. Reading leading and holding the market which became dull. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis recovered all of its 8 point break and 2¾ in addition and Louisville & Nashville rose 1¼. Metropolitan showed strength and certificates for Metropolitan securities with the first assessment paid sold at 115 and 118. Colorado Fuel moved up a point and Sugar and Amalgamated were in good demand. New York, New Haven & Hartford gained 4¾, Brooklyn Union Gas, 6, and Consolidated Gas, 2. The whole market improved towards noon. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Traders sold the Western, Pacific and Southwestern stocks and they declined to the lowest. The coalers also fell off but retained a good margin of net gains. The specialties moved widely and irregularly. Brooklyn Union Gas made its gain 10 points and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis reacted 4¼. New York Air Brake lost 7 in all.

Prices began to sag and Rock Island, Illinois Central, Colorado & Southern and Kansas city Southern stocks lost 1 to 2. Reading reacted 1½, St. Paul & Omaha preferred dropped 3 but rallied 3 and Northwestern lost its 3 point rise. An advance of 1¾ by Tennessee Coal and a rise to 67 by Amalgamated steadied the market somewhat.

There was an upward movement in the minor metal stocks, but it amounts to a point only in Smelting. International Silver pfd. rose 3½. Pressure continued at other points and the decline from last night reached a point over in Union Pacific, St. Paul, St. Louis Southwestern 1 pfd. Chicago Terminal dropped 1⅛, and the pfd 2½. New Jersey Central lost a 2½ point rise. New York, New Haven & Hartford reacted 2, and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, 6¼. Sugar shot up later in the day to 127. Tennessee Coal recovered to 73⅞ and Republic Steel rose 1¼, but without much effect on the rest of the market. The closing was moderately active and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Despite the fact that the reaction in the stock market has gone further than anticipated, the best sentiment tonight continues bullish, and ours is a theory that the interests who realized heavily on the recent decline are taking back the stock sold by frightened holders on the alarmist crop reports, for which the bulls themselves are largely responsible. Hence the belief that stocks like the Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and the Readings are a purchase. Monetary conditions are improving; as to the crop situation, private advices from prominent Western railroad officials are to the effect that rains has brought a decided change for the better in the outlook for winter wheat, so close observers say. It may turn out that having recovered their stocks, the bull interest will soon be advancing prices again on favorable prospects for an average harvest. The sudden decline in Sugar on liquidation inspired by the growing conviction that for once in its career the sugar trust is powerless to dictate terms to congress. It wants a much greater reduction in the Cuban sugar duty; ill feeling has developed over this question. Insiders are out and their followers talk pur for the shares.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Of course there was a reaction and it may continue until Thursday, when the market will be a buy for a turn. I am told by the best judges that the bull campaign is not yet over. The tractions are to have a big advance. I am informed that there is to be a big advance in Brooklyn Rapid Transit. I think a 5-point margin will hold it. Coppers usually advance when the rest of the market declines. If we have rain in the West you will see a sharp rally in the market.

Town Topics: The stock market has had a pretty good shaking down and the selling based on crop damage has been large. The advices from the West this morning are more favorable and this should result in a change of front on the part of Western operators, and while the market will be irregular we look for improvement, and advise purchases on all weak spots. The reports of damage to crops is greatly exaggerated and if you take some St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Atchison you will make profits. Don't be afraid to hold the coalers. Tennessee Coal & Iron is a good purchase. Buy Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Leave the industrials alone.

Clark, Dodge & Co. to B. E. Baker: Officials of the Wisconsin Central in a position to know state there is no truth in the report that the Illinois Central is after the property. The control is in the hands of a voting trust which extends for two years more and it is very unlikely that control will be given over until the expiration of that time at least. A representative of the Illinois Central also discredits the report.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The market is irregular, but in the main easier. There was considerable effort to hold prices of stocks supposed to be affected by bad crop reports, but the market shows no greater amount of strength. There has been only unimportant relief to the dry condition throughout the West and the uneasy feeling over the situation is again reflected in the rapidly advancing price of wheat. Until there is a relief in this direction we do not see how a bull market in stocks can be maintained. There is no change in the money situation, but foreign exchange is about the export basis for gold, and gold shipments are quite likely. Would much rather sell stocks than buy them.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 23.—Cotton opened quiet and steady with prices 2 points higher to 1 point lower on firm Liverpool cables and bullish crop damage reports. Short selling and absence of support allowed July to settle to 9.12 and August to 8.92. Southern and European buying appeared and July is up 17 for July and to 8.96 for August followed. Trading was not particularly active.

THE FIRST GAME.

High School Baseball Season Will Start Saturday.

The first game of the high school baseball season will be pulled off at Oneota Park, in the West End, on Saturday afternoon, when the local team will cross bats with the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior.

The local team is in good condition for beginning its season, and the Superior men are said to be playing in good form. They expect to be able to put up a much better game against the Duluth boys than they did last year, when they were beaten by a score of 36 to 3.

The game which was to have been played on this date with the Stone-Ordean-Wells company's aggregation has been called off on account of the fact that that team will not be ready to play until about the middle of May. When it does appear on the field a game may be again arranged.

A Terrific Sea Is Running Through the Straits.

Southwest Gale Drives Water Out of Saginaw Bay.

Mackinaw City, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The northwest gale has steadily increased in violence since morning and at noon the wind was blowing 36 miles an hour. SITUATION QUIET.

The situation in the harbor today was as quiet as it was tempestuous yesterday. The gale quieted down last night, and though a stiff breeze blew out of the northwest all day it was not heavy enough to interfere with navigation in the least, while the gale lasted yesterday, however, it made serious trouble for mariners. Last night there were all kinds of rumors about vessels having sunk, but there does not appear to have been any foundation for any of them.

THE TUG STRIKE.

Tonight the local firemen's association will meet in regular session, and at that time Peter Cowick, the Duluth member of the grievance committee of the general order, will make his report. While nothing has been given out, it is expected that something may be done at tonight's meeting toward getting the strike out of the way and letting the tugmen get back to work. They have already lost most of the advantage they would have gained by the early of Galveston, Tex., Praises Wine of Cardui.

"Wine of Cardui is indeed a blessing to tired women. I know of nothing which will take its place, and having suffered seven years with weakness and bearing down pains, and having tried several doctors and different remedies with no success, I am glad to be able to say that your Wine of Cardui was the only thing which helped me, and eventually cured me. It seemed to build up the weak parts, strengthen the system and correct irregularities. It is certainly an excellent medicine as I know by experience."

WINE OF CARDUI is a standard vegetable extract that is recommended by doctors all over the United States. But the recommendation of doctors is backed up by thousands of voluntary testimonials from women who know what Wine of Cardui is from personal experience. These letters tell of cures Wine of Cardui has effected in every kind of ailment known as "diseases of women". These cures took place in the privacy of home, without a physician's examination or a surgeon's operation. Many of them were severe and chronic cases where the family physician failed to bring relief. Such a case was that of Mrs. Laura Adams of Galveston, Tex., whose earnest letter heads this article. She suffered seven years before she secured relief. She knew what it was to be worn out and tired by nervous exhaustion. Mrs. Richard Jones of Glendeane, Ky., corroborates her statement by saying:

"I am doing my own housework without any help and I did my washing last week and was not a bit tired. Before I took Wine of Cardui I used to lie down five or six times a day."

Mrs. M. S. Eaton, No. 808 Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., praises Wine of Cardui for the same reason Mrs. Adams does when Mrs. Eaton writes:

"I have been using Wine of Cardui for falling of the womb and have derived much benefit."

Mrs. Mattie A. Anderson, of Benton, La., was a great sufferer from irregular menstruation but she was cured by Wine of Cardui the same as Mrs. Adams. Mrs. Anderson writes:

"I have been a sufferer with irregular periods for three years. I tried everything that I heard would benefit me but was not relieved until I took Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught. Now I am in good health."

In the office of the Chattanooga Medicine Co., the manufacturers of Wine of Cardui, there are 10,000 such testimonials. These letters show that Wine of Cardui acts the same in all cases. This pure Wine perfectly regulates the menstrual flow and painless menstruation is the result. The freshness of health returns with the stoppage of the wasting drains. With such evidence as this before you, how can you allow your trouble to run on until you are past recovery? Wine of Cardui will not cure female diseases when they have developed into consumption. What else can happen when irregularities are sapping the blood and you let them go on? But do not let them go on. Stop them now. Wine of Cardui never fails in an uncomplicated case. Your druggist sells $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui and you should be taking this remedy in your home now. Secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui and get the same benefit and cure from it Mrs. Adams did. If you think you need advice write to The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Company, and tell them your symptoms and a letter of advice will be sent you.

Colfax Chesser, of Frederickburg, Tex., writes:

"Wine of Cardui is the best medicine that ever was made for women."

Ida M. Vaughn, Fearis, Ky., says:

"Wine of Cardui did me more good than all the doctors' medicines."

WHITECAPS

Almost Murder a Farmer Named Stretchberry at Nashville.

Nashville, Ind., April 23.—A second case of cruel torture by whitecaps within two days, is reported here. Early yesterday twenty masked men went to the home of the family of Stretchberry, a farmer living near the home of William Caldwell, who was almost murdered by the whitecaps the night before last. Stretchberry met them with a shotgun and emptied one charge into the shoulder of one of the gang. The whitecappers drove Stretchberry's wife into the kitchen. He was beaten over the head with revolvers and clubs and then dragged to the woods, where he was whipped until blood flowed from his back and limbs. He was left almost dead, tied to a post.

His wife, who was recently discharged from the insane hospital, became insane with excitement and ran to a neighbor's house. She was unable to make herself understood, but the farmer followed her to the place where Stretchberry lay.

Both Stretchberry and Caldwell are at the point of death and Mrs. Stretchberry's condition is most pitiable.

Resolved, that the ways and means committee be instructed to investigate the question of the recent increase in the price of these articles and determine the cause thereof and if practicable offer some explanation that will afford relief against the evil complained of.

A ROBBERY.

Bold Thief Robs James Dingwall of Norris House.

For the second time within a few months a house prowler invaded the Norris house last night.

The hotel is situated close to police headquarters, but the thief did not seem to care about that.

He entered the room of James Dingwall, the proprietor, and without disturbing him, went through the pockets of his clothing, taking considerable change and a bunch of keys.

The prowler then started on a tour of the hotel, but the first door he happened to put his head in proved to be the room of Mr. Dingwall's little daughter.

The little girl was awake and screamed at the top of her voice. Mr. Dingwall dressed hurriedly and went over to police headquarters, notifying Sergt. Sam Thompson.

The sergeant tracked the thief in the snow from the Norris house to a saloon close by and there lost the track. This is the first house prowling in several months, and the police are making strenuous efforts to locate the man that did the job.

William McKinney has returned to Duluth after spending the winter with relatives in Canada.

Mr. McKinney was proprietor of a liquid refreshment emporium on Minnesota Point last summer. The place was not licensed, and the police swore out a warrant for his arrest on the charge of conducting a "blind pig."

Mr. McKinney learned that the police were after him, and before they could serve the warrant went to Canada. He returned today, paying a fine of $50 and costs on the strength of the warrant sworn out against him last August.

Detective Terry last night recovered a $350 overcoat stolen two and a half years ago.

The coat was found in the home of Nordina Andrews, an Italian wood dealer, at No. 7 West First street.

The valuable garment was stolen from a clothes line at the home of Louis S. Loeb on Dec. 5, 1899.

Andrews says that the coat was wrapped up in a newspaper and hidden under a bridge when he picked it up. He was not arrested pending an investigation of the case.

The two proprietors of the Scandia employment bureau were arrested this morning for conducting their business without a license. Several complaints had been made against this agency by workingmen, and in looking up these complaints it was discovered that the Scandia license was in the name of a man named Steuart, while the place was conducted by Bert Somerfield and John Swanby. It was later explained that Somerfield and Swanby purchased the business of Stewart and did not deem it necessary to have a formal transfer of the license.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Death of Clarkin Due to Natural Causes.

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mystery surrounding the death of Patrick Clarkin has been solved. Coroner Miller had determined that the man had met with foul play, but after a more careful examination Dr. Miller stated that death was clearly due to a natural bursting of a blood vessel in falling into the pool of water where the body was found.

DEFERS TO CHAFFEE

The Arbitrary Order of the President Is Modified.

General Is Directed to Use His Own Judgment.

President Does Not Want Prestige of Country Impaired.

Washington, April 23.—The war department today made public the telegraphic cable correspondence which has taken place up to date respecting the Moro outbreak in Mindanao. The important feature of the correspondence is the closing chapter, showing that Gen. Davis' expedition is not arbitrarily stopped, but that Gen. Chaffee is allowed to exercise his discretion. It is believed that the presence of Governor Taft in Washington is the explanation of the president's decision that Gen. Chaffee shall confer with the acting head of the Philippine commission before adopting hostile tactics.

The correspondence begins with the cablegram given out last week, dated Manila, April 15, in which Gen. Chaffee recites the killing of the first American soldier, near Malanbang, and the forming of an expedition, under Baldwin, to arrest the murderers. In answer to this, the following dispatch was sent:

Washington, April 20, 1902. Chaffee, Manila: Expedition ordered under Baldwin will not leave coast until you heard from here. This will not, however, interfere with complete separation. CORBIN.

On April 22 the following cable was sent Gen. Chaffee:

Chaffee, Manilla: The president is anxious that no expedition be made against Moros until all efforts by negotiations have been exhausted. To this end he desires that you confer freely with the acting civil governor. In the event the force has to be sent, he directs that it go under the immediate command of Gen. Davis. The president will give you all support, but desires exercise of great care and prudence. If possible, avoid by all honorable means general war. CORBIN.

Chaffee, Manilla: With reference to previous cables on subject, it has been suggested to president that possibly surrender of the Moros murderers might be effected by instrumentality of friendly dattos. President desires this considered in conference with Wright, and to have assurance every honorable peaceful remedy has been exhausted. CORBIN.

Gen. Chaffee responded to the last cablegram by the dispatch given out at the White House last night, and published this morning, stating that to withdraw part of the forces would be dangerous.

To this statement, the following response was made today:

Washington, April 23.—Chaffee, Manila: Your cable of yesterday has been submitted by acting secretary of war to the president, who directs that you keep in mind the president's orders, but of course, do nothing that will impair our prestige by any way imperil the army. Call out at the expiration of the time named in your proclamation and after all possible diplomatic and friendly methods have been exhausted your demand for the Moro murderers has not been met, you will act upon the lines that in your judgment will best serve to bring peace and order in the island of Mindanao. CORBIN.

PARSONAGE BURNED.

St. Mary's at La Crosse Is Destroyed.

St. Paul, April 21.—A special to the Dispatch from LaCrosse, Wis., says: St. Mary's parsonage, the home of Rev. Dean William White, was destroyed by fire today. His niece, Mamie White, was overcome by gas and smoke and only rescued by firemen plunging through the flames. She lost a $250 diamond ring. Rev. Father McDonough, of Clairmont, Minn., lost $100 worth of clothing. Services were being held in the church next door when the fire broke out.

SERIOUS RIOTING

Of Strikers at Mill Just Outside City of Paterson.

Drove Workmen From Building By Use of Steam.

Police Fire On Mob at Georing's Dye House.

Paterson, N. J., April 23.—Because of the rioting last evening, which followed the strike of dyers' helpers at several silk dyeing works here, the entire police force is on duty this morning, in anticipation of a renewal of the disturbances.

The strikers held a meeting at Riverside this morning, and after it was over a large body of men marched to Hawthorne, which is just outside the limits of the city. Here are located the works of the American Silk Dyeing and Finishing company. This plant was the objective point of the mob, and they made an immediate attack on the works. As the plant is outside the city limits, there was no police guard. The rioters charged into the mill and drove out all the men at work. They turned on the steam and directed it against the fleeing workmen, a number of whom were badly scalded. George Arnold, a member of the firm, was in his office when the mob entered the works. He started to see what the trouble was, when he was attacked on all sides and badly beaten before some workmen rescued him from the mob.

Shortly after noon there was a clash between the crowd of men and the police at Emil Georing's dye house. As the employes of the dye house left the establishment for their lunch the crowd made a charge on the building and tried to force a way through the main entrance. The police on guard drove back the mob with their clubs; but there was a second charge, and this time the attacking party fought so desperately that the police were compelled to shoot. At this the mob broke and fled. During the fight two policemen were badly injured on the head by stones. The police intended to fire over the heads of the strikers, but it is said one of the mob was wounded. At the same time that the attack was made on Georing's dye house, there was a riotous demonstration at the dye works of Knipscher & Maas. There was a hard fight between a large body of men and a detail of police. The police had to send for reinforcements, and when these advanced the rioters were dispersed. No shots were fired at this affray.

IN CONGRESS.

Business of Miscellaneous Nature In Senate and House.

Washington, April 23.—At the opening of the session of the house today, Mr. Cramer (N. Y.), roce to a question of privilege and had read at the clerk's desk an article in a New York paper charging the New York members with being "dummies and derelict in their duty," in connection with the bill for a new postoffice building in New York city. He explained what was being done in the matter and Mr. Lessler (N. Y.), supplemented his statement by serving notice that when the omnibus public building bill was brought before the house, a fight would be made for the incorporation in it of the New York postoffice bill.

Bills were passed to donate the spars of the Don Juan de Austria and the Almirante Oquendo to the state of Alabama; to appropriate $90,000 of the funds of the Choctaw and Chicasaw Indians for the relief of destitute members of those tribes; to provide for trade statistics between the United States and its outlying possessions; to grant certain lands to the city of Colorado Springs, Col.

Mr. Dalzell (Pa.) from the committee on rules then presented the special continuing order agreed to by the committee some time ago, to provide for the consideration of the senate amendments to the oleomargerine bill.

Mr. Cowherd (Mo.) vigorously opposed the adoption of the rule. Mr. Dalzell replied to Mr. Cowherd and the rule was adopted, 152 to 79.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, April 23.—At the conclusion of the routine business today, the senate resumed consideration of the bill for a union railway station in Washington.

Mr. Teller (Col.) spoke in opposition to the measure. At 2 p. m. the bill was laid aside. Messrs. McMillan (Mich.) Elkins (V. Va.), Berry (Ark.), were appointed conferees on the river and harbor bill.

Messrs. Warren (Wyo.), Mason (Ill.) and Teller (Col.) were appointed conferees on the omnibus claims bill.

The first bill was taken up and Mr. Rawlins (Utah) resumed his speech, began yesterday.

SENATOR CUTS MAN

Mr. Money Has Altercation With a Conductor.

A Big Sensation on Washington Street Car.

Washington, April 24.—Senator H. D. Money, of Mississippi, had an altercation with a conductor on a street car this morning, which resulted in the senator receiving two severe blows from the conductor and the conductor being cut severely in the right arm with a knife. Senator Money says he was proceeding from his home to the Baltimore & Ohio depot to take the 9 o'clock train on that road for Baltimore, where he goes frequently for medical treatment of his eyes. He chanced to board a car which stops at the Peace monument, half a dozen blocks short of his destination. He had failed to notice this circumstance until the car began to turn around the monument.

The car bound for the depot was immediately behind and he had only three or four minutes to make his train. After he discovered he was on the wrong car he asked the conductor for a transfer to the car bound for the depot.

Failing to receive the ticket and knowing he had no time to lose, he jumped from the car and boarded the other. He had no sooner taken his seat, he says, than the conductor of that car asked for his ticket. He told the conductor he had not had time to secure a transfer to his change from one car to the other. The conductor replied that the senator would either have to produce a ticket or pay his fare, whereupon the senator told him that having paid one fare end entitled to a transfer which he had asked for, but had not received, he would not pay another.

Thereupon the conductor told him that he would put him off the car, and immediately proceeded to carry out his threat. This the senator resisted, and the conductor was not making much headway when a passenger, who had been sitting next to Senator Money, volunteered to assist the conductor. With their combined strength they contrived to force him from the car. The senator says that when they first undertook to eject him the car was in full motion, and he feels sure that if they had succeeded at that time he would inevitably have been badly hurt. The conductor and his assistant, however, did not succeed until the car stopped at the next crossing to let off other passengers. e says that both the conductor and the passenger were very gruff and abusive in their language, and that after he had reached the street the conductor hit him a severe blow over the head with his clenched fist. The blow, the senator says, was very painful, and in order to protect himself he took a small pocketknife from his pocket and opened it. This weapon the conductor grasped, and in doing so cut his hand so that it bled very freely.

Other persons stepped between the two, but notwithstanding their presence, the conductor, who is a tall man, struck him another blow with his bloody hand, hitting the senator squarely on the jaw. As a consequence of the blow the senator was covered with blood, and this circumstance led to a rumor that the senator himself had been severely injured. The senator adds that there were three or four policemen present, but that none of them took any steps to prevent the altercation. He says also that both the conductor and the passenger who assisted in his ejectment refused to give their names. The senator was not badly hurt, but his trip to Baltimore was prevented. He, however, proceeded with his customary duties about the capital during the day as if nothing unusual had occurred.

HAUPT GIVEN THE PLACE

Fergus Falls Man to Be the United States District Attorney---John Peterson Remains Collector at St. Paul.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, April 24.—Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota senators have recommended John Peterson for reappointment as collector of customs at St. Paul, and C. C. Haupt, of Fergus Falls, for appointment as United State's district attorney to succeed the late Robert G. Evans.

This is the result of a compromise by the senators, Peterson being a friend of Senator Nelson, and Haupt being the personal choice of Senator Clapp, who was his partner in the law business for many years at Fergus Falls. There were several Minneapolis candidates for district attorney, including M. D. Purdy, who was assistant to Evans. It is understood he will remain as assistant to Haupt.

BLOOD STIRRING AIRS

Of Old Dixie Again Thrilled the Confederate Veterans as They Marched Through the Streets of Dallas.

Dallas, Tex., April 24.—With their blood stirred to the same airs by which they had marched and fought two score years ago, the veteran remnant of the Confederate armies represented at the Dallas reunion marched through the streets of the city today, halied by a wildly-cheering multitude.

The day was a holiday, public buildings and stores generally being closed during the hours of the parade. Thousands of visitors, coming for the sole purpose of seeing the old soldiers, were added to the throng already on the streets. Some of the veterans, too feeble to march, found places along the route and waved their hats and screeched the famous rebel yells.

The start was made at May and Austin streets. Maj. Gen. Van Zandt, marshal of the day, and staff, preceded by mounted police to clear the way, led the parade. Following him came Gen. Gordon and staff. The erect, slender figure, the alert eyes and the gray pointed beard of the commander-in-chief were well known to most of the spectators. The location of his carriage, according to one observer, could almost be told by the increase of the volume of cheers progressing like a wave along with him. Next came distinguished guests and then the veterans. The latter were arranged according to departments, as follows:

Virginia, Tennessee, Forest cavalry corps, Dallas artillery, Trans-Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas, Indian territory, Oklahoma territory, Pacific division, Northwest division and Texas. Behind the old soldiers came the members of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

There was no business session of the association, a recess having been taken on Wednesday till Friday, when the reunion comes to an end.

THREE DISASTROUS FIRES

Oskaloosa, Iowa, April 24.—Freemont, 15 miles southeast, was visited by a disastrous fire this morning that destroyed three fourths of the business part of the place. The total loss will reach $35,000, with insurance of about $15,000. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin.

Sarcoxie, Mo., April 24.—The business portion of Sarcoxie, a town of 2000 inhabitants in the southwestern part of the state, was wiped out by fire last night, and fifteen houses were burned, entailing a loss of $100,000. William Meyers was injured by a falling telegraph pole and a stranger, name unknown, was badly hurt.

Clarion, Pa., April 24.—The fire at Marlenville forest county yesterday, raged until late last night, consuming 150 buildings and entailing a loss of nearly $300,000, with not over $75,000 insurance. About one-half of the town is in ashes and 500 people are homeless.

PERSISTENT PERSECUTORS

Mankato, Minn., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An attempt was made Tuesday night to cremate alive W. A. Liebrecht and wife during the wind storm that enveloped the city. Liebrecht and wife were married last winter, after some one had burned the house where the girl lived with her mother, in order to separate the couple. Letters in German were tacked on trees for the next few days, saying Liebrecht started the fire, but these were obviously untrue. Threatening letters were written after that, and after their marriage someone broke the windows of their home with stones. The authorities are endeavoring to find the identity of their persistent persecutors, but so far without avail.

HEARTY SUPPORT

Is Assured President Palma From Entire Cuban People.

Gen. Maso Anxiously Awaits His Arrival at Manzanillo.

Messages of Welcome Are Arriving From All Classes.

New York, April 24.—President-elect Palma's triumphal tour will be continued early Thursday morning, says a Holguin, Cuba, dispatch to the Tribune. The next city to be visited is Bayamo, Gen. Palma's native town. Excepting, perhaps three hours, Gen. Palma was kept continually busy Wednesday receiving the people of this town. He paid a visit to the venerable mother of Gen. Calixto Garcia. The meeting was extremely pathetic.

In the afternoon Gen. Palma reviewed a procession of 1000 school children, among whom were many Americans. A demonstration in the plaza and a reception followed.

Messages of congratulation continue to reach the president-elect. One of these came from Gen. Bartolomeo Maso, who was his opponent at the presidential election. He said he anxiously awaited Gen. Palma's arrival at Manzanillo that he might embrace him. This message disposes of any question that may have existed as to the heartiness of the support which the entire Cuban people will give Gen. Palma's administration.

WORST ENEMY

Of Human Society Is the Spirit of Caste.

New Haven, Conn., April 24.—Bishop Henry C. Porter, of New York, in his second address of the series on the responsibilities of citizenship at Yale, discussed the subject of the relation of the citizen and the capitalist and argued that the panacea for the labor situation is not any particular method or plan, but greater confidence between employer and employe, between capitalist and laborer, and a disregard of any caste distinctions.

"Almost the worst enemy of human society is the spirit of caste, and the tragic element in the constitution of our modern society is that under forms of government that profess long ago to have removed and abandoned it, it still rears its head in forms more insolent and more mischievous than any it ever has assumed; for while we may be patient with the caste spirit when it survives as a product of earlier ages of tribal distinction, or ancestral tradition, or distinguished ancestry or social culture, it becomes, when we see it—as too often we see it today—the mere incarnation, then, I say, it becomes a menace alike to the right of the weakest and the freedom of the poor. A caste of capitalists separated by practically inseparable barriers from a caste of laborers means social anarchy and industrial war."

DAVIS GUILTY.

Pleads to Grand Larceny In First Degree.

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry R. Davis pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the first degree today. The charge was embezzling $1500 from the Travelers' Insurance company.

The plea following the introduction of testimony regarding damaging admissions which he made during a conversation. Sentence was postponed.

COURT WILL SETTLE

Validity of Police Appointments at Owatonna.

Owatonna, Minn., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police embroglio will soon be settled by quo warranto proceedings to test the validity of appointments made by the Democratic majority of the council. Mayor Bach appointed two night policemen.

Now there is a double force employed. The council also, by resolution, fixed the pay of special police at any time appointed by the mayor at 25 cents per day. Offers of compromise have been made but refused. The quo warranto proceedings seem to be absolutely necessary to settle the question.

CURBSTONE BROKER

Will Be Regulated By Real Estate Board.

Minneapolis, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the dinner and business session of the Minneapolis real estate board last evening, at the Commercial club, some of the most important actions in the history of the organization were taken. The board will attempt to regulate the curbstone broker, who has been quite active of late.

The board took action looking to a home for the organization and where sales can be conducted. The secretary will issue a bulletin every week to members of the board, containing not more than three offerings from each member.

The board will give its banquet at the Minneapolis club early in May.

Dr. Curry is now president of the Southern Baptist board of foreign missions. He is an ordained minister of the Baptist church.

WERE BOUND TO DULUTH

Fifty-Six Italian Laborers Were Arrested at the Soo By Immigration Inspector and Sent Back to Canada.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 24.—Fifty-six Italian laborers were arrested yesterday at the Union station on the arrival of the Canadian Pacific local train by a United States immigration inspector. The men had been hired in Canada to work on the Eastern Minnesota railway and were destined for Duluth. The importers, Ballestretti & Lantone, will have a hearing before United States Commissioner John A. Colwell. The penalty for bringing alien laborers to the United States is $1000 for each man imported. The Italians were sent back to Canada.

RIGHTS OF ADMIRALTY

In View of the Contingencies Which May Arise From Morgan's Shipping Combine Are Receiving Most Careful Consideration.

London, April 24.—In the house of commons today the secretary of the admiralty, Hugh O. Arnold-Foster, replying to a question, said the admiralty was considering the whole matter of ship subsidies with the view of defining the rights of the admiralty in the event of contingencies arising, such as the suggested shipping combine. When the present form of agreement was settled upon no trade combinations under foreign control were contemplated, but the admiralty had appointed a committee to consider and report on the purpose and form of future subsidy agreements. The admiralty, in the meanwhile, has made arrangements with the White Star line, which preclude the possibility of any of their armed cruisers or merchant steamers being transferred to a foreign flag without the consent of the admiralty during the unexpired portion of the admiralty agreements. Important legal points were involved, including the questions whether, in event of war, there was anything to prevent these companies from substituting a British flag at short notice, and whether the admiralty has the means of enforcing its right of pre-emption or hire in such cases, or, if by abandoning the subvention the companies could claim that the right of pre-emption ceased. All points would be carefully considered and the admiralty's position would be ascertained.

MORE HOMESEEKERS ARRIVE

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another homeseeker movement yesterday carried about 900 colonists through St. Paul to Northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Washington points. The early trains from Chicago handled a heavy business and the through trains westward over the coast lines left St. Paul filled to their capacity. Present indications are that this week's movement will add about 3000 settlers to those that have already gone West. Yesterday's movement was composed largely of farmers from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Iowa.

MORE JUST TO THE FARMERS

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state railroad commission is undertsood to be considering the advisability of changing the grain inspection fee system which has long been in effect in Minnesota.

The commission feels that a certain fixed fee for inspection in case carloads did not exceed a certain weight would be more just to the farmers, while larger cars containing several hundred more bushels of grain should be charged a few cents more. However, no definite plan has yet been evolved.

Trouble is also being met by the commission in connection with the payment of grain inspection fee.

ASSAULT ON PFANSCHMIDT

Winona, Minn., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A brutal assault with alleged intent to murder and rob was committed by Edward Murphy on William Pfanschmidt at St. Charles Tuesday evening. Murphy has been arrested. Mr. Pfanschmidt's condition is precarious. He is about 80 years old. Murphy, it is alleged, struck the old man on the head, from behind, with a blunt instrument, relieved him of a gold watch and $3 in cash and fled.

Two hours later Mr. Pfanschmidt, literally covered with blood, was only able to scrawl on a piece of paper the name of his assailant.

JOKE TERMINATED FATALLY

Chicago, April 24.—A practical joke terminated fatally for Edward L. Miller, when a man he had laughingly ordered to throw up his hands, drew a revolver and shot the supposed thief dead. J. P. Brown, who fired the shot, was acquainted with his victim, both men having lived in the same house for several months.

HE CANNOT KEEP QUIET

Funston Attempts to Explain His Remarks.

He Intended to Compliment Senator Hoar.

Denver, April 24.—Gen. Frederick Funston is credited with having dictated a statement concerning the order of President Roosevelt, directing him to cease further discussion of the Philippine question and expressing regret at Funston's criticism of a United States senator, which appears in the Republican today, as follows:

"What I said at the banquet of the Colorado Sons of the American Revolution last Saturday night made a distinction between two classes of people; the first, the demagogues who did not believe what they were saying; the other, the class of people to which the senior senator from Massachusetts belongs, who did not believe what they were saying, were perfectly sincere, but were suffering from overheated consciences; that is, they were too sincere.

"Instead of criticising Senator Hoar I intended to pay him a compliment on being so sincere. I intended to keep off the subject entirely, but Gen. Hale's introduction was such that it compelled me to say something on the Philippine war.

"In regard to my leave of absence, in order that I might attend the Middlesex club banquet at Boston, I made the application one evening, but department matters came up next morning that made it impossible for me to leave here. Therefore I telegraphed withdrawing my application made the night before and before the war department had time to act upon it.

"The banquet of the Middlesex club in Boston is to be given April 26. I received within one week ten telegrams urging me to attend. Senator Lodge was very anxious for me to come. At first I said I could not, but afterwards and until this important business I referred to came up, I thought I possibly could make it.

"As you understand, I cannot discuss any orders I have received or may receive. So far I have received the order only through the newspapers, not officially.

"I had decided to talk no further of the Philippine question. My plan in regard to the banquet of the officers of the Colorado National Guard, May 1, was to say nothing whatever about the merits of the war, but simply to speak to the toast, 'The Eighth Army Corps.'"

Asked if he would reply to some personal attacks that have appeared in print against him, the general said:

"I have nothing to retract, but I can't refer to these things without my blood boiling, and I have therefore concluded that the safest policy is to avoid the subject. I have had my say and the people know my sentiments. I have no desire to harp upon them."

STRIKERS ARE QUIET

No Attempt Made to Resume Business at the Silk Dye House at Paterson---Strikers Make No Demonstration.

Paterson, N. J., April 24.—The operators of the silk dye houses made no general attempt to resume business this morning, and no disorder occurred in any of the strike districts. Many of the striking helpers appeared in the vicinity of the shops which they quitted to enforce their demand for higher pay, but they made no demonstration of any kind. The largest crowd gathered about the hall at Riverside used by the strikers, where a meeting had been called for 10 o'clock. They stood about discussing the situation and were orderly.

The police reserves assembled at 6 o'clock and were placed in positions to be quickly available for any service that might be required. Reports given out at police headquarters were that the strikers were entirely orderly and that no further trouble was anticipated.

The employers have not yet clearly indicated their policy toward the strike and strikers. It was expected that they would meet during the day for further discussion, and also that they would discuss the demands with shop committees representing the strikers.

At the works of the Wiedman silk dyeing and finishing works it was stated that forty men were at work, and that some of them had come in and resumed their places, despite threats that they would be killed if they did so. Strikers were watching the plant and there was some fear that the day might see another clash there. The police have been cautioned to exercise the greatest care and too use their revolvers only when a grave danger of personal injury presents itself or to protect others from serious attack.

SOLDIERS RAN AWAY

Gen. Castillo Killed While Leading an Advance of Venezuelan Troops Against Insurgents and Troops Scattered and Fled.

Port of Spain, Island of Trinidad, April 24.—(By special steamer from Cmana, state of Bermudese, Vez.)—On Tuesday morning the Venezuelan government troops, numbering 2200 men under Gen. Ramon Castillo, attacked the revolutionists between San Antonio and Gunanaguana, distant about thirty league from Cumana and situated in a mountainous district well known to the revolutionists. Gen. Castillo personally led the advance government guard composed of Andinos, veteran troops. One hour after the opening of the action Gen. Castillo was wounded. Immediately after this all the recently recruited Venezuelan soldiers disbanded, deserting in all directions and eventually reaching San Antonio. The government officers tried to rally their troops, but their efforts were in vain and ended in a complete retreat of the Venezuelan soldiers.

The whereabouts of Gen. Escalante, who was second in command of the government army, was unknown when this dispatch was forwarded.

Gen. Castillo died later from the wounds received in the engagement.

The situation in Venezuela is again critical.

SULTAN TO USE ELECTRICITY

New York, April 24.—The palace of the sultan of Linga, a small island in the Malay archipelago, is to be equipped with a complete electric lighting plant of Yankee manufacture. Iloilo, Philippines, is to have an up-to-date American electrical plant for railway and lighting use. An electric railway system is to be constructed between Iloilo, Jaro and Molo. The road will be about ten miles in length and will open up a rich district.

DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION

New York, April 24.—While lying in Newton creek, near the Manhattan avenue bridge, in Green Point, the tug boat Thomas Percival was destroyed by an explosion early today.

Three of the crew, an engineer and two firemen, are reported missing. Edward Moran, a watchman, was found in the debris. He was fatally hurt. Another man, unidentified, was taken from the wreckage later.

All the glass in the windows of the American Jute company's mill nearby was shattered and all the electric lights in that part of the city were extinguished. The cause of the explosion is not known.

WOMAN'S FIENDISH SCHEME

English, Ind., April 24.—Cruel and inhuman treatment will be the plea of Thomas Foley for divorce. His wife admits that she tied his hands and feet while he was drunk and applied salt to his hands, face and clothing, that the cattle in the field where he lay might lick him to death, as a revenge for a beating she received during a drunken orgy. Foley's skin was raw in many places and his clothing in shreds.

AFTER BAD TENANTS

Rental Agents Striving to Protect Themselves This Year.

Working Together Toward the Attainment of This End.

Some Require Chattel Mortgage Security From Tenants.

A new move on the part of the rental agencies, or some of them, at least, is noted this spring. It is said that there is an informal black list system in vogue, by which one agency acquaints the other upon application with the standing of a former customer as a tenant in a general way, but particularly with regard to the custom of the tenant in connection with the prompt payment of rent.

Carrying this still farther, it is said that some of the agencies upon learning that a desiring tenant has not had a reputation for paying rent in the past very promptly, and upon further inquiry as to his general financial status, exact from him a chattel mortgage covering his household goods before they allow him to move into the house. The mortgage is given as security for the faithful and prompt payment of rent, and is so explicitly stated in its provisions.

"This is in no sense a combination of rental agencies," said one agent this morning. "Everybody that has had anything to do with the collection of rentals knows full well that there is quite a large proportion of slow pay tenants. They are slow pay about house rent just as they are slow pay at the grocery. The only difference is that when they have run up a small bill at the grocery and don't pay, the grocer has the liberty of selling them no more goods. The law, however, hedges so much protection about the tenant that it is pretty expensive and slow to stop selling the tenant the use of a house. In bad times we had to run the risk of getting beaten by bad-pay tenants. Now houses are in such demand and in such short supply that we can be more strict in our treatment of our customers.

"We have no agreement or even understanding. The custom has simply grown up from more frequent use of it. If our competitor across the street has an application from a man for a house, he finds out in the course of his conversation where the man has rented before. Then, if the applicant has been our tenant, he calls up and asks us if the applicant is all right. We don't enter into specific details, but act in a friendly way about it, because for self-protection we may want the same information ourselves the next day, and briefly say what our experience with him has been. In that way, some of the agencies obtain information on which they base their demand for security for the rent before leasing the house. We have no association, no gentleman's agreement, nothing except a disposition to be free from imposition ourselves and in order to gain that safety are willing to do as we are done to."

An Unsinkable Ship.

Experiments are being made on a new apparatus for use in case of collision on the ocean. By turning a small wheel in the pilot house, twenty watertight doors are instantly closed, and these compartments are more than enough to keep any vessel afloat. If it is a success it will make ocean travel as free from danger as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does the road through life. It is a splendid tonic, free from all injurious narcotics, and one that the most delicate system can retain. In the spring, when the weather is so variable, it is very beneficial as it protects the system from sudden colds and la grippe. Don't fail to try it. It also cures indigestion, dyspepsia, insomnia, headache, nervousness and billousness.

AT THE HOTELS

Miss Rose Coughlan, who is considered by the serious dramatic critics of the day as the peer of actresses of polished and intellectual emotional roles, arrived at the Spalding this morning. Miss Coughlan had the distinction of having opened the old Temple theater back in 1889 with a suberb production of "Jocelyn." "The only sin that Miss Coughlan has committed," commented an old playgoer this morning, "has been her disposition to tour 'the road,' as it is known with such high-priced companies that she lost her heavy profits in the cities." John T. Sullivan, Miss Coughlan's husband, is said to be with the famous Boston Museum stock company. Among the other members of the Coughlan company that are registered at the Spalding is Miss Nell McEwan, whose dainty ingenue work with the Clay Clemens company won her great admiration here.

IS SHIPPING.

Big Mountain Iron Mine Begins Its Active Season.

Superintendent M. S. Hawkins began shipping ore from the big Mountain Iron mine today. Some ore is also moving from the Sauntry, at Virginia, and shipments from the open pit of the Fayal at Eveleth began last week. All these properties belong to the Steel corporation. They are the first steam shovel mines belonging to this group to send ore to the dock this year. A little trouble with frost is still encountered, but it is coming out of the ground rapidly.

The Mountain Iron ships over the Duluth Missabe & Northern, and the other two properties ship over the Duluth & Iron Range to Two Harbors. The Missabe is now running about thirteen ore trains a day to its docks. The Duluth & Iron Range is handling from 20,000 to 25,000 tons of ore daily.

WIFE DRIVEN MAD.

Tied In a Tree Top For Three Days.

Wichita, Kas., April 24.—Humming Bird, an aged Kiowa buck, living south of Anadarko, in the newly opened Oklahoma country, sought novel means to revenge himself upon his squaw wife. The woman, who is about 20 years old, had been living with another Indian for several months. The old redskin caught her last Friday morning and took her to his Brushcreek home.

He tied her hands and feet and suspended the body in a high cottonwood tree about 40 feet from the ground. The wind was blowing about thirty miles an hour. She remained there three days and nights. She was found by Indian hunters Monday.

The woman was raving crazy. Humming Bird was arrested and admitted his guilt. He says this is the old-fashioned Indian way of treating unfaithful wives.

SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Two Young Men Captured at Ely For Duluth Police.

Suspected of Being Robbers of Dr. Storer's Dental Office.

A Woodsman's Detective Scheme Has an Expensive Ending.

A wire from Ely today announced the arrest of James Hagerty and Frank Schuberg, "wanted by Duluth authorities."

Threads of evidence connect these two young men with the burglary of Dr. W. S. Storer's dental office, 124 West Superior street, on the night of April 5.

Deputy Sheriff Bates left for Ely this morning to bring them here and will probably arrive this evening.

The dental office that was burglarized is located on the second floor of the McDonnell block—a block used largely as bachelor apartments.

On the night of the burglary one of the men was working at the door of Dr. Storer's office while the other was down near the Superior street entrance and warned the other by coughing whenever any person entered the building. Later both went at the door and made so much noise that George Tvedt was awakened and went into the hallway to see what was the matter.

He said he heard breaking glass, and asked the men what they were doing. They acted as if they had a perfect right to be in the building, and remarked that it was strange if they could not open a bottle of beer on their way to their rooms.

Gaining admittance to the office, they stole many valuable dental instruments and much gold filling. Some of the instruments were found in a barrel near the Spalding hotel, while the remainder was put into a small box on the street. The gold filling, however, and a revolver were not recovered.

About the same time the Rathbun grocery store on East Superior street was broken into but very little taken.

The men under arrest in Ely had been hanging around local saloons for a week, about the time of these two robberies, and their description tallies with the description given by persons that saw them in the McDonnell block.

About a week ago a woodsman met an extremely brunettish person down on Paradise alley. Shortly after the meeting he missed $30. He did not like to accuse the girl of stealing without having some more tangible evidence than a mere suspicion, so he hunted around till last evening he ran across an acquaintance with $50.

The slueth-like woodsman argued that if his friend should meet the brunette and lose his money he could tell more definitely where the $30 had disappeared the week before.

So, without a word of warning, he took his friend to the sloppy home of the frivolous brunette and the friend lost his $50.

That was considered evidence enough, so the girl was placed under arrest, but this morning neither of the men were able to prove certain essential things that they claimed, and the authorities reluctantly released the girl.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmers' Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fiftycent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghampton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Evening Herald.

CLEARED THE PLACE.

Louis Larson Holds High Carnival In a Saloon.

With a knife in hand, Louis Larson closed up Thomas Berg's saloon at Twenty-first avenue west and Superior street this morning.

Larson, with a number of other men, were in the saloon drinking, when some person began calling names. A fight followed, and Larson, with his knife in hand, chased all the customers out of the saloon.

He went after John Jones and Hugh Peterson and chased them around the block. The other customers got back in the saloon and bared the doors. When Detectives Irvine and Terry reached the scene Larson had declared the place in a state of siege. Even after placing the cause of disturbance under arrest, the detectives had a hard time to convince the besieged that it was safe to open the doors.

ON HALF SHELL.

Not long since the May Irwin company chanced to be playing for one night in a New England city which is known to be a very strict no-license town. After the performance that night Roland Carter, one of the members of the company, as was his custom, strolled into a restaurant, says the New York Times.

"I think you may bring me an oyster cocktail."

The waiter hesitated—

"Ah'm, very sorry, Sah, but I'se 'frald we can't serve you. There's no drinkin' 'lowed in dis yere town."

"But," said Carter, "an oyster cocktail is not made of liquor."

"Dat may be, sah," said the waiter, "but I know de boss would never 'low me to take such an order as that."

"Well, you call the proprietor here," insisted Carter.

The proprietor was summoned and the actor stated his desires to him. But that individual was just as much at sea in regard to an oyster cocktail as was the colored individual and said that being a law-abiding individual he could not serve anything in the way of drinks to his customers.

Carter offered to make the oyster cocktail himself if they would only bring him the ingredients, but thep roprietor was adgurate and insisted that nothing bearing the name "cocktail" could be had in his establishment, and the Thespian was obliged to have his oysters served on the half shell.

PLEAS

Of a Girl From the Farm Won a Lawsuit.

St. Louis, April 24.—"If Your Honor please, my defense is that at the time this suit was brought Mr. Richey had no interest in the judmegnt given in my mother's favor against Mr. Schneider; that the judgment was vested in my mother and that at the time the judgment in this suit was, given the money on the other judgment had not been collected, that he had contracted with Mrs. Eliza McConnell to conduct a damage suit for her for half of any judgment she might obtain; that he secured a verdict in her favor for $500; that she discharged him as her attorney before he had secured an execution on the judgment, and that thereby no interest in the judgment became vested in him."

The foregoing is the plea made by Miss Alda O. McConnell, who lives on a farm in St. Charles county, Mo., and who has had no legal training, but who successfully defended a suit brought against her mother, Mrs. Eliza McConnell, by her former attorney, Frank E. Richey, for a fee of $250.

When the case was called Mrs. McConnell and her young and handsome daughter appeared without an attorney. The former stated she had no confidence in lawyers and declined to accept the services of an attorney appointed by the court. Miss McConnell then announced that she would represent her mother in the trial.

While Mr. Richey, the plaintiff, was giving his statement of the case the amateur female attorney sat at the counsel table, book in hand, and took notes of what he said. When he had concluded she began to cross-examine him in a quiet, musical way, without a trace of hesitation. She did not argue with the witness, but she brought out all the points she desired by her logical, incisive examination. Attorneys began to gather in the courtroom, highly interested in the outcome of this novel trial. At times, when the court ruled some of her questions out of order, she arose, and in a calm, well-modufated voice presented her reasons for so questioning, and several times got the ruling reversed in her favor.

BLACKMAIL

Still Going on Under the Low Administration.

New York, April 24.—William W. Brauer, president of the William W. Brauer Steamship company, charges that he was asked to pay $40,000 as a bribe in consideration of which he was to have received the exclusive use of the Thirty-fourth street pier, North river, or one equally as good for an entire year.

Lyman E. Warren, counsel to the Brauer Steamship company, at a hearing before Mayor Low, at the city hall, said that the old system of blackmail was in operation in this city, and that President Brauer was "approached" with a proposition to pay $40,000 to a Mr. Dady, of Brooklyn, in order to get the kind of a pier the company wanted.

Mr. Warren at the hearing said:

"We have been approached about a pier and have been told that we could get a pier for the payment of money."

"You have made those charges before," interrupted the mayor. "What do you mean by making such statements here without substantiating them? I have told you if you made specific charges they would be investigated."

Mr. Warren said:

"Well, we were told by Bowman, the broker, to approach Mr. Gallagher, and if we paid $40,000 we could get a dock."

"Who is Mr. Gallagher?" asked the mayor.

"I do not know who he is," replied Mr. Warren.

Mr. Warren continued by saying:

"We were told that if the money was put in the hands of Mr. Dady, of Brooklyn, we could get the pier."

"Mr. Dady!" ejaculated the mayor. "What connection did he have with it?"

"We were told to put the money in his hands," was the reply.

Michael J. Dady, commissioner of elections, is in Cuba.

I Will Cure You of RHEUMATISM

No Pay Until You Know It.

After 2000 experiments, I have learned how to cure Rheumatism. Not to turn bony joints into flesh again; that is impossible. But I can cure the disease always at any stages, and forever.

I ask for no money. Simply write me a postal and I will send you an order on your nearest druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatism Cure, for every druggist keeps it. Use it for a month, and if it does what I claim pay your druggist $5.50 for it. If it doesn't, I will pay him myself.

I have no samples. Any medicine that can affect rheumatism with but a few doses must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs. It is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that, even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. No matter how impossible this seems to you, I know it and I take this risk. I have cured tens of thousands of cases in this way, and my records show that 29 out of 40 who get these six bottles pay, and gladly. I have learned that people in general are honest with a physician who cures them. That is all I ask. If I fail I don't expect a penny from you.

Simply write me a postal card or letter. Let me send you an order for the medicine; also a book. Take it for a month, for it won't harm you anyway. If it cures, pay $5.50. I leave that entirely to you. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 685, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases, not chronic, are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

POTATOES MAKE BIG JUMP

Chicago, April 24.—Prices of potatoes have jumped to $1 a bushel in the Chicago wholesale market. There has been an advance of 13 cents since Saturday last, and the present price is the highest since last August, when the price was $1.25. The crop of old potaoes has been nearly used up, and supplies in all markets are unusually small. New Cubans sold at $10 a barrel yesterday. The new crop is just starting to market from Louisiana.

Lucas Meyer's command. Nothing has leaked out regarding the result. Secretary Reitz returned here early yesterday evening and proceeded to Pietersburg to meet Commandant Beyers.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Interior to Be Restored Despite the Protests.

Washington, April 24.—Notwithstanding the protest from people all over the country against changes being made in the interior of the White House, the old mansion will evidently soon be filled with workmen. Charles F. McKim, the architect from New York, who was chosen by the president to go over the matter with him, went all over the White House yesterday with a view to mapping out such changes and repairs as are needed. It is necessary to make some estimate of the work before the appropriation is made, and the matter of change is still in embryo, but enough has been decided upon to transform the White House into a substantial colonial mansion of the period in which it was built. No president who has in the past found it necessary to remodel or renovate the White House has had in mind keeping it strictly to the period in which it was built until the matter fell into the hands of President Roosevelt. Modern works of art and modern furniture and modern decoration have taken the place of the colonial effects without an effort at preserving the original. What has been done at Mount Vernon will be done at the White House. The modern stained glass in the front hall will be removed, leaving the stately proportions of the hall untouched by throwing what is now the vestibule and the red corridor into one. Some modern mantels of inferior outline will be replaced by those copied after the fine ones in some of the first floor rooms. The effort of the president will be to preserve and not destroy the historic value of the house.

COUNTERFEIT

Postal Cards Are Now In General Use.

New York, April 24.—The postal authorities are exercised over the discovery of counterfeit postal cards in the mails from nearly every part of the United States. Postmaster Vancot said today: "We have received only a few cards at the New York postoffice. What bothers us is the fact that those received have come from so many different sections. Several inspectors are working on the case. The cards are a poor counterfeit."

The description of the counterfeit cards given by the postal authorities follows:

"Top of name line runs together. Genuine is spaced. Lines of Jefferson's face are coarse and broken, wreath not uniform. Word Jefferson is light face; genuine is bold face type. It is a coated paper, not used for cards. The whole appears to be a copy from an old, worn out plate."

WORSHIP BY MACHINERY.

A story is told of one of the old-time pillars of a New England church who held out firmly for a long time against the innovation of an organ, but when he finally yielded did so without reserve, says the Youth's Companion. From violent opposition he became the most strenuous of all the congregation as to the fineness of the instrument to be purchased.

"Seems to me you aren't consistent," said one economical brother, reproachfully. "Here a month ago you couldn't speak harsh enough about organs, and now you go to advocating extra expenses in getting the best that's to be had."

"See here," said the deacon, grimly, "if we're going to worship the Lord by machinery, I don't want to putter around with any second rate running gear."

TO ASSESS THE MINES

County Auditor Halden Issues Instructions to the Assessors.

Directs Them to See That Mines Are Properly Assessed.

Their Assessed Valuations to Be Largely Increased This Year.

Real estate is assessed this year, and the principal item of interest about the assessment will be the valuations that are to be placed upon the iron mines.

Since the assessments were made two years ago, which placed the real estate valuations at about $12,000,000 on all the iron mining property of St. Louis county, a good deal of new light has been thrown on the value of iron properties, and it has been discovered that they have been getting off with very light assessments in the past.

This year there is a determination that the iron mines shall be assessed in such a manner as to bring them up to where they will pay the same proportion of taxes, as nearly as possible, that other property pays.

County Auditor Halden has begun at the bottom of this movement by issuing instructions to the assessors in villages and townships where mining property is located, calling their attention to the condition, and showing them their duty in the matter. The assessors will come in Saturday to receive their books, and these instructions will be given them at that time.

The circular letter that will be given to each of them is as follows:

"I would suggest that it is the duty of the assessors of St. Louis county to pay more direct and careful attention to the iron mines and mining locations of the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges this year than ever before.

"There are many pieces of property that were assessed two years ago as wild lands, on which iron deposits have since been discovered.

"There are many pieces of property that were assessed two years ago as undeveloped iron prospects, that have since then become shipping mines of known value.

"There are many mines that have been shipping for years that, in the absence of definite information on the part of assessing officials, have been very much under-assessed in the past.

"It is the duty of the assessors of St. Louis county to look into all of these matters carefully. When the real estate assessment was made two years ago few people had any idea of the actual value of the mining property of the county. The result was that all of the iron mines were assessed at rates far below those at which other property was assessed.

"The iron mines must be made to pay the same proportion of the taxes this year as other property. The only way to bring this about is to make their assessments on the same basis and in the same proportion as other property. The assessors, having the first review of this and other property, will help matters immensely by making proper assessments of all mining property. They have access to the same information as the higher taxing officials, and in many cases their knowledge may be better, because of their being on the ground. Where the value of a mine has become known by the terms of a sale, lease or other transfer, this may be used in arriving at the proper assessment. The mines should not be assessed at more than their value, but they should be assessed in the same proportion of their actual value as other property, and it is common knowledge today that they are not now so assessed, because of the lack of information that has been supplied since the last assessment.

"The assessors can do much to remedy this, and it is their duty to do what they can, honestly, fairly, impartially and with regard to their oaths of office. Very truly yours,

"O. HALDEN,
"County Auditor, St. Louis County."

The real estate assessments on the iron mines are now about $12,000,000, having been raised to that figure when real estate was last assessed, two years ago.

County Auditor Halden's idea is that the assessments should be raised to at least $30,000,000, and he will probably have enough other members of the county board of equalization that agree with him to push the assessments up to that level. The county board of equalization is composed of the seven members of the board of county commissioners, with the county auditor. Three of the commissioners are from the iron ranges and four from the city, and with County Auditor Halden this will make five from the city against three from the ranges. The range commissioners will probably not oppose a proper assessment of the iron mines, however. In fact, County Commissioner Berdie, of Hibbing, in the speech that he made before the senate tax committee in St. Paul last winter against the tonnage tax on iron ore, stated that he would be found to be advocating an increased assessment of iron property when the board of equalization meets this summer.

ANOTHER MEMBER

West Enders Would Have Two on Library Board.

Matter Has Been Brought Before the Business Men's Club.

Confident That Board Will Restore Branch Library.

There is a strong sentiment in the West End in favor of another representative from that part of the city on the library board. West Enders hold that the fact that the western portion of the city has now but two representatives on the library board, while the rest of the city has seven representatives, is a matter of injustice to that part of Duluth west of the point of rocks. There is some talk of an effort to get a representative on the board this year from the Sixth ward.

The matter was suggested at the meeting of the Business Men's club the other night by Alderman R. D. Haven. Mr. Haven declared that the western portion of the city has been getting short treatment on the board because it has been inadequately represented there. Relative to Mr. Hubbard, the member of the library board from the West End, it was stated in the report of the committee appointed by West End citizens to confer with the board that there is more or less friction between Mr. Hubbard and the other members of the library board, and it was suggested that the closing of the West End branch library might be traced back to this condition of affairs.

The committee that was appointed to confer with members of the library board claims that some of the board members, when they voted for Dr. Codding's resolution abolishing the station, did so under the impression that they were making a considerable cut in expenses, but when confronted by the figures prepared by the committee, and which are said to show that the cut has been immaterial, were astonished, and promised that the matter would be treated in the right way at the special meeting of the board.

The West Enders are assured of the support of West Duluthians for the reopening of the branch at the West End, for the transfer of the West End librarian to West Duluth to take charge of that station over the Wets Duluth librarian, did not meet with popular favor.

The efforts of the committee toward getting the West End branch reopened is receiving the hearty endorsement of the Business Men's club.

SECRETARY.

Commercial Club Directors Discuss Candidates Without Result.

The directors of the Commercial club of Duluth spent much of their time yesterday afternoon discussing the eight or nine candidates for secretary that have put in their applications. Sentiment in favor of any one did not seem well defined enough to warrant trying to put the question to a vote, so it went over, with the understanding that the directors will discuss the matter informally among themselves during the interval and try to reach an agreement.

A recapitulation of the membership rolls showed that 551 memberships had been subscribed or nineteen less than the required minimum. The directors got out this morning and hustled up enough more it is said to bring the total up to over 600.

It was thought a day or so ago that negotiations for the Axa block quarters had been finally declared off, but they have been renewed and may yet go through.

A communication on reciprocity with Canada and others on public questions were read and committees will be named by President Patrick to consider them.

OBJECTS TO TRANSFER.

Mary A. Van Brunt Brings Action to Hold Property.

Mary A. Van Brunt has begun a suit in district court against James C. Hunter and R. R. Dunn to restrain the defendant Hunter from selling a large quantity of property in Lakeside, London and Duluth to the defendant Dunn. The plaintiff was the owner of the property, and E. S. Upham had a mortgage on it. Just as the period of redemption was expiring, according to the complaint, the plaintiff had Mr. Hunter advance $7000 and redeem the property, agreeing that the lots should be deeded to him as security for the $7000 and for $12,000 more that the plaintiff owed him. The deed was made, and Mr. Hunter acquired all of Mr. Upham's interest. Now the plaintiff alleges that Mr. Hunter is about to sell the property to Mr. Dunn, and she asks that the deed de declared a mortgage and that the defendants be restrained from making a transfer of the property. J. B. Richards is the plaintiff's attorney.

SPARTA ORE.

Ten Thousand Ton Shipment to Go to Wisconsin.

Eight carloads of a 10,000-ton lot of iron ore consigned to the furnace at Spring Valley, Wis., passed through the city this afternoon. The ore comes from the Sparta mine and is routed via the Duluth & Iron Range and Omaha roads.

The furnace at Spring Valley, which is situated between North Wisconsin Junction and Eau Claire, was formerly controlled by Senator Sabin, of this city. It is a charcoal furnace, and is largely supplied with ore from deposits near at hand. Other ore of a different structure is needed, however, to mix and give the right results in furnace, and the Sparta ore gives the right average.

About 1500 tons a month are shipped from the Sparta mine to the Spring Valley furnace.

TOURIST RATE

Will Expire Wednesday, Having Continued Since Mar. 1.

The cheap rates for tourists and settlers that have prevailed over the Western roads since March 1 will expire next Wednesday. The traffic this winter from Duluth to the coast and to North Dakota has been the heaviest in the history of the roads.

The tourist rate of $25 to common coast points has been in effect continuously for the past sixty days. The two northern coast lines and the Omaha have done an immense business. More people several times over have gone to the coast from here than ever before.

The $6 rate to North Dakota over the two north transcontinental lines has applied only on each Tuesday since March 1. In the face of its restricted application, a very heavy traffic has been carried. The rate was designed for the use of men who had spent the winter in the woods and wanted to get home, as well as for intending settlers. Naturally the great storms and cold wave occurring during this period interfered with the number of people that otherwise would have gone out to look for locations to settle, but in spite of that the travel on these rates has been much heavier than during past spring seasons.

ANNOYED.

Senator Clark Will Fight Case Against His Chaffeur.

Washington, April 24.—When Senator Clark, of Montana, arrived at the senate annex today in his automobile he was interviewed by two bicycle policemen, who had been following him. They asserted that he had been exceeding the speed limit of twlve miles an hour. The senator declared that he had not been going more than ten miles an hour. The officers requested that the chaffeur appear at the police court tomorrow morning and the senator announced that he would do so. He also added that he did not intend to violate any regulations, but he did not intend to be subjected to unnecessary annoyances and would fight the case to the end.

THE FILIPINOS EPICURE.

The Table Delicacies of the Eastern Archipelago.

As in the south and west of the states, Indian corn is the principal breadstuff of the people, and as in Germany and Russia it is barley and rye, and in the islands of the South Sea it is bread fruit, so in the Philippines it is rice that is the staple, says the Manila Critic. In other words, the breatd product that is most abundant, and therefore cheapest, in any country, becomes the chief food of its people. And the same may be said of its meats. In Australia, on the great sheep runs, it is mutton; on the Western ranges of Amemica and on the plateaus of the Argentines it is beef; and in the Philippines it is fish. This is only another way of stating the law of nature—the organism accommodates itself to its environment.

The archipelago is tropical, and during a part of the year its soil is saturated with water. The heat and the moisture make ideal rice-growing conditions. The extensive coast line and the abundant rivers, lakes, creeks, bays and inlets fairly teem with many kinds of fish that can be taken at no expense except the time and labor of the fisherman. The plentifulness and the cheapness, operating over many hundreds of years have formed the tastes of the people, and hence fish and rice are the basis of this insular life.

In all hot countries the inhabitants seem to crave fiery condiments. In India they want curry; in South Europe they crave garlic; in Mexico they desire hot peppers; so also, in the Philippines hat and piquant flavors tickle the palates of the natives. In nearly every dish known to Filipino culinary art may be found bauang (garlic), luya (ginger,) or sampaloc (tamarind), or sometimes all of them.

The islander, and especially the provincial, is not a dainty nor a refined eater. In some districts fat dogs are delicacies, quite as much as they are on the Western plains among the Indians, and generally horse meat is a dainty. The latter is eaten wherever and whenever it may be found. In Magalang in the spring of 1899, five native ponies, a part of the equipment of a detachment of mounted scouts, were killed by tropical splashes and ordered shot. A large pit was dug a mlie away from the stables by a detail of soldiers, and in it the ponies were buried after which there was a wild night there were sounds of revelry and feasting throughout Magalang and the neighboring barrios. The explanation of that day of feasting came next morning when the discovery was accidentally made that the pit had been opened and the horses exhumed.

As before said, rice and fish are the staple articles of food of the islanders, but that must not be construed as implying that these are the only styles in which they are cooked. It is quite the contrary. A great variety of fish are found in these waters, and all is food that comes to the fisherman's net—fish four feet long, or more; fish the size of a sardine; devilfish and shellfish; silvery fish with iridescent, gleaming scales, and brown, dull pescados del rio, foul-looking as a mudcat and twice as ugly. Similarly with the meat—the hungry Filipino may secure beef, veal, pork, goat, mutton or strong stringy flesh of the crabon. Poultry also abounds, except in sections where the insurgent has been ranging, and few days pass that a Filipino does not eat it once a day. All these materials, cooked in different ways and with various condiments, make a change in the menu of the native that he considers sufficiently appetizing—and if he be pleased, who has the right to be otherwise?

A list, prepared by a Tagalo, of thirty-three dishes will illustrate this phase of the subject, but it must not be assumed that the list exhausts the tale, for it might be materially lengthened. It is impossible to translate all the Tagalog names of the dishes, and hence it will not be attempted as to any, especially as the description will suffice to show what they are.

Cinigang na isda is fish stewed with smapaloc and seasoned with salt and pepper to suit the taste. Pritong isda is fish friend in grease or fresh cocoanut oil and served with a cour sauce. Pasclo na isda is fish fried with luya and with sugar dusted over it. Cardillong isda, is again fish, but it is mixed with scrambled eggs. The basis is ynihao na tio and at tinapa is a small fish about the size of a serdine, in the first being sun-dried and in the second cured by smoke. Ynihao na isda is simply broiled fishish of any kind or size suitable for broiling.

The above are some of the styles in which the finny tribe are prepared for the table; and similarly, there are as many ways of cooking meats. Cinigang na carne is a meat stew seasoned with sampaloc and pritong carne is meat fried and served with a very sour sauce. Puchero baca is beef stewed with luya, a condiment already described. Dinaguan baca is beef's blood and sampaloc, made a good deal like our blood pudding. Tortang baca is a beef omelette. Adobo is a sort of olla podrida, a marvelously compounded stew, into the making of which goes meat, onions, potatoes, pepper, salt, luya and any other old thing about the house that is edible and will add to either the quantity or the quality of the pottage. Sarcidong baca is prepared by frying beef with potatoes and onions, a kind of hash, as it were, or in another form, an Irish stew. Michadong baca is also a stew made of beef, pepper and laurel leaves, while apidada is meat, breaded and fried. Carlcari is another favorite; it is meat, breaded, fried, and served with a salad made from the heart of the banana tree; while nilanguing baca is a meat soup and pesang dalag is a fish broth, seasoned with mustard, luya and other similar condiments. Among the richer class, especially the mestizos, bifstek y patatas is much eaten; but this is only a Spanish deterioration of the good, old Anglo-Saxon beef steak and potatoes.

Lichong baboy is another favorite dish of the Filipinos of all classes and grades. A pig of medium size is killed, scalded and scraped. In the meantime a pit has been dug, and in the bottom of this a hot fire is made of seasoned wood. The pig is impaled on a bamboo with a sharp crook at one end, to which is tied a crank, also of bamboo. Two forked stakes are set in the ground, one at each end of the pit, and in the forks are placed the ends of the long bamboo, which is then turned by the crank, and acts like a crude, ancient spit, until the animal is thoroughly roasted. This is the manner of cooking pork when preparations are making for some important function, such as a christening party (in which case the godfather is usually expected to "pay the freight"), a wedding, a baile, or the anniversary of a death.

Ynihas na baboy is simply broiled pork and pritong langonisa is fried, minced pork or sausage.

Naturally, poultry, wild fowl and eggs constitute a large proportion of the diet of the people. Chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys are reared everywhere, and in the neighborhood of the marshes and streams wild fowl are plentiful, and their eggs, while they taste too strong for a white man's fancy, seem palatable to the native. Around all the morasses frogs are found, and they are caught with a hook and line, the hook being bated with a bright-colored piece of cloth.

Manoc na pospas is the commonest poultry dish. The chicken is stewed into shreds, seasoned with bauang, salt and pepper and eaten with rice. Poultry is subject to the same changes in the style of cooking as are meat and fish. Eggs are prepared in many ways, but most usually they are served hard boiled. Pritong itog is eggs fried in oil.

The Filipino is very fond of shrimp and crabs and occassionally one sees what appears to be a lobster, but which is really a crayfish. The bay is full of these shellfish, and they are at once cheap and palatable to the native. Shrimp are caught by the bushel and the market always has the appearance of being glutted with them. Annually many tons of them are sun-dried and shipped into the interior provincial pueblos. The most common way of preparing them for the table is to boil them, and then they are called halabus na hippon. Cinigang hipon is a stew of which the components are shrimp and sampaloc. Nilanguang alimango is boiled crab, and that is the style in which it is usually cooked, although occasionally they are plunged into boiling water for a minute or two to kill and parboil them, and they are then fried.

The little brown man, when it comes to dulces (sweets), is considerably more than "half-child," for he has not only a "sweet tooth," but a whole mouthful of them. On every street corner where they are allowed to gather, women, old and young, sit on their heels all day long and make their living by vending these dulces. A favorite confection is composed of rice, grated cocoanut and unrefined sugar. The dish is roasted and is called bibinca. Another favorite is suman, of rice and cocoanut, wrapped in a green, banana leaf and eaten with powdered sugar.

A number of native fruits add variety to the food of the people. Among them are native and Chinese oranges, limonas, lanzones, chicos, mangos and others. Of these the chico and mango are great favorites with most white people. There are two sources of vegetable supply, or what make a toothsome substitute for vegetables, not mentioned in the above—the cabbage palm and the tender, young fresh shoots of the bamboo. From these, tempting salads may be made—delicious from a white man's standpoint. The former tastes very much like young cabbage, and when served with a mayonnaise dressing is a tempting dish, or very much like cold slaw when seasoned with vinegar and salt and pepper.

The cookery of the mestizos, where it differs from the typical Filipino edibles already noted, partakes of the character of the dishes of the nation from which came their sires. The rich Spanish mestizo, for instance, is likely to break his fast with a roll, an omelette and a cup of chocolate. (In the provinces the bean from which chocolate is made is almost invariably mixed with roasted and ground peanuts). For his luncheon he will usually take the rather heavy midday meal the Oriental Spaniards eat, and his dinner eaten from 8 to 9 o'clock in the evening is the heaviest meal of the day. The Chinese mestizo is liable to be almost as strictly vegetarian as his China father.

The Filipino is not averse to taking "something for his stomach's sake" and in his choice of a tipple, except whiskey he evinces a fine catholicity of taste that does not manifest itself in his other walks of life. He is fond of a cold glass of beer, he is not antagonistic to vino tinto, and he betrays no prejudice against sherry or gin—jerez or genebra. When it comes to "beno," a six month's course of which will fit any white man for the insane asylum or el campo santo, he is a man apart. It actually seems to agree with him. Yet there is one thing that must be said in his favor, he "always knows when he has got enough," and that is next to total abstention.

There is one liquid product of the islands that is a dream of delight, or a nightmare, depending upon its age. That is tuba, a drink obtained from the cocoanut tree. When the tree is flowering, ready to bud, the native in imitation of his common ancestor, and nearly as nimbly, climbs it, and in the green part at the top he cuts a gash with his bolo and under it lashes a calabash. In twelve hours he returns and finds a quantity of milky fluid—and that is tuba. Drank when fresh it is harmless as sweet cider new from the press. Drank after it ferments, 10-year-old New England hard cider is a Sunday school, pinktea beverage compared with it.

A word to new-comers, however, that might be spoken is, never eat chicken on Monday in the house of a native. The cock fighting is always on Sunday, and the bird that may have carried his owner's money at the main may the next day become flesh of his flesh, through the digestive fluids. And another word; never eat with the ordinary native unless starvation is not more than six hours distant. The cook has all the primitive disgust for the close contact of water and the hands.

CHINA HEAD

Comes From Tea Drinking.

A lady writes from Shanghai, China: "In the summer of '98 husband and I were traveling through Southern Europe, and I was finally laid up in Rome with a slow fever. An American lady gave me some Postum Food Coffee, which I began using at once. It was my sole breakfast and supper. In a short time the change in my physical condition was wonderful to see. I will never travel agian without Postum.

"When we arrived in Shanghai we were in an English community and found ourselves in the midst of the 4-o'clock-tea custom. Before long we began to have sleepless nights and nervous days as a result of our endeavors to be amiable and conform to custom.

"As soon as it could arrive from San Francisco we had a large supply of Postum Food Coffee and began its use at the 4-o'clock tea table. I cannot tell how popular the coffee table became for afternoon callers. In fact, a number of the business men, as well as missionaries, use Postum now wholly in place of tea, and the value of the change from coffee and tea cannot be estimated." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

COULD SCARCELY MOVE.

"An experience unique in its character, but which came near resulting disastrously for an old settler in the Gallatin valley, always comes to mind when I am out among those silent hills," remarked genial Col. Newton to the Anaconda Standard, as we were trudging back to Helena after a jaunt up the gulch to Unionville one Sunday last December. "The truth of this story I am going to tell you can be vouched for by a score of the solid citizens of the Gallatin valley," continued the colonel, "and it happened about this time of year in the mountains near Bozeman.

"The hero was a hardy rancher, who had been in the valley for some years, and was well acquainted with the trails and landmarks of the country. However, he lost his bearings on this occasion, and found himself alone in the mountains, a long distance from home and night coming on. He had been hunting deer all day and had killed two, and removed the hides and cached the meat.

"It was a winter night, but not excessively cold, and the hardy mountaineer was in no wise alarmed at the prospect of a night in the mountains until daylight revealed marks of which he could guide himself homeward. He built him a campfire, cooked some of the fresh-killed venison, and with further provisions brought with him, made hearty meal; and after a satisfying smoke he wrapped himself snugly in the warm hide of the deer, and lying down on a bed of fir boughs, was soon asleep.

"He was awakened after some hours with the snow beating in his face, and his nose and ears tingling with the cold. A storm had come up during the night, and it was decidedly colder. He lay benumbed and sleepily realized that the only thing to do was to replenish the fire, which had died down to a mound of glowing embers. With this ideta in mind he started to throw off his furry covering and arise, when to his horror he was unable to move hand or foot or muscle of his body. A terrible feeling of compression on his chest and around his entire body prevented him from breathing except in short, painful gasps. He seemed to be held as tightly as though bound and rebound with tightened coils of rope. The frozen snow had filled his eyes and ears and he was unable to raise a hand to relieve his suffering. After frenzied efforts to arise, he came to a realization of his awful predicament. The hide of the fresh killed deer, the warmth of which had been so welcome in the evening, and which he had rolled so snugly about him, had frozen as hard and stiff as a garment of steel, holding him in a vise-like grip, unyielding to its embrace.

"Almost mad with the terror of his situation, he writhed and twisted his benumbed body within the frozen hide, tearing his hands and face against its ragged edges, until faint and bleeding he became nearly exhausted. Hope nearly gone, he thought of the dying embers of his fire, and after much effort he rolled and struggled until he was amidst them. Their warmth softened the hide sufficiently to allow him to free his arm and reach his knife and cut his way out.

"He got off with a bad scare," continued the colonel, "and the telling of this story has taught a new lesson in mountain-craft that will not soon be forgotten in the Gallatin valley."

A MOUSELESS ISLAND.

There is a small island named Papa Little that lies in St. Magnus bay, on the weat side of Shetland. It gets its name in contradistinction to Popo Stour, or the Big Papa, another island in the same bay, says the Liverpool Post. Both names are of Norse origin, and signify Priest Islands, from the fact that they were colonized by the Irish Catholics who first introduced Christianity. There was a solitary croft on this island at one time, but all that now remains is a ruined homestead, for the place is used purely for grazing purposes. A striking feature of the isle is the fact that no mice can live there; and on the various occasions to test the truth of this, mice have been caught and slipped on the isle, but so uncongenial did its soil prove to their existence that in a short time they were dead. There are instances of crofters on the mainland, when troubled with mice, going the length of fetching earth from this isle and sprinkling it on the ground before building their stacks. This is said to have had the desired effect in all cases.

CHURCH ON NEW BASIS

A Unique Theology Is Preached at Illinois Steel Banquet.

Fire Chief Paige of Joliet Wants Old Methods Abolished.

A Joint Stock Company With Dividends Payable on Earth.

Joliet, Ill., April 24.—Fire Marshal John D Paige preached a new theology and advocated a stock company church with dividends payable on earth instead of in heaven in his response to the toast, "How I Would Conduct a Church," at a second annual gridiron dinner of the Illinois Steel Works club.

Mr. Paige shocked and amused the clergymen by his frank, candid heresy, and evoked the applause of the laymen by his epigrams. He asserted that John W. Gates and J. Pierpont Morgan should occupy pulpits of modern churches, and declared that "hide-bound creeds" and "mossbacked college professors" must be turned down. Here are a few of his striking sentences:

"Apparently there is no need of a church for the salvation of women.

"Men can't be sacred into caring for a hereafter while they are in good health.

"A live man will not go blindly to church until his purse is impoverished, but will receive his dividends here, where he is sure he can enjoy them."

"Such food as man desires must be handed down to him—not a corpse held up for him to worship.

"Men will not sit year in and year out listening to the wornout exhortations of 'living as Jesus lived,' or 'doing as Jesus did.' Nothing but a clam would do that.

"The men must be gotten together along present and prospective lines. They must not be rallied at for witnessing fistic encounters, seeing 'the hottest coon in Arkansas,' baseball, horse racing, or any other sports that are rallied at and legislated against.

"Riches must be recognized and not condemned. Such teachings must be given them as fit the time, and hide-bound creeds that they don't believe, although they don't say so, and moss-backed college professors for teachers must be turned down.

"Such food as man desires must be handed down to him, and not a corpse be held up to him to worship. It is often the case that the pews know more than the preachers.

"Then men will organize a stock company church, and will boom the stock, pay dividends, attend its meetings, and place the church stocks above all others. A live man will not then go blindly to church until his horse is stolen and his purse impoverished, but will receive his dividends here, where he is sure he can enjoy them.

"John W. Gates and J. Pierpont Morgan would be attractive and instructive preachers. They would have men, and young men, for their audiences, and the church would not suffer for funds with which to do good."

One-fifth of the total population of the United States is directly or indirectly supported by railroads.

The greatest interest in this country is the railroad interest, in which more capital is invested than in any other one line. Equipment represents quite a proportion of the total.

The Milwaukee road, for instance, spent $250,000 in producing the Pioneer Limited trains now running between the Twin Cities and Chicago. The inauguration of the Pioneer Limited service on that line marked an era in railroad progress.

AT WEST DULUTH

Last evening Old Hickory camp, No. 1555, M. W. A., had a fine entertainment at the Great Eastern hall for Royal and Whaleback camps, of West Superior; Imperial and Duluth camps, of this city, and Zenith camp, of Proctorknott. The attendance was very large, in fact the hall never had a larger crowd in it than last evening. Chartered cars brought over the Superior Woodmen, and with them came the Royal Camp band.

J. Allyn Scott, venerable counsel of Old Hickory camp, made the address of welcome. Speeches were made by venerable counsel of Imperial camp and Venerable Counsel Bernard of Duluth camp, at the West End. The latter announced that on May 8 would be held the exercises in connection with the presentation of the state banner to Duluth camp. All the Woodmen camps in the Northwest will be asked to participate in the celebration. The banner was won from a St. Paul camp that has held it many years.

The program last evening was comprised of varied attractions. Miss Ruth Scott and J. Allyn Scott played a piano duet; W. F. Hutchins, Mr. Giddings and Mr. Williams sang solos; Miss Ruth Scott recited, Mr. Williams gave a ventriloquitic exhibition, and the Royal band played several selections.

Among the features of the program were athletic events. Ernest Coghlan and Frank Richards had two interesting wrestling bouts. Coghlan won one fall and the other was a draw. John Sullivan Gamache and Robert Fitzsimmons Gottwald put up a three-round, soft-glove contest. Mike Burgo and George Stevenson gave an exhibition wrestling bout.

DIFFICULTY SURMOUNTED.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lynch, who were married in Pine City, arrived here yesterday afternoon and were tendered a large reception at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lynch, last evening. Since the bridal couple reached West Duluth the story has leaked out why the marriage did not take place in Rush City as intended. Rush City is in Chisago county, and Center City, the county seat, is about sixty miles from Rush City. Yesterday morning it was discovered that if the ceremony was performed in Chisago county the groom would have to get a license at Center City. As the reception was to take place at 1 o'clock in the afternoon time was limited, and the problem was solved by the wedding party driving to Pine City, county seat of Pine City, where a license was secured and the ceremony performed. The wedding party then went back to Rush City by train in time for the reception, and later came to West Duluth.

THE FERRY QUESTION.

The West Duluth-Steel plant ferry question is likely to come up again soon for discussion by the Commercial club. When Thomas Lowry was here a few days ago a committee of the West Superior club met him and laid before him their request for an extension of the line on Twenty-first street, in West Superior, to the bay. Mr. Lowry would not give a definite answer, but said he would investigate the matter, and that when he came to the head of the lakes again, which will be in about two weeks, he will be in a position to make a positive reply.

WEDAN-WUNTER.

Miss Mary Wedan and Louis Wunter, both of Sandy Lake, Minn., were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the Swedish Baptist church by Rev. C. Aldeen, the pastor. The bride has made her home here for some time. Miss Wedan, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Peter Wickstrom acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Wedan left today for their home in Sandy Lake.

BRIDAL COUPLE

Given a Wild Ride In a Fire Patrol.

New York, April 24.—Considerable excitement was created at Morristown, N. J., Tuesday night by the supply wagon attached to the hook and ladder fire company running as if on a still alarm to the railroad station. On their arrival four men alighted from the wagon and waited for an incoming train. When the train pulled in the depot Matthieson L. Toms and his bride were seen getting off, and immediately the four firemen seized them and carried them to the supply wagon. The driver whipped up the horses and started dashing through the principal streets of the city. The sight of the fire wagon and the ringing of the gong attracted many people, who thought there was a fire. Soon hundreds of citizens ran madly behind the fire apparatus, incessantly appealing to those riding for information as to where the fire was. The wagon finally wound up at the fire house, where the bride and bridegroom were escorted inside. Mr. Toms is assistant cashier of the National Iron bank and a member of the company. The disturbance was in celebration of his recent marriage to Miss Florence Fisher, of Jersey City.

OLD FLAME

Trails Chicago Copper and Gets Him Into Trouble.

Chicago, April 24.—When Policeman James P. Walsh traveled his beat in Woodlawn it was not footpads, thugs, burglars or the like that he feared to meet. It was Miss Sarah Connan, his former fiance, who still loved him though he had married another. So ardently devoted to him was Sarah that she followed him on his rounds, popped out on him in dark corners, waylaid him in lonely streets, and was hiding behind the patrol box when he went to turn in his call.

Whenever Miss Sarah got lonesome and wanted to see Policeman Walsh, which was about every other night, she went out and hunted him up on his beat. And he could not escape her by going up alleys or across vacant lots. She always found him.

As Policeman Walsh is married he did not like to have Sarah following him around whenever he went to hunt out wrong-doing and suppress crime in Woodlawn, but what could the man do? Sarah knew where and when he had to send in his calls and she could always come along just at the right time singing, "You Can't Lose Me, Jamie."

Sarah promised the police trial board that she would not follow him around his beat any more. The board decided that it was nothing criminal if a man was so fascinating that young women were drawn around him on his beat. So the case was dismissed.

The case went before the board because of an anonymous letter. Some kind-hearted friend of Walsh wrote to Chief O'Neill begging that this particular policeman be made an exception to the enforced furlough rule.

"Because he has two wives to support," wrote the kind-hearted friend, who could not possibly foresee that a man with such obligations was likely to get in trouble with the law.

Chief O'Neill asked Walsh to explain and the whole matter came up before the board. Miss Connan, who lives in Forty-fifth street, was one of the witnesses.

While admitting that she followed the policeman around on his beat she broke down and cried. It was not a pleasant admission to make before Chief O'Neill, Inspector Shea and Civil Service Commissioners Ela and Powell, but she confessed that she loved Walsh to distraction.

"I know I am silly," she said, "and I know that I am infatuated, but I can't help it. When I would get lonesome I would just have to go out and hunt him up."

It was a story of a broken romance. Walsh and Miss Connan had been engaged to marry a number of years ago. Something intervened and five years ago Walsh went back to Ireland. When he returned to Chicago he brought an Irish girl as his wife. Since then Miss Connan's devotion has been hopeless.

"That's nothing," said Inspector Shea, after he had heard the story. "When I was a young chap traveling beat I used to have lots of women following me around."

INDIANA PLATFORM

Adopted By Republican State Convention at Indianapolis.

Endorses Officials and Measures, State and National.

Denounces Trusts That Increase the Cost of Living.

Indianapolis, April 24.—The Republican convention assembled at 9 o'clock this morning, but it was thirty minutes after that time when Chairman Beveridge rapped for order.

The first business was the presentation of the report of the committee on resolutions. The committee was not able to report promptly because it was unable to agree even as late as this upon some planks. There was a hot fight over the insertion of the clause endorsing the gold standard. It had been decided to advocate a plank in which some members of the committee thought they could detect an approval of bank asset currency. It was stricken out after a lengthy debate and the plank found in the platform was adopted. The resolutions committee reported at 9:45. The report was read by Chairman Charles Jewett, of New Albany, and was adopted unanimously.

It was as follows:

The Republicans of Indiana, in convention assembled hereby make declaration of the following party principles:

We cordially affirm the platform adopted by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia in 1900 and pledge anew our adherence to the principles therein enunciated.

The party is to be congratulated that it enters the campaign united and harmonious. We view with pleasure the unprecedented measure of prosperity which prevails throughout Indiana and the entire country, the rich fruit of Republican policies and Republican administration; and we deprecate every effort to overthrow the laws and the administration under which such results are accomplished.

We mourn the death of our great leader and president, William McKinley.

He was an ideal citizen, a statesman of profound wisdom, a patriot of the most exalted purpose. He was beloved beyond all others by all the people. The country under his administration attained a degree of unparalleled prosperity and won the highest prestige among the nations of the earth. The civilized world shares in our sorrows. His name and services are a part of the splendid and enduring history of the republic.

In the death of Gen. Benjamin Harrison the nation has lost a brave soldier and one of its purest, wisest and most trusted statesmen, and Indiana her most illustrious citizen. Gen. Harrison left to his country a rich legacy of good deeds done. We revere his memory and mourn his loss.

The Republicans of Indiana express their profound sorrow upon the death of Governor James A. Mount. His personal life and character, his patriotic services as a soldier in the war for the Union and his unselfish loyalty to his commonwealth, make his name one of reverence.

We cordially endorse the able and patriotic administration of President Roosevelt. Succeeding to the presidency under tragic circumstances and pursuing the policy of his illustrious predecessor, he has won the confidence and approval of the American people. We are proud of his courage, his purity and his devotion to the interests of the entire country and pledge him the earnest support of the Republicans of Indiana in all his efforts to continue and advance the prosperity of the people at home and the glory of the republic abroad.

We are gratified that Cuba will soon pass to the control of her own people and that a new republic has arisen upon the ruins of monarchy. We favor just and liberal reciprocal relations between the United States and the republic of Cuba, which by the valor of American arms and the wisdom of American statesmanship, is added to the family of nations.

We approve the course of the administration in establishing peace and civil government in the Philippine islands. We oppose those who continue to resist the authority of the United States either openly in arms in the Philippines or secretly or openly in the United States in sympathy with the insurgents. We hold to the doctrine that American sovereignty must be respected within the United States and all territory under its jurisdiction.

We favor the establishment of absolute peace in the Philippines and the erection of civil government therein. We insist that the people of the islands shall be given increased participation in the administration of their domestic affairs as they shall demonstrate intelligence and capacity for self government.

We are opposed to all trusts or combinations of capital whose purpose or effort is to restrict business or control prices. And, we especially denounce those whose tendency it is to increase the cost of living and the necessaries of life. We favor legislation to prevent such abuses. We approve the sincere and determined effort of President Roosevelt to enforce the laws against illegal combinations in restraint of trade, and demand that administrative officers, state and national, shall enforce the laws in the most vigorous manner so that the legitimate competition shall not be embarrassed or destroyed.

We adhere to the policy of protection. Under it our industries have developed and the hopes of labor have been increased and wages maintained at a higher rate than would have been otherwise possible.

We favor the extension of our markets through carefully guarded reciprocity arrangements with other countries wherever it can be done without "interrupting our home production." While we favor such modifications of tariff schedules, as from time to time are required by changing conditions, we insist that such changes shall be made in line with the fundamental principle of protection.

Our faith in the gold standard has been amply justified by the wonderful strides of American industry and commerce since its adoption.

We are glad that Republican diplomacy has secured the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, enabling the government to proceed with the construction of a ship canal, between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, under the authority of the United States and the protection of our flag.

We favor the most stringent national and state legislation to suppress anarchy.

We approve the enactment by congress of legislation which will debar the Chinese from gaining admission to the United States to the injury of American labor; and we demand the enforcement of legislation laws which shall exclude all unworthy and undesirable emigrants whose presence menace our citizenship or injure our wage workers.

We recognize as a continuing obligation the debt of gratitude due from the republic to the soldiers and sailors whose valor saved the life of the nation and those who won glory for its flag in Mexico, in the recent war with Spain in the Philippines, and in China. A proper recognition of this sacred obligation demands that liberal provision be made by pension for the disabled survivors of these veterans and the widows and helpless orphans of those who are dead.

We are gratified that through a Republican congress and a Republican administration Indiana will soon be repaid by the United States more than $900,000 balance due the state for money advanced in her patriotic efforts to preserve the integrity of the republic.

The Republican party of Indiana endorses the conduct of its senators and representatives in the congress of the nation and is proud of the dignified, able and the conspicuous and controlling part taken by each in shaping legislation and bringing added glory and honor to the state they so ably represent.

The administration of the state's affairs by Governor Winfield T. Durbin has been one of marked success. Devoted to the best interests of the people of the commonwealth, he has the hearty endorsement of the Republicans of Indiana. Bringing to the discharge of the duties of the chief executive the experience of a successful business life, he has diligently labored to place the financial management of all the departments along lines of most careful accountings and competent, conservative control. The supervisions of state institutions has been exceedingly faithful. His appointments on boards of control have been of a superior and representative character, and his efforts have been earnest and careful toward the very highest efficiency both as to management, and the letter and spirit of the laws.

In the management of the state's financial affairs the Republican party believes that the state government is like any great business institution, considered from the standpoint of accountability and responsibility to the people of the commonwealth. It believes the humblest taxpayer is an interested stockholder in the financial affairs of the state's business and that in efficiency, indifference or waste in public administration, expenditures or accountings is a crime, and it believes the present system of state government is the most economical and efficient that has ever been established. The party takes especial pride in the financial record made by its efficient officers since coming into control of the executive department. Since that time the party has established just fee and salary laws; the tax levy has been reduced; the state debt has been decreased over one-half and the present administration will further reduce the debt more than $2,000,000, leaving the state free of any debt maturing prior to 1905.

During this time the state has established a soldiers' home where the soldier veteran and his wife may find comfort and care, and the orphans of the soldiers and sailors are wisely cared for, educated and fitted for the duties of life at their home at Knightstown.

In addition to this, during this time, the reformatory and benevolent institutions have been enlarged and extended, the management of which is humanitarian and nonpartisan, until Indiana leads the advance in the progressive movement for the relief of the unfortunate classes committed to her care.

The legislative policies and measures of the party in enacting laws for the protection and benefit of labor, and laws regulating county and township business have proven successful and are an outgrowth of other advances and other reforms which the party will give to the commonwealth from time to time when needed. We pledge the people that the Republican party will not confer special privileges on railway or other lawful competition and the supremacy of the laws over all corporations and monopolies.

The laws touching the garnishment of wages should be revised. And the laws for the protection of miners must be observed and enforced.

The Republican party demands the adoption and enforcement of proper laws regulating nominations, securing to every man the right to express his choice for the candidate of the party to which he belongs whether the nominations are made by a direct primary or a delegate or mass convention.

The state central committee is instructed to prepare and report suitable and proper rules and regulations which shall in the future govern the mode and manner of the selection of delegates to state, congressional and legislative conventions.

The completion of the monument raised and dedicated to the soldiers and sailors of Indiana is a tribute to the heroism and valor of the brave men of this state, whose services and sacrifices preserved the republic and rendered possible the present happiness and glory of the nation. It will stand as a witness to the appreciation of a grateful people.

Daniel E. Storms, of Lafayette, was nominated by acclamation for secretary of state. There were no other nominations. There being no contests for the following positions, the rules were suspended and nominations were made by acclamation as follows: Judge of supreme court, John H. Gillett, Hammond; judges of the appellate court, W. D. Robinson, Princeton; William J. Henly, Rushville; James D. Black, Indianapolis; Daniel W. Comstock, Richmond; U. S. Wiley, of Fowler; Frank S. Roby, Auburn. State statictician, B. F. Johnson, Fowler. State geologist, W. H. Blatchley, Indianapolis.

For state auditor the following nominations were made: Frank Martin, Lebanon; David S. Herrick, Noblesville; James R. Henry, Gosport; Frank Doran, LaPorte. The total number of delegates was 1687—necessary to a choice 844. The first ballot resulted: Henry, 461; Sherrick, 461½; Martin, 434; Doran, 329½.

ARKANSAS GOVERNOR

May Be Expelled From the Baptist Church.

Little Rock, Ark., April 24.—Charges of gross immorality have been made by the discipline committee of the Second Baptist church of Little Rock against Governor Jeff Davis, and a congregational meeting is to be held for the purpose of considering them. The committee has filed with the clerk of the official board, J. Baker, a report, in which charges of gross immorality were made against Governor Davis.

During the services last Sunday night, after the sermon, and preceding the baptismal ceremonies, Stephen Evans, a member of the congregation, arose and read a communication from Governor Davis requesting that he be granted a letter of withdrawal.

In the event this should not be done, he asked for an investigation of the charges made against him by the Arkansas Democrat during the late campaign. He said that his actions had been severely criticized in an official and personal capacity, and that there were members of the church with whom he could not maintain fellowship. He said that his family would remain in the church, but that he desired to worship elsewhere. He said he would prefer a letter, in order to get out of the affair quietly.

He reiterated his profession of loyalty to the church as given in his letter of resignation as vice president of the Baptist state convention. After some discussion it was decided that the charges be investigated, and the congregation will be left to decide what disposition shall be made of them and of the governor as a fellow-member.

It is expected that a sub-committee will be authorized to visit Hot Springs, Camden, Texarkana, Northwest Arkansas and other points in the state, at which it is charged, on the statements of responsible citizens, the governor has been guilty of drinking liquor.

JEROME

Must Pay For Vice Crusade Himself.

New York, April 24.—District Attorney Jerome and Controller Grout are in a hot war over the payment of Jerome's county detectives in their hunt for evidence against the municipal vice. The controller sent Mr. Jerome a letter refusing to pay the bills incurred by detectives in securing evidence of excise violations in Poody's district. Mr. Jerome gave out the following statement after he had carefully perused the controller's letter:

"The result of the controller's action in the face of the corporation counsel's opinion renders it necessary that I should give up immediately all work looking toward the detection of violations of the liquor tax law, the gambling laws, and the laws against disorderly houses. It aslo prevents the police department from getting similar evidence. Vice can flourish unmolested.

"I will pay such bills as have already been incurred myself, but the prosecution of police corruptions will necessarily end there."

SPARTA GRANTS FRANCHISE.

Sparta, Wis., April 24.—The city council has granted a franchise to a party of capitalists who propose to construct an electric city railway and extend it to Melrose twenty miles northwest of here, touching towns of Tataract and Burr Oak. This will tap the most fertile part of Jackson county.

IS THEIR CHOICE

Belief That McCarthy May Be Candidate of Willcuts Faction.

Sheriff Sargent Will Be a Candidate For Re-Election.

Bert N. Wheeler Said to Desire Superintendency of Schools.

Is Senator McCarthy the choice of the so-called Willcuts wing of Eighth district Republicanism?

A good many people believe he is, and there are some little indications that go a long way toward backing up that theory.

It is not to be supposed for a moment that the Morris organization, having lost its rallying point, Judge Morris, would contentedly retire without bringing forth somebody around whom the organization could reorganize and still maintain its grip on the political situation.

Several names were mentioned as the possible choice of the ring. Mayor Hugo, Oscar Mitchell and F. E. Searle were trotted out to public view, and it was generally understood that one of them would be the selection of the Willcuts faction. Apparently none of them have submitted to being selected, and according to report the Willcuts organization has hit upon Senator McCarthy.

One reason that is offered for this belief is that when Senator McCarthy came to Duluth Tuesday evening he was not ready to admit that he was a candidate. During the night, and after consulting certain people, he came out yesterday morning in an interview which was published in The Herald last night, and announced his candidacy.

Later in the evening, however, he hedged a trifle, and said that his candidacy was based on the contingency that there was no Duluth candidate. He said that he felt that with no direct Duluth candidate in the field he stood as good show as another outside candidate, but that in the event that O. D. Kinney or some other strong Duluth candidate were brought out, he would not be a candidate himself.

So if he is the Willcuts choice the choice is an uncertain one, and should O. D. Kinney be induced to run, that faction will have to look elsewhere for its champion.

Yesterday noon W. W. Butchart, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of St. Louis county, might have been seen walking down Superior street with a broad smile on his face and Lee M. Willcuts on one side and William Getty on the other. Whether the incident was suggestive of anything or not was a matter purely for speculation.

* * *

William C. Sargent will be a candidate for renomination at the hands of the Republicans of St. Louis county for sheriff. This has been generally understood, but never certainly settled. The Herald is in a position to definitely make this statement, and the information comes from sources close to Mr. Sargent. The sheriff is now at Virginia Beach, Va., recuperating from the severe attack of illness that prostrated him during the winter. He is getting along famously, and the doctors promise a complete return to health, which means that Mr. Sargent will enter the campaign before the primaries with all his old-time vigor and energy. His extensive popularity has always been a powerful factor in Mr. Sargent's campaigns, and that popularity will be working in his interest this summer.

Bert N. Wheeler is reported to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for superintendent of schools. He held the office with credit for one term, and will make a strong fight for it again. The place is now held by A. T. Park.

FOR PERSONAL INJURIES.

Andrew Johnson Wants Large Sum From Railroad.

The personal injury suit of Andrew Johnson against the Northern Pacific Railway company, which was begun in district court, has been transferred to the United States circuit court. The plaintiff was employed last summer at the Cutler & Gilbert warehouse, at the foot of Eleventh avenue west. While sweeping out a car preparatory to loading it, he alleges that an empty boxcar that had been switched by a Northern Pacific locomotive struck the car he was in with great force, throwing him down and breaking his hip bone. He claims that he was incapacitated from work for a long time and received permanent injuries. The plaintiff asks for $10,656.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROSE COGHLAN.

Tonight Miss Rose Coghlan will be seen at the Lyceum in "Forget Me Not." It is a number of years since Miss Coghlan appeared here, and she has many warm friends who will welcome her return. It was she who opened the old Temple theater. "Forget Me Not," in which she will appear this evening, is a powerful play, which exhibits to the fullest extent her great ability in emotional roles.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Miss Blanche Walsh and a large supporting company will preesnt at the Lyceum, Saturday matinee and evening, an entirely new and emotional drama entitled "La Madeleine," by H. J. W. Dam. Mr. Dam is said to have given Miss Walsh, in the title role of his play, a character quite worthy of her great talents. The part is that of Marie Monnier, known as "La Madeleine," a creature of the Paris half-world, born in sin, but regenerated by a pure love, which is finally sacrificed for the good of the man to whom it is given. The piece is in four acts, and is provided with very elaborate and impressive stage settings.

Miss Blanche Walsh will present each lady holding a reserved seat coupon at the matinee Saturday her latest photograph with her autograph as a memento.

PROSPEROUS.

Spring Dry Goods Trade Fully Up to Expectations.

F. A. Patrick, of F. A. Patrick & Co., says that the late spring wholesale dry goods trade is proving fully up to expectations. Kansas City and the Southwest complain that the jobbing trade is not as good as last year. This, Mr. Patrick considers, is due to the partial failure of the corn crop last season, and as not reflecting anything more than a local condition. No section of territory covered by its traveling men seems to have differed materially in conditions from any other. Prosperity seems to smile on all alike.

Mr. Patrick says that nearly all of the regular spring orders have been filled now. The business now coming in is in the nature of "repeat" orders, made for the purpose of sorting up lines of goods that have gone a little better than the retailers had expected or prepared for.

BUILDING.

Progress of Operation On Some Project Now Underway.

Hugo & Tims will begin work this morning on the piling and timber work of the foundation for the new Kelly-How wholesale hardware building. The structure will be of heavy work throughout, and be one of the best wholesale buildings in Duluth. The total cost it is estimated will be about $75,000.

At the Patrick wholesale dry goods house building, the foundation contractor is still working on the excavating, pile driving and timbering. The work is progressing a little slower than had been expected. It will be some little time yet before the foundation will be ready for the contractors who will erect the main part of the building.

The walls of the St. Louis hotel addition will in a few days have reached their full height. It is considered that Contractor Lounsberry is making a very quick job of this contract.

Steel has arrived for the rest of the new steel corporation building, and the work is again proceeding on the rear part of the fifth and sixth stories. The floor tile work attracts a great deal of attention. Many people wonder how the tile is borne up after the sustaining planks are removed. The workmen explain that the tile is wedge-shaped so that any tendency to spring downward results in the strengthening, rather than the weakening of the floors. Steel rafters are run through the tile in order to relieve the strain somewhat. It is said that now that it has been impossible to get steel for adding another story to the building, the steel corporation interests will occupy all available space in the building. It will be designed throughout with especial regard for the needs of the various departments—executive, auditing, railroads and mining.

A DEADLOCK.

Douglas County Supervisors Ballot For Chairman Without Result.

There is a warm fight on in the Douglas county board of supervisors, which met in West Superior yesterday, over the chairmanship. Supervisor Chris Rasmussen, of West Superior, and Supervisor George Bubar, of Gordon, are the candidates. After seventy-five ballots were taken yesterday the board adjourned until this morning, when it expected to begin balloting again.

The deadlock is a result of a fight between factions to control the board. The new members belong to what is termed the "reform element" of the board, and they had supposed that Supervisor Bubar was with them, but when Mr. Rasmussen was put forward as their candidate, the opposition executed a shrewd move by nominating Mr. Bubar, the country member, and the latter voted for himself through every ballot.

Pressure was brought to bear on Supervisor Clark of the Second ward by a petition from a number of his constituents, asking him to vote for Rasmussen, but he refused to do so, and last evening there was no hope of a break of the deadlock.

The older members of the board are working hard to retain W. T. Kennedy as poor commissioner of Douglas county, and it has been rumored that they are holding out for the deadlock in the hope of getting the "reform element" to concur in Mr. Kennedy's appointment. No other business was transacted by the county board yesterday.

NATURALIZATION PAPERS.

Cleveland, April 24.—Judge Wing, of the United States circuit court, rendered a decision yesterday that neither probate nor insolvency courts had authority to issue naturalization papers. Many thousands of foreigners have secured naturalization papers through the courts named in this city.

A WOMAN IN WHITE

Was the Disturbing Element In Chamberlain Family Relations.

Parties Formerly Lived In Duluth But Now In St. Paul.

Wife Presents Conclusive Proof of Her Husband's Waywardness.

The Herald last evening contained a brief telegraphic announcement from St. Paul of the granting of a divorce yesterday to Mrs. Ruth Chamberlain from her husband, Frank W. Chamberlain, and stating that the parties at one time lived in Duluth. The wife was a Miss Starkweather, and her husband is a traveling man, who was at the time of his residence here in the employ of a Duluth wholesale house. The divorce proceedings were rather out of the ordinary, according to the St. Paul Dispatch, which reports them as follows:

"Mrs. Ruth Chamberlain, who appeared today as a plaintiff in Judge Jaggard's court, would not, perhaps, be classed by the fagged critic as a queen of beauty, but her bright, amiable and spirited face is calculated to impress the average man favorably.

"The story she told the court proved her to be a woman of action, although she wanted those usual accompaniments of female determination, thin lips, prominent nose and marble eyes. She is 28 years old, a time of life when the gods are good to women or desert them altogether.

"Mrs. Chamberlain was Miss Starkweather, and her father is a resident of Duluth. She married Frank Chamberlain, the defendant, in October, 1894, at Windsor, Ont., and there are no children.

"Mr. Chamberlain is a traveling man, and the wife's story was to the effect that he assented to the proposition that stolen waters are sweet and home a hum-drum affair for spiritless men who teach Sunday school children.

"It was doubtless an unpardonable piece of carelessness for Mr. Chamberlain to leave his correspondence where it might fall into the hands of his wife.

"Caution is a commendable, an essential quality in a man of the world, and the gentleman forgot himself. So it happened that while his wife was waiting and wondering why he did not come home, she fell to gleaming and found things.

"One of the notes contained a telephone number. The lady called up central, and with the aid of that sweet-voiced generic functionary, discovered that the telephone number indicated 187 East Seventh street.

"Mrs. Chamberlain concluded that as her spouse was often from home, even when in town, she would explore. She secured the companionship and protection of Mrs. Craven, her cousin, of Newport, and together they proceeded to No. 187 East Seventh.

"Their ring was answered by a woman in white, for that was the color of the night gown she was wearing, and her feet were bare. The lady in white went to summon the woman of the house, one known as May Haggerty, and Mrs. Craven went for a policeman and found Officer Hennessy, a big fellow, who soon came along.

"They found the defendant. He was all right. When discovered he was in the act of taking one more high ball. His suspenders were twisted hilariously and his shirt hung on the gas jet.

"The lady in white regarded him in scorn, and said, with a tear in her eye: 'You told me you weren't married.'

"But the defendant did not care. Automobiles are slow in comparison with high balls, if one gears them properly. A charge of simple drunk was lodged against Chamberlain.

"She found that her husband had been at the Seventh street place 'off and on' for a week.

"Mrs. Chamberlain called there again in company with a police officer, and the woman said that she would not allow Chamberlain to visit there again, as she did not want to have trouble.

"The plaintiff said that she met Mr. Chamberlain last Saturday on the street, walking with the same woman in white. He got in his wife's way, stopped her and calling to his companion, brought her up and attempted to introduce her to his wife under a name the woman bore.

"Mrs. Craven, of Newport, told the same story, and George Kroeger, a deputy sheriff, testified that he served the divorce summons on Mr. Chamberlain at the same resort, on East Seventh street.

"The court ordered findings."

SAWMILLS.

Operations In Duluth Harbor Are Now In Full Swing.

Sawmill operations on the Duluth-Superior harbor are now in full sawing for the season of 1902. The St. Louis mill, which was the last of the deepwater mills to begin operations, started up the first of the week on a contract cut.

The local lumber market remains firm, with prices high and a few sales, though not yet in large amounts. The fact that so large an amount of the cut of most of the head of the lakes mills has been sold in advance will tend to keep new deals back for a few weeks.

The movement of lumber down the lakes will begin in real earnest this week, several boats now loading at the lumber docks at West Duluth. The lake freight rate is firm at $2.50 to Lake Erie ports and aside from the little flurry caused a week ago by talk of a raise in rates by vesselmen, there seems to be no prospect of an immediate change.

Log towing has not yet commenced from either the north or south shores. It is claimed that towing is likely to be delayed on the south shore because the low stage of water in the Wisconsin streams has thus far prohibited any driving. On the north shore low water does not interfere so much with operations as the big companies, as a rule, have their landing place near the lake and haul the rails from inland by rail.

The Merrill & Ring Mill company of this place will probably begin towing next week from Split Rock, provided the weather remains settled. Towing from the north shore to Ashland was to have begun this week but was prevented by the storm on Lake Superior. The principal owners of timber on the north shore that ill saw in Ashland are the Nester estate, which operates at Gooseberry river, the Schroeder Lumber company and the John O'Brien Lumber company, whose logs will come from Cross river.

The Mississippi and St. Croix rivers are said to be the lowest they have been before in many years at this time of the year and great uneasiness is being felt by the mills on the lower courses of the river which are depending almost wholly for their cut on the logs driven down. A certain stage of water is necessary for handling logs through the sorting works and through mill pockets, but the stage is hardly present now. The Pine Tree Lumber company, a Weyerhaeuser interest, is putting about 1,000,000 feet of white pine in the Mississippi river below the dam, near Grand Rapids, and the Burlington Lumber company has closed a contract with the Eastern Minnesota road to haul one or two train loads of logs a day to be dumped into the Mississippi river a little below Grand Rapids.

The Swan River Logging company will probably begin next week to haul logs to Cloquet to be sawed. The timber will be taken out between Swan River and Hibbing, hauled to Swan river over the logging road and over the Eastern Minnesota to Cloquet.

JOINS HER HUSBAND.

Former Ramsey County Commissioner In Mexico.

St. Paul, April 24.—Mrs. George B. Whitehorne has joined her husband, George B. Whitehorne, at San Luis Potosi, Mex. Mr. Whitehorne is employed with the Mexican Ore company.

George White horne has been living in Mexico since last August, because he is a fugitive from justice. Almost a year ago it was discovered that in his official capacity as commissioner of Ramsey county he had made changes in the official records of the auditor's office. On the night of July 31 he left St. Paul. A search made by the police revealed nothing as to Whitehorne's whereabouts, although he always kept up a correspondence with his wife. On Saturday Mrs. Whitehorne and her daughter left St. Paul. To the neighbor with whom they spent the last week of their residence here they told nothing of their destination. Mrs. Whitehorne did not deny, however, to her close friends that her husband had obtained permanent employment in the South and that she and her daughter would join him there.

The Whitehornes have no relatives in St. Paul, Mrs. Whitehorne's father having died last November.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Catholic cemetery at Helena, Mont., was the scene of a dramatic incident Wednesday. Funeral rites had just been performed over the body of Thomas Crystal, and John Abel, a grave digger, was filling up the grave. He was suddenly stricken with apoplexy and died almost at once. He was 66 years of age.

The electric light shown from the torch of the Statue of Liberty, New York harbor, which was extinguished in the fore part of March by the lighthouse department, was re-lighted Wednesday night under the supervision of the war department, to which its control has been transferred.

A passenger train from Coules City to Spokane on the Central Washington, was wrecked near Cheney. Nell Bowie, of Reardon, Wash., was killed, and John Jellog, of Reardon, and an infant named Phelps so badly injured that they may die.

Robbers stole a box containing $1200 from the home of John Fraze, a farmer near Farmgate, Ill., afterwards setting fire to the house. Fraze and his wife were both absent at the time. Mrs. Fraze returned, found the house in flames and rescued her 2-months-old child at the peril of her life. The family were unable to save any property from the flames.

The Nebraska state central committees of the Democrats and Populists fixed the place and date for their state conventions for Grand Island, June 24. Fusion was practically agreed to, but the apportionment of offices was not decided.

Sheriff O'Connell, of Helena, who accompanied Sheriff Blexrud and Patrick Noonan, charged with the murder of John Skinner twenty-eight years ago in Minnesota, says Noonan confessed to the killing of Skinner to Sheriff Blexrud on the train between Helena and Logan. He admitted that he was in Fillmore county at the time of the killing. He said he acted in self-defense and afterwards fled to California.

The police of Traverse City have found a club with which they believe John A. Hargraves killed his wife, Monday morning. It was covered with blood and hair. An analysis showed it to be human blood and the hair was identified with that on Mrs. Hargraves' head. The police believe that this disposes of the plea of the accused husband that the woman killed herself while suffering from convulsions. Hargraves still maintains his innocence.

DIAZ WANTS VACATION.

Berlin, April 24.—According to a dispatch received in Hamburg from a Mexican banker, President Diaz, of Mexico, intends to ask the Mexican congress for leave of absence to make a trip to Europe next May. President Diaz purposes to install Senor Limantour, the minister of finance and commerce, as executive during his absence.

The Friars and the Filipinos.

When Governor Taft returns to the Philippines by way of the Suez canal he will stop at Rome and talk with the vatican authorities concerning the purchase of the property of the friars in the Philippines, the holding of which has caused so much dissatisfaction. The transfer of the church real estate has been investigated thoroughly by United States officials and it is held that authority is vested in the vatican to determine what bargain shall be made for the sales of the friars' property. It is expected that the pope will designate a representative to negotiate with our government for the settlement of the question, but no intimation has yet been given as to who the agent will be. With the friars' possessions in the hands of the government and their power over the natives at an end, one great drawback to the advancement of the islands will be removed.

The South Carolina Senators.

It is stated that Senators Tillman and McLaurin never speak as they pass by. They have nothing to do with each other in any way. If they chance to meet at the capitol there is not the slightest indication that they ever saw each other before. Each utterly ignores the existence of the other. This is not the result of their pugilistic encounter on the floor of the senate; for nearly a year they have not exchanged the ordinary civilities, personal relations having ceased after their joint debate last summer in South Carolina. Their charges and counter charges became so bitter then that they were on the verge of violence many times. Other senators have not allowed the Tillman-McLaurin affair to make any difference in their treatment of either participant. Politically and in other ways, there is no doubt that Tillman has suffered as the result of that occurrence. But he has suffered more from the misguided zeal of silly friends, particularly the nephew who took it upon himself to withdraw the invitation to the president to present a sword to Maj. Jenkins. Had it not been for this incident, Senator Tillman would have stood, in the minds of many critics, as a martyr to President Roosevelt's discrimination in White House hospitality. Yet with all his faults his colleagues in the senate like Tillman and are fond of his company.

The Cuban Bill In the Senate.

The proposition to delay action on the Cuban reciprocity bill until a sub-committee can go to the island and make an investigation as to who will be the beneficiaries under the proposed concession, seems to be growing in favor in the senate, as much perhaps for the reason that it gives more time to delay action as from any information that may be gained by a committee. As a matter of fact the senate leaders are in a quandary, and the outlook for the champions of good faith with Cuba is not at all cheering. At present it looks as though Senator Platt and other senate leaders were disposed to report a bill which would disregard all of the work done in the ways and means committee of the house; ignore the compromise relative to the immigration and labor laws, and simply authorize the president of the United States to enter into a treaty with the new Cuban government, when organized, which would have for its object concessions on the part of this country amounting to 25 per cent of the Dingley rates. In the bill the proposition will probably be put in the shape of an authorization to collect 75 per cent of the Dingley rates on Cuban products. The fact that the house will not stand for any bill that does not take off the differential on sugar is the great stumbling block to the senate leaders. They will not have votes enough to pass a straight-out Cuban relief bill, and there is always the probability of the beet sugar senators combining with the Democrats to insist on the retention of the Morris amendment. It is a situation that will require the most skillful leadership to result in any legislation at all. As soon as it is fully realized that there is no hope of getting a bill through the senate unless it carries a repeal of the existing differential, it is probable that the tariff reduction project will be dropped altogether.

IT SHOULD BE DENIED.

An application was made to the common council last Monday evening by a local company for authority to install twenty wastepaper boxes at various points in the down-town business district, with the exclusive right to advertising space on the boxes, the company in return to keep the street free from paper. While it is very desirable to keep the streets clear of scraps of paper, the spectacle of boxes at the corners covered with advertisements would not be an improvement. The city can afford to employ a force of street cleaners to gather up scraps of paper with the other rubbish that accumulates from day to day, and the idea of having the street dotted with unsightly advertising boxes should not be even considered by the council. Such a scheme might do for a country village, but it is entirely out of place in a city of Duluth's size. There are few country villages that would permit their streets to be used for such a purpose.

Not only would these boxes be unsightly, but they would be an obstruction to the traffic, and there are enough obstructions now on the streets without adding to their number. In many cities there has been an agitation in recent years to abolish the unsightly billboards covered with advertising, and in some cases the agitation has resulted in the removal of the boards. This result has been attained by the influence brought to bear by the improvement clubs started by the women. The Woman's Council of Duluth will find in this application for authority to litter the streets with advertising boxes an opportunity to exercise their influence with the members of the common council. The aldermen should be impressed with the fact that public sentiment is opposed to such a scheme.

FUNSTON CALLED DOWN.

It is not surprising that President Roosevelt has felt it necessary to "call down" Gen. Frederick Funston and direct him to cease further public discussion of the situation in the Philippines. Indeed, many people have wondered that the president did not take this step weeks ago when Funston began to denounce those who do not agree with the administration's Philippine policy and to call them "traitors" because they had the temerity to differ from his views and refuse to endorse the "water cure" and other atrocious cruelties practiced by some of the American officers in the Philippines. Funston was permitted to indulge in talk that, if uttered by Gen. Miles, would have brought at once a stern rebuke from the war department. As long as he made no specific personal attack he escaped a reprimand, and he probably came to the conclusion that the administration wanted him to keep up the assaults on those of different views.

But Funston made a fatal error when he singled out the senior senator from Massachusetts for a portion of his billingsgate. At a banquet last Saturday night of the Colorado Sons of the Revolution, Gen. Funston is reported to have said of Senator Hoar: "I have only sympathy for the senior senator from Massachusetts, who is suffering from an overheated conscience." Following upon this attack upon a United States senator, the general applied for leave of absence in order that he might attend the banquet to be given in Boston by the Middlesex club, where he was booked to deliver another address. The result was a refusal by the war department of leave of absence and the forwarding to Gen. Funston of the following letter by direction of President Roosevelt:

"War Department, Washington, April 22, 1902.—Sir: I am directed by the president to instruct you that he wishes you to cease further public discussion of the situation in the Philippines, and also to express his regret that you should make a senator of the United States the object of public criticism or discussion. Very respectfully,

"WILLIAM CARY SANGER,
"Acting Secretary of War..

"Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, Commanding Department of the Colorado, Denver, Col."

The public will now be spared a further infliction of Funston diatribes, and for this relief the president deserves thanks.

BELGIUM'S TROUBLES.

While by the prompt action of the gendarmes of Belgium the worst of the riots have been quieted temporarily, as far as public manifestations are concerned, many of the strikes are still going on and the disturbances are liable to break out again at any time. These troubles in Belgium are entirely political and relate to the franchise. Before 1880 less than 22 in 1000 of the population were voters, and the franchise was based on assessment only, and limited to adults paying $8 or more per annum. In that year the mercantile and landlord class, then in control, determined to secularize the common schools, notwithstanding the fact that almost the entire population is Roman Catholic. The clerical party then, with the support of the peasantry and artisan class, demanded an extension of the franchise, and in '93 this agitation culminated in a general industrial strike, which overthrew the modern Liberal government and brought the clerical party into power. Their franchise reform scarcely relieved the situation, improving only slightly the position of the peasants and artisans.

The growth of the opposition to the clerical party since 1896 is significant of the feeling against clerical control. The chamber of deputies has 152 members, one for every 40,000, elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years. After the elections of '96 the parties stood 111 Catholics, 12 Liberals and 29 Socialists; after the election of '98, 112 Catholics, 28 Socialists, 6 Liberals and 6 Radicals, and after the election of 1900, 86 Catholics, 33 Liberals and 33 Socialists, leaving the government a majority of 20 instead of 70, as it was in '96. While there are several differences between the Liberals and the Radicals, they recently joined forces to demand an "universal suffrage" law, on the principle of one man one vote, but the scenes in the chamber, in which Liberals and Socialists came to blows, charging each other with betrayal, show that unity of action even in regard to the franchise question is not easily maintained.

Riots and strikes are nothing new in Belgium. In fact, it is the only way the people have of manifesting their disapproval. Without a franchise they are powerless. The time is coming when a radical change will take place in the country, and there may be a bloody struggle before the people secure their rights.

A STEP FORWARD.

The glad news comes that the baggage smasher is doomed to complete extinction. Already three leading railroads have issued order for his ending, and the others are expected to follow the excellent example. Then will it be possible for the traveler by rail to go on his journeyings in the serene confidence that when he arrives at his destination he will not be confronted by the broken wreck of a trunk when he presents his baggage check.

Orders, it is stated, have been issued by the Northwestern, the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific for reforms in the handling of trunks. Directions have been given that where trunks and boxes are to be moved a considerable distance a truck shall be used. Furthermore, the truck must have a thick pad of felt, which will prevent holes from being driven into the trunks when they are thrown from a car. Any employe who is caught "ending" a trunk will be in danger of losing his position and no one will be permitted to "swirl" a trunk from corner to corner up and down a platform. Trunks are not to be thrown upon station platforms. They must be lowered cautiously.

The baggage smasher has had a long and strenuous existence and Americans have suffered much from his muscular activity. His extinction will be a step forward in the advance of civilization.

The failure to do justice to Gen. Miles is conspicuous in this passage from the New York Times: "The fifth occasion of the general setting himself against the administration was when he took it upon himself to make statements concerning what he characterized as the cruelty of our troops in the Philippines, based upon official reports which it was not his function or his right to make public." Reference is here made to the Gardener report. The truth is that Gen. Miles did not "make public" either that report or any other official report. Gen Miles in a confidential and privte note to the secretary of war called the president's attention to the Philippines and in general terms referred to the warfare as having been conducted with "marked severity." He said nothing about "cruelty." After Mr. Root had condemned the characterization as untrue, Gen. Miles in a second confidential and private note told the president the source of his information. That correspondence was not made public by Gen. Miles, but by the president, in response to a request by congress. But Gen. Miles performed a public service in writing the two letters to the president.

The vegetarians are pleased with the situation produced by the beef trust. They are giving dinners in various cities to demonstrate that the inner man can be completely satisfied by a menu that does not include meats. They wish the beef trust the greatest success in forcing prices upward to such a point that public attention will be directed to the value of other foods. Among those who have become converts to vegetarianism is Mary Ellen Lease, formerly of Kansas, but now of New York. She was a speaker at a banquet of one of the societies there the other night. "I have done without meat for days," she said, "even weeks, but there would come a time, such as Dr. Livingston describes in his story of African travels, when I could see nothing in my imagination but a big juicy beefsteak. But now I think I'm on the right road. I am a vegetarian of two weeks' standing, and I earnestly beg the prayers of one faithful, so that I may endure to the end."

Considerable misinformatton is being published about the attempt of the late A. A. McLeod in 1892 to form a combination of the Reading, the New York and New England and the Boston & Maine railroads. The reason that Mr. McLeod failed in this attempt was that the time was unpropitous and it was difficult to get capitalists and bankers to take hold of any large scheme. The country was on the verge of the downfall of 1893, and the failure of the Reading railroad early in the spring was the beginning of a series of catastrophes leading up to the panic of July, 1893.

Reeves' pardon confirms the claim made by Rathbone's attorney that the former had been promised immunity by the government and that he did not care what he swore to against Rathbone. In this connection it is worthy of special note that Rathbone declares that he will resist a movement for his pardon, either on the part of the United States or the Cuban government. He avers all he wants is that the supreme court shall grant his appeal for a new trial, and that the trial be held before an uninfluenced court.

The Topeka State Journal expresses the view that the despondent Iowa pastor who killed himself because his congregations have kept growing smaller should have bided his time. There is nothing to show that all those Iowa people will be needed to run the government at Washington always. Some of them will be coming back in a few years.

It is one of the latest ideas of Capt. Hobson that the government of the United States should insist on the Americanization of China to the extent that it once did in Japan, and work out the highest possibilities of the people of Asia, along lines of human liberty.

The Canadian government has officially notified the United States government that Canada's participation in the World's fair at St. Louis will be much more extensive than it had at the Columbian exposition.

The new pension commissioner from Kansas says: "Every man entitled to a pension ought to have it." No one can object to that. It is in line with the policy pursued by Commissioner Evans.

The New York corpse that broke open the coffin and roasted the pallbearers may not have exceeded his rights as a corpse, but the proceeding would be considered very bad form in Duluth.

In view of the stories of the "water cure" and other atrocities in the Philippines, no American has any license to denounce the treatment of the Boers in South Africa.

And now it is reported that women at Washington have taken to smoking. New work is always springing up for the reformer.

J. Pierpont Morgan may soon crowd Neptune off his throne in the sea.

If horses are contraband of war, why are not mules?

THE PLANTING OF A TREE.

Wouldst thou upbuild a home where sweet wild lives are nested,
Glad with the sound of song, quick with the flash of wings—
Where the soft broods may rock, warm-housed and unmolested,
Deep in ...e leafy nooks, through all the changeful springs?

Or wouldst thou rear an arch of noblest
grace and splendor,
Lifted in air and light, shaped by the sun and storm,
Moved by the wandering wind, swayed
by each influence tender,
Yet by the hand of life molded to steadfast form?

Wouldst thou make day more fair, and night more rich and holy,
Winter more keenly bright, and summer's self more dear—
Grant the sweet earth a gift, deep rooted,
ripening slowly,
Add to the sum of joys that bless the rounded year?

Go, then, and plant a tree, lovely in sun and shadow,
Gracious in every kind—maple and oak and pine.
Peace of the forest glade, wealth of the fruitful meadow,
Blessigns of dew and shade, hereafter shall be thine!

For though thou never see the joy thy hand hath granted,
Those who shall follow thee thy generous boon may share.
Thou shalt be Nature's child, who her best fruit hath planted,
And each of many a spring shall find thy gift more fair.

Wanted It Badly.

Washington Times: An interesting story is in circulation at the capitol, relative to an act perpetrated by a certain member of congress from Wisconsin, during the present session of congress.

The congressman, upon arriving in this city, rented an apartment at the New Willard. It had long been a habit with him to partake of a drink of water before retiring for the night. On this particular night, he discovered that the waiter had neglected to supply him with the necessary fluid.

However, further search revealed two small buttons in the wall, under one of which was inscribed "Push twice for water." He pushed the button. When the waiter appeared in the doorway with the water he was very much amused to see the congressman holding a pitcher under the button.

Circumstances Alter.

By Angela Morgan.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst).

Even the process of dressing for the matinee seemed to Adelaide a wearisome and almost impossible undertaking this afternoon.

She got out her things with a lagging indifference and mused heavily while she absently arranged her hair.

The thought of wearing for the first time her beautiful new chiffon hat stirred within her no other feeling than a torpid complacency. The prospect of witnessing one of the most successful plays of the season—a production which she had been eagerly anticipating—failed now to excite her sluggish interest.

She paused abruptly in the act of hooking her waist on the shoulder and signed impatiently. What a nuisance dressing was, anyway! Women had no sensible ideas whatever on the subject. They were slaves to their dressmakers. Imagine any man submitting to a fashion which made necessary the use of dozens and dozens of refractory hooks and eyes!

She stood dully inert, staring listlessly upon the photographs that decorated the edges of the mirror. A half contemptuous smile curled her lips as her glance rested upon one of these—one that snowed a very engaging masculine countenance.

On the impulse she detached it from its prominent place against the mirror and tossed it among a miscellaneous collection on a side table.

"It is no more than he need expect," she said aloud, with a toss of the head. "Fickle persons need not look for loyalty when they have forfeited the right to it."

The utterance seemed to give her a grim satisfaction. She attacked the hooks and eyes again with a spiteful determination.

"Not that I care, of course," she pursued, "whether Will Courtney ever calls again. It is nothing to me. If he does not wish to see me any more, that is his privilege. Only it does seem"—jerking at a hook—"as if he might"—another jerk—"transfer his attention to some one beside that conceited little—(where is that eye?)—Eva Harris, just because I of a girl he has always pretended to dislike. There's a man for you."

The recent information of Sally Tremont—one of "the girls"—occurred to her with biting clearness. "I saw Will Courtney at the art exhibit," she had said, "and who do you suppose was with him? That silly little Eva Harris! They were at the theater together on Monday, too. Would you have thought it of Will? He seems so sensible."

Adelaide's smile grew more and more contemptuous as she continued to reflect on these things. Of course Sally's words had nothing to do with the present state of mind—perish the thought! Her mood of today was simply a culmination of that general despondency which had been stealing upon her for weeks.

She sighed again, as she put on the chiffon hat and regarded its effect in the mirror. What was the trouble with it? Something, surely. It did not set right. When she tried it on at the milliner's it had certainly been becoming. Now it had a strange, new flatness that gave her face a peaked look.

"Seems queer I can never get a hat to suit me," she muttered crossly, as she caught up her muff and opera glasses.

The grim cheerlessness of outdoors smote her with a vast sense of depression. How comfortless was the brick-and-mortar existence of city living—what a travesty on genuine existence!

On the way to the elevated station the sight of a littered vacant lot irritated her vision. The unpleasantness were so painfully apparent today.

She began to meditate gloomily upon the disadvantage of metropolitan life. What was to become of humanity if people continued to crowd into the cities and breathe second-hand air? Truly it was a problem. The weight of it oppressed her as she ascended the steps to the platform.

She gazed with a dismal indifference at her fellow passengers in the car. How could any one ever call the study of human nature interesting? Adelaide wondered over it with a sort of leaden scorn.

Arrived at the theater she waited impassively for the curtain to rise.

Try as she would to discover a gleam of cleverness in the first act she received merely an impression of its stupid impossibility. What dummies the actors were! And the leading woman! What an absurdly affected and self-conscious creature! Was it possible that she was capable of truly impassioned acting?

Adelaide endured the intermission with a numb resignation. The orchestra played poorly today.

Just after the curtain had risen on the second act some one came in quietly and took the vacant seat at Adelaide's left. The girl turned her gaze from the glare of the stage and endeavored to distinguish the features of the man at her side.

Their startled glances met in the semi-light. His astonished whisper and hers were simultaneous.

"Adelaide!"

"Mr. Courtney!"

Taken off her guard, the girl had to struggle bravely for the cool composure which it had been her intention to maintain should she meet Will Courtney again.

That the young man was disconcerted was only too apparent. Agitation was plainly visible in his face and manner.

They watched the act in silence. Adelaide would have denied the fact that her heart beats were very irregular. She stared straight ahead with a stony serenity.

Upon the fall of the curtain he turned to her promptly.

"Well! This is indeed a happy coincidence! Fate has been kinder to me than I would have dared to be to myself."

Her glance expressed interrogation. "For perhaps," he pursued, "you may have perceived that my daring tendencies have been on the decline for the past two weeks or so."

"Daring?" she repeated. Wonder deepened in her eyes.

"Was I not very daring at one time? I must have seemed so under the circumstances."

"Under the circumstances?"

"Surely you understand me."

"I do not."

"Did it ever occur to you that my coming to see you so often might result disastrously for me? That perhaps I might grow to care more for you than I have any right to care?"

His tone had dropped almost to a whisper. His eyes looked fully into hers. She gazed at him as in a dream, conscious that the orchestra played tenderly, entrancingly.

"You mean?" she faltered.

"I mean that I remembered the other man, necessarily."

Adelaide stared at him in blank bewilderment.

"I refer to your engagement, of course. I learned of it two weeks ago."

"Some one told you that I was engaged to be married?"

"Certainly? Is it not so?"

"No. The information was false. I fail to understand it."

Her eyes dropped under the glory of his swiftly ardent glance.

"It is not true!" he breathed.

They were both silent for a space.

"I know who told you," said Adelaide, with a sudden illumination. "It was Sally Tremont."

The orchestra ceased playing. The footlights flared up.

"And may I come to see you as before?" he whispered hurriedly. "May I come often? You understand me now, Adelaide! May I?"

The girl looked at him and smiled. His hand closed over hers as the house darkened.

The third act was thrillingly beautiful. The actors seemed to have awakened astonishingly from their lethargy. The superb acting of the leading woman was a revelation. Adelaide could readily understand now why people called her wonderful.

Courtney accompanied the girl as she left the theater. A glance in the big mirror over the door had reassured her as to the effect of her hat. It was certainly very becoming after all.

The streets swarmed with humanity homeward bound. How cheerful, how expectant were the faces that met the eye!

Adelaide smiled happily. Dear humanity! How like one family after all, in its hopes, its sorrows, its fears, its joys—and its loves!

What a wonderful thing, the gift of life—yes, even life in a city! It had many glorious features.

The street car was crowded to suffocation, but Adelaide was unconscious of any inconvenience. She cheerfully reached for a strap and smiled benignly upon the dirty-faced little urchin who planted his feet on her trailing skirt.

Courtney's arm supported her whenever the car, stopping abruptly, sent the lurching occupants against each other. Courtney's eyes smiled into hers. Courtney talked to her. What a beautiful world to live in!

That night the photograph was reinstated in its former prominent place against the mirror. And, of course, Adelaide kissed it first, just like any other foolish girl.

STYLISH SPRING COSTUMES

Proper Style of Skirts—Decidedly Novel Sleeve.

This gown combines all the new features of the current mode. The Eton has loose fronts that open over a vest embroidered with beige and pale blue Corticelli Filo silk, similar embroidery adorning the deep pelerine collar. The sleeve is decidedly novel and deserves special mention. It is cut with a point edged with a band of stitched voile and is completed with a kind of under sleeve of cream liberty silk, formed into puffs with straps of beige velvet. Beige velvet ribbon in a darker shade adorns both the jacket and skirt. The latter shows the fashionable sheath effect and in addition to the velvet a trimming of straps in inverted scollops stitched with Corticelli silk.

The new skirts are fitted closely at the hips, but flare very much indeed below the knees. A great many skirts with hip yokes are shown, either of shirring, tucking or tiny bands, joined with a fancy open stitch. Some very attractive skirt models in sheer materials are laid in narorw box-plaits from the waist to the knees and below that there is a prettily shaped flounce with insertions of cream lace and a garniture of narrow gathered ribbon.

WELL GOWNED IN NEW YORK

New York Evening Sun: A woman living in a small inland city that prides itself upon being up to the times in most things, came to pay a visit to her New York relatives not long ago. Prior to her departure, the woman supplied herself with new spring clothes bought at the shops of her native town and made by the local dressmaker. Being a woman of independent means, the clothes were, in every respect, as nice as the small inland city could turn out. Arrived in New York, and almost the first words that the woman heard from her relatives were: "My dear, your clothes aren't right." The woman had sufficiently independent means not to say proper respect for New York opinion not to resent the criticism. She calmly asked for details. "They're exaggerated," was the answer. "Nice people in New York never wear exaggerated things. Your dressmaker makes and trims her frocks in Italics. Her undersleeves are too puffy, her skirts too flaring, her flounces too voluminous. Here the best dressmakers modify all fashions; at any rate, women of the best taste refuse to wear any fashion in the raw. It must be tempered, made inconspicuous, and, above all, adapted to suit each particular wearer. Your clothes are fashionable enough, my dear; the trouble is they're too fashionable. They've taken every mode too seriously, too literally. They're exaggerated. I don't say you don't see plenty of New Yorkers dressed exaggeratedly, too. But if you wont to look like the best New Yorkers, you'll take pains to tone down all your fashions."

A Stand For Humanity.

Cleveland Leader: President Roosevelt has been called a man of blood and iron, careless of the sufferings and horrible consequences of war, but he is making a stand for humanity in the case of Gen. Smith such as no state in Europe would think of taking.

There Will Be Something Doing.

Chicago Post: The dattos of Mindanao have declined to see Gen. Chaffee, but they have agreed to talk the matter over among themselves. It may be concluded that sooner or later these chiefs will not only see the general, but that they will have their eyes opened to a number of other things.

"VOICES OF THE SPRING."

Again the voices of the spring are heard on every hand,
Some scarcely worth a scratch of pen,
some beautifully grand;
They come to tell us that we're free from winter's icy grip,
And from the stinging cuttings of the frost king's painful whip,
The breezes whisper soft and low and in their gentle way
Congratulate us on the fact that they have come to stay.
And little songbirds seek for flats up in the budding trees
To go to housekeeping once again and raise their families.

Again the voice the ragman brought from some far distant shore
Comes from his soiled and whiskered face in half-appeating roar
As pounds he at the bony back of what was once a steed,
But now seems but a phantom shape
that's hungering for feed.
Again the muffled thudding of the carpet
beater's stick
Is heard upon the vacant lots, and all the air a thick
With flying, suffocating dust that to the clothing clings
And fills the lungs with vile microbes, bacteria and things.

Again we hear the fakir's voice upon the corner, where
He cures the many ills to which the human flesh is heir,
And rakes the silv'ry dollars in from suffering suckers, who Will bite at any tempting bait as scaly suckers do.
Again within the once glad home we hear the soapy slush
As she whom we have vowed to love
bends o'er the scrubbing brush,
And hear her sweet voice when we from the table rise to spit
And hint that all the victuals have a sharp sapolian grit.

Again we hear our inward thoughts,
which vigor never lack,
As bend we o'er the garden spade with toothache in our back
And hear the madame telling us quite sharply we'd bend o'er
A billiard table half the day and never make a roar,
And as the many voices we have thus recounted here
Fall in conglomerated mass upon our watery ear,
We're led to think that those of which the poets love to sing
Are not the only voices of the spring, sweet gentle spring.

I do not Treat all Diseases, but Cure all I Treat. I Treat Men Only and Cure Them to Stay Cured.

On account of its frightful hideousness, Contagious Blood Poison is commonly called the king of all venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on the face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bones. If you have any of these or similar symptoms you are cordially invited to call at our offices immediately. If your fears are unfounded the burden will be quickly removed from your mind; but if your constitution is infected you will be told so frankly and shown how to get rid of it. WIDTH OF SIDEWALK

More Complaints as to Narrowness of Superior Street Walk.

City Authorities May Endeavor to Provide More Room.

Efforts In This Direction Always Provoke a Storm.

Complaints are being made about the narrow Superior street sidewalks.

The city is apparently growing so rapidly that the walks on the leading retail street are not of adequate width during most of the day and evening.

A number of complaints have been made by merchants and the city officers say it rests largely with the merchants to make more sidewalk space.

The smaller stores insist on signs and even exhibits of goods on what is properly the sidewalk space. It is estimated that if all such advertising stands and signs were removed it would add an additional eighteen inches to the walks.

Another thing that is receiving consideration on the part of city officers, and in connection with the complaints of lack of sidewalk space, is the removal of telephone, telegraph and electric poles.

Those that have figured on the pole nuisance say a general removal through the business section would mean about two feet additional sidewalk space, and besides improve the appearance of the thoroughfare vastly.

The electrical commission recently appointed by the council to make investigations as to the overhead wire nuisance, will probably deal with the pole question when it gets around to it, but at present the important work before this commission has not been taken up in any way.

The advertising question is a serious and touchy thing to deal with as several administrations have previously discovered. The moment an order is transmitted from the city hall to police headquarters to warn merchants to remove stands and signs, a string of more or less prominent merchants head for the city hall and begin telling the administration that they objected it and what they will do to it next election if the ir "private business affairs" are interfered with in this way.

The policeman that goes into many of the smaller stores and says: "Remove your signs" is usually sorry he spoke, for immediately complaint is made against him at headquarters.

However, the present administration has taken up the complaints and the indications are that the walks will be cleared at an early date even if additional and more strenuous legislation is required to assist the police in enforcing the removal.

Duluth Citizens Gladly Testify.

It is testimony like the following that has placed "the little conqueror" so far above competitors. When people right here at home raise their voices in praise there is no room left for doubt. Read the public statement of a Duluth citizen:

Mrs. Agnes McKay, of 125 Nineteenth avenue, says: "For some time I suffered from kidney complaint, and although I tried different remedies, I did not succeed in getting anything to effectually rid me of the trouble. I had constant heavy, bearing-down pains across the small of my back, so that I could hardly get around, and at night I could not rest well. The kidney secretions were irregular, highly colored and deposited a heavy sediment. I also suffered from severe and persistent headaches. On being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured them at A. W. Abbett's drug store and used them. They relieved me of the pains and restored the action of the kidneys' secretions to their normal state."

WILL BUILD.

Duluth Boat Club to Erect a Handsome Club House.

The Duluth Boat club, at its annual meeting at the Spalding last night, warmly endorsed the project of having a new club house.

Plans prepared by J. J. Wangenstein were presented for examination, and they were approved. The matter of making financial arrangements was left with the board of directors, and a contract will probably be awarded during next fall. The club house will cost about $6000 and it will be one of the best in the country. It will be 60 feet by 88 feet in size, two stories high, and will be located on the new boat club property, two blocks below the canal on Minnesota point.

The building, inside and out, will be attractive and commodious. The boats will be on the ground floor and reception, dancing and smoking rooms will occupy the upper story. The reception room will be 20 by 23, the dancing room 43 by 48 and the smoking room 12 by 16.

Officers were elected, as follows: George Spencer, president, for a third term; Capt. Alexander McDougall, first vice president; C. D. Shepard, second vice president; W. L. McLennan, secretary; J. H. Barnes, treasurer; J. D. Mahoney, captain; N. L. Leach, lieutenant; Capt. George Gibson, ensign; E. N. Bradley, G. G. Barnum and George C. Stone, directors.

Forty-nine new members were received, making the active membership 150. The club will make it 200. With that end in view membership fees will be waived for the present.

The club's assets are $6000, of which $000 is cash and the balance real estate and boat property.

D. J. Mahoney, club captain, submitted a report for the past year, recommending the addition of a billiard table and urging each member to constitute himself a committee of one to work for the success of the club.

Another meeting will be held May 7.

A LARGE PROJECT

Chicago Report That Deering Mine Purchase Is First Step.

Talk of Opposition to Steel Corporation Not Believed Here.

Statement as to Change of Steel Corporation's Character.

According to reports from Chicago, the acquisition of the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby mine on the Mesaba range by the Deering Harvester works is the first step in a project that involves the expenditure on the Calumet river at South Chicago, of $3,000,000 for an iron and steel plant. The basis for these developments is the furnace of the South Chicago Furnace company at One Hundred and Sixth street and the Calumet river. The company has plenty of ground for a large steel plant, and a splendid location with regard to dockage. The Calumet is navigable to a depth of 21 feet at this point and great slips are made into its banks that practically place it on the same general scheme at the dock properties at Duluth. The location is only a short distance north of the plant of the Chicago shipyards, and another coincidence is that W. L. Brown, who is president of the great lakes shipbuilding combination is also president of the furnace company.

In this connection it is interesting also that the agricultural machinery factory of the Deering company is on the North side of Chicago, full twelve miles distant from the site of the new steel industry. It is freely given out, however, that the ore taken from the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby property, while it is to be blasted at the new steel and furnace plant, will be used in the manufacture of Deering implements. The inference is that the Deering works will probably ultimately be removed to a more capacious site at South Chicago.

It is the understanding that the output of the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby company will be used this season as far as its structure will permit to charge the furnace now in blast on the Calumet. The capacity of this furnace has been increased to 250 tons a day. Another furnace will be built with a capacity of 350 tons a day.

The Chicago reports are to the effect that the new steel plant will fight the steel corporation. It is believed here that this report is unwarranted, because it would be impossible for a company with $2,000,000 capital to fight a corporation with $1,000,000,000 capital. The original belief that the mine was bought with the idea of eliminating middlemen from the ore in the ground to the shipping of the finished product of the harvester works, is still held in Duluth by men who have watched the development of the deal.

ON THE VERMILION.

Activity Makes It Appear as In First Days.

"Up around Tower and Ely," said an old iron man this morning, "it looks as it did in the old days eight or ten years ago when new mines were being opened up on the Vermilion range and before there was so much activity on the Mesaba. One sees loads of lumber and tar paper going out of town for mining camps and crowds of laborers shouldering picks pass, bound for the new locations. It seems as if the summer season is going to be a very busy one in connection with new properties on the Vermilion range."

It is reported that what work has been done on the McCumber forty has been in the line of clearing up the location in readiness for active development work. Camps are being built, and the report is current around Tower that operations for the further sinking of the shaft will be resumed next Monday. It is understood that some well known iron people in the East are back of the local parties who appear in these operations.

It is announced that the Cleveland-Cliffs people will put in a steel shaft at the Negaunee mine, which George Lonstorf leased to them a few weeks ago. This is the mine in which such a distressing cave-in occurred last winter.

CONTROL THE HEN

Three Great Firms Have Corralled the Poultry Market.

Are Estimated to Have Half Million Cases of Eggs.

Also Control Poultry Through Their Cold Storage Plants.

Three great firms have corralled the hen market.

Armour & Co., Swift & Co. and Priebe & Semiter, of Bushnell, Ill., are said to have acquired two-thirds of all the poultry in the country, and they will dictate the prices of poultry and poultry products.

This may serve to partially explain the high prices of these things on the Duluth market, where everything in that line, like everything in the meat line, is much higher than ever before at this season. These firms have storage plants all over the Western states, and it is estimated that they have 500,000 cases of poultry of about 100 pounds each in cold storage.

Their profits are already said to be immense, but they are not enough yet, so it is predicted that prices will go higher very soon.

Indirectly this combine affects the price of eggs, especially as some of the large packers are heavy buyers of eggs for storage, which is one of the factors that are working towards high prices of eggs.

The problem is regarded not as one of a "trust" or combination so much as it is of the effect which the perfection of cold storage methods and the great extension of its use within the last three years has had upon the produce trades.

It is admitted that the cold storage warehouses have put an instrument of immense power over the necessaries of life in the hands of the firms which are in a position t otake advantage of them on a huge scale. Already discussion is active as to the possibilities of gaining public control over the cold storage business by a state law enforcing public reports at least once a week, so that the public will be able to keep posted on the speed with which the supplies that are sent to the market for the consumers are side-tracked in the warehouses from which they will not issue until prices have been pushed up to a point that means hundreds of thousands of dollars of profit to the manipulators.

Massachusetts has such a law governing the cold storage warehouses, and Illinois has used the same principle in controlling public grain warehouses. The Michigan street men think that it is time to apply the principle to cold storage plants in this state.

Capt. Early Walton, who was superintendent of the property under the old management, will become superintendent of the Columbia mine, one of the Sellwood properties in the Hibbing district.

B. F. Smith has test pit crews and one drill at work under P. A. Coffey on the n½ of the ne¼ of section 34-57-22.

It is said that Capt. Trezona has had so much trouble with water at the Oliver Snyder mine, the new property near Chisholm, that he has begun to sink another shaft. The first shaft is down into ore at about 100 feet. It had been intended to sink the second shaft, so that plans are not materially altered. It is thought the Oliver Snyder will be ready to ship as soon as the Missabe spur is completed to the property.

CHANGE OF CHARACTER.

Reports as to Steel Corporation Are Doubted.

It is said by a man who is in a position to know, and who claims to mae the statement on the authority of a director of the United States Steel corporation, that there is no purpose whatever and never has been, to change the character of that corporation from a security to a producing or manufacturing corporation. A telegraphic report published a day or so ago that such a movement was already under way is said to be without essential foundation. The general character of the corporation, it is declared, will be retained as it is and has been. What changes are in course at this time or are contemplated are said to have been planned from the beginning and are merely the working out of the details of the original plan.

"What some have regarded here as local indications that the Steel corporation intends to absorb its subsidiary companies are merely the completion of the original plans for perfecting the system as originally conceived,' said this informant. "I don't believe from what I have heard that the mining and vessel and railroad companies will ever be absorbed. If that were the intention, nothing would have been done toward the absorption by the large mining companies of the various mines. All of this would have been done at one stroke and the absorption would have been into the Steel corporation.

"As I understand it now, the Minnesota Iron company has absorbed all the mines of the Consolidated group, while the Oliver Iron Mining company has absorbed all of the mines acquired by the Steel corporation merger on the Gogebic, Marquette and Menominee ranges. This absorption has simply been for the purpose of mating less work in the financial, bookkeeping and statistical departments. It makes it much easier for the corporation to keep track of cost of operation and reduces its great mining operations to a much finer system.

"There are local reasons, also, why it would be unfeasible to absorb all these interests into one corporation It would be very undesirable to consolidate the two Minnesota range railroads, for instance, with ambitious politicians just hungering for some chance to go after the Steel corporation."

FORESTERS' TROUBLES.

High Chief Ranger Hayes Hopes to Settle Dispute.

Denver, Col., April 24.—E. A. Hayes, of Buffalo, high chief ranger of the Eastern jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of Foresters, is in Denver to try to settle the dispute between Eastern and Western districts. The trouble arises over the control of the courts of the Foresters in Colorado and the territories of New Mexico and Arizona. The jurisdiction is claimed by the Pacific slope district, although Eastern men declare that there is no ground for the contention.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

UPWARD TENDENCY

Is Noticeable In Prices of Iron and Steel.

Volume of Business However Is Not Very Large.

Furnaces Act Together to Prevent a Runaway Market.

Cleveland, April 24.—The Iron Trade Review, commenting on the market conditions this week says: The tendency of prices is upward, but the volume of business done at the higher figures is not sufficient to give them great significance. In pig iron current business is almost entirely in foundry grades, and while it is probable that one-fifth to one-fourth of the foundry iron to be needed this year is yet to be bought there is none of the excitement that accompanied the heavy buying in February.

The three Southern furnace companies that have acted together to prevent a runaway market are to be credited with whatever of moderation the foundry iron market has preserved. If they did not succeed in holding prices at a given level their course has quieted the feverish conditions that were apparent. It is stated this week that the agreement to maintain a $12 basis on No. 2 foundry is now ineffective and that when the furnaces parties to it resume selling, it will be at figures to be determined by each property for itself. All have been selling in the East at prevailing prices, generally $15 to $15.50 at Birmingham for No. 2, while remaining out of the Central Western market.

Meantime producers and consumers are having trouble in plenty to maintain any regularity in the delivery of iron to foundries. Furnaces are quite behind on their contracts and current business is largely from disappointed foundrymen who are paying fancy prices to keep running. Steel-making pig iron has advanced as the scarcity of steel has become more marked.

A sale of 5000 tons of Bessemer iron for third quarter delivery was made at $20 at valley furnace. In basic iron a sale of 3000 tons delivery running to July 1, is reported at $19.25 Pittsburg. It is not probable that Bessemer iron will be imported by leading steel interests, foreign prices being at a prohibitive point. The change of a furnace from Spiegel to Bessemer iron will relievo the situation in the Pittsburg district.

Hancock—M. M. Conlon, a traveling representative of the Hall Safe company, Cincinnati, paid a $15 fine and costs amounting to $5.75 in Justice Oliver's court at Hancock for a charge of assault and battery preferred against him by Eugene Laughlier, the Hancock music dealer. Mr. Laughlier claims that Conlon entered his place of business and commenced to "run down" a safe recently purchased and all other goods in the store as well. When Conlon was invited to leave the place he struck Laughlier. Hancock justice did the rest.

Houghton—The state fish car "Fontanalis" arrived at Houghton with a number of cans of trout fry for the various streams on the South range, including the Misery, Salmon Trout, Graveat and Elm rivers. The car was switched over to the Copper Range road and stopped as near to the streams as possible. President George Williams of the Gun and Rod club assisted Superintendent Marks and his men in planting the fry. Several cans of the little trout were also sent to other streams in the county.

W. G. Rice, of Houghton, who was successful in securing options on the majority of the stock in the Peninsula Electric Light and Power company, has left for the East, presumably on business connected with the electric light deal now pending. It is still a matter of conjecture who will ultimately get control of the property, but rumor has it that the street railway company is at the back of it. Mr. Rice has the option until June. Just to whom they will be turned over is not known, as nothing will be given out on that score at present.

Negaunee—The executive committee of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association did not make as many changes in the official program of events to be run off at the tournament in this city during the last week in August as many of the firemen throughout the upper peninsula expected it would.

It was the intention of some of the members of the executive committee to alter a number of the rules under which the events are run off, but it was found that this power does not rest with the committee.

All changes in the rules must be made by the delegates in attendance at the annual convention, which is held the evening before the races start. It then takes a two-thirds vote of the delegates present to make a change.

Three important changes have been made. The first is in the novelty hook and ladder race, which takes place on Friday morning. The next is in the climbers' contest. Heretofore this has been more of a jumping contest than anything else. The man who could jump the best usually got to the top of the ladder first. With the alterations made each climber will have to touch every round of the ladder with either a foot or hand. The last change is that of the regulation hose race No. 2. In this event water will be turned on and time will be taken when the water comes through the nozzle.

Cold, Headache, Catarrh, relieved in ten minutes—Rev. W. H. Main, pastor of the Baptist Emmanuel church, Buffalo, gives strong testimony for and is a firm believer in Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. He has tried many kinds of remedies without avail. "After using Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder I was benefited at once," are his words. It is a wonderful remedy. One application relieves headache and cold. —Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

THE LOST TREASURE

Of the Attoyac, Abandoned Early In Last Century.

Given to Four Soldiers, Two of Whom Disappeared.

The Other Two Threw Their Shares Into the Water.

Necogdoches, Texas, April 24.—Early in the year 1812 there appeared at Natchitoches, the old Franco-Spanish town on Red river, Guiterrez de Lava, the Spanish republican and revolutionist. His attempt to liberate Mexico from monarchial rule had met with signal failure and barely escaping with his life he made his way to the United States and ultimately turned up at Natchitoches.

At that time the strip of country between the Arroyo Hondo, a small stream a few miles east of Natchitoches and the Sabine river, was known as "neutral ground," and in it robbers and questionable characters had taken refuge from the authorities in the United States and Mexico.

The glowing reports which Guiterrez gave as to the internal conditions of the province of Texas and Mexico, and with the rich booty waiting to be taken, won the ear and finally captivated Lieut. Augustus W. Magee, who, with a few soldiers, was stationed at Natchitoches to watch the frontier and guard travelers across the neutral ground.

Magee resigned his commission in the army and, in connection with the Guiterrez, organized the floating and restless characters known in history as the "Republican Army of the North." The greater part of the sumer was spent in gathering provisions under the supervision of Col. Davenport, who had been for several years Indian agent in that quarter, and in mustering recruits.

At last, however, in August, an advance was made. Bernardino Montero, the Spanish commandant, at Nacogdoches, having heard of the scheme of Magee and Guiterrez, had reported it to headquarters and was ordered to reconnoiter towards the Sabine. He did so with a small body of cavalry, and undertook to take post at the crossing of said river and dispute its passage. However, he was suddenly outflanked and forced to retreat hurriedly to Nacogdoches. At the crossing on the Attoyac river, near where the town of Chireno now stands, Montero left a patrol of twenty men under Lieut. Gonzales to watch the movements of the enemy. At dawn, Aug. 11, an assault was made while they were at their matins, and all killed except one, who managed to escape to Nacogdoches, and reported to Montero, who, legend says, had already prepared for the crisis by collecting all the treasure in the place, consisting of silver dollars and bullion, and, having called four trusty soldiers, committed it to them, and bade each take a fourth of the treasure, should the town be invaded, and escape, if possible.

Hardly had the order been given and the trust received when Magee's army appeared on the hill east of town, and a few minutes later the republican cavalry rode up to the old stone fort. The four soldiers to whom the treasure had been entrusted escaped on horseback, one going towards the west, one to the north, one to the south and one towards the east, from whence had just come the republicans. A short distance out of town the one that rode east was discovered and hotly pursued. He rode hard and fast, but when near the Attoyac saw that his horse would not hold out much longer. Spurring on, however, he reached the river bank and, taking off his pack saddle, treasure and all threw it into the river.

Hastily making a map of the locality, the soldier abandoned his horse, which had given out, crossed the river and disappeared in the forest towards Natchitoches. This soldier finally reached Natchitoches, where he died a few years later leaving among his possessions the way bill or may of the buried treasure on the Attoyac. The soldier that rode south was overtaken and murdered at the Double Pond, three miles from Nacogdoches. His treasure, however, was not found, and the legend has ever since been that he threw it into the pond.

As an evidence that the legend might be true money hunters, as they are called, have at various times dug countless holes in the pond and around it. The soldiers that rode north and west, respectively, were never heard from again. The way bill of the treasure buried in the Attoyac, in some way, came into the possession of A. J. Sparks and a man named Leonard, both of Nacogdoches, and in 1851 they proceeded to search for the long-lost treasure by damming the river above the place at which the way bill declared the treasure to be located. The attempt was a failure, and in 1853 Dr. John M. Sparks, now living at Nacogdoches, drove piling into the river from both sides, in double rows, thus making a double dam, from which the water was bailed. Digging was then commenced on the river bottom and when down about six feet an old-time Mexican pack saddle was found. Digging would have been continued the next day had not a heavy rain fallen that night, in consequence of which the river went out of its banks and work had to be indefinitely suspended. In 1857 Dr. Sparks again undertook the work, but gave it up without accomplishing anything. In 1865 James Curl and William Davis, of Chireno, at immense expense of time and labor, turned the river around the spot where the treasure was alleged to have been buried. They found nothing. Dr. Sparks returned in 1878 and did extensive excavating, and as before found nothing.

Such is the history and legend concerning "The Lost Treasure of the Attoyac." A few years ago a pair of copper bullet moulds was found on the bank of the river where the treasure is said to have been buried. The moulds are about eighteen inches long, and double, so that twenty-four bullets could be made at one time. This strange memento of the past is now in the possession of E. H. Power, of this city.

A Nightmare

Gives point to the fact that excessive or irregular eating disturbs the digestion. Nightmare or night hag has it's day time correspondence in the undue fullness after eating, with the belchings and sour or bitter rising so often experienced after too hasty or too hearty eating.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. When these diseases are cured, the whole body shares in the increased strength derived from food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have been of great benefit to me," writes (Prof.) Pleasant A. Oliver, of Viola, Fulton Co., Ark. "Before I used the above mentioned remedies my sleep was not sound; digestion bad; a continued feeling of misery. I now feel like a new man. Any one in need of medical treatment for nasal catarrh could do no better than to take treatment of Dr. R. V. Pierce. I know his medicines are all right in this class of diseases."

Sometimes a dealer tempted by the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines will offer the customer a substitute as being "just as good" as the "Discovery." It is better for him because it pays better, but it is not as good for you, if you want the medicine that has cured others, and which you believe will cure you.

If Furred and Coated the Liver Needs Attention.

Paine's Celery Compound.

The Popular Spring Medicine Cures Every Form of Liver Trouble.

A Victory Over an Insidious Disease After the Failures of Physicians.

The liver is the great housekeeper of our health. On its right and proper action depends our enjoyment of life.

One of the commonest indications of a disordered and diseased liver is a nasty tongue—furred and coated. Such a condition is postive proof that the liver is not working well. Other symptoms are as follows: Nauseous taste in the mouth, pains under the shoulder blades and in the regions of the kidneys. Frequently the mental symptoms of liver trouble are more dangerous than the bodily ills. Sufferers experience mental anguish, gloomy forebodings, melancholy, and a general feeling of disgust with life.

When these bodily and mental troubles are experienced, your liver tells you it needs immediate help. If the proper medicine is not used at once, sickness and death follow.

Paine's Celery Compound is the one great specific for the cure of liver troubles. It always acts gently and effectively on the root of the evils, driving from the system accumulations of morbid poisons that give rise to your suffering. Soon every organ is infused with new life, the skin is fresh and clear, and you enjoy perfect health.

Mr. Clyde F. Tucker, Savannah, Ohio, with a desire of benefiting men and women who are suffering from any of the varied forms of liver complaints, writes as follows:

"I had been taking medicine under the direction of three doctors, but they did not give me relief. The doctors said my liver was in a very bad condition. A friend recommended Paine's Celery Compound to me, and I began to feel better before I had taken half a bottle. As I continued to use the Compound, I grew better until I became a well man. I weighed only 100 pounds when I was sick, now I weigh 148 pounds."

ATTACKED BY WOLF.

It Was Tame and a Great Family Pet.

Clinton, Iowa, April 24.—News has reached here that Mrs. William Carhurst, residing at Lyndon, a small town in Illinois, a few miles west of the Mississippi river, was badly, if not fatally, injured, in a terrific fight with a tame wolf. The result of her injuries will not be known until all danger of blood poisoning is past.

The wolf has been the pet of the family for three years. It was captured when a cub and was as tame as a kitten. Mrs. Carhurst went into the yard to call her son, who was working near. As she stepped out of the door she noticed the wolf, which had been tied in the yard, was loose. Mrs. Carhurst called the animal by name and hurried to her. She noticed at once that the animal was in an ugly mood and attempted to catch hold of its collar as it made a spring at her.

The frightened woman screamed for help and her son came to her assistance. Before he could give any assistance the wolf had thrown the woman down and had badly bitten her in several places. The young man grabbed the animal by the throat and pulled it off his mother, who, by this time, was unconscious. A terrific struggle ensued between the wolf and the boy. The plucky lad clung to the animal's throat until his father, who was working in the field nearby, came to the boy's assistance and shot the wolf.

Mrs. Carhurst was caried into the housre and a physician was summoned. An examination revealed four wounds, the teeth in each instance penetrating to the bone.

The wolf was of the large, gray, timber species and was of immense size. It had been well fed and grew rapidly and was much larger than the members of the same family which are compelled to secure their own living.

KILLED BY CURE

Priest Failed to Survive the "Water Cure" Treatment.

Soldiers Tried to Force Gold Secret From Him.

Remains Were Buried In Baseball Grounds of Troops.

Lynn, Mass., April 24.—Two Lynn men, William La Belle and Albert W. Bertrand, formerly privates in Company D, Twenty-sixth regiment, U. S. V., have sent Senator Lodge a statement of instances of the application of the "water cure" in the Philippines that came under their observation. They give names of men concerned in the affairs.

Bertrand has furnished Senator Lodge with particulars of the alleged disappearance and killing of Father Augustine, a Catholic priest, at Bolo. He says it was reported that Father Augustine knew where insurgent gold was buried. Men from Company D captured him in December, 1900, and dressed him in a uniform of the United States artillery. He was then taken to Banato and kept in a well. He refused to tell where the gold was buried, and on the night of Dec. 9 he was taken to a house formerly occupied by the presidente of the village. Upon his arrival there, Bertrand says the water cure was given him by the "water cure squad." He did not revive. The men became frightened and a surgeon was sent for. His services proved unsuccessful, and Bertrand says that the priest died.

Some of the men were sworn to secrecy and the body was buried in a plot of land used by the troops as a baseball ground. Bertrand says that a non-commissioned officer was seen with the priest's watch and chain, and when a commanding officer learned this they were turned over to him. Bertrand gives the names of the men taking part and also refers to several officers.

According to La Belle, when Company D was out on a hike while stationed at Dungas in July, 1900, the men were ordered to burn everything and see that no grown person escaped.

This La Belle says the men proceeded to do. La Belle and Bertrand say that while at Dungas the soldiers came to a hut where a native woman had just given birth to a child. The husband was made a prisoner and the woman and child were dragged from the house and left on the ground. The native shack was then burned, but La Belle and Bertrand do not know what became of the woman and child.

CUTTING AFFRAY

In Chihuahua Resulted In Death of Several.

El Paso, Tex., April 24.—A dispatch from Chihuahua, Mex., says that a fatal cutting affray took place among Peons on what is known as the Little Plaza, opposite the cathedral, in which four men were killed and eleven were more or less wounded. The men were gathered about a tequila resort and the difficulty arose over a trivial matter. The two disputing parties drew their knives and began to slash each other, and instantly the different partisans took up the fight. Before the police could interfere three men lay dead on the ground, one was fatally injured and died later, and eleven were badly cut, three of whom may die. The alarm was given and the chief of police soon arrived with reinforcements. Every man on the plaza, which is frequented only by the peons, was arrested and there were twenty-seven prisoners besides the slightly injured participants.

FASHION FACTS-- SUITS and WRAPS.

Come here and get "posted!"

We have many styles, very different to those you'll see elsewhere—more than that here—you may choose from more strictly new and stylish garments than can be seen in any other two stores at the head of Lake Superior.

That's right—make comparisons!

Look about and see what other stores can show—note their styles very carefully—note the fabrics very particularly—note the prices very minutely—and then make critical comparisons with what we show.

Start where you will—begin here or end here—our supremacy in style-giving—and our money-saving prices—give us such confidence that we'll gladly take our chances on selling you your new suit or wrap.

Our present showing varies greatly from what you saw here a week or so ago. Scores of the garments you saw then are gone—their places on our racks and in our cases have been taken by new arrivals sent out by our New York office. The stocks is kept constantly fresh by the addition of all the novelties as quickly as they appear.

The variety of new and exclusive styles of Suits and Coats is now at its height—and we strongly urge you to see the stock tomorrow.

At no other store can you find so many new and handsome Suits and Dress Skirts of the Etamine, Mistral, Panama and Lattice Cloths. The season's smartest ideas are here, made up in those thinnish stuffs so much sought for and so hard to find!

Our garment business is forging ahead rapidly—sales are almost double those of a year ago, and we are not slaughtering prices either!

Few stores in the country can truthfully say as much—most of them are suffering from the mistake of buying the heavier goods, and now they are trying to unload their mistakes by making a great noise about little prices in the hope that the price-din will distract the customer's attention from the fabrics.

One word of advice—don't buy a Suit unless it is stylish--and no Suit can be stylish unless made from the light weight fabrics of the Etamine or Lattice Cloth family.

This season our prices are so reasonable that we have not had a single request for a lower price. Pretty good proof of the values, isn't it?

OUR SILK COATS

You may come here expecting to see uncommonly good styles at uncommonly low prices.

You'll see both all right! Superb garments of Moire Velour, of lustrous peau de soie — and of handsome taffeta silk—the styles include jaunty Etons, flowing Raglans, Matinee, Pompadour, Paletot, and Monte Carlo Coats — most of them are black — some of them are in colors—such as reseda, mode, tan, new blue and brown.

Prices range from $15.00 to $67.50 — the assortment at $20.00 to $30.00 is particularly strong.

You'll waste money that might be saved—you'll fail to secure an exclusive style which you might have had—if you buy without seeing our collection of handsome garments.

You can positively save from $5.00 to $15.00 on almost any garment you buy here.

Isn't that worth while?

THE DAKOTAS

Attorney Voss of Mandan Suspended For Nine Months.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—The supreme court has handed down a decision in the disbarment proceedings brought against County Attorney H. G. Voss, of Mandan, suspending him from his functions as an attorney for nine months. This, likewise, suspends him from office. The charges against Voss were that he failed to prosecute violators of the prohibition law, and that he had gambled in gambling places and brought no action against them. These charges the court held to be sustained.

The supreme court has denied the application of the Duluth Elevator company for a writ of certiorari to bring the assessment of elevators before the supreme court for review. The court holds that the application was made to the wrong tribunal and should have been made in the district court. The elevator company sought to have the entire equalization of the last state board brought before the supreme court for review.

Cannon Ball—Inspector Nesslor is here from Washington to investigate the charges which have been made against Agent Bingenheimer and, on account of which his reappointment has been held up so long. The charges are the outcome of a political squabble in Morton county, and are mainly responsible for the recent order by the president that hereafter no Indian agent will be appointed for political reasons but solely on account of fitness.

Jamestown—An ordinance giving the Hughes Electric Light company, of Fargo, a franchise in Jamestown was given its first reading at a meeting of the city council. The company intends to put in a first class electric light and heating plant in Jamestown. It is believed the franchise will be given the company, as no opposition has as yet appeared.

Cando—Two more cases of smallpox were brought in from the eastern country and at once put in the pest house. Prompt action has kept Cando free from the spreading of it since it became general.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Armour—The building used for a courthouse in Gregory county was almost destroyed by fire and the county records were only saved by being carried from the burning building into the street. The county is without a fireproof vault or any safe place in which to keep the records, while the town of Fairfax, the present county seat, is without any fire protection whatever. When the fire was discovered a farmer happened to be near with a wagon tank full of water, and this is all that saved the building, a very crude affair, from total destruction.

Aberdeen—Reports from Buena Vista, Iowa, are to the effect that the find of lead ore on land owned by H. P. Wolter of this city is very rich. Mr. Wolter was called there a few weeks ago by news of the discovery, and has started development work, and is said to have received some big offers for the property, which old lead men declare is the richest in the state.

Sioux Falls—Information has reached the state to the effect that George Schaetzel, a member of the well-known family of bankers of that name, has been remarried. Schaetzel's latest wife before marriage was Mamie Russell, a Walnut Hills, Ohio girl, who gave up the glare of the footlights to wed Schaetzel. It is announced they will come to South Dakota to take up their residence.

Deadwood—Paul H. King, who has been a timekeeper for F. S. Lusk & Co., contractors on the Elkhorn, has disappeared and is charged with having stolen over $1000 in money, a quantity of silverware and other articles belonging to Mr. Lusk. The latter has been in Wyoming several weeks and left King in charge. King opened the safe in the company's Deadwood office, took $1000 in currency, a check for $900, and then began collecting bills that were outstanding. He visited a tailor shop and was given a new suit of clothes that had just been finished for Mr. Lusk. He was gone when Mr. Lusk returned to Deadwood. Sheriff Devlen, of Lawrence county, has offered $100 for his capture.

MEANS MARRIED.

Former Lieutenant of Colorado Regiment Takes Wife.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 24.—The marriage of Lieut. Rice W. Means, '01 law, of Denver, and Miss France Dickinson of the university school of music took place last evening. The groom was a member of the First Colorado regiment and was detailed to get the plans of the Spanish defenses of Manila. He swam the Cingalon river, drew a sketch of the fortifications, ran up and touched the walls of the city and returned with the information that proved so valuable when the attack was made that the government has rewarded him with a medal of honor. He is now connected with Governor Thomas' law office in Denver.

COLOMBIA'S

Proposition Giving United States Exclusive Rights For Canal.

Washington, April 24.—There have been some recent communications between Secretary Hay and the Colombian minister, Mr. Concha, containing the basis of an agreement between the two countries in the event congress should authorize the construction of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. The first of these communications was from the Colombian minister and contained propositions of his government as to the terms, concessions, grants, compensation, etc., on which Colombia would consent to the construction of the canal, in reply to which Secretary Hay transmitted a memorandum of a hypothetical and conditional nature as to what this government would do in the event that congress authorized the president to act. The secretary's memorandum was sent to Minister Concha today. The purpose of the communication was to remove room for doubt as to what each government would do if a canal was directed to be built.

The following authorized statement concerning the propositions of Colombia as they are understood was made public:

"The United States is granted exclusive right to construct, operate and protect a canal, as well as all railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, and auxiliary works within the zone.

"The zone is six miles wide and includes the islands of Flamineo, Naos and Perico in Panama bay. It is to be under the joint judicial control of the United States and Colombia.

"Colombia gives unqualified consent to the sale and transfer of the Panama Canal company's rights to the United States, and exempts the latter country from all taxes, import duties, etc.

"She grants to the United States a lease of the canal strip in perpetuity. For convenience it is divided into periods of 100 years, renewable at the option of the United States. Colombia asks for a lump payment of $7,000,000 after the exchange of ratifications to be considered "on account." For fourteen years Colombia waives all compensation for canal rights. This period will more than cover the time of construction. At the end of the fourteen years' period the annual compensation which the United States shall pay thereafter shall be determined by a board of five commissioners. The fact that Colombia has asked no compensation for the first fourteen years and that the United States has advanced $7,000,000 "on account," will better be taken into consideration in fixing the annual rennual rental thereafter.

FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Will Be Held at Cass Lake In June.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's association was held here Tuesday evening. Several delegates from the towns belonging to the association were present, while others were represented by proxies. Plans for the 1902 tournament were discussed, and the dates for holding the same were selected. The tournament will be held in Cass Lake on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 26, 27 and 28—and in addition to the tournament it has been decided to give attractions on Sunday, June 29, when a large excursion will be run to Cass Lake from towns located south of Cass Lake on the Park Rapids line of the Great Northern. It was decided that June 15 should be the date for closing the entries of teams for the tournament, the names of the members of the various teams entering to be furnished to the secretary, A. G. Rutledge, at Cass Lake, prior to that date. Indications point to a large number of teams entering the tournament, several having already made application for entrance blanks.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND.
New York, April 24.—At the quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the Allis-Chalmers company in this city, the usual quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent upon its preferred stock was declared payable May 1. Philetus W. Gates, president of the Gates Iron works of Chicago, was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William L. Elkins, Jr. The annual meeting of the company will be held June 5.

MADE IN AMERICA.
Berlin, April 24.—A report of the chamber of Solingen, Prussia, says the depression in the cutlery industry has been partly relieved by large American orders. Although Solingen goods are now largely made in the United States behind the tariff wall, the report goes on to say, still the American manufacturers are unable to meet the demand, which requires them to supplement their production with German goods.

FEARFUL VOYAGE

Week Upon the Sea In a Burning Coal Ship.

Captain's Wife Proved a True Sea Dog's Mate.

They Were Rescued Just In the Nick of Time.

San Francisco, April 24.—Weeks upon the sea in a burning coal ship; the decks getting hotter and hotter under foot; smoke and then flames bursting from the hatches; the captain going about with set lips and a yearning prayer for favoring gales; the captain's wife bravely hiding her anxieties under a strained smile; the crew wrought to such tension that insanity crept upon the brain of one sailorman, and then a rescue just at the touch of the ship's extremity—such was the story of the three-masted Frankistan brought into port by her master and his men on the rescuing schooner H. C. Wright.

The Frankistan now smokes and blazes somewhere off Point Diablo and about 300 miles from the Golden Gate. But for the chance of the sea which blew the Wright up to her, the twenty-two people on board of her would have been drowned; the insurance gamblers would have gone on betting upon the probabilities of her reaching port; the figures posted by Broker Newell would have gone up and up; weeks would have stretched into months; then would have come the announcement: "Posted as missing, at Lloyds;" the Frankistan would have gone into maritime history as one of the mystery-horrors of the deep, and those who loved the captain, his wife and crew would slowly have abandoned hope, put on their mourning weeds and wet their eyes with tears.

As it is, though the ship is left as a flaming derelict, "lifting perchance to spy trailed smoke along the sky; falling afraid lest any keel come near;" though one of the crew, maddened by the weeks of suspense and the constant looking into the grinning face of death, tried to end his life just as he came to the good, firm land, the captain, his wife and his men are safe to tell the fearful story of their peril and to clutch the warm hands of congratulation extended because of their brave fight against such odds.

The Frankistan, British ship, Capt. Samuel Atkinson master, sailed from Newcastle, New South Wales, on the 13th of last December. The old sea lawyers and forecastle prophets shook their heads at the sailing date, for "13 is an unlucky number" the wide world over. But commerce pays small attention to the superstitions of the sea. Hardly had the tug left the vessel, however, when the bad luck began.

Gales knocked the Frankistan about, straining her rigging, driving her far out of her course and grinding her cargo of coal until it heated—that dread menace of all coal-laden ships. Then there were annoying calms and more baffling gales, so that the reinsurance gamblers found that the ship was overdue in San Francisco, and began betting that she never would make port.

While they gambled Capt. Atkinson was far at sea, annoyed by the successive calms and head winds, grumbling at the hard luck that was making his trip so slow, but feeling safe enough as he strode the bridge or chatted with his wife in the cabin.

Then, one morning about a month ago, he saw a horror amidships. A thin blue film of smoke crept up from the combings of the main hatch and made fantastic shapes in the still air. Capt. Atkinson has sailed coal ships on all the seven seas, and he knew all too well what that thin line of smoke meant. He blanched, but set his teeth, lowered his thermometer into the hold, found the air overheated and set about ascertaining his position and figuring his nearest port.

He decided that to make San Francisco was his only hope to save his ship, and that the California coast offered the best chance for life. He kept his own counsel until there was no question in his mind that his coal was afire. Then he told the awful news to First Officer David Hovel and Second Officer H. C. Humphries. And, then, mustering all his fortitude, he went into the cabin and told his wife.

Mrs. Atkinson is a true sea dog's mate. She did not faint nor scream nor go into hysterics, but gave him a brave smile, and from that time on did her best to cheer on the work of bringing the ship to port.

The hatches were battened down and every effort made to keep the fire from working into the after hold. There were 2052 tons of coal on board, and it soon became evident that the fire could not be checked. Every stitch of canvas the ship could stand was cracked on. Then the prayers went up for favoring winds. No chance to make progress was lost. The small boats were provisioned and made ready for an emergency and the fight for life was on.

On March 20 came a steady, favoring breeze. There was not so much heat under foot, and the captain began to think the fire was smothering itself and that the danger was nearly over, but on March 21 the heat increased again—increased alarmingly, and it became certain that the fire had eaten into the after hold. But as the decks grew hotter under foot, Capt. Atkinson increased his efforts to save his ship. He started the pumps going. He made a try at getting out some of the superheated coal. All this time the fire gained. There were calms and puffs and head winds, with now and again a good breeze, and the chances bettered from day to day.

But on Monday, March 31, flames burst from the forward hatch. There were two terrific explosions of gas below decks, and everybody on board knew the ship was doomed and that nothing was left but a fight for their own lives. All hands were called to the pumps. Water was poured in upon the flaming coal and more effort was then made to work out the cargo. But the gases and the heat drove the men back and when the ventilators were opened the rush of air fanned the flames to greater fury.

The decks grew so hot it was almost impossible to walk on them. The flames broke out in different places. Some of the explosions threatened to rend the stout steel hull and plunge everybody on board into the ocean. The captain cast one anxious eye toward the direction of the land. Then he scanned the sea in hope of succor.

Late Wednesday afternoon a sail was seen on the horizon. The Frankistan's distress signal was hoisted. A schooner was made out, but she seemed about to keep on her course and leave the flaming ship to her fate. The pitch was boiling out of the seams, and the Frankistan's situation was desperate. To attract the schooner's attention the ship's yards were lowered and there was joy on the burning vessel as the schooner was headed in her direction.

The schooner was the H. C. Wright, bound from Mana, Hawaiian Islands, for San Francisco. By sundown she was close enough to see the fearful condition of the Frankistan. The flames lit up the sea as darkness gathered, and the schooner lay by all night. The next morning, Thursday last, Capt. Neilsen, of the Wright, went on board the Frankistan, and Capt. Atkinson, loth to leave his ship, even in that extremity, asked his advice as to abandonment. After a thorough examination it was decided that there was no hope to save the ship.

"Get everybody ready to take to the boats!" was the reluctant order.

Mrs. Atkinson gathered part of her wardrobe, a few trinkets and saw to it that her cat and dog were cared for.

Just at this juncture there was a tremendous explosion and the after hatch was blown into the air, dreadfully unnerving the men who had been fighting for life so long. Another explosion blew off the fore hatch.

"This is the last of the Frankistan, boys; take to the boats," was the captain's order, and all were safely rowed over a calm sea to the waiting schooner.

Then the Wright filled away and left the Frankistan to her fate. On Saturday the brig Galilee was spoken off Point Reyes, but a squall parted the two vessels before full information of the disaster to the Frankistan could be imparted to the brig, which came into port with part of the news, leaving the identity of the burned craft unknown. The Wright reached port yesterday afternoon and landed the survivors.

After the Wright reached harbor, Lapera Engenio, an Italian sailor from the Frankistan, whose mind had given way under the long strain, jumped into the bay to drown himself. He was rescued by those on board a launch which had gone down the bay to meet the Wright, and to them he told a rambling tale in broken Enlish about lli-treatment on the ship—of being compelled to live on hardtack and grease. Then he says that when the ship caught fire he was blamed for it by the crew, and that they threatened that as soon as the Wright reached anchorage he was to be fastened to her anchor and sent with it into the depths. He declared that when they made ready to tie him to the anchor he leaped into the bay.

The poor fellow made a pitiable figure as he cowered in the cabin of the launch. He was without hat or coat and had but one shoe. When he saw the quarantine tug coming up he made another effort to get overboard, and when returned to the Wright he had to be locked in the galley. Capt. Atkinson said he had been rendered insane by fright incident to the first explosion on the Frankistan.

Unlike poor Engenio, Mrs. Atkinson did not seem to be unnerved by the exciting experience of the unfortunate voyage. The lady saved a part of her clothing, some jewels, her pet cats and the ship's dogs.

"I had to leave a big bundle of clothing behind," said Mrs. Atkinson, "and my husband lost some valuable instruments and a lot of trinkets that had accumulated during our long life at sea. You know, I have been eighteen years at sea with Mr. Atkinson and one can gather a number of little things that they value in that time.

"No, I was not frightened. The sea was smooth and we were close enough to the coast to know that we could reach land in the boats unless a storm came up. It was rough outside Sunday night and our boats would have had a hard time in the storm, but I think we could have landed before the gale overtook us, for it was early Thursday morning last when we were taken on board of the Wright.

"When we first discovered the fire in the hold I gathered all of my most valuable property in a bag and kept it where it could be easily reached. The fire spread very rapidly and enveloped the ship much quicker than my husband expected. We signalled to the schooner and she stood by until everybody was taken on board. We owe a debt of gratitude to Capt. Neilson that will be hard to repay."

Capt. Atkinson was loth to go into particulars of the loss of his vessel. He is well known in this port. Though this was his first voyage here on the Frankistan he has been here before as master of the Port Caledonia.

IN FORT CHARTRES

A Company Is Being Organized to Search For Relics.

Great Military Point In Early Days of Nation.

When Captured By English Its Cannon Were Buried.

Red Bud, Ill., April 24.—A company is being organized here to search within the walls of old Fort Chartres, located near the banks of the Mississippi, ten miles west of this place, for a lot of brass cannon, sixteen in number, and several hundred pieces of musketry, as well as a lot of grape shot and cannon balls, which are known to be buried within the walls of the fort.

In 1720 Fort Chartres was built by Governor Boisbriant, on the east banks of the Mississippi river, thirty miles from the present site of St. Louis, and was long the strongest fortress on the Western continent and of wide celebrity in the subsequent history of Illinois. The French and English war, which terminated in 1759 with the defeat of Montcalm on the plains of Abraham, and the capture of Quebec, began with a struggle for the territory on the Upper Ohio. Fort Chartres was the depot of supplies and the place of rendezvous for the united forces of Louisiana, and several expeditions were fitted out there and dispatched to the scene of conflict in the border between the French and English settlements. But France was vanquished, and its result deprived her of her princely possessions east of the Mississippi.

Two attempts on the part of the English to take possession of Illinois and Fort Chartres were made by the way of the Mississippi, but hostile Indians on the banks of the river drove back the expeditions. Meantime 100 Highlanders of the Forty-second regiment, "those veterans whose battle cry had echoed over the bloodiest fields of America," had left for Fort Pitt, now the present city of Pittsburg, and descending the Ohio, appeared before Fort Chartres, Oct. 9, 1765, while the forests were yet rich with the varied hues of autumn. Capt. Sterling, who had charge of the English troops, a mere handful of men, disarmed them and found one of the bluffs, near the fort, continually for a whole day, and in the evening had them build campfires along the bluffs for miles, making it appear to the French that an army of countless numbers was upon them. On the following morning they surrendered without the least resistance.

To the disappointment of the English captain, no arms nor ammunition were found, although they knew the French had sixteen brass cannon and several hundred pieces of musketry, besides a large number of cannon balls and grape shot. A thorough search was instituted, but to no avail, and finally Capt. Sterling gave up the search. Three months after the ensign of France on the ramparts of the fort gave way to the flag of Great Britain, Capt. Sterling died.

On the surrender of the fort, St. Ange, with his garrison of men, became commander at St. Louis. A large number of French residents living near the fort and in other settlements refused to live under English rule and went to St. Louis.

One of the party who will search for the missing cannon has records in his possession which show that the fort was an irregular quadrangle. The sides of the exterior polygon were 490 feet. It was built of stone and plastered over. The walls, which yet remain, are two feet and two inches thick, and are pierced with loopholes at regular distances, and with two port holes for cannon in the facies and two in the flanks of each bastion. The entrance to the fort was through a very handsome rustic gate. Within the walls is a banquette raised three feet for the men to stand on when they fire through the loopholes. The buildings within the fort were the commandant's house, which still remains, and is being occupied at the present day, the magazine of stores, corps de garde and two barracks. These occupied the square. Within the gorges of the bastion were a powder magazine and a prison, in the floor of which were four dungeons, and in the upper part two rooms belonging to the commandant. Opposite this was the storehouse and the guard house, each thirty yards long and eight broad.

Such was Fort Chartres, at that time the most convenient and best built fort in North America. In 1756 nearly half a mile intervened between Fort Chartres and the bank of the Mississippi. Ten years later the current cut away the bank to within eighty yards of the fort. In the great freshet six years after, in 1772, in which the American bottom was inundated, the west walls of two of the bastions were swept away in the flood. The fort was abandoned by the British garrison, which took up its quarters in Fort Gage, on the bluffs opposite Kaskaskia, which then became the seat of government. From that date its demolition proceeded rapidly, until now all that remains are a part of the walls, the powder magazine and the commandant's house. Much of the stone was carried away and used for building purposes elsewhere. Trees of stately growth cover the foundations. The river has retreated to its original channel, and is now a mile distant from the ruins.

Capt. Sterling went to his grave in the belief that the missing cannon had been dragged to the Mississippi the night they were building campfires along the bluff, and buried within its depths; but an old diagram of the fort, which was found recently, shows that there were four wells within the walls of the fort. When captured by the British only three were to be seen, and these are being used at the present day by a family occupyng the commandant's house. It is the fourth well that the searching party will look for, and, with the diagram they possess, expect to soon locate it.

Why take sickening salts or repulsive castor oil? "Goes through you like a dose of salts" means violence, grips, gripes, gases, soreness, irritation, and leaves your stomach and bowels weak and burnt out. Might just as well take concentrated lye. GRAINS ARE WEAK

Market Opened Lower and Continued Declining.

The Better Weather Conditions Caused a Bearish Sentiment.

Cables Higher But Not Equal to the American Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 24.—The grain markets were all weak today under the influence of better weather conditions in the wheat growing country. Wheat, corn, oats and rye all declined, flax being the only thing which held its own. The particularly good weather news came from Kansas, where showers were reported. On the other hand estimates were out which predicted only from 25,000,000 to 35,000,000 bus for the Kansas crop.

The Liverpool market was up ½@¾d, but this was not equal to the advance in American markets. Paris was ½c higher to ¼c lower. Antwerp advanced ½c.

Primary receipts were 229,000 bus, last year, 394,000 bus. Shipments, 406,000 bus; last year, 3,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 728,000 bus.

There was a slump of 1¾c in the price of May corn in Chicago and oats fell off 1¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 240,000 bus, last year, 2,800,000 bus. Shipments, 117,000 bus; last year, 291,000 bus. Clearances were 46,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Grains Start to Recede From Strong Position.

Chicago, April 24.—Grains started to recede from yesterday's strong position on news at the opening of showers in Kansas. In general the early wheat situation, with this exception, was bullishly considered. Some authorities reduced their estimates for the Kansas crop to 25,000,000 to 35,000,000 bus, the lowest figures yet made. Railway officials were reporting some improvement from the recent rains. Cables were strong and there was a big early commission house demand. Liquidation, however, set in for profits and some of the locals sold. May opened unchanged to ¼c lower at 76¾c to 76¾c and slid off to 76c. Trade was heavy and at the decline the market steadied and recovered a little. Local receipts were 29 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 169 cars, making a total for the three points of 198 cars, against 207 last week and 250 a year ago.

Longs continued to dump their wheat on the weakening market for good prices, the Southwest also sold and May wheat slumped back to 75¾c, closing weak 1½@⅝c lower at 75¼@¾c.

There was a momentary tendency for corn to continue the advance of yesterday. Cables were strong and everything offered early in the way of profit taking was absorbed quickly. Trade was good at the start and May opened ¼c lower to ¼c higher at 64¼c to 64½c. Gradually the effect of the wheat decline was felt and May sold off to 63¾c. Receipts were 88 cars.

The big bull buyers in corn yesterday, turned heavy sellers today and as the session advanced prices slipped down. May declined to 63¾c and closed weak 1¾c lower at 63¼c.

Trade early in oats was somewhat mixed, with a tendency to sell. The impression of the other grain markets influenced this pit to some extent and though commission houses were buying, some of the local crowd turned short sellers. May opened ⅛c to ¼c lower at 44½c to 44c and steadied at the decline. Receipts were 167 cars.

Provisions, which started up yesterday on the grain advance, had its own bullish influences at the opening today. The light run of hogs was 8000 under the estimate and prices at the yards advanced 10c. The demand was good, part of it being packers' support. Some scalpers sold. July pork opened unchanged to 5c higher at $17.00 to $17.15 and steadied around $17.05; July lard started 5c to 7½c higher at $10.00 to $10.02½ and sold to $10.05 and July ribs 5c to 7½c advanced at $9.42½@9.45 and eased to $9.40@9.42½.

Jury Finds Verdict of Murder In Second Degree.

Minneapolis, April 24.—Special to The Herald.)—Herman Gallahughs is guilty of murder in the second degree for killing the negro, Collins, at the San Angelo hotel, Minneapolis. The jury, after being out all night, returned this verdict this morning. Gallahughs' defense was that he killed the negro because he tried to assault his wife, who was employed at the hotel.

REQUEST DENIED

For a Special Grand Jury at St. Paul.

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The judges of the district court have decided not to summon a special grand jury to take up the alleged election frauds. Judge Brill announced today that the law relating to the impaneling of the regular grand jury requires that it shall be drawn fifteen days before sitting, and that the venire must be issued twelve days prior.

As the regular grand jury is to meet May 5, time would be lost instead of gained by calling a special grand jury.

After consultation with the other district court judges, he had concluded to deny the request.

STRENGTH IN STOCKS

Gains Shown Throughout the List At the Start.

There Were Some Fluctuations But Market Held Strong.

Final Advance of Several Points In New York Central.

New York, April 24.—Good fractional gains were shown throughout the list on a large and well distributed opening demand. Brooklyn Transit rose 1¾ on large dealings. Amalgamated Copper and Tennessee Coal were active bought at large fractional gains. Sugar showed some depression, but without affecting the general tone of the market. Various specialties advanced strongly without much response from the grain carriers. Brooklyn Transit rose 2⅜ and Manhattan, Tennessee Coal, Colorado Fuel, Republic Steel preferred, Pressed Steel Car preferred, Smelting, Canadian Pacific, Colorado & Southern, Consolidated Gas, Continental Tobacco preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville, Illinois Central, New York Central Reading common and first preferred, Southern Pacific, Virginia-Carolina Chemical, Detroit Southern, Grass Twine, International Power and Chicago Traction gained 1@2. New Haven jumped 3, American District Telegraph 5 and Lake Shore 10. Cotton oil Broke over 2 points after a slight rise. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis fell 4, Rutland preferred 2½ and Long Island and Missouri preferred 1 point each. The Pacifics and grangers declined sharply before 11 o'clock and other stocks fell lower.

The decline in the Western stocks was checked by the weak opening in the wheat market. St. Paul, Northwestern, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific rose a point or more above yesterday's close. Colorado Fuel got up 2⅜ to 109 and Sugar, People's Gas, Canadian Southern, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Erie, St. Louis & San Francisco, Keokuk & Des Moines and Des Moines & Fort Dodge advanced 1@2%. Continental Tobacco preferred made its gain 2, New Haven, 5; Air Brake, 3; Lake Shore, 3, and Michigan Central, 1½. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rallied 9 points. Hocking Valley declined 1¾ and rallied a point and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred fell 1½. Bonds were firm.

There were sharp advances of 2¼ to 3¾ in a number of specialties, including Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas, International Power and International Silver preferred, in the railroad list Canadian Pacific and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville rose over 2. New Haven, 7½, and Rock Island, the Wabashes and Texas Pacific over a point. The railroad list was generally quiet, but firm.

Dealings were irregular and larger. Profit taking went on in Reading, Colorado Fuel and the independent steel stocks, while Brooklyn Transit, Consolidated Gas, Sugar and the United States Steel stocks were advanced to the top level. The United States Steel stocks were taken in large blocks and made gains of over a point each. Railroad stocks were less active, but ruled around the best.

A number of specialties made further advances, but the important railroad stocks did not move widely. There was some irregularity. The final advance in New York Central to 2⅜ over last night, made the closing active and strong.

STOCK GOSSIP.

A director of the United States Steel corporation says:

"We are not worried by the various opinions published to the effect that the capitalization of the United States Steel corporation is too great for its securities to be desirable investments. The company has been managed on the most approved business methods. And its policy sets sharply off from the reported methods of industrial combinations. It has been for years the claim of antagonists of so-called trusts that their main purpose was to secure control of the market and then advance prices. What has been the action of the United States Steel corporation in this regard? We have been urged time and again by outside concerns to raise the price of our products, but have steadily refused to do so. On several occasions an increased value of 20 to 25 per cent on our output was within our grasp if we had chosen to ask for it.

"Mr. Morgan knows that the basis for enduring business by such a concern as the United States Steel corporation must be the maintenance of prices at figures which insure a small, regular profit in all the many avenues of its traffic. Had it not been for the United States Steel corporation the history of the iron and steel business in this country, and perhaps in the world, would have to be rewritten.

"We all know what iron and steel have been in the past. Their constant fluctuations have denied regular profits, however small, to the most experienced producers, and have often contributed unrest to the balance of the market. Experience in some branches of the trade has suggested the advisability of attempting to earn heavy profits during a boom in prices with the intention of shutting down upon a slump.

"No such conditions, however, have been present in this country since the rise of the United States Steel corporation. What is the explanation? A huge balance wheel has been forged and rolled and set in motion. The historical fluctuations in iron and steel have ceased to be likely either in the United States or in the world, owing to the restrictive influences of Mr. Morgan's combination. Steel has ceased to be 'either a prince or a pauper.'"

A. A. Houseman is one of the most consistent and persistent bulls at the present time. Says he: "We are going to have the greatest bull movement in the history of the country, and the time is at hand. Prices seemingly are high, but not so in reality, and there is no reason why they should not go much higher."

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: In the opinion of representative brokers, stocks are being well taken and the recent readjustment of speculative holdings will be followed by a rise in prices based on easy money and improving crop prospects. A careful watcher of current operations estimates the short interest in the general market at over 400,000 shares with bear commitments steadily increasing and sentiment among professional traders extremely pessimistic. He further points out that today was the third day of reaction. Liquidation seems to have run its course and large quantities of stocks are absorbed within a narrow range. The inference is that the increase which recently took profits are buying Atchison, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific and Rewalings and other stocks that played a premium part in the rise of the first half of April. It is rumored tonight that a pool has been formed in A. C. P., absorbing this stock quetty for two or three weeks for the purpose of making a big turn on the short interest, which it is believed to be of very large proportions. The rally in Sugar is considered natural in view of the heavy break yesterday, and there is a theory that, having too many followers, the big bears in the stock forced a rally in order to shake them off. Their friends say that Sugar is a sale and will go below 120 before the month is out.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: According to the people who follow the position of John W. Gates, it is said that he is long on wheat and short of stocks. He is said to have sold out his stocks in order to protect his wheat interests, which were in a precarious position on account of rain in the West.

Town Topics: The stock market has been unsettled by the unfavorable crop reports, and by the advance in prices in the grain markets, and the Western operators are credited with having begun a bull campaign in wheat and corn, and also to have turned sellers of the granger stocks. The crop damage reports are exaggerated and Leiter and Cotton oil broke over 2 points after a slight rise. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis fell 4, Rutland preferred 2½ and Long Island and Missouri preferred 1 point each. The Pacifics and grangers declined sharply before 11 o'clock and other stocks fell lower.

The decline in the Western stocks was checked by the weak opening in the wheat market. St. Paul, Northwestern, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific rose a point or more above yesterday's close. Colorado Fuel got up 2⅜ to 109 and Sugar, People's Gas, Canadian Southern, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Erie, St. Louis & San Francisco, Keokuk & Des Moines and Des Moines & Fort Dodge advanced 1@2%. Continental Tobacco preferred made its gain 2, New Haven, 5; Air Brake, 3; Lake Shore, 3, and Michigan Central, 1½. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis rallied 9 points. Hocking Valley declined 1¾ and rallied a point and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred fell 1½. Bonds were firm.

Dealings were irregular and larger. Profit taking went on in Reading, Colorado Fuel and the independent steel stocks, while Brooklyn Transit, Consolidated Gas, Sugar and the United States Steel stocks were advanced to the top level. The United States Steel stocks were taken in large blocks and made gains of over a point each. Railroad stocks were less active, but ruled around the best.

A number of specialties made further advances, but the important railroad stocks did not move widely. There was some irregularity. The final advance in New York Central to 2⅜ over last night, made the closing active and strong.

STOCK GOSSIP.

A director of the United States Steel corporation says:

"We are not worried by the various opinions published to the effect that the capitalization of the United States Steel corporation is too great for its securities to be desirable investments. The company has been managed on the most approved business methods. And its policy sets sharply off from the reported methods of industrial combinations. It has been for years the claim of antagonists of so-called trusts that their main purpose was to secure control of the market and then advance prices. What has been the action of the United States Steel corporation in this regard? We have been urged time and again by outside concerns to raise the price of our products, but have steadily refused to do so. On several occasions an increased value of 20 to 25 per cent on our output was within our grasp if we had chosen to ask for it.

"Mr. Morgan knows that the basis for enduring business by such a concern as the United States Steel corporation must be the maintenance of prices at figures which insure a small, regular profit in all the many avenues of its traffic. Had it not been for the United States Steel corporation the history of the iron and steel business in this country, and perhaps in the world, would have to be rewritten.

"We all know what iron and steel have been in the past. Their constant fluctuations have denied regular profits, however small, to the most experienced producers, and have often contributed unrest to the balance of the market. Experience in some branches of the trade has suggested the advisability of attempting to earn heavy profits during a boom in prices with the intention of shutting down upon a slump.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Tug Strike Made General at All the Lake Ports.

Trust Said to Be Hiring Non-Union Firemen at Duluth.

Not a Tug Moving at Chicago and Other Points.

It begins to look as though, by making the strike general all over the lakes, the tug firemen had settled the trouble.

The Union Towing and Wrecking company was employing non-union firemen today, and it was reported that by tomorrow morning the tugs would be in commission again.

The only thing in the way of replacing the striking firemen with non-union men would be the possible fear that the captains and engineers would not work with non-union men. The captains and engineers at this port are heartily tired of idleness, however, and most, if not all of them are ready to go to work. The firemen do not affiliate with the masters and engineers, having a separate organization known as the Firemen and Linemens Protective association, while the captains and engineers all belong to the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association. The latter organization has no grievance whatever, and the only reason the members are not at work is that the firemen's strike has tied up the tugs.

The captains and engineers were holding meetings today, and while nothing had been reported from them at a late hour this afternoon it was understood that they had practically agreed to go to work with non-union firemen, and that the tugs would be started up tomorrow.

The custom is to have the engineers hire their own firemen, and the engineers were out this afternoon looking for men. Quite a number were landed in getting enough to man the tugs.

The decision of the firemen to make the strike general all over the lakes until the demands of the Duluth firemen for $60 per month had been granted precipitated this settlement. While the captains and engineers were ready to go at work some time ago, it would have resulted in a general strike of the firemen if non-union men had been employed. Now that the strike is general anyway, there is nothing to be lost by the company in seeking to start operations again with non-union men.

NOT A TUG MOVING.

Chicago, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Not a tug is moving today in the Chicago river and no efforts are being made to start the boats with new men in place of the striking firemen and linemen. The captains and engineers who were in session until 3 o'clock this morning discussing what they should do if new men were placed on the tugs, were too tired to reach the docks until late in the afternoon. It was given out that the position of the captains and engineers had not been definitely decided notwithstanding the long meeting last night. It may not be known until an effort is made to start the tugs tomorrow. If the engineers and captains refuse to work with new men, then the tug trust will be facing the most serious strike in its history.

Grain freights were in such bad shape today that vessel agents denied that there was any such thing. On account of the tug strike, vesselmen did not care much, however, whether boats were chartered or not.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—All the tugs of the Great Lakes Towing company were put out of service in the Soo passage today by the strike of the linemen and firemen. W. H. Hill, of the tug trust, is here awaiting orders from Cleveland as to what course he is to pursue in hiring new men.

Cleveland, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officials of the Great Lakes Towing company refuse to make any statement regarding the probable settlement of the strike which has tied up its boats from Buffalo to Duluth.

EARLIER REPORTS.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 24.—President Valquett of the Firemen's and Linemen's Protective association yesterday afternoon ordered a general strike of tug firemen at all ports on the great lakes between Duluth and Buffalo where the Great Lakes Towing company operates. The failure of the officials of the towing company and the striking firemen at Duluth to arrive at a settlement is believed to be the cause for this latest action on the part of the tugmen of the union.

Chicago, April 24.—Every fireman and deck hand in the employ of the Great Lakes Towing company at all the ports on the lakes where that company operates its tugs were last night ordered to join in a sympathetic strike to assist the deck hands and firemen's association in Duluth in their demands for higher wages. Ever since the opening of navigation the tug trust has had trouble in agreeing with its employes in regard to the season's wages, and the amount of time the men should have off at different ports, but agreements had been reached at all but three ports, and it was thought the difficulties would be settled in a few days. Now, however, the situation has become more serious than at any time and the end seems far off.

Manager James Sinclair of the tug trust fleet here received the ultimatum of the deck hands and firemen last night and was notified that every man would quit work at midnight. With the swift current running in the river, the strike will practically amount to an embargo on navigation at this port, as none but the smaller class of steamers can get around without a tug in the tortuous channel.

Whether the tugmen's association will join with the deck hands and firemen in their fight is not yet known. Their demands have been met by the tug trust at every port on the lakes except Cleveland and Lorain. The tieup comes as the result of the demands of firemen at Duluth for an advance of $7.50 per month over last season's wages.

As this it is claimed, is more than is being paid the men at other ports, the officials of the tug trust have refused to grant the advance.

Toledo, April 24.—All firemen on the great lakes fleet were called out last evening. The company is now trying to hire engineers to take their places. Tugs of the independent lines are not affected by the order, and are running as usual.

Buffalo, April 24.—At 6 o'clock last night the firemen on the boats of the tug trust went on strike in sympathy with the Duluth firemen, and business in the harbor is tied up. The tug guarding the wreck of the sunken tug Acme is manned by engineers. The local firemen state they have no grievance.

Cleveland, April 24.—President T. F. Newman, of the Great Lakes Towing company, said that in ordering the general strike of firemen President Valequett, of the Deck Hands' and Firemen's association, had violated an agreement entered into here last Sunday by the members of the grievance committee of the association and the officials of the company. When the settlement was made at other ports, Mr. Newman said, it was with the understanding that Duluth be left out of the matter altogether, and that the men at that port were to fight out their own battle. When the towing company yesterday finally refused the demands of the Duluth men for $60 a month, however, the strike was at once ordered.

Cleveland, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supply of coal for shipment is increasing a little, but otherwise there is no change in lake freights.

THEY NEED REVISION

Illustration of Ineffectiveness of Some City Ordinances.

Peddler of Rugs Easily Gets Around License Ordinance.

Takes Auctioneer's License at One Tenth of the Cost.

Despite the fact transient merchants are supposed to pay a license of $50 a day as a protection to local merchants and taxpayers, and, in fact the people of Duluth generally, home trade is not protected in the slightest way.

For years and years ordinances on peddling, auctioneering and transient business have been added to the city statute books till at present there is nothing but a jungle of antagonistic and conflicting provisions which makes the enforcing of any of them practically impossible.

There was an instance of this today. One of Duluth's leading dry goods houses—a concern that has paid taxes and been a general credit to the city for years, recently purchased a consignment of $20,000 worth of Oriental rugs.

Then in comes a transient merchant with a line of the same goods and starts an auction sale. The transient is an outsider and in no way interested in Duluth except what interest is shown for a cash consideration.

The police department notified the rank outsider that he would have to pay $50 a day if he wanted to auction off his Oriental rugs. But he said he had paid $25 for auctioneer's license for five days; that that was all the ordinance compelled him to pay for the privilege of entering into competition with the resident merchants.

The police looked it up and found that what he said was so. Instead of paying $250 for five days, the transient only pays $25. At the same time the statute books are burdened with an ordinance which purports to require a license of $500 a year; $300 for six months, $200 for one month, or $50 a day, from transients as a protection to tax-paying, permanent citizens.

It has been suggested that a commission be appointed or some city officer designated to go over the ordinances and weed out conflicting statutes. Not only in the transients' license business, but in many other important matters the ordinances are said to be so badly tangled that they cannot be enforced.

REALTY SALE.

Robert F. Fitzgerald Buys Fine Lot on West Superior Street.

Some large real estate deals are either closed or well along toward consummation. Among them are several trades involving Superior street property. One of these has already been closed.

Through the deal, Robert F. Fitzgerald buys No. 308 West Superior street for $20,000. The former owner was George W. Sherwood, now of California, but a pioneer of Duluth.

The property has twenty-five feet frontage and is improved with a two-story frame store building, which was remodeled somewhat two or three years ago. It is occupied by Benda, Biella & Co., as a fruit and candy store. The property is said to pay $187 a month in rentals. Whether in view of that it will be subject to an early and better improvement is questioned somewhat.

The price is variously considered low and good. In substantiation of the former view, one real estate man is said to have sold the property last fall at a price that would have netted, after deducting the cost of making the deal, $20,000. Mr. Sherwood is said at that time to have held back for $900 a fornt foot, which would have made the price $22,500. The deal did not go through and the property was withdrawn from the market.

The Fitzgerald trade is said to have been made through the agency of Stryker, Manley & Buck, but no information confirmatory of the transaction could be obtained there this morning.

Several other deals, involving property farther east on Superior street, are said to be well along toward conclusion.

INQUIRY ORDERED

On Charges as to Ownership of Cuban Sugar.

An Exhaustive Investigation Will Be Made.

Washington, April 25.—The senate committee on Cuba decided to institute an investigation into the charge that the greater part of the present crop of Cuban sugar is held by the sugar trust of this country, as directed by the resolution moved in the senate by Mr. Teller on the 19th inst.

The action of the committee was favorable only to the first half of the resolution, which provides for an inquiry affecting the present holdings of Cuban sugar.

A provision was added empowering the committee to send for persons and papers, and a sub-committee, consisting of Senators Platt (Conn.), Burnham and Teller, was appointed to hear the testimony. Senator Platt announced that it was his purpose to extend all facilities to those making the charge that the Cuban planters would not get the benefit of the proposed reduction in duties, to prove those charges, adding that he would do all in his power to render the inquiry exhaustive.

The resolution as adopted and the preamble upon it is based as follows:

"Whereas, it has been currently reported that nearly the entire crop of Cuban sugar has been purchased and is now held by what is generally known as the 'sugar trust,' which is the principal consumer of sugar in the United States, and that any concessions given to the raisers of cane sugar in the island of Cuba or any measures intended for their relief by admitting their sugar at reduced rates of duty into the United States will only benefit the said sugar trust, and that the Cubans will receive no real benefit from such concessions; and

"Whereas, it is alleged that a large number of citizens of the United States have acquired large holdings of cane-producing lands in Cuba and are now especially urging the reduction of duty on sugar, on the claim that such reduction will benefit the people of Cuba; therefore be it

"Resolved, that the committee on relations with Cuba be and is hereby directed to make an investigation as to the truth of these charges and to report to the senate."

AGITATION IS UNBASED

So Says Young Morgan With Reference to the Excitement In England In Regard to the Shipping Trust.

London, April 25.—J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., said to a representative of the Associated Press this afternoon: "There has not been a single development in the shipping trust since the announcement of the Associated Press of April 19. All the agitation in England is quite unbased. We cannot transfer ships from the British to the American flag, and what is more we have not contemplated it. Some of the serious papers here are certainly making a great fuss, but it all appears to us to be very sensational journalism. We know of no opposition to the combine, and neither know, or particularly care at this moment what the Cunard and other outsiders' plans may be. In course of time the agreement on which the trust is based will be submitted to the shareholders of the individual companies concerned. But a good deal has got to be done before that happens."

When Mr. Morgan, Jr., was asked a question as to a recurrence of the subsidy cases of the former City of Paris and former City of New York, he said: "That is much too far fetched for us. The idea had not occurred to us. It is easy enough for people who have nothing better to do to sit down and invent all sorts of ingenious objections which are only remotely possible to occur. We have tried to explain to their mutual benefit which may be derived from the new organization, and if they cannot understand it, why we cannot help it. That's all."

DATTOS WANT PEACE

Several of the Leaders of the Moros Are Anxious to Make Peace With Troops---Chaffee Goes to Malabang.

Washington, April 25.—Adjt. Gen. Corbin today made public the following extract from a cablegram just received from Gen. Chaffee respecting the situation in Mindanao, dated Manila, April 24:

"Before Baldwin could be communicated with he had taken the fort at Pulas after slight resistance. No casualties. Very soon after the neighboring town of Ganasi opened its doors, hoisted white flag and delivered red flag. Datto Lampok and others with strong following asked permission to call and make peace. Datto Amani Pack, of Ganasi, who sent threatening messages in reply to my letter, is one of those who submitted. Camp is two miles from Ganasi, whose sultan has asked Baldwin to come here. Have directed him not to move. He is ten miles from Datto. It is my purpose to have interview with Davis. Will go on Hancock, which leaves today for Malabang with battalion Tenth Infantry. It is our purpose to show considerable force of troops to Lake Moros, converse with dattos, then retire troops by different trails to Malabang and Paranga. Thereafter to send expeditions occasionally to Lake. We supposed Ganasi thirty-five miles from Malabang, actually short twenty-one miles; no fighting, not necessary to overcome opposition to advance to present location troops; 775 men with Baldwin, two troops cavalry dismounted twelve miles in rear. Every effort will be made to prevent general war. Davis says situation very favorable.

CANAL PROPOSITIONS

Washington, April 25.—The cabinet held a short session today, during which the relative propositions of the Colombian and Nicaraguan governments in connection with the proposed canal, were discussed. Both propositions will be at once submitted to congress. The president is exceedingly anxiously that some decision may be reached at this session.

A comparison of the outlines of the agreements or treaties made by the sthte department with Colombia in relation to the Panama canal, and with Nicaragua and Costa Rica as to the Nicaragua canal, shows a general resemblance in the scope of the arrangements. One point of resemblance is the amount of money to be paid down at once by the United States to the country making the concession, which in each case is $7,000,000. If the Panama route is chosen, Colombia gets all of this money. If the choice falls on the Nicaragua, it will receive $6,000,000, and Costa Rica $1,000,000.

No provilson is made in the Colombia protocol for the payment of any annual rent—that matter will be left to future adjustment. The agreements as to the Nicaragua canal, however, specially state the rent to be paid, which is $30,000 per annum, of which Nicaragua will get about $25,000 and Costa Rica $5000. The original proposition was to pay a lump sum, representing the capitalization of this rent for 100 years, but the republics prefer to have the money paid yearly, in recognition of their sovereignty, and in consideration of the allowance of their wish in this matter, they have gone to the length of making the lease to the United States perpetual as against the 100-year renewable lease of the Colombian agreement.

MURDERER TAKES HIS LIFE

Milwaukee, April 25.—Herman Heese, murderer of Helmuth Bergmann, committed suicide by hanging in the jail today. He used a long towel, tying it around his neck and fastening it to the upper bunk of his cell. Heese's crime, which was a most cold-blooded one, was committed on Feb. 1. He shot Bergmann apparently without provocation, killing him instantly just as the latter had finished breakfast at his boarding house and was proceeding to work.

QUAINTLY MARRIED

Aged Couple Unite Themselves In Bonds of Matrimony.

Ending of a Romance Begun In Earlier Years.

Service Was Performed According to Custom of Friends.

New York, April 25.—Dr. Edward H. Magill, former president of Swarthmore college, and Mrs. Sarah E. Gardner, widower of 71 and widow of 66, have married themselves in this city after the quaint form of the sect of Friends. It was the end of a romance of their earlier years. Although both are Quakers, they were not averse to flowers and the ground floor of the hotel was filled with them. Mrs. Andrew White, wife of the United States ambassador, and Dr. Magill's eldest daughter, sent a beautiful present When all was ready for the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom walked in arm in arm. All present stood in silence for five minutes. Then Dr. Magill's voice broke the solemn stillness. He repeated the wedding vows of the Friends, followed by the bride. The wedding certificate was then signed and witnessed by all the guests.

Dr. and Mrs. Magill will sail for Naples on the Hohenzollern tomorrow for a four months' European trip, during part of which time they will be guests at the American embassy in Berlin.

On his return Dr. Magill will resume his duties as professor emeritius of the French language and literature at Swarthmore, of which institution he was president for nineteen years.

WAGE SCALES

Will Be Endorsed, Also Policy of President Schaffer.

Wheeling, W. Va., April 25.—Today's session of the Amalgamated Association convention was devoted to hearing the reports of the several committees, including those on wage scale, officers' report and headquarters. All of the committees except the first named had finished yesterday.

The wage committee is preparing an elaborate argument in favor of the course followed in the signing of the scales, and will defend President Shaffer's policy vigorously. As stated yesterday, a minority report will be presented. This is about the only matter that may occasion debate. Little doubt exists that the scales will be endorsed. This would indicate his reelection as president.

FIRE

At Swift's Packing Plant Destroyed Many Valuable Drawings.

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fire which started last evening destroyed a large two-story frame building at Swift's packing plant, in South St. Paul. The fire brigade of the establishment responded promptly and soon had five streams playing on the flames. The firemen were hampered, however, by low pressure, as one of the largest boilers had blown out only the day before.

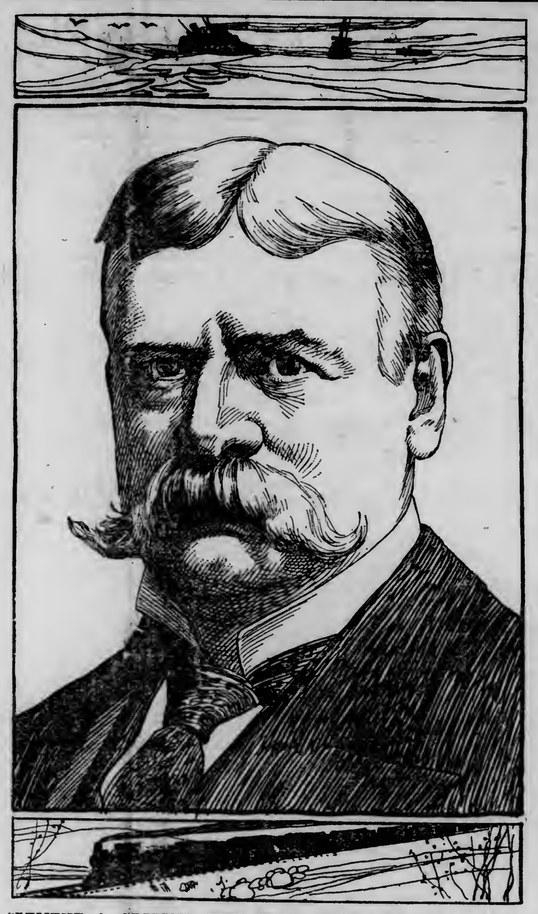
The building was used as a store room, carpenter shop, the office of Chief Mechanic Gebhardt, Dr. Ketcham, the government inspector and many of the foremen. The drafting rooms of the packing plant were also in the building.

The building was almost totally destroyed, as were most of the mechanical tools of the departments and many of the drawings. Some of the draftsmen saved a part of the drawings at considerable personal risk. The loss will be about $5000, although it is hard to estimate the loss on the drawings which were valuable because of the difficulty in replacing them. There was some insurance on the building and contents. A building occupying the same location was burned about a year ago.

BOUND OVER.

Edward Murphy Held on the Charge of Robbery.

Winona, Minn., April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Murphy, who committed an assault on William Pfanchsmidt at St. Charles, has been held to the September grand jury on a charge of robbery in the second degree, bail being refused. Murphy's hearing was begun at St. Charles, but could not be completed until yesterday. Fearing that an attempt at lynching might be made, Sheriff Lins brought Murphy to the Winona jail over night and took him back to St. Charles yesterday. Pfanchsmidt, who was not in condition to give evidence, showed some improvement yesterday, and at the hearing gave some very convincing testimony, identifying Murphy positively as his assailant.



CLEMENT A. GRISCOM, WHO WILL HEAD THE GREAT $200,000,000 STEAMSHIP COMBINE.

Mr. Griscom is the head of the International Navigation company, which is the parent company of the new gigantic steamship combination effected by J. Pierpont Morgan. The object of the combination, according to Mr. Griscom, is to give a better transatlantic service at a decreased cost. In time the company will have a steamer leaving New York every day.

PROHIBITIONISTS WIN

Judge Jaggard Orders the Name of Henry Fitz Placed on Official Ballot as a Candidate For Mayor.

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Prohibitionists have won and the name of John Henry Fitz will go on the official ballot as the candidate of that party for mayor. Judge Jaggard was compelled to render a hasty decision as the result had to be known by Saturday if the name was to go on the ballot. The case came up on the application of the Prohibitionists for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the city clerk to accept a petition signed by 516 voters and place the name of the Prohibition candidate for mayor on the ballot.

The attorney for the city objected on the ground that the majority of the names were not Prohibitionists.

Mr. Fitz was nominated in a convention, but the city clerk refused to take his name, unless by petition. The district court issued a mandamus directing the city clerk to accept the name of Fitz. This order was overruled by the supreme court. The Prohibitionists then circulated a petition, but the city clerk refused to accept it.

The decision of Judge Jaggard will also enable the Socialist Labor party to get its candidate on the official ballot by petition.

BLOODY BATTLE OF CHINESE

Hong Kong, April 25.—Advices here today from Wu Chou, under date of April 22, announce that a bloody battle was then proceeding between a force of imperial troops, on their way to Nan Ning, and a large force of rebels. The imperial army attacked the rebels' encampment in the Wu Chang hills, brought up two Maxims and two 12-pounders and finally scattered the rebels and captured their leader, Hung Yung Seng, who was wounded.

Subsequently the rebels captured two villages on the outskirts of Nan Ning and established their headquarters in those villages.

HAACK CONFESSES CRIME

Neillsville, Wis., April 25.—Ferdinand Haack, who shot his wife at the village of Thorpe, in this county, was brought here by Sheriff Campbell and confined in the county jail. He confesses having shot his wife, saying that he had been at Wausau about a month and had only been home for two days. He says he had been at Stanley yesterday where he became intoxicated, and on his return home he quarreled with his wife and shot her. It appears that jealousy on the part of the husband was the cause of the tragedy. The condition of the wife is critical. She will probably die. Haack is about 50 years old and his wife is 42. They are Germans, and formerly lived on a farm near Thorpe.

TRYING TO REDEEM HIMSELF

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The statement made that George B. Whitehorne was in Mexico, where he had been joined by his wife, is without foundation. The fact is, Whitehorne is located in an Eastern city, where it is said he is earnestly endeavoring to redeem himself. He has secured employment at a fair salary and is paying off the indebtedness he incurred in St. Paul which got him into trouble. He has already paid $200 of the amount due in the transaction of the transfer of the Irie lot and some other accounts. His wife has joined him and is aiding him in the work of redemption. All of this is stated on undoubted authority.

"RAZORS A FLYIN' IN DE AIR"

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Legger, colored, was cut eight times in the abdomen and arms and Irvine Welbourne, another negro, received a bad cut with the butt of a revolver at a negro dance at Gardner's hall, 65 East Fifth street, early this morning. Welbourne was arrested and taken to jail this morning. Legger was removed to the city hospital in the central station patrol wagon. His wounds are not at all serious. Welbourne will be arraigned Wednesday, by which time it is expected that Legger will be well enough to appear against him. Charges of assault with a dangerous weapon will be lodged in police court against both men.

NO DANGER OF DROUTH

Heavy Rains Fall Throughout the Northwest.

Conditions Are Favorable For Crops.

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steady rains are falling today in this section, relieving the fears of farmers who wished more moisture for seeding. A slight snow, which quickly melted early yesterday, had done some good and today's rains give additional needed moisture. Conditions for the crops bid fair to equal last year when Minnesota and the Dakotas had "bumper crops" and all fears of a possible drouth have been dissipated. The rain today extended over Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and Michigan and, according to Weather Observer Lyons, has effectually disposed of the drouth where it existed.

Des Moines, April 25.—The state of Iowa received a drenching rain early this morning, the downpour beginning at 1 o'clock and continuing until 4. After a two hours' rest a steady rain set in with prospects of lasting all day. Reports received from Northwestern Iowa say the fall there was even heavier than in the central part of the state. The soil will be placed in excellent condition for the comletion of spring work, and all doubts of the dry weather affecting the crops have disappeared.

St. Louis, April 25.—Heavy rains fell in this vicinity on Tuesday, while there were showers last night. Today is clear, but showers are perdicted for this section of the state. At Jefferson City and in sections of Central Missouri considerable rain fell yesterday.

Peoria, April 25.—Rain fell heavily throughout this section or an hour after midnight and began again with light intermittent showers after 7 o'clock, clouds threatening an all day's downpour at any time. There were several good showers Tuesday afternoon and very high cold winds Tuesday night.

Chicago, April 25.—A heavy warm rain, which is general throughout the Northwest, began falling during the night and reports at 9 a. m. from various points in this district show no indications of a let up. Crops generally will be very greatly benefited.

Milwaukee, April 25.—Eight-hundredths of an inch of rain has fallen in Milwaukee this week, most of which was recorded on Tuesday. A light rain fell this morning and indications point to a liberal downpour throughout the Northwest. There has not been enough rain in the state to materially affect crops and the indications are most serious in the southern part. The precipitation in this section is four inches short of the average.

METHODISTS AWAKEN

Members of the Clergy Believe That Old Restrictions Against Card Playing, Theaters and Dancing Must Be Removed.

Chicago, April 25.—"If the clergy of the Methodist Episcopal church expect to keep their young men and women in the fold, they must do away with old restrictions against card-playing, dancing, and attendance at the theaters. If they are not allowed to follow the dictates of their conscience, they will attend churches where they will be allowed to do so, or they will not attend church at all."

This is substance, was the declaration set forth at a dinner at the Union League club, attended by sixty-five prominent Methodist ministers and laymen of Chicago. The proposition received general discussion, in which Bishop J. W. Hamilton, L. D. Condee and Robert Quale took leading parts.

"If we do not take active steps toward arousing interest in the church on the part of our young men and women, we shall stand alone in our old age; there will be none to take the burden from our shoulders when we pass away," said Mr. Quale. "If we seek to bind the young people down too closely or draw too tight a rein, we cannot hope to keep them with us."

"I recommend that all laymen and clergymen to whom the interests of the Methodist church are dear, organize on this question and insist that at the next general conference the present regulations and restrictions be removed.

Another important movement set on foot at the meeting was the consolidation of all the book interests and periodicals of the church in this country. If the movement is successful the site of the central institution will be in Chicago.

GRAND STRUGGLE FOR EGGS

Chicago, April 25.—The struggle for the control of the eggs of the country has become the fiercest in the whole range of farm products, says the Record-Herald. Every corner of the Western states is being searched for eggs by agents for Swift & Co., Armour & Co., and a few small dealers who have capital enough to enable them to compete with these leaders of the provision world.

As a result of this competition, prices paid to farmers are rapidly advancing, and every indication points to unprecedented high prices for cold storage eggs next winter.

ANARCHISTS HELD FOR TRIAL

New York, April 25.—Harry Kirschopf and Solomon W. Hilles have been held for trial under the new law against the distribution of anarchistic literature.

They were arrested on April 3 last at the Altgeld memorial meeting in Cooper Institute. Their counsel waived examination and the magistrate held the prisoners in $2000 each for trial. The law under which they are held was only two hours old when they were arrested.

BURGLARS AS INCENDIARIES

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Burglars broke into the wood and feed store of Brand & Wubben, Western and Michigan streets, last night, cracked the safe, stole checks and valuables, and then set fire to the building, which was totally consumed, causing a loss of $700 and almost effacing the evidences of the burglary.

The burglars also battered down a side door of the grocery and butcher shop of Joseph Rybak, 381 Michigan street, and ransacked all the cash drawers.

The burglars were seen in the grocery by citizens, who notified Patrolman Pesek. He went in search with revolver in hand. The thieves escaped before he arrived.

DIED TRYING TO SAVE FATHER

New York, April 25.—William McCarthy, aged 17, lost his life in Port Chester, Conn., says a World special, while trying to save his blind father in the belief that he was in danger.

The father lost his sight a few years ago by a premature blast in a quarry. The boy was playing with some companions when he saw his father walking near the railroad and an express train approaching. The blowing of the whistle caused the boy to think that his father was in danger. He started across the tracks to save him and was struck by the train and instantly killed.

NEARLY SEVERED HIS HEAD

Newark, N. J., April 25.—Henry Schaub was hanged here today for the murder of his wife and child. The drop fell at 10:10 o'clock. As the body fell the man's head was nearly severed and blood spurted from the neck. Schaub was a barber, but did not work steadily and was dissipated. His wife made arrangements to leave him, and when he learned of her determination he killed her and their child. He cut his own throat but not enough to cause a serious wound.

WELCOME CHANGE

The Michigan Street Market Is Showing Some Declines.

Butter Is Finally Giving Indications of Recession In Price.

Meat Prices Decline In Some Instances---Potatoes Advancing.

The course of the Michigan street market is not entirely upward today, for a change.

Some things are higher, but others are lower. For instance, butter is easier, and is likely to go still lower in a few days. Fresh prints of creamery, which have been as high as 33 cents, are now down to 30 and 31 cents, while creamery in tubs is selling at 30 cents.

Receipts of dairies are light, and fancy dairy still holds its high price of 27 and 28 cents per pound.

Eggs are firm still, and they cannot be touched on Michigan street for less than 17 cents a dozen. The active demand for eggs both for consumption and storage is keeping the price up, and it will take rather heavy receipts of eggs to make the price go any lower. The storage demand is particularly heavy, because this is the season when the cold storage men stow away eggs for next winter's use. The demand for eggs to eat is also especially heavy, because the high prices of meat are still driving the people to egg-eating.

For a wonder, meat prices have not had a general advance this week, and some of them have gone lower.

It seems incredible, but whether the consumers are feeling it or not, there have been some slight reductions in the price of meats.

Beef has felt none, and, in fact, beef has been crowded up some. Dressed beef has been quoted at 8½ to 10 cents, and now it is quoted at 9 and 10 cents.

Mutton is also higher, but lamb, on the other hand, is lower. Mutton has been selling at 10 cents and it is now quoted at 11 cents, and lamb, which has been quoted at 13 cents, has dropped to 12 cents.

Veal has had a drop of half a cent. Good veal is quoted at 7½ cents and fancy veal is listed at 8 cents. Both quotations are half a cent lower than they have been.

Live poultry is firm, hens having had an advance of half a cent to 12½ and 13 cents. Other prices are unchanged.

Duluth commission men say there is no joke about the story that three large packing houses have cornered the hen market. This means storage poultry, of course, as it is hardly feasible just yet to buby up the supply of live poultry that is scattered over a million henyards in the country. Frozen poultry, however, is all on the market, and the three firms mentioned by The Herald yesterday have bought up nearly all there is in sight. They can charge what they please for it, but their charges must be regulated by the fact that if they get too high, live poultry can be bought, though of course live poultry would advance in sympathy with any increase there is in the frozen stocks.

Men who have visited the cattle ranges say that there are immense numbers of cattle there, but many of them are yet too light to be sent to market. About July they will begin to find their way to Chicago and the other cattle markets, and after that there will be relief from the prevailing high prices of meat, unless the beef trust chooses to bid defiance to the laws of supply and demand altogether, and to any other old laws that may be lying about in its way.

Potatoes are about the most unruly article on the list just now. They have been hovering about 90 cents—wholesale—for some time, but during the week they have taken a jump to 90 and 95 cents per bushel. It is said that the reason for this is that the stocks of old potatoes are nearly exhausted, while the new potatoes are just beginning to come up from the extreme South and are still very expensive.

Apples are apples. Stocks are getting cleaned out, and the best grades are now as high as $6.50 per barrel and $2.25 per box. Oranges are higher, too, navels having risen from $3.50 and $3.75 to $3.75 and $4. Strawberries are also higher, Louisiana pints having climbed from $2.25 and $2.40 per case to $2.90 and $3. Asparagus is cheaper. A dozen bunches now cost $1.10 where they cost $1.50 before.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROSE COGHLAN.

Miss Rose Coghlan appeared at the Lyceum last evening, her first appearance in Duluth in a number of years. The audience which greeted her indicated either that her absence has not been seriously felt or that the public has become indifferent. "Forget Me Not" is the rather ancient play in which Miss Coghlan is choosing to exploit herself this season. Curiously enough it is the very play in which she made her last appearance in Duluth at the old Temple. It is a type of play of which one is seeing less and less and there is much reason to be thankful for the deliverance. This is not to say that there are not some people who delight in drama of that style but the greater number of theater goers have sickened of it. The story of the attempt of a brazen, heartless adventuress to break into society by the cruel exercise of a power which she has over innocent people, flaunting her vice, and appealing to the "sex against sex" sentiment, is what is told in this play. It is unquestionably a powerful drama and the role of Stephanie demands a woman of more than ordinary ability.

Miss Coghlan cannot be said to be entirely satisfactory in the part. Stephanie is a woman of wonderful beauty and witchery that brings men to her feet in blind worship and between that conception and the best appearance which Miss Coghlan can give it, there is a wide difference that makes too strong a demand upon the imagination and which even the finest of art can bridge only with the greatest of difficulty. But of the power of her impersonation there can be no question. In the expression of cruel malignity, the desperation of the adventuress, abjectness of physicial fear, and all of the most intense of passions, she has no superior on the stage.

The company supporting Miss Coghlan is of fair ability. Emmet C. King, the Sir Horace Wilby of the east, makes a good man of the world, but is rather lacking in action at times. Miss Nell McEwen made a pretty Alice Verney and David Elmer was good as Prince Malecotto, a French character part.

BLANCHE WALSH.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening Blanche Walsh will be seen at the Lyceum in "La Madaleine." The play is by H. J. W. Dam, a well-known Eastern newspaper writer. The character which has been given to Miss Walsh is that of a brilliant and beautiful young member of the Paris half-world, who falls in love with an estimable young man but is persuaded to sacrifice her affection in order that he may make a marriage in his own sphere of life. In this respect the play bears a slight resemblance to "Camille." The piece requires an elaborate production and will be interpreted by a company of over thirty people.

Miss Blanche Walsh will present each lady holding a reserved seat coupon at the matinee Saturday her latest photograph with her autograph as a memento.

ARE CAUGHT.

Illegal Fishermen Captured on the Wisconsin Side.

The Wisconsin game authorities are continuing very active. Yesterday Game Warden Blackadder, accompanied by Deputy Waterbury, of Wisconsin, and Deputy Green, of Minnesota, returned to West Superior after a successful trip about the headwaters of the St. Louis river. The trip began at 11 o'clock Wednesday night and ended at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The officers captured three men, five nets and 800 pounds of fish.

The game warden and the deputies went up the river in a gasoline launch and secured five nets on the way up by trolling. Two of the nets were actually in use." Yesterday morning C. Johnson and J. E. Nelson were caught in the act of fishing for wall-eyed pike. Johnson had twenty-five in his possession. Nelson had 233 wall-eyed pike when arrested. There was another man fishing, but he swam the river and escaped into the woods.

While on the way back the summer resort of one Johnson, on Fond du Lac island, was searched and forty-two wall-eyed pike were found. Johnson was also placed under arrest.

The fishermen are said to have been standing on the Wisconsin side, fishing on the Minnesota side and landing their fish in Wisconsin.

This catch by the game authorities is considered very important, and it is believed that the raid will have much to do in preventing any more illegal fishing along the St. Louis river for some time to come. It is the second raid planned and carried out on the St. Louis within a month.

TO BEGIN THE WORK

Assessment of City of Duluth Will Soon Be Under Way.

Increase In Number of Personal Property Assessments Expected.

Method to Reach Coal Companies Suggested--- Realty Assessment.

Duluth's annual personal property and biennial real estate assessments will begin May 1.

In the office of the city assessor, usually one of the busiest offices in the city hall, there are signs of increased activity.

Next week a dozen or more additional deputy assessors will be added to the working force.

Arrangements have been made for the levying of 6500 assessments of personal property. This is considerably more than were levied last year, but it is estimated that there are at least 1000 more families in Duluth than there were a year ago.

In making the personal property assessments there will be a deputy assessor for every ward, and additional men for the down-town business district, the lumber docks and mills, and the suburban districts.

There is considerable talk of having the tax laws amended so that the personal property assessment could be made in October or November. Under the present system the big corporations controlling the coal docks of Duluth practically get out of paying their proportion of the personal property taxes. In the spring of the year the coal stocks are about cleaned off the docks, and what is left the coal men say is the property of the railroads, and under the gross earnings tax law is exempt from local taxation.

If the assessors visited the coal docks in the fall of the year, when they are stocked up for the winter trade, the municipality would receive a greater benefit.

The same condition holds good in regard to the stock of many merchants. The assessors say that about May 1 each year the stocks are pretty well worked down in all the stores, while in the fall there is usually a big stock.

The real estate assessment will be watched with interest this year, largely on account of the upward tendency of values. There seems to be a general understanding that the assessor should make a general readjustment as to realty, probably by cutting down the assessment in the outlying districts and raising slightly in the business districts where property has increased so in value during the past two years.

FEDERAL TERM OF COURT.

Judge Shiras to Be Here Next Month.

Judge Shiras of Iowa will preside at the next term of United States circuit and district court, which will begin May 13. There is quite a large calendar of civil and criminal cases. Among the suits of interest is that of the Duluth Match company against L. E. Ewing, of Grand Rapids, Minn., who, as manager of the match factory, was to have received a certain number of shares, but whom the company charges with not living up to his contract. Another charge is that he paid out more for machinery than was really necessary, and the company wishes to recover money on that account.

The case of the United States against the Davidson Steamship company for damages done the government breakwater at Two Harbors through collison of the steamer Shenandoah will also come to trial. The plaintiff asks for $4000.

In the criminal calendar Herbert Craig will be tried on the charge of defrauding the government by opening a letter containing a money order.

There is a charge of assault hanging over John Raisch, an Indian, and five other men will be tried on the charge of selling liquor to Indians.

Auction Sale of Lands at Aitkin, Minn.

An auction sale of real estate is announced to take place at Aitkin, Minn., on Saturday, May 10. The property consists of business lots, residence lots, lake front acreage, lots contiguous to town, park property for platting, and some choice farm tracts within a mile and a half of town. Aitkin is one of the most attractive and progressive towns in Minnesota, having all modern conveniences, such as electric lights, local and long-distance telephone, city water, sewer system, efficient fire department, and the finest school house in the state outside the larger cities. There has been a great demand for some time for residence and business lots, but they have been extremely hard to buy. This sale, therefore, will be welcomed by residents of Aitkin and others, who will now have the opportunity to obtain business and residence property at practically their own prices. The High School band, of Aitkin, the best school band in the Northwest, will play upon this occasion.

Our Railroad Rates.

In the United States railroad rates, both freight and passenger, are lower than in any country in the world. The passenger accommodations are so superior to those offered by European railroads that comparisons are idle. Nowhere in the world, for instance, can the traveler secure such service and comfort as that given by the Milwaukee road on its Pioneer Limited trains between the Twin Cities and Chicago.

GREAT FIGHT.

County Board at Superior Ballots 99 Times For One Office.

After compromising on a chairman at the end of seventy-five ballots, and selecting a county physician after a warm fight, the Douglas county board of supervisors added fresh interest to its sensational annual meeting by coming to a deadlock after ninety-three ballots had been taken.

The factional fight in the county board is the fiercest that has been known in that body for years. The vigorous efforts of the "reform element" in the county are being felt, and the election of Dr. O'Brien, to succeed Dr. Connor, is regarded as a signal victory. The "reform element" is now striving to elect a successor to W. T. Kennedy, county poor commissioner, who is receiving the support of the members of the old board. For seventy-five ballots yesterday W. L. Tait and W. T. Kennedy were opposed to each other for the appointment.

Confident that Mr. Tait could not be elected, the "reform element" switched its vote to J. F. Huele, of South Superior, former alderman, but the result was the same, the vote standing seven to seven. The older faction of the board then tried to get an adjournment to May 15, but the "reformers" defeated this move and a recess was taken until today.

The older members of the county board have fought long and hard for the secret ballot, but the "reform element" will have nothing but an open ballot.

One of the important measures passed by the county board yesterday was a resolution cutting the salary of the county physician from $3200 to $1800. The county physician is also required to furnish all necessary drugs and appliances, and to give expert testimony in county court and at coroner's inquests. He must also reimburse all other doctors called on emergency cases, and is allowed no traveling or other expenses.

The salary of the superintendent of the county poor farm was left at $66.66 per month, and he is allowed board and lodging for himself and family at the farm.

A Narrow Escape.

A number of workmen at the Wolvin building, now in the course of construction are said to have had a narrow escape from being crushed or injured yesterday by a falling piece of steel. The steel was being hoisted to the top of the building and was but a short distance from the ground when the big timber on the top of the building, to which the hoisting tackle was attached, broke off and the load dropped to the ground with a crash. Fortunately the men had moved back a short distance as the load began to rise, but it fell so close to them that they were very much startled and would not go near the steel again until fully assured that there was no further danger.

WHAT TO DO

With Funds Collected For Battleship Is the Question.

Cincinnati, April 25.—Soon after the battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor of Havana, an attempt was made to collect by popular subscription sufficient money to build a battleship to be named "American Boy." W. Rankin Goode, a boy orator of Cincinnati, made speeches here and elsewhere and considerable funds were collected. In and about Cincinnati $20,000 was collected. Of this $5000 is deposited in the Merchants' National bank of Cincinnati to the credit of the "American Boy fund." The public schools of Cincinnati and suburban towns were liberal contributors.

The question is now raised as to what to do with the matter. It is generally believed the money collected in different cities and still held will be disposed of as the persons in the different localities deem proper. Ex-United States Attorney John W. Herron and the father-in-law of Governor General Taft, of the Philippines, who has been consulted by parties here, said that if no action is taken by the present congress there will be a movement to have the funds returned to those donors who are able to prove the amounts they gave, and the balance distributed by order of the courts.

BIG TASK.

Artist to Paint Five Portraits of Clem Studebaker.

Chicago, April 25.—"How would you like to paint one man's portrait five times?"

This is what art students were asking one another when they heard of a remarkable task assigned to Ralph Clarkson, the portrait artist. Concentration of mind for many months upon the features of one face, the tedious and exacting details of executing reproductions of those features and the confusing feat of working on four replicas in various stages of incompleteness are unique features of the work that confronts Mr. Clarkson in fulfilling a commission for the Studebaker family at Chicago and South Bend, Ind.

Drudgery of art is in nearly every phase of the work to which the painter expects to devote many months. But it is a drudgery such as an artist loves, and he believes the task will not lessen his enthusiasm. Summer travel in picturesque places, such as Mr. Clarkson usually takes, will be an impossibility this year, however, because of the importance and magnitude of the commission.

One life-sized portrait painting of the late Clem Studebaker, three replicas of that and a life-size group of the five Studebaker brothers of the manufacturing firm in which the picture of the deceased brother is to be a fourth reproduction of the portrait, make up the order undertaken by Mr. Clarkson. It is said by some of his fellow artists that the fee for his work will make Mr. Clarkson comparatively rich. But they say, also, the work is enough to give a man nervous prostration, to toil day after day, painfully going over the same lines, the same features, the same lights and shadows. "Why, he'll be haunted by these portraits before he gets through with them," said one envious artist.

In Mr. Clarkson's studio in the Fine Arts' building is the finished portrait of Clem Studebaker. It was executed for the widow, and pleased her so much that the four children of the family gave orders for the three portrait replicas. Those are already under way and the artist has settled down to his laborious undertaking, hoping to finish it before 1903. Three unfinished canvases receive his divided attention as the drying of pigments allows his work to proceed.

Another canvas, measuring 5 by 8 feet, is covered by a life-size "cartoon," or first sketch of a group of five members of the firm of the Studebakers Bros.' Manufacturing company. The portraits are to be made from photographs of the three who are dead from the portrait now finished and from sittings which are to be given by J. M. Studebaker, the surviving brother. This picture is to hang in the office of the company at South Bend. It represents the brothers in conference around a long mahogany table. Clem Studebaker, who was the president of the company at the time of his death, last November, is seated at the head of the table.

Difficulties of grouping had to be met by Mr. Clarkson because of the fact that Henry, Peter and J. F. Studebaker had died before he began his picture. Photographs of them will have to be relied upon for his paintings of them, and the poses will necessarily have to be governed by those in the photographs selected.

A few sittings were given to Mr. Clarkson by Clem Studebaker for a portrait several months before he died. Six months already have been spent by the artist upon the work of painting the portraits.

HAS BEEN ACQUITTED.

Some Charges Against Cadet Coburn Are Dismissed.

Word has been received by Captain and Mrs. Ira Coburn, of 322 Fourth avenue west, from Congressman Morris, announcing that their son, Cadet Fred Coburn, of the Annapolis naval academy, has been acquitted of the charges preferred against him of making false statements and denying that he was the instigator of some trouble among the students about a month ago.

Cadet Coburn's parents know little of the case except that the hearing was for some alleged breach of discipline that did not amount to a great deal.

Cadet Coburn is 19 years of age and has been at Annapolis two years. He secured his appointment in a competitive examination and is said to be making splendid progress at the academy in his studies.

THE CLUB LOCATION

Nothing Is Yet Settled on Commercial Club's Home.

Meeting May Be Held Saturday to Receive Proposition.

Selection of Secretary Also In the Air As Yet.

It is expected that the directors of the Commercial club of Duluth will meet tomorrow to take up the question of location. Whether they do or not will depend on whether M. H. Alworth is ready to submit a proposition for furnishing the club quarters in a building to be erected on the Boeing property site, adjoining the Spalding house on the east. This building, if erected, would be 50 by 115 feet, and the proposition, if made, will contemplate the use by the club of two floors.

There is also a proposition for the leasing of the two upper floors of the Torrey building. The chief objection to this plan is that the scheme contemplates giving the club the two upper floors, less the space occupied by the government hydrographic office and the law library, which have long leases. It is felt that with these deductions the space would be hardly sufficient to divide up into club rooms to good advantage.

The deal for the Axa building is not off, though R. B. Knox, the agent, is said to have become less anxious to lease to the club since opposition developed among the members to paying the price agreed upon for this building.

A director of the club said this morning that the needs of the organization afforded a splendid opportunity for owners of vacant sites in the business center, or property it was desired to improve, to get a good tenant at a fair rental for a term of years. Such a chance for making a long lease of so much space as 12,000 to 15,000 square feet, he said, does not occur every day. It was added, furthermore, that no deal has been settled upon as yet, so that anybody that has a proposition on a reasonable basis and in a central location on Superior street is in as good a position as anybody else to have his proposition accepted.

The Boeing property is owned in Detroit, and the delay in getting a proposition from Mr. Alworth is due to the fact that he has to communicate with the owners on the subject.

It is intimated that there is considerable difference of opinion on the subject of a secretary for the club. The directors feel in no particular hurry, because they would like first to know definitely what they can afford to pay as a secretary's salary after the rental question has been settled. At present, it is understood, discussion of salary has been on a range of $1600 to $2200.

LADIES' AUXILIARY.

One Is Organized For Order of Railway Conductors.

Mrs. T. C. McCall, grand junior of the ladies' auxiliary to the Order of Railway Conductors, of St. Paul, visited Duluth the forepart of the week and succeeded in instituting a new division of the order. A meeting of conductors' wives was held at the K. of P. hall on Superior street Monday evening, and Hiawatha lodge No. 160 was organized with twenty-three charter members. The officers of the new division are: President, Mrs. G. F. Ayers; vice president, Mrs. F. L. Dyser, of Proctorknott; recording secretary and treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Denny; senior sister, Mrs. J. F. Parkhill; junior sister, Mrs. J. L. Henderson; guard, Mrs. S. A. Temple; chairman of executive committee, Mrs. J. Crozier; first and second members of the executive committee, Mrs. W. A. Hunter and Mrs. Davidson, of Proctorknott; correspondent, Mrs. C. Darrah, of Proctorknott; sub-agent of insurance, Mrs. F. W. Frewer; musician, Mrs. W. A. Nichols; charity, Mrs. Dalson; truth, Mrs. Harris; friendship, Mrs. Davison; banner bearer, Mrs. Whittle.

A banquet and ball was held in the evening in honor of the organizer. Among the guests were many prominent K. of P. men. A special train train brought a large delegation of visitors down from Proctorknott. The hall was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers with the colors of the order, red, white and green. An entertaining program was given and Mrs. McCall gave a reading, Mrs. J. L. Henderson contributed a vocal solo. Mrs. McCall left on the midnight train for St. Paul.

The new division will meet every first Monday evening and third Monday afternoon at Columbia hall on Superior street and Twentieth avenue west. An effort will be made to make it the banner division of the state. It is expected that a new division will be organized in West Superior in a few days.

UNCLAIMED PACKAGES.

Adams Express Company Will Sell Many of Them.

The Adams Express company will have a sale of unclaimed packages at the local office tomorrow morning, 15 Fourth avenue west.

These sales of unclaimed express packages are always productive of much amusement. The packages are of all shapes and sizes, and as they are all carefully wrapped there is seldom much information to be gained from looking at them. Sometimes they are valuable, and sometimes they are not very useful or ornamental. But the bidding is always active, for often the packages have shapes suggestive of value. Very frequently articles of considerable value are bought in this manner for small prices, and sometimes packages that look valuable turn out to be worth much less than packages that do not suggest in their size and shape that they are worth anything at all.

MERRILL-SHEPARD

Marriage To Take Place In Minneapolis, May 8.

Invitations were received in Duluth today from Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Merrill, of Minneapolis, for the marriage of their daughter, Miss May, and Clarence Day Shephard, of Duluth. It will take place Thursday evening, May 8, at 8 o'clock, at their home, 2116 Second avenue south. They will be at home in Duluth after July 15 at 1503 East Second street.

Made Large Purchases.

B. J. Cook, of the Eagle Clothing store, has returned from New York, where he made a very large cash purchase of suits and overcoats. The Eagle, under the twentieth century management of Mr. Cook, is fast forging to the front as a leader among the clothing stores at the head of the lakes.

A Second Purchase.

A. B. Kenney, of Kenney, Anker & Denny, returned today from the East, where he had been to make the second spring purchase of the celebrated Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing for his firm. Business with Kenney, Anker & Denny has been beyond all expectations but the new goods arriving now on every train will enable them to supply the demand.

Gets the Contract.

P. McDonnell this morning received a contract from the Northern Pacific road for paving between the company's tracks with granite and sandstone blocks. The work is to be done between Fifth avenue west and Lake avenue, and there will be a roadway forty feet wide, a large part of which will be granite.

Failed To Appear.

Just to show that the March term is still in existence, Judge Dibell heard a case on the calendar of that term. It was the case of Fred Coran against C. F. Stark, to recover $440.21, alleged to be due for labor and board of men. The defendant put in an answer in which he said that he was aged and in poor health, so he had not kept track of the account, but he did not believe it was that much. He also put in a counter claim for $94.45, but when the case came to trial this morning he did not show up, and Coran got his judgment by default.

PROFIT OF AGENT

Who Selis To Himself Can Only Be Reasonable.

Cannot Make Use of Third Party For Profit.

Must Share With the Owner of the Property.

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Justice Lewis, in a decision in the supreme court today, holds that a real estate agent who induces an owner to fix a net price upon a piece of property, upon the supposition that it is to be sold to a third party, cannot himself purchase the property, and, by such transaction, in any event, realize a greater profit than a reasonable commission on the net price.

If the agent purchases the property, using a third party as a medium, he is liable to the owner for the profit realized.

The decision is in the case of W. R. Merriam, appellant, vs. J. A. Johnson, respondent.

Merriam owned a section of land in Stevens county, and employed Johnson as agent to collect rents and look after the property. In 1897 Johnson submitted ostensibly on behalf of a client an offer of $7500 for the land. Governor Merriam offered to take $8000 net. Negotiations fell through, but were reopened in 1898 by Johnson, who, after writing various discouraging letters concerning the condition of the land, and saying it would be difficult to sell it for more than $8 per acre, finally submitted an offer of $10 per acre.

Governor Merriam thought the land worth at least $15 an acre, but agreed to accept $6400 net for the section, saying explicitly that he would pay no commission on that price.

Johnson submitted the name of Mealon Cousins, of Morris, as the purchaser, and asked that the consideration be made $6,600. Merriam refused and the consideration was made $1 and other valuable considerations. It afterward developed that Johnson was the real purchaser; that Cousins had immediately deeded the land to him and that he in turn on the same day had sold it to another party for $16 per acre, making $3840 by the transaction.

When Governor Merriam heard of this, he began suit to recover the $6 per acre from Johnson.

The district court first ordered a verdict in favor of Merriam, but later ordered judgment for Johnson, notwithstanding the verdict. This order the supreme court reversed and orders a new trial.

Under a decision handed down by Justice Brown, of the supreme court today, the practice of repeating messages by telegraph companies, where the party to whom the message is directed has gone to another point, is a pure gratuity, and failure to do so does not entitle the party to damages for non-delivery.

The decision affirms an order of the Hennepin county district court in E. Aavarro Abbot appellant vs. Western Union Telegraph company, respondent. Abbot a civil engineer, was interested in a suit pending in Minneapolis and had arranged to have an attorney telegraph at Ashland, Wis., the date when the suit was to be tried. He went from Washburn, leaving word with the operator to have the message sent to him at Washburn. He failed to receive it and brought suit for damages.

NOT CRITICAL

Still Archbishop Corrigan Is a Sick Man.

New York, April 25.—This afternoon the condition of Archbishop Corrigan is about the same as it was in the early morning. A physician. A physician who is a friend of the archbishop and who was allowed to see him, said the prelate's condition was serious but not critical. The congestion had been confined to a portion of the right lung. The archbishop is able to take nourishment and keeps cheerful. His temperature remains at 102 and his pulse at 100.

TRAFFIC MATTERS

Mr. Still Reports Lake and Rail Traffic Disappointing.

English War Taxes On Flour Prove An Interruption.

Lines Would Place Millers On Basis of Wheat Shippers.

Assistant General Freight Agent Still of the Northern Pacific railway, who was in the city today, says that lake and rail traffic thus far has proved disappointing.

"It goes to show," said Mr. Still, "that it doesn't make much difference when navigation opens; the amount of traffic handled during a season doesn't alter much. If it opens earlier than usual the traffic is spread over a longer period and seems dull by contrast with the greater activity of a short season.

"I suppose the traffic has been reduced somewhat, temporarily, at least, by the English war taxes that have been levied on flour. At least, I am informed that the flour mill production of Northwestern mills is getting smaller.

"The Northern lines are heartily in favor of placing millers on the same export freight basis as wheat shippers. We tried to get this concession through at the last traffic meeting in Chicago, but failed, because of the obstinacy of the trunk lines."

It is learned, in relation to Mr. Still's allusion to placing flour and wheat on the same basis for export, that the effort is being made by the millers seriously only in the hope of having it apply for the time being to the all-rail or across-lake tariffs. It is said to be absolutely impossible to apply any effective scheme to lake freights. Such a blessing will never come on the lakes until all wild tonnage becomes line tonnage, as far as wheat-carrying on the lakes is concerned. A wild bulk cargo boat gets all it can for carrying an occasional cargo of wheat, or if pinched for a cargo it takes what it can get. The wild boat owner depends on making up the shrinkage of earnings during a dull period by a big advance in the rate during the active periods, particularly during the late fall season. Whether the amalgamation of various vessel holdings into the Pittsburg steamship fleet is not a long stride toward the maintaining of a permanent season or tariff rate in bulk cargoes, particularly in view of its action in holding the season ore rate at 70 cents a ton, is something that is being seriously discussed.

What he millers really hope to obtain in the way of a concession toward the fulfillment of their hope to have export flour freights put on the same basis as export wheat freight rates would have to be granted by the all-rail lines. The usual differential now existing between export wheat and flour from either Duluth or Minneapolis is 2½ cents. The Eastern roads claim that there is not only a natural differential against flour, because it has to be handled by hand, while wheat is loaded by machinery, but flour packages cannot be stowed away in the car to permit of the leading of the equipment to its full tonnage capacity. The latter point is not held to firmly on the part of the Western roads, but they do insist on an allowance for extra cost of loading the flour by hand. This additional cost, it is said, would reduce the 2½-cent differential heretofore required to a little less than 2 cents. That much concession the Western lines were ready and anxious to make to the millers, but the trunk lines were obdurate.

They practically declared to the Western lines that they might take things as they found them. If they did not care to have the Eastern lines to join in a joint through tariff, it would mean just that much more trouble and expense in handling the business. A through tariff simplifies the method so that the freight is all paid at one end. Without a through tariff, the feright charges would have to be divided up, so that the payment would be made to each road belonging to the route over which the freight passed of its proportion of the charges.

Another serious phase of the export rate matter is that the Western lines have to consider the gulf route, embracing the lines delivering to vessels at New Orleans or other ports on the Gulf of Mexico, as well as Pacific coast terminal routes. They had no way of reaching those roads. The millers, however, replied that if the Western roads would take care of the Atlantic seaboard route, they would see to it that the other routes fell into line.

DEATH LIST.

Pittsburg, April 25.—James Atwell, president of the National Association of Union Ex-Prisoners of War and well known in Grand Army circles throughout the country, died at his home in this city this morning. LEAVING BRAINERD.

St. Paul, April 25.—A Brainerd, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: A citizens' committee last night requested a conference with a committee from the union, which was promised for today. Machinists are leaving the city, evidently having no hopes of a settlement of the strike. The feeling here is that no adjustment is possible. The Northern Pacific officials are firm.

MONEY PLACED IN CUSTODY

Washington, April 25. — Senator Money (Miss.) today was placed in custody on information filed by Arthur B. Shaner, the street car conductor, who charged the senator with assaulting him during the disturbance on Shaner's car yesterday. Senator Money, Conductor Shaner and Foreman Hooper of the fire department, who assisted the conductor yesterday, appeared in police court today and their trial was set for next Thursday morning.

FOUND A CORPSE IN A BARN

St. Paul, April 25.—A Baldwin, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Last night two tramps were horrified to find the dead body of a man, apparently 40 years old, in an old unused barn between here and Woodville. They immediately notified the town authorities at Woodville, who will hold an inquest today. From all appearances the man had been dead for two months, having probably crawled into the barn to sleep and being frozen to death.

A PRETTY ROMANCE

Ends In a Secret Marriage In a Chicago Church.

Lovers First Met on Overland Train a Year Ago.

They Met Again Thursday and Were Quickly Married.

Chicago, April 25.—A romance which began a year ago on the Overland Limited express in California, ended last evening in a secret marriage in the First Presbyterian church. The father of the bride, who was at the Auditorium Annex, knew nothing of the affair until it was all over.

James G. Darden, of Chicago, one of the vice presidents of the American Can company., was the hero of this love story, and Miss Marie Elise Ross, of Brooklyn, N. Y., the bride. Miss Ross is the daughter of J. M. Ross, a member of the firm of Ross & Snyder, millionaire lumber dealers, who have large interests in timber lands all over the United States.

Mr. Darden is 38 years old and his bride is 29. A year ago Mr. Darden was in California and while on his way to Chicago he met Miss who was a passenger on the same train. The day after Miss Ross reached her home, near Prospect Park, Brooklyn, she received a letter from her traveling companion. A regular correspondence followed, but suddenly Miss Ross' letters stopped. For several months Mr. Darden did not hear from her until yesterday morning, when he learned that Miss Ross and her father had arrived at the Auditorium on their way East from California.

Mr. Darden called, proposed and was accepted. The father was left out of the secret.

A license was procured and together with two friends, the party proceeded to the First Presbyterian church, where the marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William J. Chichester.

Later the bride and groom left on a Southern trop to spend their honeymoon, after Mr. Ross had given them his blessing and left for the East.

REUNION

Of Confederate Veterans at Dallas Comes to An End.

Dallas, Texas, April 25.—After one of the greatest parades ever held at a Confederate reunion, Dallas last night, bade good-bye to thousands of her visitors. Every railroad entering the city sent out trains laden with fatigued but satisfied veterans and their friends.

The prelminary exodus, however, seems to make little difference in the size of the crowds in the streets and the population of Camp Albert Sydney Johnson at the fair grounds. The percentage of veterans leaving yesterday was comparatively small. For the most part they desire to remain until the taps have been sounded in the camp, and they wish to partake of the barbecue of five buffaloes today.

Last night chivalry and beauty gathered at Camp Johnson, where the Kalph's ball was held. Occasionally in the whirling mass going through the dance, doing his best among the younger people, some veteran would be seen dancing with some matron or maid of honor. The Kallphates in their costumes gave the scenes a bizarre cast and afforded considerable amusement.

A reception to Gen. Gordon at the Episcopal college was the social feature of the day. Here the commander-in-chief, bearing his 72 years like a man of 40, did his best to receive all who came, but succeeded only in part.

CASH FOR COLE.

Younger Getting a Check From Senator Elkins.

Minneapolis, April 25.—The Washington correspondent of the Journal says: Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, has just sent $100 cash to Cole Younger in care of R. C. Dunn, state auditor. I met Senator Elkins last week in the capitol corridors, and gave him a message from Younger, received some time ago. He expressed great interest in it, and asked: "I want to send Cole $100; can you tell me how to get it to him?"

I suggested Mr. Dunn, who is well known all over the State as one of the most loyal friends of the Youngers. Today I met Senator Elkins again.

"I am mailing that letter to your state auditor today," he said. "From all that I am able to learn Cole is not in as good shape financially as could be desired, and I want to send him this small sum as a modest reminder that I have not forgotten him, and am still his friend and well-wisher."

AFGHANS ARRESTED.

Wanted For the Murder of a Peddler.

Butte Mont., April 25.—The police have arrested five Afghans in this city for the mysterious murder of another Afghan in Seattle. The names of the men are Padi Khan, Abruta Khan, Sirbill Khan, Torroa Knan and Badullah Ali. The murdered man was Amir Aliaden, alias Merili.

Merili was a peddler. He disappeared somes time ago in Seattle, and his body was fished out of Lake Washington. There was a bullet hole in the back, which showed that he had been shot from behind. The arrests here were at the request of the Seattle authorities, the five Afghans having come from Seattle to Butte. They assert their innocence, but admit they knew Merli; Nashir Khan and Rassoul Khan, two other Afghans whom the Seattle police want for the murder, have not been captured.

BACKSET OF BABCOCK.

Illness Prevents Beginning of the Campaign Work.

Washington, April 25.—The illness of Representative Babcock is exciting some alarm among Republican members of the house who want to see the congressional campaign committee organized so that it can begin work. Mr. Babcock is confined to his home by a serious attack of erysipelas, complicated with some other disorder. Last Saturday night he was in a precarious condition, but his physicians now say he is in no immediate danger. Mr. Babcock's physical condition was poor all winter. He tried in vain to induce the campaign committee to select some one else chairman of this campaign, because he felt that he was not in condition to stand the hard work. It is probable that when he recovers Mr. Babcock will have to go to some health resort.

In the meantime Republicans who are living in close districts are anxious that work to be done by the committee shall be mapped out so that the distribution of documents and other things which the committee does for the Republican nominees may be begun as soon as the campaigns in the districts open. In the chairman's absence no member of the committee feels called upon to take a step in the direction of further organization, and some members feel that the work will not be done as thoroughly this summer as in the past. It is probable that if Chairman Babcock is not ready to take up active work in a month other officers of the committee will organize a working force.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Mad Bulldog Almost Gnaws Through a Door.

Helena, Mont., April 25.—But for the prompt arrival of a policeman, it is probable four women and two girls would have been the victims of a mad bulldog. The women were horrorstricken as the dog was making vicious attacks on the door of the room where they had barricaded themselves, and had gnawed, rat-like, a hole five inches in diameter in the lower corner, and would have soon effected an entrance, but for the policeman's arrival. The dog was killed and the women released.

The women were sitting on the veranda at 814 Eleventh avenue when one of them noticed the dog, frothing at the mouth, approaching them, when all fled inside and locked the door, just in time to escape the infuriated animal.

The dog then attacked the door with his teeth and was making rapid progress, when a neighbor, who had noticed the commotion, telephoned police headquarters and an officer was dispatched to the scene, who killed the dog, three shots being necessary.

The dog had in the meantime chased the women from room to room, effecting an entrance by jumping through a window. The women had finally locked themselves in the kitchen, where the dog located them and attacked it from the outside. The dog was a large, magnificent specimen, and was owned by a neighbor.

WANTS THIRD WIFE.

Second Spouse Likely to Make Some Trouble.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 25.—Mrs. James L. Rockwell denies her husband's statements in his action for the annulment of their marriage. She says it is not occasioned by his desire to get a divorce from his first wife, who is living, and to remarry the second, but is to allow him to marry a third wife. Rockwell, upon hearing after twenty years' separation from his first wife that she still lives instead of being dead, as he supposed, began an action to have his second marriage set aside. Now No. 2 threatens to prosecute him for bigamy if he attempts to deceive her.

TWO INDIAN BILLS.

One Postponed And Other to Be Reported.

Washington, April 25.—Senator Clapp went before the house committee on Indian affairs yesterday and asked for the consideration of the Red Lake treaty bill.

In the absence of Representative Lacey, who is a member of the sub-committee in charge of the bill, it was decided not to take it up. It will probably be considered next Thursday.

Representative Moody was directed to report the bill for the relief of the Milio Lacs Indians. This was put in the Indian appropriation bill as an amendment in the senate and is one of the items in dispute in conference. It was thought that if the bill was reported to the house it would have a better chance for adoption.

SLAYERS ARE FOUND

Wife of De Mores Rewarded For Her Six Years' Search.

Trailed Her Husband's Assassins Across the Sahara Desert.

Charges He Was Killed By Order of French Officials.

Paris, April 25.—The wonderful devotion of the Marquise de Mores, an American woman, to the memory of her reckless and eccentric husband, bids fair to involve the French government in a trial as sensational as that of Dreyfus. Indeed, the arraignment of the alleged murderers of the Marquise de Mores will be a direct outgrowth of the Dreyfus episode, for it is claimed that the marquis was killed in order that certain information which he possessed regarding that celebrated case might never be brought to light.

For six long years this widow of the Marquis de Mores has ceaselessly and relentlessly pursued his murderers, and now the news comes that she has at last run them to earth.

When the news of the massacre reached Paris, M. Delahaye, the marquis' secretary, was dispatched by the heart-broken widow and was able to secure the body of De Mores and his companions who were slaughtered with him. They were buried in Tuggurt and the plucky little American woman at once set about the task of finding her husband's slayers.

For this work she used the faithful Delahaye, who devoted six years and much money to running down the assassins. During all these years the marquise has remained in Paris, living practically in retirement. Every energy has been concentrated on the discovery and conviction of her husband's murderers. Every move of M. Delahaye has been watched and directed by her, every scrap of evidence has been submitted to her.

It is the result of these investigations which promisse to be as sensational in its relation to high officials in the French republic, of which De Mores had knowledge.

These sensational allegations are to be made officially and backed with the volume of evidence collected by M. Delahaye in the courts of Tunis early in May.

The accused are high French officials in Algeria. The subject and the evidence has been discussed by M. Delahaye in a book he has written.

"It has been stated," he says, "that the caravan was composed of brave men devoted to their master. We can prove on the contrary that the caravan was organized expressly to lead De Mores to his death.

"It has been the boast of the chief assassin that he was intrusted with the work of conducting the unlucky marquis to the place where he was to meet his death.

"We accuse Col. Rebillet of directly causing the death of the marquis.

"This officer, notwithstanding his rank, carries on trade in Southern Tunis, which he seems to consider almost a private possession.

"We also accuse of complicity the resident general, M. Millet, who knew what was going to happen, but took not a single step to prevent a foul crime.

"The manner of the assassination shows how determinedly it was plotted. For three hours the marquis withstood a desperate siege with a gallantry which those who knew him can well picture. When his body was found twenty bullet holes were counted in it.

"One of our most important witnesses is an Arab named Taieb Ben Brahim. For two months he lived with the Chamba tribe, doing valuable detective work for us. Under promise of purdon he brought to Tunis four members of the tribe who had taken part in the muider. They were prepared to tell who had instigated it.

"What did the representatives of the French government do? They retaliated on the unfortunate Arab by persecuting his family. Owing to the president's machinations the faithful Arab's son was put in danger of his life at the hands of the Chambas and was obliged to flee to Tunis.

The American interest in this amazing tale is almost as intense as that which it will awaken in France. The romantic marriage of the marquis to a New York girl, their wild life together in Montana, his splendid visionary schemes, his sensational failure, his subsequent duelling escapades in France, and his assassination in Africa are still fresh in the minds of every reader of American newspapers.

And yet, even with all that has been printed, the full story of the De Mores romance has never been told. The handsome young Frenchman's chronicles have been prolific in tales of his recklessness, his love of newspaper publicity, the foolhardiness of his sensational Montana enterprise, his lack of business capacity, and his personal eccentricities, but none has yet done justice to his wife's unswerving love nor to the fact that the cause of many of his failures was his devotion to her ideals.

His Western experience was the central incident in the life of the debonair young marquis. It was during his stay in the West that the young wife risked her life to save his, an incident that is said to have influenced De Mores to his last day.

In 1883 De Mores married Marie Medora von Hoffman, the pretty and clever young daughter of the millionaire banker, L. A. von Hoffman, of New York. For some time he had been working on a scheme to compete with the beef trust by packing beef where the cattle were fed, and shipping it to the Eastern market dressed or packed, expecting to save enough money on the difference in freight to enable him to underbid the trust.

The scheme was roundly condemned at the time by Eastern meat men, though Western cattlemen seem to have considered it feasible enough.

Undismayed and backed by the wealth of his father-in-law, who furnished readily large sums for the enterprise, De Mores started West with his bride soon after the marriage.

He had obtained 25,000 acres of railroad grant land in the bad lands of Eastern Montana, near the Dakota line. It was here he meant to erect his packing houses and buy and keep his stock.

A spot in a treeless "coolee" in the center of the bad lands was chosen as a town site, and the place was named Medora in honor of the marquise.

Montana was greatly agitated over the acquisition of this eccentric character and his money, but the cattlemen of his section were soon his bitter enemies. They fleeced him at every turn and they despised his good clothes, his English riding saddle, his dandified ways and his fences. These last were the ostensible bone of contention, but, cowboy like, their greatest scorn was for his English fashion of rising in his saddle when riding, a matter of continual wonder to the plainsmen, who sit in their Mexican saddles as if they were part of the animal underneath.

De Mores fences were undoubtedly a trial, both to him and to every one else. He had surrounded his entire 25,000 acres of land with his fence. Such an article was unknown on the ranges, but the great marquis did not understand that. Besides, the fence crossed several of the cattle trails, so the cow punchers were obliged to cut through whenever they wanted to cross to new grazing grounds or round up a herd. It kept the marquis and his men busy most of the time mending repairs.

By spending money lavishly the building of the town was fairly rapid. Brick was imported from the East, and a thoroughly up-to-date packing house was erected and equipped. A pretty little white cottage, French in style, was built for the home of the marquis and his wife, a station house was put up, residences for the men and a little Roman Catholic church were constructed, and crop of saloons and small stores soon appeared.

It was a prosperous town, and its population soon increased. De Mores bought tens of thousands of cattle, spent money like a prince and brought such prosperity as had never been seen before in all the cattle country of Montana.

But still the cattlemen were not happy. At each new outrage of their Western sense of the fitness of things more bad feeling was stirred up, and De Mores felt that trouble was brewing. But he paid no heed, riding over the ranges daily as if every man in the state were his fast friend.

But one day things came to a climax, and it was while the titled cattle owner was out on the range.

Late in the afternoon while pretty Mme. De Mores was in the little chapel, where she spent part of each day, a band of wild "cowpunchers," rather the worse for liquor, galloped into the little town and began "shooting it up," shouting the while for De Mores. They made no effort to hide their purpose. They were there to shoot down the young marquis on sight.

The little Eastern wife, reared in luxury, with every protection that a young girl could have, heard their cold-blooded threats and resolved to save him. She knew that he would soon come riding home behind the little white cottage and the big packing houses and that he would be an easy mark for every man in the "coolee."

She could not get to her house without being seen so she braved it out. Stepping from the church in a dainty frock, the like of which had never been seen in that wild country before, she walked firmly across the main street within fifty feet of the desperadoes.

They knew with certainty that she was going to warn her husband, but they did not raise a hand. They quieted down and stood watching her. Quickly she walked to the house, and then out on the road to the rear and up the steep side of the coolee wall to the summit. There she stood, silhouetted against the evening sky, a mark for any one of those men, all of them like a flash and a stroke of fate with a gun. She did not even look around, but waved a tiny handkerchief to some one beyond their view and alone waiting.

The cowboys looked at each other like a lot of schoolboys caught in mischief. Revolvers were slipped back in holsters, and after a few words of grumbling admiration the cowboys quickly wheeled about and rode off to their camp, which was just across a small river from the De Mores ranch, but some distance from the house.

It was dark when De Mores reached home. His wife was still waiting on the hill overlooking the camp. Dismounting, he kissed her, as they walked to the little Western home, with its three gables, and its pretty furnishings from the Fifth avenue shops, she told him of his escape.

"I must go to them at once," he said, this time without any show of vanity.

She tried to dissuade him. It was certain death, she said.

"I will have it out with those fellows, once for all," he answered, and swinging himself into the saddle again, he galloped to the river. Dismounting below the camp he tied his horse, forded the river and crept quietly up to the camp, where the twenty or more men were grouped around the camp fire, still swearing eternal vengeance on the young "dude."

At an auspicious moment he stepped from his hiding place full into the blaze of the camp fire, quite unarmed save for his cattle whip.

"Well, here I am, men. Now, if any of you want anything with me this is your time. I'm ready to have it out."

And they had called him a coward! For a whole minute they were silent, overcome with astonishment. Then a voice was heard:

"——— boys, he's a brick."

The love of reckless daring inherent in those wild Western fellows, had made its appeal, and a wild cheer went up for De Mores. The young dandy had to shake hands all round and then the party started for the town.

The marquis did the honors and he did not stint. It was a reckless dissipation such as Medora had never seen before and probably never will see again.

Those rough, childlike cattlemen never forgot it, and if the good will of the cowpunchers had been all that was required the marquis' enterprise would have been a brilliant success, indeed.

As for the marquise, she was the idol of every man within 50 miles, the acknowledged queen of the cattle-cow country, although an unwilling one.

For the marquise, who had lived three years in the lonesome settlement, was homesick. Even the comradeship of her husband could not reconcil her to that desolate country. There was not a woman in the place with whom she could associate. The few women that were there were either the regular hangers-on of a Western camp or the uncouth wives of the rough cattlemen.

Her only companion save her husband was the priest at the little chapel where she spent much time. Even he, excellent man that he was, was not a substitute for the womanly counsel and companionship that as a girl she had always had in such generous meed and that as a young wife she needed even more keenly.

As the months went by she pined and whitened. The desolate bareness of that stright coolee wall, the depressing glimpse of the black, changeless hills just showing above the wall, the squalor of the little town and the feeling of utter isolation grew on the young wife's nerves till no sacrifice seemed too great to enable her to return to the life to which she was accustomed. She tried to be patient for her husband's sake, but could not hide her suffering. It was very apparent that she could not live long if she stayed in Medora.

The young man was at his wit's end.

For other troubles also were heaping upon him.

Disease and depredations were carrying off large lumbers of his cattle. It was an early spring, and unusually severe winter had killed thousands. For some reason the cattle were not multiplying, and the prospects were dark. Still De Mores was not ready to give up, and he worked incessantly. The packing was never brought into full operation, the other problems of operation taking all his time. He was not ready for that yet.

Finally, thoroughly discouraged and wholly anxious about the condition of his wife, whose wants seem to have demanded all other factors in his life, he paid his debts, threw up the whole enterprise and left for the East.

He had spent upward of $1,000,000 in the West.

The subsequent important events in the life of the Marquis and Marquise de Mores are familiar. The pair returned to New York and then went to Paris, where the marquis became prominent among the anti-Semites. At one time he was arrested for complicity in an Orient plot for the overthrow of the republic.

In 1892 he was challenged to a duel by Capt. Mayer, who resented the marquis' insults to his race. At the second lunge the marquis ran his sword through the gallant young captain's body below the arm-pit, inflicting a mortal wound. The dying man gave De Mores his hand.

In the spring of 1896 De Mores was commissioned by the French government to lead an expedition into the Soudan in Africa to enlist Arab chieftains in an effort to stop the encroachments of the British.

Saying an affectionate farewell to his pretty American wife he started on his commission with a promise that he would be back within a few months. With a party of eight he hurried into Africa. He left Elouthi, a Tripolitan village, on June 8 for Ghadamas, with an escort of Tuaregs and Sohambas, who were armed with carbines. In a lonely spot his Tuareg escort turned on him and killed him. Twenty bullet holes were found in his body.

And while all France is in a turmoil over the coming trial there is a sweet-faced little American woman, with the memory of a brave and affectionate man in her heart, who is firmly and determinedly gripping the cords that may drag half a dozen notables to disgrace and relentlessly demanding justice from the nation in whose cause her husband sacrificed his life.

ATE HIS SHIRTS

Would Get So Mad He Could Not Stand It.

Thrashed Around at Night and Hurt the Folks.

This Is the Reason His Wife Wants a Divorce.

Chicago, April 25.—"My husband used to wreak his rage on anything which happened to be within reach, usually his clothes, in which he would tear great holes with his teeth and spit the pieces out," said Mrs. Friedricka Gehrke in discussing her suit for separate maintenance against her husband, Albert Gehrke. Judge Chytraus dismissed the suit but later reconsidered his decision and set a further hearing for Saturday.

"Gehrke has an awful temper, and when a fit of it came on, which was nearly every day, he acted like a crazy man. But he ain't crazy; it's just temper. He was all right when I married him eighteen years ago.

"I was his brother's widow, and his brother was always a good husband to me, and I thought Albert would be, too. I had two little daughters when I married him, since then I have had seven children, three of them dead. Gehrke's first bad attack of temper that I remember was fifteen years ago, when my girl, Tina, was 3 weeks old. He came home from work and I asked him to do something for me—some little chore out in the yard, I believe. He got mad and swore at me and grabbed me by the throat and waist and shook me so hard that I was sick for three weeks afterward.

"He hated all my relatives and would not let them come to the house to see me. He wouldn't let anybody come to the house, not even the neighbors.

"And as for letting us girls have a fellow call on us—there wasn't one that would come within a mile of the house," chimed in her daughter Augusta.

"Every time he would come home he would say: 'Who's been here?' and carry on awfully if he found a chair moved out of place," said Sophie, another daughter.

"Yes, he used to come home from the shop and try to quarrel with everybody in the house," went on Mrs. Gehrke. "And if he couldn't start one with us he'd go into his room and stand in front of the glass and make faces at himself and pull his hair and tear his shirt sleeves with his teeth and act like a mad dog. Then I would say, 'What ails you, man?' and he would say, 'Ach, I have such a bad temper. I'm so savage,' and then he'd eat some more of his shirt. He'd wake up in the night time and think of something to get mad at and then he'd thrash his arms around and take the bed clothes and chew a big piece out and spit it in the air.

"We used to wonder what made my boy Eddie have the nose-bleed every morning. He slept with his father, and we found out that when his father thrashed his arms around in his mad fits he would hit the boy on the nose with his elbow or his fist. He didn't mean to do it, but he was mad and he didn't know what he was doing.

"Yes, and he was always fighting about money," said Augusta. "One time, nine years ago, my mother drew $200 out of a loan association, and it belonged to me and my sister. We had lots of sickness in the family, and Mr. Gehrke used the money to pay bills with and live on. He never said anything about it until two years ago, and then he suddenly began to quarrel about it and said if she didn't give him back his $200 he'd cut her neck open. He used to say he was going to drive us out of the house and shoot us and cut our necks, and lots of things like that.

"Last October he got mad at the breakfast table and took a knife and started after ma, and I got up and told him not to touch her, and he said he'd get out of the house before night or he'd kill us all. We thought he'd forget it by night, but he didn't and we had to go to my aunt's that night, and then a few days later we got some furniture and moved. He's a mean man. My little brother Arthur runs and hides under the bed and screams when we say we were going to take him to his papa."

Mr. Gehrke still holds the fort at 667 Dunning street, living in solitary splendor among the furniture left him by his family. He is a small, meek-looking man, and declares in broken German that he "never got made like that," and denies all of his wife's accusations. He says that her relatives have made all the trouble between them and that she is a quarrelsome woman and has taught his children to fear and hate him. He says she is ignorant and believes in witches and that he doesn't intend to pay her allmony if he can help it, because she left him without reason.

MEAT TRUST.

Attorney General Directs That Injunction Proceedings Be Brought.

Washington, April 25.—Attorney General Knox yesterday made the following statement regarding the so-called beef trust:

"On April 4, this department directed W. A. Day, Esq., of Washington, in his capacity as special assistant to the attorney general, to examine into, as far as practical, the public charges to the effect that a combination of the large meat dealers of the United States had been effected contrary to the provisions of the laws of the United States."

"The preliminary examination resulted in instructions to Mr. Day and Mr. Bethau, United tSates attorney at Chicago, on April 7, to prosecute simultaneously in Chicago and the East a more particular examination into the allegations, and proofs alleged to exist in support thereof. From their reports I am satisfied that sufficient is in hand upon which bills in equity for an injunction can be framed to restrain the combination mentioned from further proceedings under their agreements, which clearly appear to be in restraint of interstate trade. I have therefore, in compliance with the law which provides:

"'It shall be the duty of the several district attorneys of the United States in their respective districts under the direction of the attorney general to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain violations of this act,' directed the district attorney at Chicago to prepare a bill for an injunction against the corporations and persons who are parties to the combination mentioned to be filed in the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Illinois."

MASONIC BUILDING

Location at Second Avenue East and Second Street Selected.

Plans to Be Made For Handsome Masonic Cathedral.

Feature of Building Will Be a Large Auditorium.

The location of one of the finest Masonic order buildings in the country was determined last night by the Scottish Rite Masons. The report of the lodge committee that has been investigating the matter for some weeks was accepted and the deal made for the southeast corner of Second street and Second avenue east was ratified. The site is immediately in the rear of the Armory. It will be known as a Masonic "cathedral."

While plans for the structure that will grace the site have not passed the stage of informal discussion, the general tenor of personal opinion seems to be that $60,000 will be spent in the erection of the lodge building. It will probably be two stories high on Second street, with another story on the alley in the rear and possibly a sub-basement. There is a great fall at that point from Second street along the avenue side, and even a sub-basement could well be used.

The intention that seems quite to be generally accepted is to place a fine auditorium on the ground floor on the Superior street level. This auditorium will probably be provided with a stage and stationary seats along the sides at least. Fixed seats may not be placed in the middle part of the room, because of a desire to have a large space that may be used for dancing or other purposes, requiring a clean floor. On the second floor will be the lodge meeting rooms and other lodge rooms. A banquet room may be provided in the basement. There is so much floor space, however, that rearrangement without materially affecting the desired dimensions of any apartment may easily be made. It is the intention to provide on the Second street floor auditorium a hall of the highest class that may be used for concerts, lectures and the larger musicales. Such facilities, as well as for large dancing parties, it is believed are not to be had here now of the class that the city is large enough to support.

In an architectural way the building is likely to prove a beauty, and it is said that some especially pleasing effects in the now so popular style of low height classic architecture are looked for.

While the Scottish Rites Masons will own the property, it is expected that the other Masonic orders will join them to the extent of moving their lodge rooms from the old Temple building to the new structure soon after its completion.

There has been some talk to the effect that there might be serious opposition to the Second street location when the matter came up for decision, owing to belief that cars passing right by the door might interfere with lodge procedure. At the same time, an option was held on the rear part, or theater portion, of the old Temple building. The price on this was higher than on the Second street location, but there was considerable salvage in the way of foundations and walls remaining. The investigation of this salvage led to the published report that plans were worked out for the rebuilding of the Temple theater. Two other sites were under consideration, but it is said that the location accepted was voted for with practical unanimity.

The deal for the site was made through the agency of W. M. Prindle & Co., and the price paid was $10,000, or $100 per front foot, on Second street. The price is considered a very fair one, from the view of the buyer as well as the seller, who was Harold Thorson, of Elbow Lake, Minn. The same agency has just sold to W. W. Brown the same corner, just across Second street, 50 feet on Second street by 140 feet on the avenue, for $5500, or $110 a front foot. The former owner of the property was George P. Boutelle, of Waterville, Maine. Those two sales have attracted fresh attention to Central Second street property.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL.

Nelson-Dewey and Duluth Will Play.

Baseball for the first time tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon, at Oneota park, the first regular game of baseball of the season will be played. The Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior and the local high school will be the contending teams.

Considerable interest is evinced in the game on this side of the bay, as it gives the first chance to see the local team play in a regular game. After tomorrow a more or less accurate judgment of the team's chance of success this season can be made.

The local men are confident of their ability to win from the Superior team. Last year they succeeded in running up over thirty points on Nelson-Dewey aggregation.

The game will be called promptly at 3 p. m.

SCARCITY OF LABOR.

Both Sides of the Bay Feeling It Now.

Complaint is general from the employment offices on both sides of the bay of a scarcity of labor in the head of the lakes market. Usually at this season of the year there is quite an influx of men from points East and South anticipating the opening of spring and summer work in the Northwest, but this spring the movement has been steadily of men out of the city, while few have been coming in. There are orders piling up at the employment offices aggregating hundreds of men, but not more than thirty or forty men are being sent out daily on the contract work. Wages have an upward tendency, and common labor is getting from $1.75 to $2 per day.

GRAVE ROW.

Trouble Over a Tombstone Over a Chicago Woman.

Chicago, April 25.—Carl G. Peterson, of Evanston, has buried two wives. The more he reflected on their relative merits the more he inclined to the one of long ago. Therefore he went out to Rosehill and removed the imposing tombstone from the grave of wife No. 2 and took it to a stonecutter, giving instructions that the present inscription be effaced and another be substituted which would laud the virtues of wife No. 1.

As a result Mr. Peterson is defendant in a replevin suit filed by his five children to recover possession of "one light gray granite monument." The gravestone is now in the hands of the Hansen Monument company, and the inscription will not be altered, at least until a hearing of the case on May 5 by Justice Boyer.

Mrs. Mathilda Peterson, wife No. 2, died a year ago. The five children are hers. When Mrs. Peterson found she had not long to live she began to save money, which, the children say, she earned by doing needlework, to defray the expenses of the funeral and to buy a stone to mark her grave in Rosehill. They say she did not live happily with her husband, and just before her death she gave $100, which she had saved, to her oldest daughter, telling her how to have the funeral conducted and what kind of a gravestone to buy.

The daughter, it is claimed, carried out the explicit wishes of her mother.

The stone disappeared from Mrs. Peterson's grave on last Saturday night. On Sunday the monument dealer notified Fred Peterson, one of the children, that it had been brought to his shop by Carl Peterson, the father, who had ordered the name of his second wife cuseled off and the name of wife No. 1 substituted.

The monument dealer even intimated that Mr. Peterson wanted a paragraph uncomplimentary to wife No. 2 appended. The dealer thought the request for the alterations queer, and refused to make them until he had secured the consent of the other members of the family.

The children, hearing of this, demanded that their father restore the gravestone to them, but he refused to give it up, and insisted that the stonecutters proceed to make the changes which he had ordered. The writs of replevin were taken out on the strength of affidavits that the father was not the custodian of the stone. The children interested in the suit are: Mrs. T. Thompson and Charles W., Fred, Harriett P., and Catherine Peterson, all of Evanston.

The gravestone for the possession of which the suit has been filed cost $200 and weighs a ton. In removing it from the grave to the monument works Carl Peterson was assisted by the force of men he employs in his business as a mason contrator. He also took the footstone from the grave. The children allege that he said the grave of wife No. 2 should no longer have a mark.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

GLARING UNTRUTH

So Says Grain Man of Telegraphic Statement as to Grain.

No Concealment of Wheat In Terminal Elevators Is Possible.

Such Statements Give Wrong Impression to the Farmers.

"I see by a newspaper telegram from St. Paul," said a grain man this morning, "that 'the available supplies of wheat in the Northwest are exhausted.' I realize that in the rush of daily newspaper work many inaccuracies must creep into print, but it seems wholly indefensible that such a glaring error should be perpetrated. It is such a palpable contradiction of the plain facts that it seems like a travesty. The error hasn't the mitigation even of an imperfect understanding of the whole situation. The 'special telegram' continues along the same line and adds that 'either the wheat is not in existence or it is hidden away in terminal elevators for higher prices.'

"Now, the facts are, and they are published in the newspapers right along, that there are greater available supplies in the terminal elevators in the Northwest than ever before in their history. Moreover, they are not hidden away, for under the law governing public warehouses the wheat must be reported. Private elevators need not report their stocks, but they usually are free about giving their total stocks.

"By way of enlightening along this line, I may say that the weekly grain stock statement which is publicly posted on the floor of the Duluth and Minneapolis exchanges shows that there are 12,500,000 bushels of wheat in store in Duluth elevators and 11,500,000 bushels in Minneapolis elevators. Surely 24,000,000 bushels of wheat in public houses almost a month after the opening of navigation is not evidence that stocks are either exhausted or hidden.

"The chief consequence of such misstatements as this, which is aggravated by being ostensibly credited to a member of the warehouse commission, is that they give many farmers a wrong impression of actual conditions existing in the trade, and lead them astray in planning for future action regarding what grain they may have left. I doubt if many have much wheat on their farms, but it is unjust to those that have and to the grain trade to so misrepresent conditions."

CORRIGAN.

The Archbishop Is Sick With Pneumonia In New York.

New York, April 25.—Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan is seriously ill at the arch-episcopal palace in Madison avenue.

Dr. Edward L. Keyes, the archbishop's regular physician, was called by the archbishop's secretary yesterday afternoon. He found his grace suffering with a congestion of the right lung and with symptoms of pneumonia. He at once called in Dr. Delafield, and up to a late hour their attendance on the archbishop was almost constant.

The archbishop's age is 63 years.

The following bulletin, signed by Drs. Edward L. Keyes and Francis Delafield, was issued at 9:30 a. m.:

"Archbishop Corrigan has an attack of pneumonia. He passed a comfortable night and is resting easily. There are no unusual symptoms."

The archbishop's secretary announced that two bulletins a day will be given out concerning the archbishop's illness, one at 9:30 a. m. and another at 9:30 p. m. This afternoon Drs. Delafield and Keyes will have a consultation with Dr. Theodore C. Janeway.

After the bulletin had been issued, Dr. Keyes said pneumonia is always serious in a man of the archbishop's age.

The workmen who have been digging the foundations for the Kelly memorial chapel, behind the cathedral at Fiftieth street and Madison avenue, were sent home today. Numbers of persons waited today near the archbishop's residence to get news of the sick prelate's condition.

STREET CAR MIXUP.

Horse Rode Fifty Feet On the Fender.

LaCrosse, Wis., April 25.—While driving to a fire yesterday afternoon Fire Chief Bradford's buggy collided with a street car, throwing the chief out and hurling the driver, Blaine Thompson, through a car window. The latter was badly cut. Chief Bradfield, with rare presence of mind, kept from going under the car by bracing against the truck with his hands. The horse was carried fifty feet on the car fender and was unhurt, although three shoes were pulled off.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE

Formed In Chicago Ward to Suppress Lawlessness.

Chicago, April 25.—Aroused by the murder Wednesday morining of Peter Fafinski, citizens of the Sixteenth ward, mostly Polish-Americans, have organized a vigilance committee, whose object will be to drive the objectionable element from the ward. Lawlessness for years has characterized that part of the city and the committee will make a determined effort to purify the district.

Fafinski was shot by robbers. Julius Fafinski, son of the dead man who also was shot is reported to be dying.

Sioux Falls—The United States grand jury returned an indictment against Edwin M. Starcher, county judge of Gregory county, for the alleged forgery of a final proof paper, covering a quarter section of government land.

Rochford—One of the well-to-do residents of the Rochford vicinity, Elwood P. Smith, died here after several weeks' illness. He has been in the hospital at Lead for some time, and has started for Missouri on his doctor's advice, stopping off here to settle some affairs.

Scotland—The mayor has called a special election on May 5 for the purpose of voting on the proposition of bonding the town for $10,000 for the purpose of building a new school house.

Pierre—A special from Huron in regard to the Hughes county Republican convention at Blunt to select delegates to the state convention, contains the statement that Congressman Burke would be given the delegation, but would not be allowed to name the men. The facts in regard to the convention are that a resolution was passed by a rousing vote without a single protest that "Congressman Burke be allowed to name the delegation to the state convention," and the delegation named was his choosing. The fight for control of city affairs in no way affected his candidacy, both factions being solidly in favor of endorsing and instructing for him and allowing him to control the convention as he chose.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Yates—Investigation of the charges against Indian Agent Bigenheimer were begun here this morning by Inspector Nelson. There is no excitement among the Indians and few of them are here. They seem to be satisfied with Bibenheimer's conduct of their affairs.

Fargo—Rugby comes to the front with a church row. Rev. Mr. Smith, the pastor of the Methodist church, thought the parsonage would looke better if properly painted. Through his friends he raised the money and started in on the job. He made the fatal mistake, however, of not consulting the trustees, some of whom are reported to be inimical to him. The trustees were angered over being ignored and ordered a cessation of the decorative work. The parson now has a half-painted parsonage and a full-sized schism on his hands.

Mayor Sweat and members of the city council will leave Friday evening for Wilton to inspect the Washburn coal mines. The officials will be the guests of Traffic Manager Walker, of the Bismarck, Washburn & Great Falls road. It is planned to interest Fargoans more generally in the use of native coal, especially in public furnaces. Last season a larger amount of lignite was used than any two seasons before, and the people are beginning to appreciate the value of the North Dakota prouuct.

A peculiar accident occurred on the Northern Pacific from St. Paul to Fargo. A hot water heater box in the smoking car exploded and tore a hole through the roof and broke a few windows in the end of the coach. The door was smashed and one passenger slightly injured by being struck by the knob and another by flying glass. The coach was filled with steam for a few moments and the passengers almost stampeded.

The Red Cross organization, a mutual insurance concern here, is in a quandary. The present organization is to be dissolved and the insurance features have been disposed of to another benefit concern. The local lodge has some funds on hand and does not care to turn it over without being cared for by some other lodge. There are about 100 members and they have held a meeting which did not result in a definite decision and another is to be held later on to decide formally what shall be done.

The local land office has decided the case of Dolan vs. Byer, involving a quarter section of Barnes county land, in favor of Byer. The evidence showed that his entry was made in good faith and he had complied nominally with the requirements of the homestead act.

CHARGE OF HERESY.

Rebirth of Souls Not a Methodist Doctrine.

Chicago, April 25.—Southern Illinois Methodists are much concerned over the approaching trial at Freeburg, Ill., of the Rev. Columbus Bradford, formerly pastor of the Okawville M. E. church, on the charge of heresy.

The doctrines which Rev. Mr. Bradford has taught in a book recently published, entitled, "Birth, a New Chance," and for which he is to stand trial, involves Buddhistic tenets, in regard to reincarnation.

The book's author rejects entirely the idea of the soul's transmigration in the bodies of lower animals, but prefers to take, as a doctrine, a literal translation of the scriptured phrase, "Ye must be born again." He believes the souls of deceased bodies are born again in the natural process of generation into new bodies and, in this birth, a new opportunity opens for the soul. From this belief Rev. Mr. Bradford gives the name of his book.

The case, when it comes to trial, will probably be the most noted Methodist trial in the history of Illinois.

The action of the presiding elder in summarily deposing Rev. Mr. Bradford is bitterly resented by his former church. So pronounced grew the feeling that a committee of prominent church members, composed of George F. Gscharner, J. W. Miller, A. W. McNew, August Backs, W. M. Miller John Burrows, John Donaho and Thomas Beckman, who carried with them a lengthy petition asking the ministers reinstatement, was given the presiding elder. Their reception, as claimed by the members of the committee, was anything but cordial and a determination to push the contest to the bitter end was agreed upon.

Rev. Mr. Bradford still remains at Okawville and is paid his salary and furnished a hall to continue his labors. He is a man of unusual ability and came to the conference from Minnesota. His work at Okawville has been of a high order and among his parishioners the teachings of his book are unknown—not one of his congregation recalling an incident in his sermons that in any way brought out its peculiar theories.

HUGHES LE ROUX

Says He Wrote Story Credited to Daudet.

Chicago, April 25.—Hughes Le Roux, the French lecturer, declared to an audience of students at the university of Chicago that he was the author of one of the best known short stories printed over the name of Alphonse Daudet.

Daudet, he said, had contracted to write the story, but was too busy. Le Roux, who was a struggling secretary at the time, took the work from Daudet's hands and sent "La Belle Nivernaise" to the publishers.

"Such practices are not uncommon," said M. Le Roux. "Daudet was anxious to send a story to an American magazine, to which he had promised a short piece of fiction. He came to me and asked if I had anything that would do. I did not have anything at the time, but I had something in mind and wrote it. The story was received well and Daudet was given considerable praise."

A Strong Program Prepared For Northern Chautauqua Meeting.

Menominee—At the meeting of the club women of Marinette and Menominee and the directors of the Northern Chautauqua assembly, the program for this year's Chautauqua was announced. Helen Stone, R. P. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimac; Dr. Frank Bristol, of Washington; Miss Sybil Sammis, of Chicago; Carl Germane, the noted magician; Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin, and others of note, will have parts. On children's day there will be a play by over 20 olittle ones. The closing event will be a drama by home talent under the direction of Virginia Keating (Miss Josephine McGilian, of this city) of the James O'Neill company, now playing "Monte Cristo."

The Jerry Madden Shingle company, of Rapid River, which has about 3,500,000 feet of logs and 80,000 ties up the Escanaba river, brought its drivers down recently, there being insufficient water to continue the work. The company had seventy men on the drive.

William White, who enlisted in the United States army at this place on April 9, and skipped out on the same night, has reported just in time to save himself from being declared a deserter. He said he was somewhat under the influence of liquor and in company with another lumberjack went north. As soon as he became sober he realized what he had done and hastened to return before his ten days were up. The other two men who skipped on the same day have not yet returned. The recruiting officer has learned they went to Niagara and then up on the drive.

Capt. Edward Carns, of Barry Brothers' line steamer, Badger State; William Kuhnle, of this city, and Max Richter, proprietor of large vinegar works, of Manitowoc, were born in the same year, in the same town, in the same block and are all Germans. Each is 42 years old. Mr. Richter's birthday is on April 13, Mr. Kuhnle's on April 14 and Capt. Carns' on April 15. When boys, the three were always together. They have arranged to meet and celebrate their forty-fifth birthdays.

Gladstone—The Delta County Medical association met here to discuss the best means of combating smallpox. The conference was well attended. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, D. N. Kee, of Gladstone; vice president, A. L. Laing, of Rapid River; secretary, H. Long, of Escanaba; treasurer, D. Nelson, of Escanaba.

Sault Ste. Marie—The rush of immigrants to the Northwest this spring is unprecedented, the Canadian Pacific railway, Soo line and Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroads being compelled to run special trains in order to accommodate the foreigners coming into this country by way of Canada. A special train passed through the city Thursday containing 343 immigrants.

We won't let anyone give you quite as good a spring suit for $15 as we will. Come, see.

A LONG CHASE

After a Husband Finally Ended In Divorce.

Chicago, April 25.—Mrs. Harry Brothin has been granted a decree of divorce from Harry Brothin after following him thousands of miles. Brothin married his wife in Odessa. After eight months of married life he ran away from her and went to Edinburg, Scotland. She located him, but he escaped again and went to London. She tracked him there, but again he left her and returned to Odessa. She pursued. He ran away this time to New York. The wife followed, traced him from New York to Chicago, and caught him. He deserted her after a year and went back to Odessa. She chased him and overtook him. He slipped away to other European cities and was found every time. He came back to America and dogged from city to city, finally making good his escape into Canada. Mrs. Brothin became discouraged at last and stopped her search. Having taken up her residence in Chicago, she at last ended the long story in the divorce court.

CALVE

Says Her Voice Cannot Stand the Climate.

New York, April 25.—To friends who had gathered at the American line pier to bid her good-bye Mme. Emma Calve, just before the St. Paul sailed, announced that she would not return to America again in a professional capacity. It had been supposed that she would return next season. Maurice Grau and Max Hirsch, his manager, were at the pier and when Mme. Calve declared she was not coming back both smiled as if they thought she would probably change her mind.

"I shall sing before King Edward three days after the coronation," Mme. Calve said, "and then I shall go to my home in Central France for a much needed rest. The reason I shall not return to the United States is because these annual trips are wearing me out. The climate of all countries except France disagrees with me. I have many friends over here and I greatly regret to have to bid them a permanent farewell. It would mean the ruin of my voice, however, if I returned, and so my decision is in the nature of self-protection."

DEVOTED

Sweetheart Cheers Rich Manufacturer Who Is In Jail.

Troy, Ohio, April 25.—Cheered by daily visits from his sweetheart, Leo Canda, the rich slot machine manufacturer of Cincinnati, who is serving a month's sentence in the jail here for sending obscene pictures through the mails, has rallied from the despondent view he at first took of his incarceration and is now eagerly looking forward to the time when he shall again be free, for he will then be married to the devoted young woman.

The details to the pretty romance leaked out today. Canda, it seems, while touring through Europe last summer, met in Berlin, Germany, Miss Leah von Holdt, the daughter of an officer in the German army. The two fell in love, and when Canda left for this country he brought with him the young woman's promise to follow him here and marry him. About two weeks ago she arrived in Cincinnati to carry out her intentions, but found that Canda had been arrested in the meantime and was being tried in the United States district court on the charge of which he was found guilty. Her loyalty to him, however, never weakened, even after he was found guilty and sentenced. She always avowed her belief that he was innocent of intended wrongdoing.

He was placed in the jail here last week. On Sunday a number of his friends from Cincinnati visited him, and among them was Miss Boldt. She brought her clothes with her, and declared her intention of staying in Troy so that she could visit him daily until his time should expire. At the expiration of the sentence Canda's friends say that they will materially assist in making the wedding, which will be immediately performed, one of the most notable of the season here.

Miss Boldt is stopping with a private family here, and the marriage will occur in their home.

Canda was sentenced to the jail at Troy for sending obscene pictures through the mails. The case was a peculiar one and attracted considerable attention because of his prominence. It seems that, during his absence in Europe, one of his employes, a man named Miller, sent some photographs for picture machines through the mails, instead of by express, as had been Mr. Canda's custom. The pictures were said to have been obscene, and, on his return from his European tour, Canda was arrested. He pleaded guilty to the charge, as did Miller. The latter was fined $100 and costs, while Canda, who expected only the same punishment, it is said, was sentenced to serve a month's time in the Troy (Ohio) jail.

POOL OF PACKERS

Scale of Prices Fixed Each Week By Beef Combine.

Use of Cold Storage Plants Is Called a Curse.

Can Keep Meat For Two Years While Prices Soar.

Chicago, April 25.—"There is a meat trust and a big one, too."

That is what a man who for seventeen years was engaged in business at the stockyards said, and he is prepared to go before a committee of the United States senate and prove what he says.

"There are only a few men who have inside information on this question," he said, "and at the present time it would not be wise to disclose my identity. At the proper time I shall do so."

The situation is this:

Laborers have been imported by the big packers and wages forced to a low level.

Cattle bought at 6 cents a pound on the hoof can be sold at 8 cents a pound dressed and a handsome profit realized. This is on account of the valuable by-products.

The rise in prices is the direct result of the crushing of competition. A pool is formed among the packers which fixes prices every week. Any violation of the rules of the trust is met by heavy fines.

Rebates are collected from the railways.

The use of cold storage plants is a curse rather than a blessing. The plants enable the packers to keep meat for two years, while prices may go soaring.

All investigations heretofore have resulted in whitewashing the members of the alleged trust.

"The packers can buy cattle on the hoof at 6 cents a pound, and if sold at 8 cents a pound dressed they will make a handsome profit."

"The claim that the offal is practically waste is a misrepresentation. It is worth more than the meat itself. I could raise $1,000,000 of capital in twenty-four hours and agree to kill the cattle, taking the offal at the livestock price, including the intestines and what is inside them. The fact is that cattle dresses away from 35 to 40 per cent. The 40 per cent comes from the very poorest of canners.

"I would like to ask the packers what green hides are worth today. This is one of the offals included in the 35 to 40 per cent. I would also like to ask what the blood from each steer is worth; also the shin bones, horns, intestines, liver and heart. It would be hard to get an answer. Take the different oils, including neat's foot oil, which are abstracted from the by-products. They are immensely valuable. Altogether these products of a steer are worth and bring more than what the beef does on foot."

"The secret today in the high prices of meat is that the packers buy their cattle in the early fall for cold storage purposes. These cattle cost all the way from 2½ to 4 cents live weight. They are put in the chill room and kept there until prices advance to satisfy the greed of the trust. In some instances the meat is not sold until two years after the killing.

"The first of April and May the packers make a point of having tons of chilled meat on hand and holding it until prices are forced up.

"The claim that there is no beef trust is all bosh. There is an understanding and agreement, which is stronger than any trust, between the big houses. These packers meet as a rule every Wednesday and fix the prices for the following week. They all live up to the agreement."

"How is this agreement enforced?" was asked.

"It is done in the same manner as railways form a pool. The packers have an auditor, who is in receipt of a handsome salary. It is true some of them sell under the scale, but the punishment is swift.

"Each of the packers has a large deposit to the credit of the combine. In case of violation of trust prices, the offender is fined from $500 to $10,000, and this penalty is always paid. Sometimes it pays to violate the terms of the pool."

"What connection have the railways with the scheme?"

"The packers have the same agreement with the railways as the Standard Oil company. They get a rebate, or mileage, of 1 cent each way on their refrigerator cars and cattle cars, and ¾ of a cent on stock. For instance, a refrigerator car running between here and New York would earn on the round trip about $30 for milegae rebate. If the car cost $1,000 it will pay for itself in a little over a year.

"Besides this, the railway companies bid for the packers' business and make them a price of from 4 to 6 cents per hundred inside their schedule price, thus violating the law. This commission was being given up to Jan. 1, 1902, to my personal knowledge."

"Is the statement true that the packers meet competition from the smaller houses?"

"No, that is not true. A packing company was started at Minneapolis in 1890 or 1891 and its fate was the same as others. The concern was called the Minneapolis Beef company, and it had a capital of $500,000. Efforts were immediately made to destroy it. Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson Morris & Co., Libby, McNeil & Libby, the Hammond Packing company and the Cudahys, with others, shipped dressed beef into Minneapolis and St. Paul at from 1 to 2 cents a pound loss. This was kept up until the Minneapolis company was ruined financially."

"How do the packers get a monopoly of the cattle?" was asked.

"They make a point of loaning money to the cattle raisers," was the answer. "A large number of them buy this stock outright in the fall of the year and feed them on the ranges throughout the West. These cattle are held back until such time as the shipment of them will warrant large profits. By this means the packers practically control the live stock market."

Another means by which the alleged monopoly is established is said to be cold-storage.

You will look well in one of our $15 spring suits.

ATE PING PONG BALL.

Veterinary Surgeon Extracted Pieces From Dog's Anatomy.

New York, April 25.—Brownie is the pet collie of Mrs. Gustav Jacoby, of Madison avenue. Several weeks ago a ping pong set was taken to the house, and the game has been a regular amusement every day for the dog.

Several of the family were playing the game Sunday evening when they heard loud yells of agony. They rushed into the next room and found Brownie writhing in pain. They missed one of the ping pong balls, which the dog was seen playing with, and came to the conclusion that he had swallowed it.

So pitiful was the moans of the dog that Miss Elsie Jacoby ordered a cab and drove down to the canine infirmary, where a doctor examined the animal. He found a large needle sticking in his throat and took it out with a pair forceps.

This did not, however, seem to allay the pain of the pet, so an operation was decided upon yesterday. It was found that pieces of ping pong balls were sticking in the animal's anatomy, and these were all extracted.

Brownie is on the high road to recovery.

Condition of the Colored People.

The friends of the colored men are strongly urging the favorable recommendation of a bill introduced by Congressman Irwin, of Kentucky, and which is now before a sub-committee of the house committee on labor. The bill creates a commission to inquire into the condition of the colored people of the United States. Many prominent men have urged a favorable report on the measure, as its passage would furnish a means of getting at real facts concerning the negro, his progress, social status, general condition and needs. It was urged by those who appeared before the committee that the investigations should be strictly nonpartisan in character, and that every effort be made to confine the investigation to the collection and publication of facts, without comment or recommendation. The bill provides for the appointment of a commission of five members, to be known as the "freedmen's inquiry commission," whose duty it shall be "to make a comprehensive investigation of the condition of the people, of the negro race in the United States, their educational progress and the best means of promoting harmony between the races in the United States; said commission to investigate and report their views concerning the adjustment of the trouble affecting the harmonious relations of the races." The bill provides that the work of the committee shall be completed within three years and that the salaries of the members shall be $3500 each, with an allowance for actual traveling expenses. The measure has many good features and the results of its passage might do much to solve the race problem. It would seem to be a good thing to pass.

Federal Measures to Protect Game.

Of late years considerable interest has been taken, not only by sportsmen, but by those desirous of conserving the wild animals and birds in the United States, in securing national legislation for the domain not protected by state laws. By the action of these parties three bills have been introduced before congress, which will prove of great advantage if passed. What is known as the "Alaska bill" has passed the house and been reported by the senate committee, without amendment, and so far as known, without opposition. It will probably pass. It seeks to protect all the big game and the birds of Alaska in much the same way as the game laws of the states. It prohibits the shipping of deer hides, and fixes seasons for the capture of big game and birds. It is, however, less stringent than similar laws here; Indians are excepted from its operation and also miners who need the animals for food. It would be impossible to enforce a stringent law there, and yet the whole region is alone among the places of this continent in being without protective legislation of any kind. The Canadians have very good game laws. The bill which has been reported by the house committee to transfer the forest reserves to the department of agriculture has a large bird and game aspect. The trouble heretofore in making this transfer has been a vagueness concerning the boundary lines of the reserve, and, of course, their settlement is a matter of land office regulation. The proposed bill provides for transfer only after the boundaries are definitely fixed; then, if the governor of the state in which the reserve is situated recommends that it be also made a game preserve, the secretary of agriculture will be empowered, acting on his discretion, to do this. Since the forest reserves contain approximately as much land as all of New England and New York, it will be seen that many of the species of the native animals of America will have a new lease of life afforded them. A third bill proposes to give the secretary of agriculture authority to permit the importation of the eggs of game birds intended for propagation. Now, there is an absolute prohibition of such importations, and since many persons cannot afford to import the live birds for propagation purposes, it is believed that permission to bring in the eggs would have a beneficial effect. This would put eggs on the same basis as the birds themselves; which are now admitted through the custom houses at the discretion of the secretary of agriculture. This bill passed the house and will probably receive early consideration in the senate. The prohibition measure which it would displace is believed to have been mistaken legislation, and to have been passed under a misapprehension as to its effects. The progress already made is exceedingly gratifying and will be much appreciated by the advocates of the measures.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

A long deadlock in the conference committee on the river and harbor bill might prove dangerous to the passage of that measure. The bill passed the senate with but little trouble, but some of the changes that were made are likely to provoke a controversy in conference. The irrigationists have decided not to oppose the harbor bill, not for the present at least, as they have strong hopes that the house will do something for them. It is doubtful, however, if they can hurt the bill if so inclined.

The senate has added $10,000,000 to the bill, half in cash and half in authorization. Some of the projects thus included are said to be very objectionable; one is so bad that when the same item was in the bill that failed last year the engineer bureau of the war department and the secretary of war advised President McKinley to veto the whole thing unless this provision could be eliminated. The house conferees will try to reduce to the smallest proportions items of this class introduced to placate senators.

But the great controversy between the houses will come in the provision of th senate bill in regard to bridges, the completion of which is not accomplished within the time fixed in the act gdanting the right. The senate bill provides that it will not be necessary in such a case for a bridge company to come to congress for an extension of time as now, but that the secretary of war may have power to grant it. Such a provision was in the house bill as introduced but was stricken out, in deference to the committee on the interstate and foreign commerce, before whom in the house such a matter should come. Its chairman, Mr. Hepburn, is much opposed to this, believing that in many cases franchises are secured to exclude rivals, and for speculative purposes, and that this provision would make easier such procedure. Another provision of the senate bill authorizes the secretary of war to accept surety companies on the bonds of contractors, who undertake river and harbor work. This is recommended by the department, and will probably be accepted by the house conferees.

However, notwithstanding all these differences awaiting adjustment, the prospects of the passage of the bill are very good.

WAR WITH THE MOROS.

But a week or two ago the president and the secretary of war wrote a sharp and almost insulting letter to Gen. Miles because he presumed to differ from the administration fiction that the war in the Philippines has ended. For this reason, it was alleged, his plan of ending the war without further bloodshed was proposed too late—the war was over! But the general was right on this point—as he was correct in his statement that the war had been conducted with "unusual severity." Today Gen. Chaffee is confronted with the prospect of a Moslem war. The Moro chiefs who were persuaded once by Gen. Bates of our army to cease armed opposition to the American advance, on the understanding that the alleged "mild system" of slavery which prevailed among these wild Mahometan tribes should be continued, now threaten a new uprising against our rule. If, as now seems but too probable, the dattos, or chiefs, of these semi-savage tribes unite to defend by force of arms what they claim to be their right, the fires of warfare which appear to have been stamped out in the Malva and the Gonzales movements may be rekindled all too soon and too speedily by the slavery-loving, fanatical Moros of Mindanao.

The tribesmen over whom these dattos exercise well-nigh absolute sway differ widely and in many respects from the Filipinos generally. Of the total fighting force of 20,000 men which the dattos may put in the field in case of actual war, less than 1000 are armed with rifles. Yet we know very well that even if a majority of the forces at the command of these fanatical chiefs can carry as arms only the spear and the bolo, a strong and stubborn resistance may easily be made to American advance. That the Moros of Mindanao are religious fanatics, firmly believing that death on the battlefield in defence of their faith is a sure and speedy passport to heaven and its houris, does not indicate that they can be easily beaten or suppressed.

The Moro chiefs in Mindanao failed to respond, as a rule, to Gen. Chaffee's invitation to hold a conference. Although the failure to accept Gen. Chaffee's invitation on the part of the dattos was in itself strong evidence of distrust of American plans and purposes in their island, our commander sent word through one datto grande, or leader, to a number of chiefs who failed to meet him as he had hoped they would do.

In this message the general assured the dattos, one and all, of the friendly intention for the United States, but giving them warning that they must deliver up the murderers of the American soldiers. Gen. Chaffee reminded the dattos that the island of Mindanao had passed into the possession of the United States by the treaty of Paris, and that the Americans intend to explore the country and build roads, etc., peacefully, if possible, but that they will not brook interference on the part of the native chiefs. He declared moreover, that the Americans will unfailingly enforce law and order, and protect the American civil and military officials in carrying out their duty.

In view of the various attempts made to palliate the system of human bondage which has long prevailed among the fanatical Moros of Mindanao, it may be rather difficult to persuade the Moros now that their system of slavery is absolutely out of keeping with American ideas. Even the armed forces which have been sent to Mindanao by Gen. Chaffee's orders are likely to find some slight difficulties in the way of persuading these suspicious tribes that wherever the stars and stripes float "the normal condition" of the country and of its inhabitants of every hue is that of freedom. Many will ask in the generations to come, "How could an American authority ever have been so misused as to persuade Mahometan Moros in the Philippines that human slavery as they practiced it could be tolerated for a year, a month, or even a single day, in a land over which waved the stars and stripes, the banner of freedom?" It was a great mistake, and it may cost many lives and much hard work to right it.

WINDOW GARDENS.

A movement has begun in Brooklyn, N. Y., to make that city more attractive by attention to window gardening. An organization has been formed, the purpose of which is to persuade the occupants of every house in a given block to fill their window ledges with flowers, vines and other green things. A house-to-house canvass is in progress and much interest is being aroused in the movement.

Window gardening would aid very greatly in making Duluth beautiful. Of course gardens are more attractive, and many people are able to beautify their homes in that way, but, unfortunately, there are many places which have very small front yards, while others have none. In such localities flourishing window gardens would be especially pleasing. They would make life more delightful for residents, and would give visitors a better impression of the city. There are many flowers and vines that flourish in well cared for window boxes.

In many cities window gardens are a noticeable feature. They give a city a bright, refreshing appearance. Duluth would be the better for an awakening of interest in the window garden and its possibilities.

In the discussion as to the advisability of postponing the Louisiana Purchase exposition to 1904 because it is a presidential election year the fact is cited, by those who favor that year, that the Centennial exposition held at Philadelphia in 1876 during the Hayes-Tilden campaign for the presidency, was from a financial standpoint the only successful universal exposition ever held in this country. A large percentage of the stockholders' subscriptions to that exposition were returned to them. On the other hand it will be remembered that the Centennial was the first world's fair ever held in this country in commemoration of an event in our history and was therefore a novelty. They have been coming pretty frequently since.

Merchants of Reading, Pa., to the number of 200, have held a conference and declared it to be their united intention to do no advertising except in the newspapers. They will have no more to do with bill boards in the city or sign boards in the country. They have promised themselves and each other to put no more advertisements in hotel registers, charts, programs, cook books, dodgers, pamphlets or anything else of the sort. They feel certain that their plan of operation will prove a wise one and they will have better value for the money expended.

The new tax law passed by the Ohio legislature under which quasi-public corporations will be compelled to pay a tax of 1 per cent on their gross incomes; and private corporations one-tenth of 1 per cent on their capital stock, is a part of a plan by which, when it is perfected, it is proposed to do away with direst property taxes as a means of getting funds for the state government and to leave property taxes on real estate and personality to the counties and municipalties exclusively.

When Horace Greely became a vegetarian he felt for the first few weeks as if he were recovering from a state of prolonged intoxication. When he had finally adjusted himself to the change, he was more vigorous, mentally and physically, and gave it as his deliberate opinion that the universal adoption of the vegetarian diet would add ten years to the average of human life. At present meat prices the Greeley experiment can be easily tried.

The interstate commerce commission has issued a bulletin showing for the three months ended September 30, 1901, a grand total of 725 killed and 2622 injured in train accidents of all kinds in the United States. The total number of train collisions was 1245, derailments 1003, causing damage aggregating $1,842,226 to cars, engines and roadways, exclusive of damage to merchandise.

Are Women Scarce Out West?

'Twas a voice from the West, and it spoke
In a plaintive and feminine tone;
"Oh, the matter is passing a joke
And we wish you would let it alone.

"In our own matrimonial affairs
No assistance that's Eastern we need;
We can match up our own little pairs
When the parties are sort of agreed.

"Time was, and it's not long ago,
When our men who were hunting a wife
Would have scorned to have sought your 'bureau'
To secure a sweet partner for life.

"Temptation they never had felt
From charms occuental to roam,
But with due devotion had knelt
To what they could find around home.

"But now, since you're helping to find
Each poor, fickle creature a mate
There is nothing, it seems, to their mind
But a woman from some Eastern state.

"Their excuse is that women are few,
But somehow we always have found,
And we think that they all the time knew
There were more than enough to go round.

"We therefore implore you to close
Your 'bureau;' the fond wedding knot
Can be tied up right here, goodness knows,
And we need all the men that we've got."

Thrift in Louisiana.

Hartford Times: The outcry about the British army supply camp in Louisiana comes when the war in South Africa is nearly ended, and it makes little difference to the British government whether the arrangement is continued or not. It was very thoughtful on the part of the Louisiana people to take in several millions of English money before discovering the wicked character of the traffic in which they had so profitably engaged.

The President in the South.

New York Sun: The welcome which Mr. Roosevelt has received at Charleston and the impression produced by his presence and his finely conceived remarks there will remain among the notable events in the history of the present administration. There is no more doubt of the sincerity of the president's welcome by the South Carolinans than there is of the sincerity of his utterances to them. It was an occasion which brought the heart of the North and the heart of the South nearer together.

Trade With the Philippines.

Chicago Chronicle: A still later report is made of the commerce between the United States and the Philippines. Corrected returns for the last year show the trade to have been over 4,000,000. This was an increase of 20 per cent over the previous year. In the meantime the commerce of other nations with the Philippines is more than $30,000,000 a year, with a percentage of increase about equal to that of United States commerce. Shall we ever catch up with the commerce of other nations seven times greater than ours and increasing in about the same ratio?

Pledged For Happiness

By Beula Sanders.

(Copyright, 1902, W. R. Hearst.)

On that June evening James Wilson, superintendent, was detained at the mill until dusk had fallen. Sharp at the usual hour for closing George, his son, had put the big ledgers in the safe and hurried away for a game of tennis with Rose Bartlett, the pretty daughter of the mill proprietor.

James Wilson was a grave man, with streaks of gray in his beard, but he smiled tenderly with a reminiscent look in his eyes, at his son's haste to join the party on the Bartlett lawn. Now, everything being secure for the night at the mill, his feet absently took the same direction, though another way should bring him more quickly to his belated supper.

As he neared the front gate of the mansion he saw two figures standing in the dusk, and their attitudes were lover-like. Again the father smiled, for the figures were those of his son and Rose. Presently he saw the girl extend her hand over the gate, saw the young man press it to his lips and walk away with one glance backward at the graceful form that was more than all else in the world to him.

The superintendent had finished his evening meal when his son entered. The boy looked depressed.

"Beaten at tennis?" said his father. "Who is the new champion?"

"I was not beaten, father—that is, at tennis," answered the boy. And then he sighed. After a pause he added:

"Father, I must go away."

"What about, my boy?"

"Mrs. Bartlett thinks I see Rose too often."

"What does Rose think about it?"

"Father," said the boy, impulsively, "I have every reason to believe that Rose loves me as I love her, and I know her father is in my favor—"

"Why don't you speak to her mother?"

"I dare not."

The father went to his desk and unlocked a small drawer. From this he took a bundle of faded papers. From among them he selected one and returned to his seat by the open window. His face was in the shadow of a bookcase and remained there while he spoke.

"George, my boy, things in this world often take a turn for the better when we least expect it. When you were barely three years old a poor fellow in tattered garments, walking down the old turnpike that leads to the mill, felt that it was useless for him to struggle longer with fate. He was starving. His wife had died for lack of the commonest food and care. His little boy, scantily more than a babe, was alone and ill in a garret.

"In passing the mill the tramp looked through the office window and saw a young man putting money into a pile of small envelopes. e was just finishing this task. Presently he placed the fat-looking envelopes in a small box, locked it, and carrying the box in his hand emerged from the building and walked away.

"As though fascinated by the sight of money that would be the means of saving his baby's life, if he only had a small portion of it, the tramp followed at a little distance. It was nearly dark and he was not observed. The man with the box entered the grounds of a fine residence. The tramp followed, and when the man with the box entered the house he concealed himself behind a rosebush under a front window.

"A month later a light streamed from the window. The tramp looked in and saw the box on a table. A lady was in the room putting on her hat. In a few minutes the lady and the man left the house and walked away. The tramp heard them speak to each other about a call they were going to make in the town.

"It seemed to the tramp that he lay there under the rose bush for hours struggling with his temptation. The house seemed deserted. The poor fellow was starving, yet he thought only of his child. At last the thought became unendurable. The tramp rose and tried the window. He raised the sash easily. In a moment he was in the room; his hand was almost on the box, but not quite. He was startled by a sound in the next room.

"He recognized the sound. It was the same that had come from the throat of his own baby boy when he was near dying from a sudden attack of croup. He rushed into the child's room. When he saw the little heaving chest and the purple face, all thought of the box left him.

"The tramp remembered that a doctor lived less than a block away. There was no time to go for him. He seemed to hear his own child again fighting with death. Impulsively he took the infant in his arms and ran with it from the house and to the doctor's residence. The doctor received him at the door and took the child. Then the tramp, overcome with fatigue and hunger, fainted.

"When the tramp recovered consciousness he found himself in the doctor's house, and beside the couch where he lay stood the man who had carried the box from the mill and the lady who had left the house with him. They held his hands and were telling him that he had saved their child's life.

"That very evening the tramp's baby boy lay sleeping safely in a little bed near that of the little girl he had saved. On the following day the tramp, decently clad, was set to work in the mill—where he has been these twenty years"—

"Father!" exclaimed George Wilson, springing forward. But the elder man held up his hand.

"Wait, my boy." The tramp made himself invaluable to his new friends. One day he received a note from the mother of the child he had saved. Here it is, my boy. Read it."

George took the faded paper and opened it. Then he knew that he had interpreted his father's tale aright. In the note Mrs. Bartlett thanked her friend, James Wilson, for saving the life of her little daughter, Rose, and pledged herself for the future, in all ways, to endeavor to promote his happiness and that of his little son, George.

It was strange that neither father, nor son, as they now stood with clasped hands observed the entrance unannounced of privileged visitors. They were Rose and her mother, and they brought the latest magazines. Mrs. Bartlett saw the faded letter in the boy's hands. Her eyes met those of James Wilson, then followed his to Rose and George, who stood side by side. There was no need for explanations.

"I will keep my pledge," said Mrs. Bartlett in a soft voice. Then she added:

"George, Rose and I wish to invite you to spend your vacation with us at Bar Harbor."

Try Something Else.

Brooklyn Eagle: Why this wailing and wringing of hands over the price of beef? There is plenty of other things to eat.

Heyday of the Poets.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Coincident with the appointment of Mr. Ware as pension commissioner, came the discovery of a new comet in the constellation Pegasus.

What Are We Coming To.

New York Tribune: The postal receipts in this republic are now so large, and have shown such encouraging percentages of increase, that the prospect of 1-cent stamps for letters looks less like the baseless fabric of a vision than it did a few years ago.

Working an Old Trick.

New York Tribune: Shrewd British tradesmen have adopted the trick which prevailed here when the McKinley tariff was adopted, namely, of putting up prices about ten times as high as the increased duty raises them. The rule here was that if the tariff was increased 50 cents a dozen pairs on gloves, the retailer should raise his price 50 cents for each pair. But that sort of game will not work permanently.

Pleading For Their Own.

Chicago Record-Herald: Three million people have signed a petition to congress asking for a reduction of the tax on whiskey. It would be interesting to know if any of those 3,000,000 really believes he would get more for his money if the tax were reduced than he does at present.

New York Press: The man may kiss and tell, but the girl never will.

There are very few people in this world smart enough to know how not to be too smart.

"Startling" the House.

Chicago News: Congressman Cushman made a sensation the other day by declaring in the house that Speaker Henderson was the whole works. Some day a brilliant member will startle that body by announcing that the sun rises in the East and sets in the West.

Civil vs. Military View.

Manila Freedom: Mr. Taft, on the advice of Chief Allen of the constabulary, has testified in the senate as well as spread it broadcast through the country in the shape of interviews, that within a year the army in the Philippines can be reduced to 15,000 men. Gen. Wheaton's opinion that 50,000 will be necessary for a long term of years has not been given so much prominence. Gen. Chaffee sits back in his chair and chuckles to himself, and in the meantime the insurgents carry off presidentes under the nose of the constabulary within fifteen miles of Manila.

A Poor Investment.

Minneapolis Tribune: Germany is another country that finds colonies unprofitable. The income for the past year is stated at $2,000,000 and the outgo at $7,500,000. The experience of Spain, Germany and the United States for several years past is hardly favorable to colonial extension as a financial investment.

Salivating a Sore Spot.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Governor Jeff Davis writes to a correspondent: "I knew you were never my friend, although you pretended to be. I could see it from your snaky eyes on the bench and felt it in the clammy clasp of your Cassius-like hand." It is not every state in which politics is enlivened with these little studies in physiognomy.

Strangling a Popular Measure.

Philadelphia Ledger: There seems to be no doubt that Senator Depew's amendment to the bill providing for popular election of United States senators insures the defeat of that measure, as the committee's report, with the amendment in it, is sure to be rejected. And yet that amendment only provides for equal suffrage throughout the country.

Quality, Not Quantity.

Boston Transcript: Felix Adler takes Cecil Rhodes' measure quite accurately when he says: "He was big, large, vast, but not great. Greatness depends upon quality and not quantity. It is a provincialism to believe your family better than any other family, and equally so to believe one race better than any other race."

It is fashioned with a novel basque or skirt which appears only at the side and back, and the large collar is of embroidered batiste over a still larger collar of embroidered taffeta. The sleeves are very wide and flaring at the wrist and have double turned-back cuffs of taffeta and batiste. A belt of folded taffeta completes the jacket which is a pretty model for spring wear. All the tucks are stitched with Corticelli sewing silk.

A novel feature or blouse jackets as well as for Eton skirt jackets and dressy garments in general is the jabot vest effect. It has been stated that some of the foremost Paris houses will accentuate the drooping shoulder effet both in waists and in out door garments. Quite a feature in jackets is the long coat collar of taffeta which are variously enhanced with large collars and revers of lace or of ribbon run embroidered linen.

White House Callers Sat On the Floor.

Washington, April 25.—President Roosevelt was treated to an unusual sight Wednesday morning when he suddenly entered the east room to receive a large party of girls from Roanoke college in Virginia, who were waiting to see him by appointment. The president was delayed for more than an hour after the appointed time, and as the girls, most of them pretty and all young, were tired from sight-seeing and could not be provided with chairs, they disposed themselves like Chinese idols, true tailor fashion, about the floor. After several alarms about the approach of the president, they became both reconciled and composed. When the president did finally arrive and walked suddenly into the room, it was to catch them in a great scurry to regain their feet. President Roosevelt enjoyed the scene, and it was the heartiest, merriest hand-shaking the east room has seen for a long time.

A FROG

Thrived In a Woman's Stomach For Five Years.

New York, April 25.—A patient has just been discharged from St. Catherine's hospital in Brooklyn, whose case is said to be the most remarkable in the history of that institution. A live frog, nearly four inches in length, was removed from the stomach of a woman.

The patient, Mrs. Charles Burtis, of Hopewell Junction, N. J., believes that the frog had been in her stomach at least five years. It is supposed that she swallowed it in egg form or as a pollywog while drinking water from a country spring.

Mrs. Burtis felt pains in her stomach far more acute than could be caused by indigestion. Medicine prescribed for her by many doctors did no good. As the months passed her sufferings increased.

What seemed to be most puzzling in her system was her abnormal appetite. She could eat more than three average women. She complained constantly of feeling a tearing at her stomach, as if there was something alive there, but was informed by her physicians that this was impossible.

Her sufferings were most severe immediately after eating certain kinds of food.

Finally she was subjected to an X-ray examination. This disclosed a dark object in her stomach, but what it was no one could tell. Not until an operation was performed and the frog removed was the cause of her ailment disclosed.

Because of the fact that Mrs. Burtis was a private patient in St. Catherine's, Dr. Cogswell would not give any details of the case. He admitted that the operation had been performed and that the patient had taken the frog away with her, preserved in alcohol, when she left the hospital.

At the hospital a young physician, who requested that his name be withheld, said the frog was of medium size and that it lived about an hour after it was taken from the patient's stomach. It was fat.

Dr. William A. Rogers, an eminent surgeon, said that if the case of Mrs. Burtis was reported correctly, it was one of the most remarkable in the history of surgery.

"For an animal of any sort to live in the human stomach for that length of time is a thing heretofore unheard of," said he. "Frequently cases are reported where a live animal has been accidentally swallowed, but in all such cases the stomach has ejected the foreign object. In no case have I ever heard of any living animal remaining in the human stomach more than a month."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

J. G. Cain, formerly accountant and register in the court house at Winnipeg, Man., was arrested, charged with forgery. His alleged defalcations will probably amount to $10,000. The government is conducting the prosecution.

The fight Thursday night at the West End club, St. Louis, between Benny anger, the "Tipton Slasher," of Chicago, and Abe Attell, of San Francisco, was stopped in the 19th round by the police on the ground that Attell was on the point of being knocked out. Referee George Siler gave the decision to Yanger, although Attell was still full of fight.

Receiver Hunt of the Allemannia Bank, St. Paul, filed a report in court Thursday afternoon. The total receipts to date are $22,342.52; disbursements, $13,274.48; balance on hand, $8629.04. The receiver asked to be allowed a second dividend of 10 per cent, which will require $7200. The first dividend declared was alson one of 10 per cent.

One of the largest deals in Washington timber lands ever made clears from the market the remaining holding of the Northern Pacific in that state. More than 1,000,000,000 feet of standing cedar, fir, yellow pine and other timber is included. Washington men obtained the greater portion, although the Bradley interests of Wisconsin got a large share. The deal includes 225,000 acres of forest, sold for $625,000. The price ranged close to $2.50 an acre.

ROMANCE IS ENDED

The Final Act of a Tragedy In Senora, Mexico.

Descent From Wealth to the Extreme of Poverty.

Last of Ramirez Goes to Former Home to Die.

Los Angeles, April 25.—The last act of a tragedy was ended when Ferdinand Ramirez died in a little mountain town in the interior of Sonora, Mexico, two days ago.

Ramirez took passage on a Southern Pacific train last Sunday at this place, being then in the last stages of pulmonary consumption. The drama was enacted through 100 years.

In 1820 the family of Ferdinand Ramirez emigrated from Spain to the west coast of Mexico, settling in what is now the state of Sonora. In the veins of the wife and mother ran the blue blood of a long line of the Spanish nobility, and on Ramirez's side the relationship was direct to the Spanish kings of the time of Columbus. The name "Ferdinand" has come down in the family from father to son ever since the days of the great Ferdinand, the husband of Isabella.

Shortly after their arrival in Mexico distant relatives in the north began to send back glowing accounts of the matchless advantages of Southern California, and thither the family, father, mother and two sons, went. They stopped somewhere in the south of Orange county, tradition says on the ranch of Senor Castillo, a Mexican of great wealth, to whom the family was distantly related. Spanish courtesy forbade them to take their departure too early, and so they lingered on, receiving thankfully the hospitality of their host, and yet repaying him in ways of their own. The two sons, grown men, soon became profitable factors in the care of the big property, while the father, thanks to his graciousness and learning and mental superiority, was welcome as long as he should choose to stay.

There was not much change in the easy-going ways of this rancho. And the Ramirez family, accustomed from generation to generation to following the easy life of the Castilian gentry, kept their lazy traditions here. Truly, they did no worse than the rest of their blooded countrymen.

Then the Gringo came. In the little war of the American occupation, the two male members of the house of Castillo were killed, and the women folk fled southward. The ranch property, deserted, fell into the hands of the Ramirez brothers, the father having died some years before.

The eldest claimed the land by reason of his age, all of it; while the younger clamored with all the fury of his hot southern blood for a more just division. To his undoing the elder did not hear, and one day was found in an arroyo near the hacienda with his skull crushed in; this was the only way—knife trusts would have been too palpable. Of course, he had been thrown from his horse. There was great lamentation from the bereaved younger one.

But the good luck which had preceded the Ramirez family through the centuries had turned, and with the death of the eldest, Ferdinand, commenced the downfall. The whole bottom fell out of their vast property holdings. The bargain-hating Yankee came, and by blandishments and promises wormed away from them the entire estate before their ponderous commercial slowness realized that anything was being done. Whatever papers they had for the sale turned out to be worthless.

The heart-broken father, an exile and almost penniless, died, presumably of grief and isappointment. His only child, the son who bore the honored name, tried in a half-hearted way to support the widowed mother and drifted from hacienda to hacienda, visiting where and as long as he could, and working only when he had to.

He eventually married and died in a brawl when his child was only a year old. The wife, a half-breed Indian girl, came toward Los Angeles and settled in a shanty near the Plaza, giving herself and her babe such support as her strength, skill and racial laziness would permit.

But the hatred of the "Gringo" lived in the blood. Years ago Senora Ramirez died rather than accept help at the hands of the invaders.

So, the pitiful family pride stayed longer than its strength. The last Ferdinand Ramirez would not allow the charity of the beloved church to hide them over an exhausting illness, nor set him once more upon his feet in a financial way. And why not? Because the incumbents of the priests' places were none of his blood. Then, over the sensitive, dreamy mouth of long generations of picked ancestors he grew a beard, that the classic features of the passing house might not be disgraced.

Some of his own people helped him to buy a little peanut stand, and with it set up on the edge of the Los Angeles plaza he managed to exist. But a few years of the cold night air, the scant food and unwholesome lodging, perhaps the enfeebling taint of five centuries of luxurious progenitors, told. With a little hacking cough, wasted away so that all he could do was to lie still and look up at the blue sky and dream, the last Ferdinand Ramirez started for the Southern mountains on the overland never to return, and sent by the pity of friends only when he was too feeble to prevent.

No hint of his story came from him, and not until he was away beyond the cruelty of the rapacious world of modern commerce did those who knew him best dare say anything about it. Sometimes, they say, he would never answer to his true name, giving another, that he might not hear the old name pronounced roughly and unconcernedly by unthinking strangers of another land, who could neither know nor care for all the faded splendor that it meant. Like his taciturn mother, he could die suffering, but he could not speak.

FURIOUS

Forest Fires Sweep the Central Portion of Pennsylvania.

Williamsport, Pa., April 25.—During the past forty-eight hours the furious sweep of forest fires in the central section of the state has caused devastation to a vast amount of property, and in two cases the loss of life is attributed to the fire fiend. From Sinnemahoning comes meager details of the fate that befell two men and the thrilliing escape of four others. Mountain fires destroyed a large number of sleepers and caused the rails to spread on Barclay's lumber railroad. An engine and a dozen cars loaded with logs were derailed. The locomotive overturned, pinning two of the six men riding on it under the tender. The other four men saved themselves with great difficulty, but were unable to prevent their comrades, pinned under the tender, from burning to death. The names of the unfortunate men have not been learned. As a result of the fire which destroyed houses, a church, a school house and nine stables in the village of Clintonville, last night, 6-year-old Agnes Fielding lost her life. The child became frightened when the flames attacked the home of her parents, and in attempting to reach a place of safety she fell into a creek and was drowned. Her body was recovered yesterday afternoon a mile from her home.

A critical condition of things exists in the northwestern portion of Lyconning county, in the Pine creek valley. Near Haneyville 400,000 feet of sawed lumber belonging to George Walker was destroyed. Four houses were also burned. Roger's sawmill, on Slick Run, was wiped out of existence during the night. A large amount of sawed lumber was saved with difficulty. Over fifty men worked hard all day and a portion of the night fighting a fierce fire in Mosquito valley above the Williamsport Water company's reservoir. The flames covered an immense area, fully 100 acres being burned over. The fighters finally succeeded in mastering the fire.

The mountains bordering Pine creek are reported ablaze from Ramseyville to Ansonia. At Ramseyville 2500 feet of logs, belonging to Valentine Luppert, of South Williamsport, were destroyed.

At Ridgeway Wednesday night a fire alarm was sounded and the citizens turned out to fight the flames and save the town from destruction.

Passengers arriving here from points along the Philadelphia and Erie railroad state that the forests are ablaze from Renova to Johnsonburg.

SAVED HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Whitcraft Cleared Her Husband of Suspicion of Murder.

Found Alive the Man Supposed to Have Been Killed.

It Had Been a Case of Mistaken Identity.

Philadelphia, April 25.—Truth always has been stranger than fiction. John Reilly, of Evesboro, N. J., was not murdered, neither is he dead, and as a result Samuel Whitcraft is a happy man. He owes his happiness to his wife—and as a matter of fact Reilly owes her a lasting debt of gratitude too—for had it not been for her he would still be dead, although he did not know until a few days ago that he had been off this fair earth. Mrs. Reilly probably is the least happy of all, as the dispelling of her fond delusion leaves her a wife instead of a widow.

To untangle this merry knot of happiness and sorrow, men and spooks, is to relate a rare human experience that leaves fiction utterly out of the race.

John Reilly drank more applejack than was good for him one day several months ago and was put out of Whitcraft's hotel barroom.

They fought, and Whitcraft hit Reilly. He was arrested for assault. Reilly left town for Philadelphia. In a few days came the report of his death in a hospital there. An unwritten charge of murder then was placed over Whitcraft's head, as it was generally understood that Reilly died of the injuries he had done.

The New Jersey prosecutor came here and found that John Reilly was dead all right, but had died of disease, not assault. The law was satisfied, but not so the wife of Whitcraft. She was intensely grieved, and became hysterical whenever she saw Mrs. Reilly dressed in mourning. She decided to investigate.

Several weary weeks passed. The entire neighborhood was wringing with the report that Whitcraft had killed John Reilly.

Two strange men appeared at the Whitcraft home about this time. They said they were detectives from Philadelphia. Mistaking her apparent uneasiness and worry for a deep concern for her husband's safety, the men finally came to the point and demanded $500.

"Give us this money," they said, "and you will never hear anything more about the murder of John Reilly." She refused to pay, but told her husband that he must go to Philadelphia and ferret out the mystery.

"Follow John Reilly to his grave, take the measurements of his coffin and get his age, size and description of his dress and personal appearance," were her orders.

The record as to age tallied exactly with the age of the John Reilly with whom Whitcraft had been in a difficulty.

He was a stout man with a round face and a sandy mustache. This tallied with the John Reilly who had lived near Whitecraft's home. His habits were the same, and it appeared that the man who had died in the hospital could be no other than the man Whitcraft had been pointed out as being responsible for his death.

But Mrs. Whitcraft did not stop here. She caused her husband to look up the undertaker. He said the coffin measured six feet and three inches. This was the first discrepancy. John Reilly, of Evesboro, was only five feet nine inches tall.

Mrs. Whitcraft now felt sure there were two John Reillys. She sent her husband to Berlin, N. J. There he found that the dead man had been buried by direction of an aged citizen of the town, who said he was his father and that the dead man was his only child. Besides, the wife of John Reilly was not present at the burial and was unknown to the dead man's father.

Having clearly established that the dead Reilly was not the same man who had lived at Evesboro, Mrs. Whitcraft, who by this time had come to be regarded as the detective of the family, directed her attention to the more difficult task of finding the living Reilly.

One day a stranger stopped at the Whitcraft hotel for dinner. He was from Freehold, N. J. Mrs. Whitcraft spoke of the Reilly affair and told of the results of the investigation she had caused her husband to make.

"Why, we have a man in Freehold of the name of John Reilly," said the guest. "He has only been there a month or so, and I believe he came from Philadelphia."

This was remote. But it was enough to give hope to Mrs. Whitcraft, who was eager to take hold of the tiniest thread and unwind the knot in the hope of knowing her own. She sent her husband to Freehold. He failed to find Reilly. He came home and reported this to his wife, who went in a buggy herself, accompanied by her husband.

They spent a day going from farm to farm, and finally found Reilly and had him arrested on a charge of assault and battery. He was taken to the county jail in Mount Holly.

"I never knew a thing about the report that I was dead," said Reilly. "After the trouble in Whitcraft's saloon I went to Philadelphia to spend Christmas. I took my wife with me, as her parents live there. I left them two or three days after we arrived and went out to look for work.

"I was never in the hospital, but secured work in a coal yard. From there I came back to New Jersey.

"I never wrote to my wife, and when she heard that a John Reilly was dead, I suppose she believed it was me, as the description of the dead man seemed to fit me exactly.

"She knows better now and we are happy again."

So are Mr. and Mrs. Whitcraft.

OVER TWO CATARACTS.

A Woman's Narrow Escape From Awful Fate.

San Francisco, April 25.—Miss Alice Eastwood, botanist for the Academy of Sciences, plunged headlong over two cataracts down into a deep pool the other day on the slopes of Tamalpais.

Miss Eastwood was fortunate in escaping bodily injury, but her nerves were so unstrung by the experience that she has gone to Uklah for a rest.

In the practical study of the science in which she is a specialist Miss Eastwood spends much of her life out of doors among the rocks and crags of the coast range. She is a great favorite among the Cross Country club members and is often a guest of the club on its federation tours.

On the last trip of the club she decided to leave the party at the base of Tamalpais and meet them at the summit. She had climbed half way up the side of the mountain and was interested in looking down the torrent which heavy rains had converted into a furious cataract. Then, as she watched the angry water, she stepped closer to the edge. The soft earth of the bank, loosened by the rain, crumbled under her feet and before Miss Eastwood knew what had happened she was whirling over the falls. Over the first slope and over the second she plunged and only stopped at the bottom of a deep pool, into which the water leaps.

In all this ugly slide and final plunge Miss Eastwood kept her head bravely. The depth of the pool broke her fall and saved her from being dashed against the rocks. As soon as she came to the surface she made for the bank and crawled out. Her clothes were torn, but apart from a few bruises she had sustained no hurt. After lying on the bank for some time to steady herself she was able to finish her climb to the summit. At the tavern she obtained restoratives and dry clothes.

DEVOTED TO STEPSON.

Lost Reason When a Boy Through a Fall.

Scriba, N. Y., April 25.—The application made by Attorney F. T. Cahill before Justice Andrews in Syracuse that Foster Monette, of this city, be appointed a committee of the estate of William Manifold, an incompetent person, reveals an old case. Manifold has lived here with his stepmother for years, and she has watched over him. Sickness now warns that her time on earth is short and she desires to see that her charge is provided for before she passes away.

He is 64 years old, and lost his reason by a fall from a barn which his father was building when he was a boy. In falling he struck against a wagon and ever since has had an aversion against any vehicle.

He was never known to enter a wagon of his own free will, and the only time he was ever in one was when he was taken to the insane asylum at Mexico several years ago. Then it took six men to place him in the vehicle.

He was never on board a railroad train and never goes through a gateway, vaulting over the biggest fences by placing one hand on the top. One of his diversions is to climb the highest trees he can find in the neighborhood, crawl out to the end of the top branches and swing there like a monkey. He has fallen several times, but was never injured.

Manifold is harmless and goes about the country freely. He is a regular attendant at the services held in the little church at Scriba Corners, and always occupies a back pew, where he sits and whittles a stick while the minister preaches.

The property which Manifold owns was left to him twelve years ago by his father. The will provides that in case the unfortunate man shall die without heirs, and he has not a relative in the word, the property shall go to the widows and orphans at St. Paul's church in Oswego.

ELOPED WITH BOYS

Twice a St. Louis Woman Has Fled With Young Boys.

She Is Old Enough to Be Their Mothers.

Last One Found Washing Dishes For the Woman.

St. Louis, Mo., April 25.—Walter Schaefer, of St. Louis, has ended his youthful romance in the jail at Denver. His mother has departed to bring him home. He was caught by the Denver police washing dishes for Mrs. Kate Spadt, with whom he had eloped on March 25 last. Walter is 14 years old. Mrs. Spadt is 30. Walter is the son of Edward Schaefer, president of the Missouri Lamp and Manufacturing company, of 116 Elm street, who lives at 2624 South Twelfth street. Walter went to the Lyons school, and was considered a model boy in every respect until last fall, when he was introduced to Mrs. Spadt.

She is a comely woman, dark complexioned, with a smooth skin, a plump figure and an attractive personality. Young Schaefer was a constant visitor at Mrs. Spadt's home. The parents of the boy thought nothing of the matter, believing that he was safer in the friendship of a married woman than in the companionship he would find in the streets. The boy's devotion continued through the winter, and on March 25 he left home, and at the same time Mrs. Spadt went away.

Mrs. Spadt formerly lived at 1122 South Third street. It was there that she met "Bobbie" Thompson, of 2344 South Seventh street. Shortly afterward she and the boy disappeared. Thompson is about the same age as young Schaefer. The pair were away for several months. When Bobbie returned he said that he and Mrs. Spadt had been to Denver, Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek and other Colorado resorts, and that he had had a fine time.

He returned in a most prosperous condition. His clothes were new and expensive, and he carried a watch and chain. He said that Mrs. Spadt had given them to him.

KILLED BY A LAUGH.

Mirth Caused Lesion of a Girl's Brain.

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—Miss Catheryne Maude Rece died at the home of a friend, Miss Grace McCauley, at 820 Sixth street. Miss Rece was visiting her friend Sunday and was chatting gayly when in a spell of laughter she suddenly became unconscious. Efforts to revive her were useless and she passed away. The physicians who attended her said that death was probably due to a lesion of the brain caused by laughter.

BUCK DEER

Attacked Two Women and a Boy and Trampled Them.

Sandusky Ohio, April 25.—Attacked by a savage buck deer, two women and a young boy narrowly escaped death or serious injury at Cedar Point, a peninsula extending into the lake near here. Mr. and Mrs. John Ussher, Mrs. Albert Willman and the latter's young son formed a party in search of ferns, and on landing at the point separated. A summer resort at that place is not yet open, and a number of deer which are kept at the zoo had been allowed to run at large.

The woman and boy came upon a big buck in the woods, and, supposing that it was docile, the boy approached it and attempted to feed it. The animal suddenly turned upon him and struck savagely at him with his fore feet, knocking the boy down and then trampling upon him. Mrs. Ussher was then attacked and struck several times by the buck's hoofs. The animal, with head lowered, was about to charge upon the women when Mrs. Willman, disregarding her own safety, ran forward and seized the animal by the nose, holding its nostrils shut. She was tossed aside, but before the animal could make another move Mr. Ussher, who had heard the women's screams, arrived with a club and drove the deer away.

The boy was found to be badly bruised and possibly internally injured, but no bones were broken. Mrs. Ussher was also badly bruised.

"HERO" WAS TOLD

Of Father's Death as He Appeared on Stage.

Evansville, Ind., April 25.—Charles Bromm, a local merchant, took part in a play given by the leading German society of the city. He had the part of the hero, and just as he went on the stage he received the sad intelligence that his father, aged 85, had died suddenly. Friends of Bromm insisted he leave the stage and go to his father's home, but this he refused to do, saying that the play could not go on without him. Bromm played his part well, and the audience never knew until after the play that Bromm's father was dead. Bromm suppressed his emotions until after the play, when he burst into tears.

NIGHTMARE

Caused Man to Die as Wife Awoke Him.

Hagerstown, Md., April 25.—Harry G. Koontz, a constable of Smithburg, died suddenly in bed at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning of heart failure, superinduced, it is thought, by an attack of nightmare. His wife heard him muttering and making a peculiar noise in his sleep, raised him up and he fell over dead. He was 26 years old. He retired in good health after a hard day's riding, serving summons.

STARTLING EVIDENCE

Given By Mrs. Fleming In Suit Against Paul Estate.

Says Relations With Him Were Those of a Wife.

No Receipts Asked For Money Deposited In His Bank.

Columbus, Ohio, April 25.—Mrs. Mary O. Fleming, who sued the estate of Carey B. Paul, late of Delaware, Ohio, and this city, for $40,000, in a deposition has given utterance to some sensational testimony. The most interesting admission of handsome Mrs. Fleming was in reply to a question by H. J. Booth, who asked: "Were your relations with Paul those of a virtuous woman?" Mrs. Fleming said she did not like the form of the question and it was changed. Then she admitted that her relations with Mr. Paul were those of a man and wife.

Mrs. Fleming, according to her testimony, was born, reared and married in Muskingum county. Her hurband, like Mr. Paul, dealt in wool and worked a farm. A boy was born as the result of the union, and he is now a man 25 years of age, employed on a street car line at Mt. Clemens, Mich. He was mail clerk at the Chittenden hotel, this city, for a while when Mr. Paul was president of the hotel company.

The husband of Mrs. Fleming died in 1888, leaving her a little property and $5000 in insurance. She moved to Delaware in 1889, and not long afterward walked into the bank of which Mr. Paul was president, and was told that her husband was an old friend and fellow-wool-buyer. She was there to deposit the money left by her husband. They became very friendly from the chance meeting, and Mr. Paul frequently called upon Mrs. Fleming afterward, and the two evidently thoroughly enjoyed themselves. They grew more friendly as the days rolled by, and soon were engaged to be married, Mr. Paul being a widower and she a widow, the witness said. This was in August, 1890, but the horizon of love was not clear for Mrs. Fleming, and one night Mr. Paul intimated that Mrs. Kate Brown, so Mrs. Fleming testified, had threatened to bring a breach of promise suit and file a serious charge against him unless he married her immediately. This, of course, was depressing news to Mrs. Fleming, but she stood it nobly, and Mr. Paul married Mrs. Brown. Paul told Mrs. Fleming, so Mrs. Fleming testified, that his wife had entrapped him.

Mr. Paul was not going to win Mrs. Fleming's affections and then recklessly cast her aside, without compensating her in some way, so he presented her with $65,000 worth of government bonds, sh eclaimed. Her confidence in the world and its people was so great that without hesitancy she carried the bonds to her writing desk and deposited them safely. They remained there, she alleged, until Mr. Paul explained the great danger of their being stolen. Consequently Mrs. Fleming acted upon his suggestion, and the bonds were deposited in the bank of which Mr. Paul was the head.

Mrs. Fleming was asked if it was not a fact that she had told several persons that the bonds came into her possession in Chicago. Mrs. Fleming admitted she had told the story that a very rich man, whom she had known, was aware that his hours on earth were few, and he sent for Mrs. Fleming. On his deathbed he turned the bonds over to her in the presence of Mr. Paul. The bonds were to make her future as comfortable as finances will.

She promised never to tell the donor's name, according to the story, but could tell about the transactions. It was not necessary for Mrs. Fleming to receive a receipt from Mr. Paul for the bonds, which were deposited in his bank, for she had unlimited confidence in his integrity, she testified. He borrowed from her $1300 on one occasion, $5000 on another and held 200 shares of bank stock for her, according to her testimony, which she had secured for the bonds referred to. As already stated, Mrs. Fleming had great confidence in Mr. Paul, and this is the reason she assigned for not having a receipt to show that he held her securities.

While testifying regarding the marriage of Mr. Paul at a time he was bound to Mrs. Fleming by engagement, Mrs. Fleming voluntarily said that Mr. Paul had told her that his wife treated his children cruelly in many ways. Mrs. Fleming was asked if her confidence in Mr. Paul did not diminish when he announced that he was going to marry another woman. She said no, that she still thought him a good man and a true friend.

Letters were introduced by Mr. Booth addressed to Mr. Paul by Mrs. Fleming, in which she referred to him as "Dear Husband."

HUNTER IS EXPELLED

From Guatemala For Scandals Involving Several American Women.

Slept In Negro's Shanty as Hotels Barred Him.

His Father, United States Minister, Is a Kentuckian.

New Orleans, La., April 25.—Dr. William Godfrey Hunter, United States mininster to Guatemala, reached New Orleans on the steamship Anselm from Puerto Barrios. On the same vessel came A. B. Jekyll, a native of Clearwater, Mich., and prominent railroad contractor, and Gen. John Drummond, the fighting American, who has been mixed up in every revolution Central America has known since he adopted it as a home. Dr. Hunter held no converse with his fellow-travelers during the voyage. They were not on speaking terms.

Mr. Jekyll in an interview explained that no American in Guatemala would have anything to do with the Hunters, father or son, for William Godfrey Hunter, Jr., is secretary to his father.

"Dr. Hunter," said Mr. Jekyll, "is now on his way to Washington to explain charges against himself and his son. His son has been expelled from Guatemala by order of President Culvera, and so cordially is he hated that on his way to the coast he was forced to sleep in a negro shanty, because the hotels would not give him accommodation."

Continuing, Mr. Jekyll said, and his every statement was substantiated by Gen. Drummond:

"The scandal which has been connected with the name of young Hunter is now all over the republic. It has had a serious effect on the standing of all Americans in that country, and the situation is most acute. The American minister is in disfavor at court and in all social circles. The affairs of state suffer as a result, and the Americans, whose interests are becoming heavier every year, are not adequately represented in the capital of Guatemala, where they cannot get any official assistance, owing to the bad repute which the government's minister is under.

"Young Hunter is about 24 years of age. His life in the capital has been of a most riotous character. He became entangled socially in at least two affairs that cost him all his social prestige. One was a sensational affair with the wife of an American, which finally ended in the suicide of the woman in San Francisco. Many will recall the incident and the ending of the unfortunate woman on the coast.

"The second occurred a few weeks ago, when an insult was offered to a New Orelans lady while she was the guest of the Hunter family, and they had gone to attend a musical program in the public park. The lady fainted and the affair caused a sensation all over the capital city. I do not give the lad's name in either case out of respect for them, but we will make an affidavit to the truthfuiness of the story. Every respectable American in Guatemala City will do likewise.

"Hunter escaped to Esquintla, a small place some distance out of the capital, where he remained in hiding for seven days. While there William Fitzgerald, an official agent of the president, and of the Guatemalan government, announced that Hunter, the son of the minister, had been ordered to leave the country, and had been expelled for his conduct. I regard the statement of Fitzgerald as official and as being an unquestioned source, because he is an official. To show the feeling toward the Hunters on last Washington's birthday the American minister held a reception in honor of the father of his country, expecting that several would call and make glad. The only persons to call were one Pole and six Chinamen."

Mr. Jekyll and Gen. Drummond sad further that Dr. Hunter charged Mrs. Barrios $3600 board for a few months' stay at his residence after the death of her husband, and took her beongings for the debt. Mrs. Barrios was an Alabama girl.

Dr. Hunter denied that his son had been expelled. He admitted the youth was in this country, but said he had come on business, and would return with him in a few weeks. He said that unless he changed his present plans he would not visit Washington. He would not discuss the Barrios matter.

A party of prominent Guatemalans, who came over also on the Anselm corroborated the expulsion of young Hunter by President Calvera.

RAINS.

Heavy Showers Extend Over an Extensive Territory.

Detroit, April 25.—There was a fair rainfall in Detroit and vicinity this morning, the first rain this week. Tuesday night, however, the state was swept by a fierce wind storm and it was accompanied by heavy rain in some localities. There is prospects of a good rain fall tonight.

Indianapolis, April 25.—Within the past forty-eight hours there have been slight showers in different parts of the state. In the crop and fruit outlook the outcome is not discouraging. There probably will be showers tonight and tomorrow with lower temperatures.

Kansas City, April 25.—An average of half an inch of rain has fallen within the past twenty-four hours in Western Missouri and generally throughout Eastern and Central Kansas, with showers at other points. No rains are reported in this part of the Southwest today. The fall yesterday and last night has been the only good rain in this part of the state for some time.

Cleveland, April 25.—Rain began falling here this morning. Reports from various points indicate that the storm is general throughout Northern Ohio.

Omaha, April 25.—Rains were general throughout Nebraska, Western Iowa and the Black Hills last night and today with a prospect of a continuance. The distribution has been uneven running from .04 to .37 inch. Forecaster Welch said this morning that all prospects favored continued showers the remainder of the day and tonight. Temperature was 55 at 8 o'clock.

PARTING

Of Old Comrades Gives Sadness to Confederate Veterans.

Dallas, April 25.—"This is the saddest day of a happy reunion, for today my comrades part from me and from each other." Thus spoke Commander-in-chief John B. Gordon to a few of his old comrades today before the last session of the U. C. V. convention. It was a day of parting, but every effort was made to offset the gloom. At the camp a feast unique in the history of reunions was prepared. Six buffalo, brought from a ranch famous among cattlemen the country over, were made martyrs to the cause of a Southern barbecue.

An accurate estimate of the number of visitors has been impossible, but those in position to form the best judgment place the number between 125,000 and 150,000. An average of 17,000 meals a day has been served at the mess tables of Camp Johnson.

SUBSIDY ASKED.

Vancouver, April 25.—The Dominion government is being asked to grant a subsidy to the Canadian Pacific's northern steamers to enable them to compete with the American boats running to Skagway. It is stated that the Canadian company is running its northern boats at a loss and if the government aid is not given they may be withdrawn.

AT WEST DULUTH

There is a project underway among several West Duluth citizens for the building of summer cottages on the Wisconsin side of St. Louis bay, providing the ferry system is established across the bay at this place. The Wisconsin side of the bay has some very picturesque scenery, and is said to offer ideal locations for summer homes to those who cannot go far from their places of business. The locality has been growing in popularity among the people of West Superior, and not only is a park kept up by the city, at the foot of Twenty-first street, but the Town and County club house is situated on one of the prominent peninsulas extending into the bay, and every year witnesses additional cottages erected along the high banks. It is claimed that all that is needed to give the locality a big boom for summer residences is ferry service from this side and street car service at the other side of the bay. The West Duluthians say that the distance across the bay is too far for row boats, but if a steam ferry boat is used this portion of the city would be brought closer to the summer resort. It is understood that the matter of summer homes across the bay will be additional argument by those interested in the agitation now being made for the ferry.

Mr. Lowry has consented to take the matter of an extension of street railway tracks on Twentieth street to the bay under consideration, but as a movement of West Duluth people across the bay to summer cottages would benefit a ferry line along this project was not called to his attention.

A development of the locality into a popular summer resort is, however, an opportunity that the Superiorites can hardly afford to miss, and the Business Men's organization of that city may have something to do in promoting it.

BAZAR AND RAFFLE.

The ladies' society of the Norwegian Lutheran church will give a bazar at Gilley's hall, 322 North Fifty-fifth avenue, West Duluth, tomorrow night, April 26. Supper, 25 cents, also a raffle of two home-made curtains.

WILL PETITION.

The agitation that has been frequently mentioned in The Herald for a narrower walk on Central avenue will probably terminate in a petition of the business men to the board of public works. A meeting is to be held in either Gilley's or the Great Eastern hall, Monday afternoon, to which all interested in narrower walks in the business portion of West Duluth, are invited. An invitation is to be sent the board of public works.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

This evening's session of the Commercial club will be an interesting one. Owing to the divided sentiment regarding what is believed to be the best street car service for this end of the city, there is likely to be a great deal of discussion. The attendance will be very large.

Reports from Proctorknott indicate a good-sized boom in progress there. With the opening of the ore season the village has again become a business center, and there is a larger demand for houses and store buildings than there is a supply.

Miss Clara Towner is on the sick list.

C. L. Spaulding had an eye severely injured yesterday by a fragment of iron that became imbedded in the eyeball.

Ole Hanson, who is employed at the St. Louis mill, had the second finger of his left hand crushed yesterday while oiling some of the machinery.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lauerman returned last evening from Aberdeen, S. D., where they were married last Tuesday. They will reside for a time at the home of the groom's parents while making arrangements for a home of their own.

J. P. Hammel and family will leave in a few days to take up a homestead claim near Fifield, Wis.

The insurance, amounting to $1100 on Gottwald's slaughter house, which burned a week ago, was arranged yesterday. The adjusters said that a fire engine could not have been of service at the fire.

FIRST RAFT.

Nester Estate Starts One From the North Shore.

The Nester estate tug started yesterday from Gooseberry river on the north shore of Lake Superior with the first raft of logs of the season. The raft will be towed across to a south shore mill. A mishap occurred when the filling of the booms had fairly begun, due to the heavy gale that prevailed beginning last Sunday, and the work had to be begun over again.

Merrill & Ring have not begun rafting yet at Split Rock, though they are preparing to do so. They may wait for the weather to settle a little more.

Edward Oswald, who used to be one of the leading lights in the Populist party organization here, turned up in town yesterday. He has been away all winter, keeping books in the logging camp of Smith & Gowan, between Mesaba and Biwabik, and is going back up on the range to join the office force at the Stevenson mine.

Smith & Gowan got out about 14,000,000 feet of timber the past winter, most of it going to Cloquet. Twelve million feet was for the Northern Lumber company of Cloquet, and about 1,000,000 each for the Cloquet Lumber company and Duncan, Brewer & Co., of this city. The latter was brought down by rail, and the former was banked and driven by water. After the roads failed the logs were hauled by rail to the river bank, and in this way the loggers succeeded in getting out the full amount of logs contracted for. It is said they were the only ones in that vicinity that did.

The Saturday Club.

The Saturday club will hold its annual meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 p. m. at Elks' hall. Business matters and the election of officers and members of committees for the coming year will occupy the time of the club.

Boer Relief Fund.

D. A. Petre has received from the Boer Relief Fund committee at Chicago a supply of blank checks to be used by those who desire to demonstrate in a practical manner their sympathy for the reconcentrado camp sufferers. The money collected in this manner is to be sent to President Roosevelt and will be forwarded through the state department to its destination. Mr. Petre will be glad to receive subscriptions from the people of Duluth to this worthy cause.

PLAYERS ARRIVING

Men Who Will Be on the Baseball Team Are Coming.

Two Promising Players Are Already on the Ground.

Both Have Good Records In Western League Teams.

Local baseball enthusiasm took a brace today when it became generally known that two of Manager Van Praagh's star players had reported for duty.

The first to arrive was Wilson, the promising young player who has made such a good showing with the Waseca, Minn., team during the past two seasons and who last fall did excellent work with the Chicago league team.

Backed by the fast team which will represent Duluth this year, Wilson is expected to make more than good the expectations that his signing has aroused among the thirty-third degree fans.

Wilson says that he never felt better in his life and that his pitching arm is in splendid condition. However, he fears the Duluth spring weather, and will practice each day in order to keep himself in good condition.

The other player to arrive was Mackey. He was one of the fastest infielders in the Western league last season, playing third base for St. Paul.

He will play the same position for Duluth during the coming season, despite the fact that Pease is anxious to come back here. Mackey covers more territory than any third baseman that has been seen in this part of the country since the days of the Western league championship.

He had several good offers in fast company for the coming season, but preferred Duluth's offer. Manager Van Praagh is sparing no expense to make the team just as good as the town can support, and in some cases he is even bidding higher for fast players than a less enthusiastic manager would care to risk on the Duluth patronage.

All the other players will be here by May 15, and within a few days more definite plans for the opening of the season will be announced.

AT THE HOTELS

E. W. Belknap, of Ashland, is at the St. Louis, on his way to Scanlon, the new sawmill town of the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company. He will put in a general store there with a $25,000 stock. It will be one of the most complete establishments of the kind, it is said, outside of this city in this part of the country. Mr. Belknap has great faith in the prospects and stability of the new town, for he has built a good store building there also. He has just returned from a trip to New York and Chicago to purchase stock.

Assistant General Freight Agent H. E. Sill, of the Northern Pacific, arrived at the Spalding this morning, on one of his periodical visits. Mr. Sill has charge of the freight traffic of the old St. Paul & Duluth line.

Indian Agent S. H. Campbell, of Ashland, is at the St. Louis.

• • •

M. B. Johnson, of Bayfield, is at the McKay. Mr. Johnson says that the impress on at his town is that all three sawmills in the Bayfield district—the two at Bayfield and the Red Cliff Lumber company mill on the reservation—will be run to their fullest possible capacity and that as a result the feeling there is most optimistic. At the same time, Mr. Johnson says, the cut-over lands around Bayfield are being settled up with incredible rapidity. Some excellent results have been obtained in vegetables on these lands, and on the islands near Bayfield good spring wheat has been raised. The cut-over lands are being bought by settlers, Mr. Johnson says, for from $3 to $5 per acre.

Mrs. F. H. Dear, of Hibbing, is a guest at the Spalding.

CARMACK IS SEVERE

Tennessee Senator Makes Caustic Speech on Philippines.

Characterizes Bill as But Another Aspect of Imperialism.

He Describes Gen. Funston as a Jayhawker Brigadier.

Washington, April 25.—At the conclusion of routine business in the senate today, Mr. McCumber (N. D.), chairman of the committee on manufactures, addressed the senate on the bill "to prevent the adulteration, misbranding and imitations of food, beverages, candies, drugs and condiments in the District of Columbia and the territories, and for regulating interstate commerce therein."

The object of his address, he said, was to convince the senate of the very great importance of the subject to the American people. For a quarter of a century nearly every state in the Union had been struggling with the question of procuring pure foods. Experience had proved that it had been impossible to obtain uniformity in state laws. This bill was not so drastic as had been proposed heretofore, and he believed that no legitimate objection to it could be raised. It attempted to regulate the sale of only such foods as entered interstate commerce, and the congress, therefore, had ample authority to deal with the subject.

He declared that the extent of the adulterations and misbrandi ngof food products was appalling. The laws, he said, severely punished the stamping of lead as money. It was counterfeiting, and the man who should advocate the repeal of the law against counterfeiting of money would be regarded as insane. Yet, dust or mud was stamped as flour and glucose as honey. The one wrong was no greater than the other.

The amount of deleterious food products placed upon the market each year, Mr. McCumber said, was valued at $1,170,000,000, while the total amount of adulterated food products each year was nearly $4,000,000,000.

Mr. McCumber expressed the belief, based upon evidence taken by his committee, that manufacturers and dealers generally would not object to the enactment of the bill proposed, inasmuch as it would put them all upon a uniform basis.

Mr. Platt (Conn.), chairman of the committee on relations with Cuba, reported from that committee a substitute for the resolution offered by Mr. Teller, providing for an investigation of the holdings of Cuban sugar and of Cuban sugar lands by American citizens. The resolution was referred to the committee on Cuban expenses.

A bill for the protection of game in Alaska was passed.

At 2 o'clock, unfinished business—the Philippine government bill—was laid before the senate. Mr. Carmack (Tenn.), a member of the Philippine committee, addressed the senate in opposition to the measure.

Mr. Carmack said that this bill, like the Philippine tariff bill, simply presented one aspect of imperialism. It was not a question only of framing just laws for the Philippines, but a question of right to make any laws whatever for that people. "The claim of the Republicans," said he, "is that they have burned enough towns, wasted enough country and killed enough people to make good their right. The land is ours because we have strewn it with the ashes of its homes and drenched it with the blood of its people."

Opponents of this policy denied that we had derived any just powers of government from the subjugation of the governed, and that was the real issue of this debate. In a former debate, he said, Mr. Spooner had charged that the minority had prostituted the question to partisan purposes and that Mr. Bryan had seized upon it to force an issue with the administration. Unfortunately for this argument the fact was that Mr. Bryan had declared his position upon this question long before anybody knew what the policy of the administration would be. At that time the public utterances of McKinley and Bryan were in exact accord, and if the administration had not reversed its policy there would have been no difference between them. The Democrats in the senate, he insisted had tried to remove the question from party politics. It was now claimed that the civil authority of the United States was supreme throughout the islands and was reason for a Democrat to express an opinion. He cited the public utterances of President McKinley and Mr. Roosevelt and the speeches of Republican senators to show that a general policy of colonialism and conquest was advocated as Republican doctrine.

"The idea that you can transform the character of a race by teaching them to read," said he, "is the wildest, craziest, the most fantastic dream that ever flitted through a lunatic's brain." He quoted utterances from President Roosevelt, charging that "treasonable" utterances incited the Filipinos to insurrection and said that we must not judge the president in his moments of oratorical ferocity or when the frenzy of battle was in his blood. The president was not vindictive but "strenuous" and resembled in his habits of speech a certain Tennesseean's horse of which it was said that running away was his natural gait. Mr. Roosevelt had habitually spoken of the Filipinos as "savages" and "barbarians" and "Apaches," and these denunciations had been scattered broadcast throughout the islands to inflame the people against the United States. The effect of the president's language had been to harden and intensify Filipino opposition to American rule.

Some of our military heroes had been guilty of a like offense. He referred to a recent speech of Gen. Funston, whom he described as "the jayhawker brigadier from the windswept plains, the mightiest Samson that ever wielded the jawbone of an ass as a weapon of war."

Mr. Carmack said death had silenced Funston of some illustrious victims like ex-Senator Sherman and ex-President Harrison, but there were still enough to keep him busy. Papers had quoted Funston as saying that the president entirely approved of his speech and wanted him to accept an invitation from the junior senator from Massachusetts to go to Boston and talk to the people there about hanging the senior senator from Massachusetts, but the plain truth was that Funston could not hang anybody. Funston should go back to the Philippines—to land where there was plenty of hemp and the constitution.

"If men are to be hanged without regard to law for speaking words calculated to incite insurrection," said he, "the first neck to feel the strangling clutch of the soaped rope should be the heroic gullet of Funston."

Never since he had been in the Philippines, he had been pouring forth tirades of indiscriminate insult against the whole country, and had outrageously insulted every man upon whom the commission was relying for aid in pacifying the country. He also had it on the very highest authority that a speech made by the senator from Indiana (Beveridge), had been circulated broadcast throughout the country with an exceedingly pernicious effect upon the natives.

The dominant idea of the bill now before the senate, said he, was to exploit the Philippines. It was proposed to make a wholesale grant of franchises and concessions and to dispose of the peoples' lands to foreign syndicates and corporations without giving the people themselves any voice in the business. The whole bill was a pitiful evasion of a plain duty. We had a right to demand and the Filipinos have a right to demand that the administration shall at least refine its policy in the islands.

"Upon what fact or experience," he asked, "did they base their belief in the purity of carpet bag government?" He spoke of "the horrors of carpet bag government in the South," and said that "the Republicans gave no heed to the cry of an oppressed and plundered people though they were their own people, of their own blood." He declared that from the very first outbreak there had been a conspiracy to suppress the truth and to whitewash every outrage in the Philippines.

In conclusion he said he had not been influenced in this matter by any low desire for party advantage. He only wished to see the country relieved from the bloody doctrines of bloody men and return to the peaceful paths by which she had ascended in safety and security to glory and power.

LESS CANDY.

Better to Give Children Delicious Food Than Candy.

Some foods will cure dyspepsia and other foods will cause it. The safest way to get well is to use the food that agrees with the stomach and permits Nature to go along in a thoroughly natural way.

A lady says: "I have at last found a true way to get well and keep well, and that is by the use of Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food.

"For six years I suffered with indigestion and palpitation of the heart, so that I could not sleep nights. I tried a great many different kinds of medicines and a lot of different kinds of cereals, but none of them helped me, and my stomach seemed to get worse and worse.

"I became very despondent and was at a loss to know what to do. One day I read in the paper that Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food would cure indigestion and build up the body. I wondered if it contained any medicine, but learned that it did not, but that it was only a food prepared so that the stomach could easily digest it.

"The next time I went down town I bought two packages. This was on Tuesday, and it was all gone on Saturday, for we all liked it so much, so I went down and got three more packages, and from that time I have been using Grape-Nuts steadily and my indigestion has entirely disappeared.

"Sometimes when my little girl has been playing extra hard after supper, she will climb on my knee, pat my cheek and whisper in my ear, 'Mamma, please give me something good.' I say (knowing all the time), 'What is good, dear?' She says, 'Grape-Nuts with cream on top,' and there is nothing, candy or anything else, that she enjoys better than this good, wholesome food. She eats it for breakfast every morning and prefers Grape-Nuts pudding for dinner. At night she has Grape-Nuts for her supper, with a soft boiled egg, and she thrives wonderfully on this kind of food." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

MASON

Backs Former West Superior Man And Gets Gold Mine.

Tacoma, Wash., April 25.—Albert A. Johnson, a former city councilman and real estate dealer of West Superior, and Senator Mason, of Illinois, are likely to become millionaires as a result of a lucky find made three years ago by Johnson in the Atlin district, B. C., and the faith of Senator Mason that Johnson had what he claimed.

Meeting with reverses during the panic, Johnson went to Alaska. He nearly lost his life during the stampede to the Copper river, and in 1899 went to Atlin. He began purchasing claims from disgusted miners, who were flooded out. Study and prospecting convinced him that the mountainous sides of Spruce creek must be rich in gold.

Following this theory, he located the whole mountain of highly auriferous gravel, then went to Chicago and laid his proposition before Senator Mason. The latter interested friends, and a hundred thousand dollars has since been expended in purchasing, delivering and installing a large hydraulic plant in British Columbia.

To accomplish that it was necessary to build nine miles of narrow-gauge railroad. Taking out gold will commence next month. Experts estimate that the mountain will produce $20,000,000.

DEAD IN HIS BUNK.

St. Paul, April 25.—An Eau Claire, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Thomas Costello, aged 30, locked up at the county jail at 1 o'clock this morning, was found dead in his bunk when the turnkey took in breakfast for the prisoner about 6 a. m. The cause of death was congestion of the brain. Deceased had not relatives here.

TO SALVE THE LOGS

Annual Meeting of Duluth Log Salvage Association to Be Held.

Association Rescues Lost Logs, Saws and Sells Them.

Performed Good Service For Its Members During Last Year.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Log Salvage association, which was to have been held April 21, will occur this evening at the office of Secretary G. A. Potter, in the Providence building.

The stockholders of the association are the various lumber manufacturers at the head of the lakes. These will elect a board of directors, and the directors will choose the officers for the ensuing year. The present officers of the association are: President, F. L. Gilbert; vice president, E. H. Eddy; secretary and treasurer, G. A. Potter.

At the annual meeting arrangements will be made to carry on the salvage work the coming summer and fall. An experienced man will be engaged to patrol the north and south shore with tugs and pick up all the logs that get away from the rafts in bad weather on the lake or through other causes. A contract will be made with one of the local mill companies to saw the logs, and other ways and means of protecting lumber manufacturing interests from loss of their logs will be discussed.

The Log Salvage association enjoys the distinction of being a combine not for the purpose of raising the price of lumber, but for the mutual protection from loss of its members; the prosecution under the state laws of those people that appropriate logs which float to the beaches, and for the purpose of lessening the individual cost of salving logs.

The association looks after the entire business relative to the salved logs, cuts the lumber, sells it and divides the proceeds, after the expenses are met, pro rata among the stockholders in proportion to the amount of timber each has lost.

Last year the association did the largest business of any year since it organized. Over 6,000,000 feet of logs were salved by Capt. James O. Smith and his two tugs. The lumber was sawed at the Peyton, Kimball & Barber mill, at West Superior, and the entire cut of 1901 was sold before the end of the season at the highest market price.

The Duluth district extends to Iron river, in Wisconsin, on the south shore, and to Split Rock on the north shore. Whether the association will have as much business to do this year depends on the weather conditions over this end of Lake Superior while log towing is in progress. Some years there are more logs lost in storms than during others.

FINDS THEM LARGE.

Mr. Pope Did Not Realize Extent of Mines.

J. C. Pope and his party from Mora returned from the Mesaba range yesterday afternoon. The party was on a sightseeing trip and this was their first visit to the range.

"I had no conception of the extent of the deposits of iron ore up there," said Mr. Pope just before his departure for home this afternoon. "Of course, I knew there was a great deal, but if I had been called upon to give some idea of how much I'm quite sure now that my approximation would have been wholly out of line with the extensiveness of the industry."

Mr. Pope said in relation to the possibility of his becoming a candidate for the Republican nomination to succeed Senator McCusick, another good friend of Duluth, that he expected to meet next week some Chisago people who wanted him to run for the senate and that until he had seen them he would not consider the matter seriously.

TOO COSTLY.

Superior Street Improvement Will Monopolize the Funds.

Property owners in other parts of the city are anxious to see the East Superior street property owners go in for a less expensive paving than asphalt.

It means that East Superior street would eat up all the available money in the permanent improvement revolving fund, while other parts of the city would have to go without improvements that were even more necessary than the paving of Superior street.

However, if the expensive asphalt idea could be abandoned for tar macadam or cedar blocks, it would give the revolving fund some chance of taking care of many other needed improvements.

There is much talk about having the East Superior street property owners paying for the paving as soon as the contract is let. However in order to do this a test suit must be brought first, at considerable expense and loss of time.

At present there are petitions in the office of the department of public works for a great many more improvements than the permanent revolving improvement fund can take care of during the season, and many of them have precedence over the petition now in to pave Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth avenue east with asphalt.

It is said that some of the names on this petition would be withdrawn if an opportunity offered, in favor of a less expensive paving owing to the fact that the high prices of the asphalt trust jeopardize the entire improvement as well as numerous improvements in other parts of the city.

TO PRISON

Stens Karvo Goes to Stillwater to Remain For Life.

Deputy Sheriff H. N. Randall returned this morning from Stillwater, where he took Stens Karvo, under sentence of life imprisonment in the state penitentiary for murder in the second degree.

Karvo killed Jacob Myllmaki in a Lake avenue saloon last winter, and it will be remembered that the operation by which he put him to death was particularly fiendish.

Nevertheless Karvo has made a most exemplary prisoner. He has been very quiet, and has given the jailors no trouble whatever. Deputy Sheriff Randall took him down to Stillwater alone, and he went very quietly. In fact, he was one of the most peaceable prisoners that ever went to the state prison from here.

When he left the jail yesterday with Mr. Randall, they walked to the car together, and when Karvo saw that the deputy was getting aboard also he looked up in surprise.

He seemed surprised to think the deputy was going along with him, and he evidently thought he was merely being escorted to the car, after which he was to go to the penitentiary alone.

STARTS WELL.

Lumber Shipments Will Be Lively From This On.

Vesselmen who have lumber tonnage to dispose of claim that the movement has started in very well from the head of the lakes since the first of the month. They say that the tug strike here has had a tendency to keep some of the lumber carriers back for the barges cannot easily be handled without tug service. The vesselmen anticipate that conditions will be more favorable for them from now on, and it is claimed that a larger fleet will now be started this way. Several cargoes have already left this port and there are seven or eight boats now loading at the West Duluth docks. The steamer Arizona and consort arrived this morning, the former to load at the St. Louis Lumber company's dock for North Tonawanda.

One of the prominent mill owners said this noon that it is a mistake to suppose there is a scarcity of dock room. He said that the docks here were never in a better condition at this time of year as regards space for the new cut and he did not anticipate that conditions would arise that would change the situation to any extent in the immediate future.

The mill men express themselves as well satisfied with the progress made at the various plants at the opening of the season and predict a prosperous season in the lumber season.

TO STOP IT.

Buildings Must Not Project over the Lot Line.

Steps and other projections from buildings must not extend over the building line of the lots on which the buildings are or are being erected.

Mayor Hugo has requested the building inspector to refuse to issue permits where the plans and specifications of any new building show an encroachment on the sidewalks.

In addition to this the department of public works has addressed a courteous circular letter to all the architects in the city calling their attention to the fact that sidewalk encroachments are prohibited.

A great many buildings in Duluth have entrances that encroach on the sidewalk space at present, and for fear the practice will become very general the city officers have decided to take this step.

Nothing is even intimated as to what the city might do in case the order is disregarded, but in all probability steps would be taken to remove the encroachments and charge the cost of removal up to the offending owners of property.

Of the buildings now underway that encroach upon the sidewalks, the most prominent are the Wolvin structure on Third avenue west and First street; the new laundry building on First avenue east and First street, and the Adash Israel and Cheori Kadisha synagogue, on Third avenue east and Third street.

It is claimed in several instances by the owners, architects, or contrators on the buildings affected that the sidewalks are not located properly, and a force from the city engineer's office will make investigations.

At present the new synagogue encroaches about sixteen inches on the sidewalk, but it is claimed if the sidewalks were properly located the encroachment would be less than six inches.

MET MANY DULUTHIANS.

Among them was former Assistant Attorney Squires, who is now enjoying a good law practice at Wall street. C. H. Eldredge is doing well with H. H. Adams at 177 Broadway. M. A. Hays, a well-known former Duluth newspaper man, he also met in New York. Mr. Hays has a fine position as industrial agent for the Southern railway, with headquarters in Boston. Arthur W. Little is room clerk at the Waldorf-Astoria, but he was then considering a proposition to go elsewhere. Raymond Moore is connected with a chemical house known as the Whithouse company. Judge Sam Moer, it was reported, contemplated joining the Charles A. Towne company in the stock brokerage business.

ALL NIGHT CASE.

Disagreement In Jury In a Civil Case.

All night long a municipal court jury stood 11 to 1 in the civil case of Palmquist vs. Nylander. After being out sixteen hours and a half the vote was the same as it was on the first ballot—11 to 1—and the foreman reported a disagreement.

John Palmquist brought the suit against Joseph Nylander. The two men had a dispute over a patent reversable propeller which both claimed to have perfected.

LOST TEMPER.

Attorney General at Manila Makes Fool of Himself.

Manila, April 25.—At the trial today of the editor of Freedom, who is charged with sedition in publishing an article from an American periodical to which the editor of Freedom agreed and added remarks of his own, censuring the United States commission's rule, the attorney general, L. R. Wilfley, created a sensation and astonished the judge, lawyers and spectators. He lost his temper with Judge Odlin and said: "The civil government wants to know where it stands under the law passed. It wants to know whether it will be enforced, or whether such unwarranted statements will be allowed. The court knows the wishes of the government and it is to be presumed that it knows its own affairs."

Judge Odlin replied: "The court will determine the case according to law. The court wants you to understand that it believes individuals have rights as well as governments."

The defence had asked for a delay of a week, owing to counsel having been disqualified on account of not passing the Filipino standard of law. The hearing of the demurrers in the case was postponed until May 3.

Manila, April 25.—The trial by courtmartial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith, on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline, began today. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton presided. Col. Charles A. Woodruff, counsel for the defense, said he desired to simplify the proceedings. He was willing to admit Gen. Smith gave instructions to Maj. Waller to kill and burn and make Samar a wilderness, that he wanted everybody killed capable of bearing arms and that he did specify all over 10 years old, as the Samar boys of that age were equally as dangerous as their elders. Capt. David Porter, marine corps, and Lieut. John H. Day, marine corps, were the only witnesses examined. Their testimony developed nothing new.

Maj. Waller, marine corps, will be the only other witness for the prosecution. He was unable to be present today on account of illness, but it is expected will be in attendance tomorrow. The defense will call several officers of the Ninth infantry.

Among them was one to pension Genevieve Almira Ludlow, widow of the late Gen. William Ludlow, at $50 per month and another to pension the widow of Gen. James ("Parson") Brownlow at $30 per month. Mrs. Brownlow is 83 years old.

The conference report on the Chinese exclusion bill (a disagreement) was made by Mr. Hitt (Ill.) The house insisted upon its disagreement and the bill was sent back to conference, the same conferees being appointed.

ORE TRADE.

Shipments During April Smaller Than Might Be Expected.

Cleveland, April 25.—The Iron Trade Review says: Notwithstanding the exceptionally early opening, the amount of new ore put on Lake Erie docks in April will not be what might be expected. Boats have been delayed at upper lake ports, partly owing to the tardy return to ore roads of ore cars that have been in other traffic during the winter, and in part because of frozen ore. The steel corporation fleet has been held up in this way, as well as chartered vessels. We referred last week to the unexpectedly large stocks of ore on Lake Erie docks, the result of the furnace stoppages of the past four or five months. These dock stocks acount in part for the divergent views of ore shippers and vesselmen on the vessel rate for the present season.

Basing their calculation on the abounding prosperity of the iron trade and the general belief that the consumption of ore will be considerably greater in the next twelve months than in the year ending May 1, a number of vessel owners have refused to tie up at the 75-cent rate and are taking their chances on the daily rate. Shippers, on the other hand, show no anxiety to cover further at present, and rely on the heavy dock of ore stocks and the large increase in vessel tonnage this season to demonstrate the correctness of their position. The ore market is without incident. Small lot buying still goes on, and the important sales of Bessemer iron with deliveries extending over to April 1, 1903, are likely to bring more ore buying from furnaces that did not cover fully in the early transactions. There are some Mesaba properties that have a considerably greater producing capacity than is represented by their sales thus far.

SILK WORMS.

Alabama Negroes Receive a Shipment From Japan.

Birmingham, Ala., April 25.—Seven cards of silkworm eggs of the very finest Japanese varieties have been received by S. R. and R. M. Lowery, the two negroes who raise silk on the other side of Red mountain. The eggs were sent by the United States minister to Japan, A. E. Buck.

Each of the cards contains about 300 eggs, making a total of 2100, of which a large majority should be hatched and grown into worms. The eggs have been placed in cold storage until a suitable time to put them on the mulberry leaves which form their chief diet.

Minister Buck wrote a letter to Lowery in which he says the eggs sent are the very finest he is able to procure and that they are considered by Japanese experts to be the best in Japan. He encourages Lowery to continue to grow the eggs, and says he hopes for good results.

Lowery called on Mr. Gibson of the Commercial club yesterday and asked to be notified when Louis Borris Magid, who was here several weeks ago in the interest of silk growing in the South returned to the city. The aged negro has the only silk industry in the neighborhood of Birmingham and has taken a number of prizes for the excellence of his products.

WHITE FLAGS

Now Floating In Moro Villages Instead of Red.

Manila, April 25.—Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, who is operating against the Moros on the island of Mindanao, telegraphs that the capture of Sultan Pualos' fort has had a most salutary effect. The Dattos are submitting, and white flags are taking place of the red battle flags. The sultan of Annudtbak urges that time be given him in which to give up the assassins of the American soldiers, and says that the advance of the Americans will mean "bristling cannon and impassable barriers, with God judging the right."

Col. Baldwin has received orders to suspend operations against the Dattos. Gen. George W. Davis, in command at Zamboanga, island of Mindanao, believes that the majority of the Dattos are friendly and that they have not had time to co-operate. He thinks their alarm may cease and that practically a bloodless victory has been accomplished.

The court-martial which tried Maj. Maller and Lieut. Day of the marine corps on charges of executing natives of the island of Samar without trial, reconvened this morning on orders received from Washington to revise certain portions of the records.

CANCEROUS ULCERS

Are in many respects like other ulcers or sores, and this resemblance often proves fatal. Valuable time is lost in fruitless efforts to heal the sore with washes and salves, because the germs of Cancer that are multiplying in the blood and the new Cancer cells which are constantly developing keep up the irritation and discharge, and at last sharp shooting pains announce the approach of the eating and sloughing stage, and a hideous, sickening cancerous sore begins its destructive work.

No ulcer or sore can exist without some predisposing internal cause that has poisoned the blood, and the open discharging ulcer, or the festering sore on the lip, cheek or other part of the body will continue to spread and eat deeper into the flesh unless the blood is purified and the Cancer germs or morbid matter eliminated from the circulation.

S. S. S. cleanses the blood of all decaying effete matter. It has great antidotal and purifying properties that soon destroy the germs and poisons and restore the blood to its natural condition. And when pure blood is carried to the ulcer or sore the healing process begins, the discharge ceases and the place heals over and new skin forms. S. S. S. is a strictly vegetable blood purifier containing no mercury or minerals of any description.

If you have an ulcer or chronic sore of any kind, write us about it, medical advice will cost you nothing. Books on Cancer and other diseases of the blood will be sent free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

In February, 1899, I noticed a small lump on my lower lip. The doctor cauterized it but another came and broke out into an open sore. I began to take S. S. S. and after I had taken seven bottles the place healed entirely and no signs of the disease have been seen since. W. P. Brown, Hollands, S. C.

STUDIES IN THE BOOK OF ACTS

GENTILES RECEIVED INTO THE CHURCH.

International Sunday School Lesson For April 27th, 1902.

Acts 11:1-18: "Now the apostles and the brethren that were in Judea heard that the gentiles also had received the word of God. And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him, saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them. But Peter began, and expounded the matter unto them in order, saying, I was in the city of Joppa praying; and in a trance I saw a vision, a certain vessel descending, as it were a great sheet let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even unto me; upon the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw the fourfooted beasts of the earth and wild beasts and creeping things and fowls of the heaven, and I heard also a voice saying unto me, Rise, Peter; kill and eat. But I said, Not so, Loord; for nothing common or unclean hath ever entered into my mouth. But a voice answered the second time out of heaven, What God hath cleansed, make not thou common. And this was done thrice; and all were drawn up again into heaven. And, behold, forthwith three men stood before the house in which we were, having been sent from Caesarea unto me. And the spirit bade me go with them, making no distinction. And these six brethren also accompanied me; and we entered into the man's house; and he told us how he had seen the angel standing in his house, and saying, send to Joppa, and fetch Simon, whose surname is Peter; who shall speak unto these words, whereby thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy house. And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, even as on us at the beginning. And I remembered the word of the Lord, how that he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost. If then God gave unto them the like gift as he did also unto us, when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I could withstand God? And when they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then to the gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life."

Golden Text: "Whosoever believeth on Him shall receive remission of sins." Acts 10:43.

PETER REPROVED.

Enlargement was the key word of the apostolic days. The workers of the church were building larger than they knew. They had yielded to the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and sometimes the Spirit led them to do things of larger import than they suspected. But it is ever thus with ideas and societies that are growing. Few imitators of great reforms have actually been conscious of the wide sweep of the ideas to which they gave impetus. The first preachers of the Christian faith probably had no idea that the religious community they were founding would one day break entirely away from the rites and fellowship of Judaism and stand forth in clear outline before the world as a distinct faith. The news came to the Jerusalem church that the "gentiles also" had received the word of God. And yet there was nothing out of the ordinary or lawful in that fact, for Judaism itself had made provision for the reception of gentiles into the fold. The prophecies of the Jewish scriptures themselves foretold the day when "the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow into it." But to the Christian church this event marked the beginning of a more aggressive effort to win the gentile world than Judaism had ever dreamed of trying. It was surprising to the church to hear that a gentile was so thoroughly prepared to receive the gospel message as Peter and his companions had found Cornelius. But it was another instance, showing that God was adding to their efforts the power of the Holy Spirit.

The Judean Christians did not reprove Peter because he had preached to the gentiles at Caesarea, but because he had eaten with them. It was a social question rather than a specifically religious one. The same thing was true of the complaints which the Pharisees made against Jesus. They did not seem to have any objection to his preaching to publicans and sinners. Probably they even thought that these persons needed his sermons more than they did. At any rate they would undoubtedly have been glad to have dispensed with his addresses to them even at the expense of seeing him spend all his time preaching to the acknowledged sinners of the day. But the thing which they could not brook in silence was to have him mingle in their own society and then eat and drink with publicans and sinners.

In accomplishing their work both Peter and Jesus had to face a keener social prejudice than, in certain parts of America, confronts the person who today would break down the barriers to social intercourse between the white and black races. No prejudices are stronger than those that have their root in religion. It can be said in extenuation of the fault of the church on this occasion that its members who complained were probably people who stayed at home during the evangelistic expansion of their religion, and had consequently not imbibed the liberalizing spirit that was gained by those who went abroad carrying their gospel to whomsoever they met. To be brought face to face with conditions that demand the abolition of old-established customs, especially if failure to abandon them threatens the success of the work on which one's heart is set, is enough to make one examine carefully the ground on which such customs rest and to abandon them unless they are unqualifiedly binding. Such was a part of the influence brought to bear upon Peter, but the greater influence of the Spirit of Christ taught him to treat Cornelius and his household as brethren beloved because of their faith and character. Peter's Christ-like spirit was enough to prevent him from giving offense in a purely ceremonial matter such as eating.

Cornelius was a man who fulfilled the demands of that passage in Micha which says, "What doth the Lord require of them, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" The most bigoted Jew was dumb before him so far as objections to his character were concerned. He was morally acceptable to the best religious community. He was just in his dealings with men, charitable toward the needy, and a worshipper of God. But he was not of the circumcision. Therefore the Judeans said that he was not a fit man for one of their number like Peter to eat with. Peter had, however, shown himself not very strict, for at Joppa he was the guest of a man that was a tanner. Perhaps that circumstance was a source of encouragement to Cornelius, who probably felt that a Jew who would lodge with a tanner would not be so strict but that he would come into his house to teach him the way of God more perfectly.

The prejudice against receiving Gentiles unqualifiedly gave way slowly. The yielding of the church in this particular instance was not a complete victory for the Gentiles. Even Peter himself receded from his own liberality, on the occasion of his visit to Antioch, when he had such a warm discussion with Paul, who says that he withstood Peter to the face for seeming to be two-faced in the matter. A little later two factions actually arose in the church, one claiming that the Gentiles must be permitted entrance to the privileges of Christianity without being compelled to become Jews and observe the rite of circumcision and other Jewish ceremonies; the other party insisting that every member of the church must also be a circumcised Jew.

In its spirit the difficulty that thus arose in the early church is not one so very remote from the present time. It is not unknown for churches in America to set a social standard of membership and to make persons who do not come up to that standard (or perhaps we ought to say, come down to it) feel very uncomfortable and much like strangers in a strange land when they enter what is supposed to be the house of God. Then there are artificial ecclesiastical standards of Christianity by which large bodies of persons are excluded from Christian fellowship because they do not observe those artificial standards. Happily, such artificialities are fading out, and believers everywhere are increasingly coming to acknowledge in fact as well as in theory the universal religious brotherhood of those who worship God calling upon the name of Jesus Christ. This widening spirit goes hand in hand with the confession of the brotherhood of all men of whatever creed or color.

AUTHORIZED BY A VISION.

Nothing could be more simple than the reply which Peter made to the reproof he received. He attempted no elaborate argument, but gave a straightforward narrative of the events that had occurred in connection with his eating with Cornelius. He was upon the housetop at the house of Simon the tanner, praying. The housetop was used at that time as a quiet resort for conversation, sleep, exercise and numerous other things of a private and domestic nature. At noon Peter became hungry, and fell into a trance. While in the trance he saw a vision whose characteristics seem to have been determined by his hunger. This vision was three times repeated to give emphasis to it, just as the dream of Pharaoh is said to have been doubled "because the thing is established of God." Peter saw types of the whole animal creation pass before him, and was told by a voice to rise, kill and eat. But Peter objected to the ceremonial uncleanness of the animals he saw. Those that were by nature ceremonially clean were in the vision polluted by their association with others that were unclean.

This vision dealt specifically with the distinction between clean and uncelan animals, but this distinction rested on the same principle as that between men, except in certain cases of animals that were accounted impure for hygienic reasons. So that to eradicate the idea of artificial ceremonial uncleanness from the animal world rendered it all the more easy for Peter to disregard the ceremonial wall between men. By the vision Peter was taught that all things are clean in relation to God; apart from Him nothing is clean. Perhaps Peter inferred that by the death of Christ all things had been rendered clean. Later on, Paul wrote, "I know, and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean of itself." Again, he advised, "Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, eat, asking no questions for conscience sake; for the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof." In still another place, speaking of meats, he said: "Every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified through the word of God and prayer." It is a part of the fine poetic conception of Paul that all creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now, awaiting the consummation of Christ's redemption, but that through Christ God has reconciled all things to himself, whether they be earthly or heavenly things.

After Peter had seen the vision he "considered" it before there came an interpretation of it. Then, when he had come to understand that it was the voice of God speaking to him unequivocally, he arose at once and obeyed, even as Paul wrote that he was not disobedient to the heavenly vision. Moses hesitated in responding to God's message, and Jonah tried to run away from the duty God imposed upon him. How much better was the conduct of these two apostles of the new faith, who hastened to obey the command of their Lord; Jesus had said: "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments." Surely Peter and Paul proved their love by prompt obedience.

Peter had been a good Jew up to the time of this incident. And he then transgressed the old Jewish law only on the express command of the Lord. "Who was I that I could withstand God?" was his brave word of defense. "What God hath cleansed make not thou common," kept ringing in his ears. As to the baptism of the new converts, he did not feel that the outward rite of recognition ought to be denied when God himself had given them the inner testimony of the Holy Spirit's blessing even as he had given it to the disciples at Jerusalem. Nor ought any community of Christians deny to others who have received the witness of the Spirit any benefits of fellowship which they have in their power to grant.

According to Peter's own account, the sermon seems to have been broken off and rendered superfluous by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the audience. God was not then seeking to exclude men from his kingdom, but to include them. This is his constant attitude. Man may exclude himself. God never does it except as a matter of final judgment that is forced by man's wickedness.

When the church had heard Peter's story through, they withdrew their objections to what he had done and joined in an anthem of praise to God for showing such mercy to the Gentiles. So that in this event the church was blessed as well as Cornelius. The church is never blessed through seeking to limit the gifts of God, but rather through reaching out to extend them.

FOR SEAL LEATHER

More Than Four Thousand Men Engaged In This Fishing.

The Vessels of the Trade Steam Among Ice Floes.

Cover Hundreds of Square Miles In March and April.

New York, April 25.—Nearly every person is acquainted with the characteristic seal leather and admires its peculiar softness and remarkable durability. Indeed, most of us possess small pieces of it in the form of belts, card cases, pocketbooks, etc. Yet the number familiar with its source and the conditions surrounding its obtainment is relatively small, notwithstanding the fact that it is the object one of the most picturesque and venturesome of the marine industries of the world. The "fishery" is now in progress off the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador, and more than four thousand men are in quest of the small seals whose skins supply the market with this leather.

These seals are quite unlike the fur seals of Alaskan waters, differing in structure, appearance and habits. Several varieties are taken in the Newfoundland fishery, but the young of the harp seal is by far the most numerous and forms the principal object of capture.

The harp seal is widely distributed about the lower Arctic regions, living on the icefloes, drifting from the head of Baffin bay to the Gu of St. Lawrence and also in the ice fields north of Europe. It arrives on the floes at the mouth of Davis strait about the middle of February, for the purpose of bringing forth its young. Within a few days hundreds of thousands have hauled up and each female has become a mother on the floes carried by the great Arctic current from Baffin bay past the shore of Newfoundland to be melted finally in the warm waters of the gulf stream.

At the time of birth the young seals weigh six or eight pounds each, and are of a creamy white color, quite unlike the young fur seals, which are a jet black. Nourished by their mother's milk the young seals grow rapidly on their icy beds, and when two weeks old are really balls of fat, weighing under usual conditions about fifty-five pounds each, of which about forty pounds represents the weight of the skin and the attached fat, leaving only fifteen pounds for the carcass. At this stage they are covered with a coat of very thick, soft, nearly white hair, hence they are known as "white coats," and are in perfect condition for the hunters. At the end of about three weeks the animals gradually take to the water, the skin changes in color and becomes less valuable, and the weight of the animal decreases greatly, so that at the age of 1 month the pelt averages but thirty pounds in weight, and six months later it is only about forty pounds, or practically the same as when the animal was only two weeks old.

The seal hunters endeavor to be "on the grounds" when the white coats are two weeks old, as the latter are in prime condition at that time. Formerly the steamers left port about March 1, but it was found that they reached the swelling ice usually before the seals while the young were helpless and sometimes even before they were born. Consequently in 1901 a law was enacted interdicting the sailing of the steamers previous to March 10 of each year.

The vessels steam boldly in among the ice masses floating from Davis strait, working their way frequently to the 53rd degree or the 54th degree of north latitude, searching the floes for herds of seals. The masses of ice are frequently a hundred or more miles in width, and of unknown length, and the success of the hunt depends on the vessels working their way among the floes to those containing the seals, the precise location of which is a matter of conjecture, the prevailing winds having much to do with it. The vessels may be caught in the ice and there held until the seal floes are broken up and the white coats have taken to the water. Heavy, closely packed masses of ice may cut them off from the largest patches of seals, resulting in a small catch. During some seasons the most skilful sealing captains miss them entirely; at other times a steamer runs into a patch of seals sufficient to load several vessels. They may be found in vast herds of thousands, sometimes 30,000 or more being in view at one time or, as is more likely the case, in smaller groups of a few hundred. The whimpering of the white or sobbing of infants, and when grouped in large numbers they raise a great commotion which may be heard for miles.

On being sighted by the outlook at the masthead the vessel is worked close to the herd. By means of small boats the hunters are landed on the floes, each man armed with a pole or gaff, about 7 feet long, with an iron hook at one end. The mature seals scamper away, seeking to escape into the water, leaving the white coats defenseless and helpless on the ice. A single blow on the nose with the gaff stuns each animal, and as soon as a group has been dispatched the work of skinning or "sculping" begins. A cut with a knife is made down the under side from nose to tail and the skin with the adhering fat is removed in one piece and transported to the vessel, leaving the carcas on the ice. As soon as a patch has been "cleaned up" and the pelts secured aboard ship the hunters proceed with their search for others.

Few scenes are more animated and in greater accord with the surroundings are to be met with than those enacted each spring in the seal hunt. Fancy, amid the solitudes of the Northern seas, the masses of ice floating down from the circum-polar regions bearing the hundreds of thousands of seals of varying ages, from the old patriarchs to the white coats of two weeks or less, all mingled together with the animation so characteristic of seal life. The steamers force their way through the crystal ramparts by which nature guards the animals, and the hunters appear—sometimes hundreds on a single ice floe—their clothing stained with oil and blood. The shouts of the ensanguined men! The babe-like crying of the defenseless little fellows on their icy cradles! The blows as they are dispatched with gaffs! The ice stained with gore and dotted with thousands of carcasses denuded of skin and fat and yet palpitating with life. The mother seals, now cubless, popping their heads from vantage places in the ice crevices, plunge into the sea and quickly escape form the polluted scene. Such is the seal hunt carried on each March and April off the northern coast of Newfoundland.

The sealing vessels are generally absent from port for four or five weeks. The catch varies greatly; some vessels bring in 20,000 or 35,000 pelts, while others return almost "clean," having been caught in the ice thereby prevented from reaching the seals. The total catch for the fleet, however, is usually in excess of 300,000 pelts, and the average per vessel during the last decade is fully as large as it was two or three decades ago.

On arrival in port the cargo is discharged from the vessel and the thick fat or blubber is separated from the skins and rendered into oil. The skins are salted and shipped to the tanneries. By far the greater portion of the skins are tanned in Great Britain, especially in Glasgow and London, and many are tanned in Germany, Newfoundland and Canada.

HISTORICALLY CORRECT

Will Be Picture of Battle of Santiago.

Washington, April 25.—President Roosevelt's usual walk led him to the heights of Fort Meyer, near Arlington, overlooking the city of Washington, where he chatted with M. Vassill Verestchagin, the greatest of modern battle painters, who is now engaged upon a picture of the battle of San Juan hill.

"In painting battle pictures," says M. Verestchagin, "it is necessary to establish one's studio out of doors. Nearly all of my paintings have been painted in this way. One consideration that led me to fix upon Fort Meyer was the presence there of an unusually fine body of American soldiery, some of whom participated in the Santiago campaign, and whom I will employ as models.

"There has been a persistent notion in some quarters that I have been painting this picture for the president, and, although I do not intend to deny that he may eventually become its owner, I do assert that they are mistaken in supposing that my sole aim in painting the battle of San Juan hill is to glorify the president. The principal aim to be followed in a work such as the one that I am undertaking is that the picture should be historically correct.

"The president knows and appreciates what I have just said, and is as great a stickler for historical truth as I myself. Being a soldier, he realizes the full value of historical accuracy, and while he insists that I shall avoid bringing him upon the scene any more than historical truth demands, he is quite anxious that I shall take particular pains in giving his regiment its proper place and correct action in the charge of the blockhouse."

SUES FOR DAMAGES

Because He Failed to Get Telephone Connection.

Birmingham, Ala., April 25.—R. E. Graham has filed suit against the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company for $1000 damages for failure to give him a connection over the telephone after he had deposited his nickel in the slot of one of the pay 'phones after being told so to do by the operator. The suit is somewhat out of the ordinary line of damage suits, and if successful may encourage the filing of neglects to give prompt connections.

Mr. Graham alleges in his complaint that on April 6 his baby was suddenly taken violently sick with spasms and convulsions, and that he went to station 98 and asked to be connected with Dr. Dedman's telephone. He says the operator told him to put 5 cents in the slot and the connection would be made. He avers that he complied with this request, but that the operator failed or refused to give the connection.

He says that as a result of this negligence he was compelled to walk to the office of Dr. Dedman and that there was a delay of three hours before the doctor reached the bedside of the child, wherefore he wants damages.

TO SELL TO NEGROES.

Novel Plan to Punish Gossiping Neighbors.

New York, April 25.—To punish neighbors for their gossiping, Mrs. Daniel Kleinberger, wife of a diamond importer of No. 14 Maiden Lane, has decided to sell her home, 146 Fountain avenue, Brooklyn, to a colored family. She has publicly advertised the fact, and will dispose of it for any reasonable sum to negroes.

She is now negotiating to purchase another house some distance away from her present abode and out of reach of the "gossipers."

Mrs. Kleinberger is much wrought up over stories circulated about her family, which, she says, are of a disparaging nature. They are the work, she says, of jealousy-impelled neighbors who envy her wealth and exclusiveness. The Kleinbergers live in a two-story and basement frame house in the center of a row of similar houses, between Glenmore and Liberty avenues.

They have occupied it for four years, moving in within a short time after it was built. William Crawford, a shoe dealer, lives on one side of them and Townsend Raynor on the other. The feud between Mrs. Kleinberger and the neighbors originated some months ago and has now reached a critical stage.

"I will not live in this house and stand the annoyances I have been subjected to by my neighbors," said Mrs. Kleinberger. "It is true that my house is for sale and that I prefer a colored family to buy it. They can't come too black for me. I will sell at a sacrifice to them. They can sit out on their front stoop, enjoying themselves as they like, and take some of the style out of these jealous and envious neighbors of mine."

A DOG'S HOSPITALITY.

Fed His Visitors When They Were Hungry.

Brenham, Tex., April 25.—Miss Amelia Fischer has a beautiful jet black Newfoundland dog at her house, which is very bright and a great pet. He has unrestricted access to every part of the house and goes upstairs, down stairs, in any and every room without restrictions. Yesterday this dog had two visitors, poor, lank-sided and hungry. Nero met them on the gallery and proposed a romp. The visiting dogs were not playfully inclined and declined. Nero insisted, but the hungry dogs stood in the door of the dining room, where dinner was being served, gazing wistfully at the table and could not be persuaded to play.

Finally Nero seem to understand what the trouble was. He left the visitors, glancing backward as he walked away, and through the dining room into the kitchen. He put his paws on the table, took two large pieces of bread in his mouth and returned to the door where the dogs were still standing, without any effort to conceal his act. He gave each dog a piece of bread and stood by until they had finished eating it. One disposed of his slice first and made an attempt to eat a portion of the other one's rations, Nero promptly interfered and stood between them until each had eaten his piece and no more. After serving lunch in this way Nero again invited the visitors to romp with him. They accepted and the trio frolicked on the gallery and in the street until they were exhausted, when the visitors departed and Nero stretched himself contentedly on the floor.

It Means Ostracism.—Foul breath and disgusting discharges due to Catarrh make thousands of people objects of aversion. Hon. George James, of Scranton, Pa., says: "I have been a martyr to Catarrh for twenty years, constant hawking and dropping in the throat and pain in the head, very offensive breath. I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave instant relief. After using a few bottles I was cured. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.—14.

WHY?

IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY— It has no odor. Prof. Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN— It causes no discolorations of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE— As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP— By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

Corn, Oats and Rye Also Weak and Flax Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 25.—The wheat market started out with lower prices and ruled weak all morning. Corn and oats participated in the slump and the weakness was general throughout the morning.

The Liverpool market closed with a decline of 1d. Paris was unchanged to ¼c lower and Antwerp ⅛c lower.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 1,000,000 bus this week and at Minneapolis 600,000 bus. Primary receipts of wheat were 353,000 bus, last year 358,000 bus. Shipments were 274,000 bus, last year 282,000 bus. Bradstreet reported exports of wheat and flour for the week of 3,777,000 bus, last week 4,118,-000 bus, last year 5,300,000 bus. Corn in the Chicago market declined 1c and oats ⅝c. Primary receipts of corn were 252,000 bus, last year 353,000 bus. Shipments 190,000 bus, last year 281,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 108 cars, and at Chicago, 26, a total of 134 cars, against 135 last week and 267 last year.

From that point it reacted to 74⅝c at 12:20 and closed there, a decline of 2¾c. Chicago declined 1⅝-1¾c and Minneapolis 1¼c.

Cash prices were unchanged at May price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 4c under for No. 3. Sales were very light.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Selling Movement In Wheat Almost Caused Panic.

Chicago, April 25.—Pandemonium ruled the first half hour of grain speculation today. General rains in many of the wheat states and fair traces of it in Kansas precipitated a selling movement in wheat at the opening that for a time promised a panic. The only sentiment shown traders was to stop the loss they had incurred by buying at high prices on the dry weather scare. Iowa, had a very heavy rain and Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska general rains. Even in spite of the remarkably firm English cables everybody turned sellers. Commission houses had big liquidation orders, many of them for profits, but soon these changed to forced sales to stop losses. There was almost no demand early and prices dropped with a thud. May wheat opened 1½@1⅝c depressed, with sales as wide apart of 74¾c to 73¾c. July started as irregularly as May at 76c to 75¼c and weakened ½c further. Gradually the trade began to control itself and spectators viewed the situation more calmly. Then prices began to crawl up again as shorts covered their accounts at liberal profits. May worked up to 74⅝c and July steadied around 75¾c. Local receipts were 26 cars, none of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 108 cars, making a total for the three points of 134 cars against 136 last week and 267 a year ago. Argentine shipments were 1,804,000 bus compared to 1,302,000 bus a year ago.

At the opening tumult in wheat had subsided there was a fairly active market with prices inclined to hang steadily at a liberal decline. May wheat closed 1⅝@1¾c lower at 74¾c and July 1¾c off at 75¾@¾c.

The corn pit for a time was even more excited than wheat. Heavy rains had fallen in most of the corn growing states, and though dry weather has not been much of a scare to corn bears the effect on feed by such rains was expected to be bearish. The sympathy with the wheat break, however, was very depressing. Country offerings were reported larger and though Liverpool cables were steady corn slumped worse than wheat, breaking 2½c in a few minutes. May started ⅝c to 1⅜c lower at 62⅝c to 61½c and weakened to 61¾c. July opened ½c to 1c down at 64c to 63½c and touched 62½c before traders gained control of themselves. Then many who were natural bulls on influences aside from the recent wheat advance, became nervous because they had sold and with investors jumping into the market, sent prices upwards again almost as quickly as they had fallen. Mid finally steadied at 62¼c and July at 63¾c. Receipts were 119 cars.

Corn had a fair reaction that continued for some time after the crowd found their sense and May sold up again to 62½@62⅝c and July to 64c. The finish, however, was weak, both May and July closing 1c depressed, respectively, at 62½c and 63¾c.

Oats had a small trade early but were depressed. May opened 1¼c down at 42c, weakened to 41⅝c and reacted to 42¼c. Receipts were 157 cars.

Provisions had a firm hog market to support them against the depression in grains and held remarkably steady for a time. Trade was quiet considering the upheaval in other pits. July pork opened 5c lower to unchanged at $10.35 to $10.40; July lard a shade lower at $10.00, and July ribs 2½@5c to a shade lower at $9.3½ to $9.40.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago.—Wheat—The market was active and weak. The weather map showed rains pretty generally from Nebraska and Ohio. On this there was a severe selling pressure at the opening and the market for a while was quite demoralized. It has since turned steadier, but so far shows little rearmost power. Kansas is still showing insufficient rains, but otherwise immediate tension on that score is over. With weather conditions returning to normal the market will naturally work back to the influences of supply and demand. These are not bearish. Receipts, small; exports, liberal. Rapidly decreasing stocks are with these conditions bearish.

Lincoln, Neb.—Nebraska has not had sufficient rain to relieve fear of ultimate injury from drouth, but more is promised this evening. A good soaking rain now and seasonable weather thereafter would assure us of best crop ever raised.

A large elevator company in the Northwest, writing from Minneapolis, says: "Our cash situation is very strong. The first of next month will probably find but 10,000,000 bus wheat in store here, and one of our milling concerns could grind this alone. There is practically nothing offering from the country."

* * *

Modern Miller: Continued dry weather, aggravated for a time by unseasonable high temperatures and strong winds, has had an unfavorable effect on the winter wheat crop the past week. The greatest deterioration was in Kansas where there was least benefit received by recent rains which, however, were heavy and general to the north and east. Farmers are busy with spring wheat and deliveries of wheat insignificant.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, April 25.—Wheat—Good rains throughout the winter wheat belt and prospects for more, especially in the Southwest, caused free liquidation by longs and a very weak market. Local scalpers tried hard to bring about a rally but there was too much wheat for sale and the undertone to the market was too heavy. The close was weak at the lowest point of the day. May and July 1¼c and September 2⅛c lower than yesterday. Foreign markets were generally weak. Liverpool closed 1⅝d lower for the day. Continental markets were also lower. Weather and crop reports in Europe continue very favorable. There was a good demand for cash wheat here by local millers, also some inquiry for export but no large business was reported.

The seaboard reported a moderate business done there for export on the break. Broomhall cabled refreshing rains have fallen in Argentine. After the breaking of the drouth we look for decided improvement in the crop prospects. Recent reports of damage undoubtedly have been very much exaggerated, as they usually are. Of course the legitimate situation will have a great bearing on the future course of the market. Receipts just now are running very light, but later on they will probably become larger, especially if the prospects for the next crop keep favorable. Millers demand at home is likely to be good and inclined to think foreigners may become good buyers on breaks. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 30 cars.

The corn market ruled very nervous all day with an active trade. After opening weak on selling by longs on account of rains, later rallied 1½c from the low point on buying by shorts as well as buying by a prominent commission house who are said to be manipulating the market. Free realization on the bulge caused prices to ease off and the close was 1⅝c lower than last night. Foreign markets were weak. Liverpool closed ⅝@¾d lower for the day. Country offerings were larger, cash demand rather quiet, although a sale of a moderate quantity was reported to go to the South. The future course of the market is hard to diagnose, there is so much manipulation in it, and the only way we can see to work will be to buy on sharp breaks or sell on sudden bulges. Taking moderate profits in each case. While it is a little to early to say anything about the prospects of next crop still everything looks favorable and a very large acreage will undoubtedly be planted. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 115 cars.

There was a very large trade in oats today and the market after opening weak on rains and generally favorable crop prospects, later rallied on covering by shorts, but eased off again toward the end of the session and closed weak. Country offerings were much larger; cash demand was good. The recent rains have put an end to all talk of drouth and the prospects are now more favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 145 cars.

Provisions opened easy on decline in later hog market and weakness in grain, sold off sharply on liquidation and later ruled very dull, evidently supplying orders in market, closing with losses for the day. The recent advance enabled holders to dispose of their product at profits and they are not in a hurry to come back again especially when the market is controlled by leading packers. The market acts tired while we do not dispute that the leaders can advance the market, we are certain it would not help them to sell if they so desired. Trade is at a standstill and all classes of traders are afraid of the market. We think a break would be beneficial and think we are due to get it.

ACTIVITY IN STOCKS

Large Takings of United States Steel at Opening.

Amalgamated Rose But Few Other Stocks Went Upward.

Reaction Occurred Near the Close Which Was Steady.

New York, April 25.—The opening dealings in stocks showed a strong and active market with the demand widely distributed throughout all the departments. The opening takings of United States Steel were of 15,000 shares and of the preferred 8000 shares, the spread in price of each reaching ⅜ at an extreme advance of ⅝ for the common and ½ for the preferred. There were 6800 shares of Brooklyn Transit at an extreme advance of ⅞ and 4000 shares of Union Pacific carried the price up as much. Canadian Pacific opened up 1¾ and after reacting a point recovered again. Gains of a point or more were shown in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie, Sugar, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, New York Central and Louisville & Nashville.

The active stocks, United States Steel excepted declined on realizing and the rise in Sugar, Brooklyn Transit, New York Central, Union Pacific and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville was nearly wiped out. Points of strength cropped out elsewhere which gave the market an irregular appearance. Brooklyn Union Gas, International Power, Westinghouse Electric, American Ice, Lake Shore, New Haven, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred, Evansville & Terre Haute preferred, and Agricultural Chemical advanced from 1 to 3 points, Anaconda lost 1, Michigan Central 1½ and New York Air Brake 4⅝. Colorado Fuel was lifted to near 110 before 11 o'clock, but other leaders remained heavy.

The market began to recover co-incidentally with the rise in Amalgamated to 69¾. Anaconda rose sympathetically a point over last night and there was a rally to the highest by the grangers and Pacifics. Union Pacific rose to 100⅛ and St. Paul, Southern Pacific, Rock Island, Texas Pacific and People's Gas rose a point or more. The soft coalers were in demand and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a point. Canadian Pacific showed unusual strength, rising 2⅝ and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, Hocking Coal, Ice and Kookuk & Des Moines a point or more. American Agricultural Chemical increased its rise to 3⅝. Chicago, I. & L. dropped from 70¾ to 68 and rallied to above 70. Bonds were firm at noon.

Reading rose a point and Delaware & Hudson 1⅝ and then prices sagged with the exception of some specialties. Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling gained 6¾, the preferred, International Power 1½, Ice preferred 3⅜, Pressed Steel Car 2⅝ and Linseed, Consolidated Gas, Grass Twine, International Silver preferred, General Electric and the Snuff stocks 1 to 2. The general market was very dull. Stocks were dull and dropping. Sugar, Colorado Fuel and New York Central lost their earlier gains and some of the grangers a large part of theirs. The market became firmer again when Amalgamated was bid up, but the improvement was chilled later when Sugar fell well below 126.

The Southern group came into prominence late in the day. Southern Railway was taken in blocks up to 10,000 shares at 1 advance of 1⅝. Louisville & Nashville rose 2⅜, and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville recovered to 3⅛ over last night. When it was seen that this had no effect on the general market, these stocks reacted in common with the rest of the list. Some important stocks among the grangers, coalers, New York public utilities and industrials fell below last night. American Express dropped 5, and United States Express advanced 3½; Pullman 2¾ and Power, 4. The closing was active and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—Believers in higher prices feel encouraged tonight over the recovery in the stock market, and are more confident than ever that notwithstanding the pessimism of professional traders, it is going to pay them to stick to the bull side and buy good stocks on all recessions. Speculation is broadening as a result of activity of various strong interests, especially in time. It is now the opinion of observant brokers that the element known as the Gates, Ellwood, Lambert crowd and also the rich Pittsburg contingent have bought back the stocks sold on the recent bulge, and are disposed to be once more aggressively bullish. At all events, there is a demand for stock from the powerful quarters while influential selling is conspicuous by its absence, as to the attitude of local interests it is clearly reflected in the strength of United States shares, and the tractions. These stocks are being well bought, as are Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, the Readings, T. C. & I., and Amalgamated Copper. Despite crop damage to winter wheat, the agricultural outlook is regarded as fairly good. What are called technical market conditions are believed to be better than a week ago. Stocks have passed from weak to strong hands. The short interest is heavy. It is especially large in Amalgamated Copper, Atchison, Union Pacific. Some brokers say the short interest in Amalgamated Copper amounts to 350 thousand shares and it is said that the Rockefeller-Rogers City bank contingent have accumulated over 500,000 ssares of this stok in the past three months, taking advantage of liquidation caused by poor trade reports, sensational newspaper articles in the hopelessness of Amalgamated Copper situation, and the recent cuts in the dividend. There is talk tonight of 20 per cent rise in the stock.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.—The market is firm and generally higher. Rains were pretty general throughout the West in the last twenty-four hours. Reports from Kansas indicate need of further moisture for grain otherwise tension has been pretty generally relieved. The temper of Wall street has, it seems, been universally bullish. Our advices are to buy Amalgamated, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Des Moines & Fort Dodge, Atchisons, Readings. The feeling over the strike situation is hopeful and a favorable bank statement is expected. Money continues steady, 4 @ 4½ per cent.

* * *

Town Topics.—The crop reports now coming to hand are more satisfactory and it is recognized that the recent statements of serious damage were grossly exaggerated. Sentiment is bullish, especially on the traction stocks, and we advise holding Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Manhattan for higher prices. People's Gas will move up and this stock is a good purchase for several points profit. Keep the long side of C. F. I. and T. C. I., and hold St. Paul, Missouri Pacific and Southern Pacific, for a further advance. The Steel stocks will be taken in hand and should be bought. Reading well sell much higher, although for the time being it may be somewhat slow. The Western interests are again talking bullish and they will work on the long side. The London market for American securities is stronger with Pacifics and Coalers in the lead. Mines and coppers are better.

* * *

Van Schaak to B. E. Baker.—The Chicago crowd have turned around and are bulling the market and will probably put it higher. Standard Oil interests want it higher to pull through their steamship combine and city bank increase of stocks.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The continued advance in Amalgamated is bringing buying in the other coppers and the market looks better every day. Amalgamated rose as if it would sell considerably higher. Its advance will be a strong bull point on all the better class of coppers. We are looking for favorable developments in Copper stocks within a few days and think this stock should be bought.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Tug Company Have Five Tugs Working---Another Tomorrow.

Strikers Trying to Induce Non-Union Firemen to Leave.

Have Persuaded Some Away But Others Were Secured.

The Great Lakes Towing company says the striking firemen have cut off the limb between themselves and the tree.

The striking firemen say they do not see it that way, and they profess to be confident that they will win their cause yet.

At any rate, the local tug company has started up five tugs with non-union firemen. It will start up another one tomorrow, and the remainder of the fleet will go into commission as rapidly as it is needed.

Last night the Superior, Zenith, Carrington, Inman and Excelsior were placed in commission, and today they are doing the towing work of the harbor as though nothing unusual were in progress. Tomorrow the Record will join the fleet, and whenever the other tugs are needed they will be manned and started out.

The striking firemen whose places have been filled by non-union men are contenting themselves so far with standing about in groups watching the process of getting out the tugs, and with attempting to persuade the non-union men to quit their new jobs.

They say that they do not intend any violence or intimidation, and that all they are going to do is to persuade the non-union men to quit work. They have done this in several instances. Last night when the tugs were being brought out a large number of the strikers stood about, and several of the non-union men that had been hired refused to come to work, professing that they were afraid of the crowd of strikers.

This morning a non-union man was persuaded off the tug Carrington while she was coaling up. Other men were in readiness, and one took the place immediately.

The company has had no difficulty in getting men to fill the places of the strikers, though of course not all of the new men are expert firemen. Enough old firemen have been found so that there is an opportunity to put the green hands on the engines, the company secured men, and in this way the company expects to break in the new men in a very short time.

The captains and engineers, who are members of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association, are going back to work willingly enough, for they have had enough idleness

OUTING GIRL OF SPRING AND SUMMER

New Bathing Suits In Flannel, Cashmere and Serge ---Corsets Should Be Worn---Sand Suits of Washable Silk.

New York, April 23.—The bathing girl will be found very near the water this season. By her gowns you can see that she is a sea girl of the practical order and will feel the waves when she goes out to swim.

Her dress is on the utility style, made of nonshrinkable, nonfadable, non-hurtable material, and it is constructed on free and easy lines that make a corset unnecessary.

Though, speaking of corsets, it may be said that the bathing corset is a good thing. It is made of plain white canvas, with a few bones in it and a good stout lace at the back, which may or may not be tied tightly. It holds up the figure, supports the back, and, if one is accustomed to a corset, it is better on than off.

The dire backache and the lassitude which follow sea bathing can frequently be traced to the fact that the bather takes off her support and then takes the most violent exercise of her life, battling with the waves of the deep sea. There come bathing corsets this year in many shades of pink and blue, yellow and florid goods.

The bathing dress of the season can be made of flannel—if you like flannel. It is not always fashionable. This material now comes with a smooth surface, a sort of mercerized finish, and is the best of all bathing stuffs, if you can wear such a heavy garment.

Flannel, you must remember, absorbs the water and becomes like lead after a few minutes in the waves. It is good for the practical swimmer who stays under water. But for the girl who disports in the waves awhile, then comes ashore and races on the sand, it is not so good, for it is too heavy. For those who have rheumatism or kindred ailments, or who are reducing, it is the stuff ideal and for the long-distance swimmer.

There is a cashmere which comes this year for bathing suits. It is light yet firm, and has been shrunken. It is very soft and will answer also for a sand suit.

A sand suit is one in which the wearer lies on the shore, digs in the beach, and does everything but go into the water.

Washable silk is the ideal sand suit material, and can be exquisitely made up. Last year the "pretty maidens" of Florodora had sand suits of wash silk, in blue and in red, in black and in white. And in these they went to Manhattan beach and defied the Johnnies to mash them. The suits were made up with knickers a little longer than the skirt, which was very short, indeed.

The bathing dress has knickerbockers under it, but it is not considered just the proper thing to have them show. There be those who like to show the trousers, but, as a rule, you will find that this is not liked at the seashore, nor is it correct when cycling. There is something too suggestive about the trousers to please all.

The new bathing suits in serge show beautiful effects. Many of them are trimmed with a very light-weight serge of quite a different color to make a sharp contrast.

A suit now being made for Newport—for the season begins early this year—shows the regulation shade of navy blue serge, trimmed with a wide band of coffee-colored serge.

This band is four inches wide if an inch, and is put on in a sort of classic design. Beginning at the belt, it runs down one side of the skirt in a panel. Then it turns squarely and extends upward half way to the skirt, making a curiously incomplete figure.

The white sandal will be popular. This is a classic covering for the feet and is worn over the black silk stocking. The bottom of the sandal is a heavy felt sole, a little larger than the foot, so as to protect each toe. Then white satin ribbon or heavy white braid is banded around the foot and ankle until the sandal is made fast to the foot. There is a distinct knack in sandal making which must be practiced before one can become an expert.

Where stockings only are worn without shoes a little innocent deception is practiced. Soles, the heavy insole variety, are passed inside the stocking to form a support and protection for the feet. Into these my lady puts her dainty foot and the effect is very delicate and pretty. She is standing in her daintily neat silk stockings upon the pebbly beach, but she does not suffer from the pebbles, though no one can understand her intrepidity as she runs over the sands stocking footed.

The open-work stockings, black, are to be worn in bathing, and the slip-stitch and open stripes. All sorts of stockings thin enough to display the flesh color will be worn, and the vogue for them will be even greater than it was last season.

The sunbonnet girl will be seen at the seashore. She will wear a little bonnet of lawn, beautifully white or gently pink, and the front or brim will be of stiffened muslin, corded and stitched to make it keep its shape. Into the back or baggy crown her hair will be bundled.

The sunbonnet is quite an ideal thing for the bathing girl. True, she can not go into the water with it on, but she can wear it over her oilskin cap, and when she gets ready for her plunge she can take it off the bonnet and lay it on the sands. Once out of the water she can put it on again. It affords a protection from the sun, and is immensely becoming to a pretty face.

The sunbonnet girl of summer will soon be here, but of all the varieties of sunbonnet girls none is prettier or more attractive than the one who wears her stiffly starched bonnet to the seashore and takes it to the beach with her when she goes bathing.

To make a sunbonnet is not difficult. Take enough cotten material, which may be plain or printed, to go over the head. It must not meet under the chin. Cut this piece in oblong shape, with square corners, and line it and stitch it, trimming it as you please with tucks or ruffles. The back consists merely of a soft round piece, shirred around the outside edge, to make a baggy portion. The whole is now treated to a deep ruffle. Strings should ornament the chin, and another set of strings should tie at the back, thus giving the bonnet its proper shape. The making of the summer sunbonnet is now one of the most fashionable of piazza diversions.

Bathing dresses will be trimmed with bands of cloth, cut from the piece, and finished without turning in or stitching. Often a raw edge will show all along the border of the band, but this is no harm.

A suit that will be seen at Cape May early in the season is made of deep red flannel and trimmed with a wide band of white flannel, put on perfectly straight around the bottom of the skirt, just above the hem. There is nothing remarkable about this band, except that it is stitched on in many rows very close together, to make the skirt set out.

Skirts will be worn very short and will be extremely full, looking like the skirt of a ballet dancer just a little, though one forgets the suggestion when one notices the plainness of the material and the demureness of the coloring.

It is the fashion to stripe the skirts of bathing dresses with bands of silk, doubled and put on from the waist downward. One quite pretty suit shows in color a very deep seal brown. It is striped with bands of pale tan-colored ribbon that extend from the belt right down to the bottom of the skirt, looking like striped becoming to the figure and make the short girl who essays to go in bathing look a little taller.

The unbecomingness of the oilskin cap may be overcome in other ways than the sunbonnet. The bandana of white silk is a becoming thing to wear upon the head.

One yard of white wash silk, tied around the head and knotted at one side, will look very well, indeed, and will cover up the oilskin cap. This is the style of head covering adopted by fashionable women, and they find that it is even more chic than the French bathing cap, which is a bag with a ruffle around it, like a smoking cap.

Brilantine and poplinet of the wash variety are all used for the waves, and there are a number of lightweight woolens, besides serges, that are recommended. Black is the poorest of all, unless one selects black flannel, which is always good, and holds its color well.

Very closely allied to the bathing dress proper is the gown which one wears upon the beach when one goes down to see the bathers. This must, to withstand the spatterings, be of nearly the same material as the bathing dress, though it need not be made like it. Curiously enough, the dress that is made for the beach is usually very long and very mod-ish in cut, and not at all like the rainy-day skirt, nor even the pedestrian. It is sweep length, snug in the hips, flare around the foot, and worn with a very up-to-date-season shirt waist. A little silk packet goes with it, to be slipped off or on.

The short jacket will soon be on the scene. For a little time it is the long cloak; then will come the abbreviated article. It will resemble in general style the bolero of last year, but will differ in some small peculiarities.

One of the distinctive features of the new bolero is its color. You can recall that last year it was black and tucked and worn upen in the front and very short, like a cut-off Eton. This year it is to be in white and blue and brown and green, any color except black and it will be the fad to have not one, but several to wear with the different shirt waists.

So inexpensive is the small silk bolero that you can have one of plain white taffeta, tucked or stitched, and one of black, lined with white. The navy blue satin one is not an expensive article, and the tan-colored liberty silk bolero is so useful to wear with the shirt waist for traveling and street occasions that you will find you can hardly do without it.

The seashore hat is a thing not to be omitted in seashore consideration. It must be trimmed, not with perishable material, but with silk, velvet and flowers that will not wilt. Fruits and vegetables are worn upon the seashore hat. And bunches of grapes are very pretty upon hats of purple and green.

Traveling dresses are to be almost ornate for the orthodox ideas of good form. The severity of the tailored gown is lacking, but in its place has come a gown so pretty that one does not regret the change. Beautiful black silk, with brocaded figures, looking very much like rich brocaded silk, but becoming in reality a cloth with a silky texture, is made up into a traveling gown of approved type.

Then, too, the style of skirt is open to criticism from the oldtime view, for it is very long. A so-called Newport traveling gown is in black brocaded cloth, with sweeping train and very plain. It is cut perfectly plain and a shirt waist is to be worn with it. For a coat there is a blouse of black satin cloth, very full and loose and with a deep sailor collar.

IN GUISE

Of Honest Day Laborer Wealthy Man Won a Bride.

New York, April 25.—Invitations are out for the marriage of Bertrand F. Bell, of this city, and Miss Beatrice Boggs, of Chillicothe, Ohio. The wedding is to take place in St. Paul's Episcopal church, in Chillicothe, on April 30.

Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity church, this city, who is an uncle of the prospective bridegroom, it is expected, will go to Chillicothe to officiate.

The ceremony will be a sequel to a romantic courtship. It is said that in winning his bride, Mr. Bell, who is a wealthy young man, a college graduate, an athlete and a member of a number of prominent clubs, owed his success largely to the fact that he became a day laborer in the employ of the Baltimore & Southwestern railroad at the company's shops in Chillicothe.

Mr. Bell, who is a son of the late Edward R. Bell, of this city, began his career by making an excellent record at Harvard. After leaving Harvard he joined the Peary relief expedition. Returning from this trip he turned his attention to railroading.

His object was to familiarize himself with the affairs of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road, in which he is a stockholder, that he might be fitted to take a prominent share in its management.

He drifted out to Chillicothe, where he took his place among the workers, who had never heard of Harvard or seen a golf link. After he left the workshops at night Mr. Bell was an important figure of the town's society. It was not long before he met the Misses Boggs, who are the daughters of Marcus Boggs, ex-internal revenue collector for the district of Southern Ohio.

The Boggs family is one of the wealthiest in the ancient Ohio capital, and the daughters, who spend much of their time driving through the shady streets of the old town, attracted Mr. Bell much more than any of the other young women of the place.

At length the young New Yorker confessed his love for Miss Beatrice. She hesitated. Not long ago the superintendent of the shops promoted Mr. Bell. The next evening he tried to tell Miss Boggs. "Can you take the rest of my career on trust?" the young millionaire asked her. And the young woman's reply was so encouraging that they set about arranging the details of the wedding at once.

AN ASTROLOGER

Warns Roosevelt to Be Careful For Three Days.

New York, April 25.—A jealous rival has been playing tag with the professional reputation of "Professor" Gustave Meyer, the Hoboken astrologer.

This person sent Mayor Low a prepaid telegram to the city hall warning him that he was in grave danger and that in the next few days the bogie man would get him if he didn't watch out.

Meyer's name was signed to it. The mayor pretended that he wasn't scared by the warning. The reporters found out about it and printed it.

The Hoboken astrologer read about it on Tuesday. He was still purple in the face when seen today.

"It's not Low at all," he declared. "It's President Roosevelt who wants to be careful for the next few days. He musn't travel any tomorrow, the next day or the next day—April 23, 24 and 25.

"He must be particularly careful not to travel on April 24, because if he does he will be in a collision sure. He must also be careful about what papers he puts his name to."

The reason for all this, according to the professor, "is that at that time, so far as the president's horoscope is concerned, the evil planet Saturn is posted in the third mansion of the heavens, and it is affected on these dates by the fiery and evil planet Mars.

Meyer also gave a Wall street tip. He advises the public to watch out for squalls in the early part of May. He expects to see a flurry, a panic and a fine crop of failures.

Meyer predicted the assassination of President McKinley several months before it occurred.

SECLUSION

Sought By a Woman Found Behind the Prison Bars.

New York, April 25.—A tall young woman, of refined speech and manner, walked into the West Thirtieth street station house. She told Sergeant Shiels that she wanted to be sent away from New York for at least six months. She was locked up and later taken to Jefferson market court by Policeman Courtney. The policeman thought she would weaken when she got there, but she didn't. She said she did not care where she was imprisoned if she could be kept away from this city for half a year. Her request astonished the magistrate. She said her name was Vivian Alva; that she was 23 years old and married.

When told that she could be sent to the state reformatory for women at Bedford, but that the term of commitment was three years, she replied:

"Very well, I will go there. I don't care where I go if I can be sent away from New York."

Although she quickly answered all queries in a pleasant, modulated voice, no questioning could elicit her story. She parried every question that was likely to throw the least light on her history.

"Where do you live?" she was asked.

"In New York," was all that she would reply.

"Where were you born?"

"On the Atlantic ocean. I was born," she continued, "on a ship just before it entered Annapolis, Md."

"Do you realize what you are doing?"

"Perfectly; and I'm doing what is best for myself," she said.

She denied that she had led a disorderly life or was intemperate.

"I do not wish to tell an untruth," she said, "but if you must say something, only say that I drink."

To Staff Capt. Kalsh, of the Salvation Army, she made this statement:

"I'm not doing this for myself, but another whom I love. If I don't leave New York it will bring him into serious trouble—and he will be blamed for it all. It is hard to part from those whom you love—but I must do my duty. I will never bring disgrace upon him."

That is all she would say.

The people think that she is from the South. She was dressed in a black serge skirt, a black silk waist, trimmed with white silk, a black serge jacket and a straw hat trimmed with black netting.

She covered her face with her hands when Magistrate Hogan signed the commitment papers, but she still refused to say why she sought seclusion behind prison bars.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 25.—Cotton opened firm with near months up 5 to 12 points and far months unchanged to 3 points higher. May option shot up to 9.41 in the early trading. April was strong and advanced to 9.45. Very bullish cables put new life in the bulls and alarmed the shorts. While there was some slight reaction under profit taking after the call the market was strong and rallied to 9.35 for July. August advanced to 9.12. Port receipts were light and the interior movement was bullish. Trading was active all the early session.

Your Rent is Going To Be Higher!

Why? Because the present rents paid does not cause any one to build to supply you with equal accommodations for the rent you are paying. The rent that caused the house to be built that you live in was considerably higher than you are paying now.

More people are coming to the city who will be willing to pay more than you are and the first thing you know you will be moving further from the center of the city than you are at present living.

Houses and lots are still being offered at less than it cost to build the house. It is not too late to buy at low figures.

We have about thirty houses and lots for sale which have been practically rebuilt in the last four years, taxes and assessments all paid, which we offer to sell for $100 to $150 down and the balance to be paid on terms that are as easy to pay as rent and you are in the way of getting a home. We refer you to those who have bought of us and are getting homes of their own. We have a list of over fifty at the office, at

WRECKED BY A TORNADO

Joplin, Mo., Was Visited By a Fearful Storm.

Three Dead and Others Fatally Injured.

Kansas City, April 26.—Three persons are dead and fifteen are injured, some of them fatally at Joplin in consequence of the tornado that struck that city late yesterday. A revised list of casualties follows:

Dead:

ESTHER HUNTER, 2 years old.

J. I. JONES.

MATHA COPE, colored, frightened to death.

Injured: John Kuger, Villa Hughes, fatally injured; Mrs. Thomas Smith, Newburg, thought to be fatally hurt; whole Smith family of seven injured from house falling on them; unknown woman, Byersville, fatally; G. W. Markham, badly injured; Bud Cole, bruised and cut; F. B. Kelly, badly bruised; Charles Click; Miss Mattie Walker, badly injured while driving in storm; Mrs. Nellie Sullivan, badly cut on head; her four children weer also injured; one baby blown 200 feet away was uninjured; Mrs. Richard Rex, back injured; Miss Rex, injured internally; also two Rex children injured; Mr. Moody, visiting Rex family, cut and bruised; Mrs. Anna Hunter, badly bruised on shoulder and head; Mrs. Hick, badly injured, eyesight destroyed; Miss Nora Winburne, seriously injured.

Seventy residences in Joplin were wrecked and several others at the suburbs of Moonshine Hill and Villa Heights were demolished. A conservative estimate today places the aggregate loss in buildings wrecked and mines flooded at $100,000. Mayor Trigg today called a meeting of citizens to devise plans for the relief of the homeless. All telegraph wires out of Joplin were wrecked, and the above information was secured over a slow working telephone wire.

The residences of Thomas Smith, Mrs. Nellie Sullivan, Mr. Babbs, S. D. Brower, Richard and Mr. Thomas were demolished, while a score or two others were more or less badly damaged. I. W. Reynolds' house was overturned and badly damaged, but the five members of the family were released uninjured. The 'Frisco round house was partially destroyed.

The new Baptist church was unroofed and the Methodist Mission church was completely demolished.

The offices of the White Lead works, Cooper's Carriage shop and the buildings on the Plymouth River mine, the Blackburn mine and the Cumberland Lead and Zinc comapny's mine, destroyed. Albert Frey's mine suffered heavy damage and the American Concentrating company's mill was badly damaged.

St. John's hospital was damaged to the extent of $1000; the Mineral Belt Telephone company suffered a loss of $2000 in poles and wires; Bell Telephone company, $1000; Stevens hotel, $2000, and the Roosevelt flats and the Joplin Gas company's plant were badly damaged. The houses of John Winburne and Walter Chapman were blown completely away, but the families escaped. At least fifty families are homeless.

St. Louis, April 26.—A windstorm that gained a velocity of forty miles or more an hour raged in St. Louis and vicinity most of last night and this morning. It was accompanied by a heavy rain. Considerable property damage was done in the city.

Telegraphic reports to the Post-Dispatch show that rains have fallen generally throughout Missouri and Illinois. The precipitation was sufficient to give relief from the drouth.

Sioux City, April 26.—Today's reports show that the storm damage in Sioux City will be above $25,000. Nearly every residence and business house suffered some damage from torn off roofs or broken glass. Special trains with linemen were sent out today to repair tegraph lines.

THE GREAT RISE IN BEEF AND FOUR MEN WHO ARE POWERFUL FACTORS IN THE MEAT BUSINESS.

AN old song ran thus: "When pigs begin to fly, oh, won't the pork be high!" They haven't flown yet, but pork and beef and all other meats, to say nothing of butter and eggs, are now so high that they have reached top notch prices. The beef trust is quite generally being held responsible for the squeeze which is causing great hardship to the poor.

GREATEST IN WORLD

Duluth Market Leads All In Flaxseed.

Breaks All Records In Amount Handled.

With the close of the 1901-2 crop year on Aug. 1 next, the Duluth market will have handled more flax seed than ever before went through any point in the same length of time. The total already reaches 14,175,000 bushels, and by Aug. 1 it is thought that another 500,000 bushels will have been added to these figures.

The largest total for any previous crop year was 8,301,000 bushels, received from the 1899 crop, and the totals by crop years since 1895, the first year of importance, have been as follows:

	Bushels.
1895-6	5,447,000
1896-7	7,018,000
1897-8	4,371,000
1898-9	6,698,000
1899-'0	8,301,000
1900-1	9,229,000
1901-2 (partly estimated)	14,700,000

Large as were last year's figures, it is confidently felt by those in touch with the situation that the coming year will go far beyond it.

The history of the growth of flaxseed in the Northwest, and the growth and importance of the Duluth market is an interesting one. Previous to 1895 Duluth had handled but very little flax, although it had been grown in Southern Minnesota for many years. In the year 1895, following an extremely short crop the previous year and consequent high prices, the farmers of the Red River valley went into the raising of flax on a large scale, but a thorough appreciation of the extent to which they had gone into it was not realized until long after the crop had commenced to move to market.

In the spring of 1895 seed from the old crop was selling at $1.50 to $1.55 per bushel, and new crop futures at $1.40 to $1.45. At that time Chicago was the only market in this country, and a coterie of shrewd speculators, headed by M. Doran, of St. Paul, who were thoroughly alive to the way flax had been taken up by Northwestern farmers, filled the Chicago market up with all the new crop futures they could see there. It is said that the larger part of this short flax was bought in during the fall at less than $1 per bushel, netting the syndicate something more than $500,000 in profits.

The yields that year were something tremendous, in many cases running 30 to 35 bushels to the acre, and averaging for North Dakota something over 18 bushels to the acre. North Dakota has been a flax raising state ever since, although of late years the Red River valley, owing to exhaustion of the land, has largely abandoned its growth, and the large area and yields have moved westward into the newer lands.

The crop of 1896 was a good one, and coming with the extreme depression in business conditions, prices reached a very low level, 63 cents per bushel, in the spring of 1897.

During the crop year of 1898 the Duluth quotations on flax seed began to act independently of Chicago, and when trading commenced on the 1899 crop, practically no attention was paid to Chicago, and that has been the situation ever since. At the present time it is probable that Duluth's flax quotations do more towards establishing the world's price on seed than do those of any other single market.

Flax seed has always been a favorite speculative commodity, but during the past three crop years, the Northwestern speculators have probably lost more than they have made, through selling futures short.

In 1899 the first sales of new crop seed

A HEAVY DISTURBANCE

Of the Earth Was Recorded at Baltimore During the Earthquakes Which Occurred In Central America Recently.

New York, April 26.—The earthquake which caused such damage in Central America last Friday extended as far north as Baltimore, says a dispatch from that city to the Tribune. At the John Hopkins university the film has just been taken off the seismograph and it was found to indicate the heaviest earth disturbance recorded since the machine was put in operation. After they had prepared the film for examination, Dr. Harry Reid, reading from the record, said:

"The shock reached Baltimore about 9:20 o'clock last Friday night. For about four minutes the disturbance was slight, then it suddenly became stronger. The heaviest shock was recorded about 9:40 o'clock. It soon subsided to a lower degree of violence, but the disturbance was comparatively strong for an hour and a half. The whole disturbance was apparent over a space of two hours and a half. The shocks were not strong enough to be generally perceptible."

CHARGED WITH PERJURY

St. Paul, April 26.—A special to the Dispatch from Stillwater, Minn., says: James Lane, an old-time logger, was arrested this morning on a charge of perjury made by James Kelly. It is alleged that he signed the saloon license bond of Louis Wolf last June in company with Senator E. L. Hospes as surety, justifying in the sum of $2000 and as a freeholder. Last December Lane filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court at St. Paul. Upon examination before Commissioner Doran recently he admitted that he never owned any real estate. Kelly is one of several creditors, and asserts that he will push the charge. Mr. Lane appeared before the municipal court today and had his arraignment postponed until Tuesday next. Judge Doe of the municipal court cannot hear the matter, as he is attorney for Lane, and Associate Judge Laek will take it up.

PUGS MEET IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eddie Gardner, whose first claim to fame is that he is a brother of Oscar Gardner, the well-known pugilist, fought Ole Oleson, of Chicago, to a standstill in a 10-round bout that was pulled off by the Minneapolis Aerie of Eagles last night at their lodge rooms. The St. Paul Eagles joined in swelling to 500 the crowd that attended the match.

The main bout was preceded by two preliminaries, in each of which there was a knockout. "Kid" Mason, a young colored boxer, undertook to stay four rounds with Billy Potts, of Minneapolis, but in the second round he got a bump that put him in dreamland until long after the referee had quit counting. Joe Aker, whose real name is not Aker, who is reputed to be a son of a Minneapolis city official, tackled Billy Houck with indifferent success and took the entire count soon after the opening of the second round. He was no match for Houck and the bout resolved itself into a farce.

Tacoma, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—George H. Drake, postoffice inspector, with headquarters at Minneapolis, was in Tacoma this week in conference with Mrs. Ellen Lokke, who is said to be a material witness in the case pending in the federal courts against Milo Jones, a Duluth letter-carrier, charged with abstracting the contents of registered letters.

Inspector Drake did not take Mrs. Lokke back to Minnesota with him.

GOT NO MONEY.

Unsuccessful Attempt at Robbery at Wickliffe, Ky.

Cairo, Ill., April 26.—The vault of the First National bank of Wickliffe, Ky., was blown open by robbers at 2 o'clock this morning. The explosion awoke the citizens of the town, who drove the robbers off, but did not succeed in capturing them. The robbers, four in number, got no money.

SETTLERS ARMING.

Denver, April 26.—A Republican special from Atwood, Kan., says that ranchmen and settlers are arming themselves, and trouble, it is feared, will come as a result of a quarrel over land in Rawlins and adioining counties. It is feared it may become necessary to call on the state troops to prevent bloodshed.

HOWARD VERY LOW.

New York, April 26.—Bronson Howard, the dramatist, whose greatest success was "Shenandoah," is in such a low state of health in the South of France that little hope of recovery is entertained by his friends. COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Cleveland, April 26.—Martin Lynch, who was arrested a few days ago, charged with the murder of his wife at the home of the couple, 603 Tod street, committed suicide early today in his cell at the county jail, by hanging himself from the door knob. The knob was not more than three feet from the floor. Lynch had carefully tied a sheet to the knob and then the other end about his neck. In order to accomplish his purpose, it was necessary for him to sit down on the floor of his cell and slowly strangle himself to death.

AGAINST BEEF TRUST

Assistant Attorney General Day Is In Chicago In Consultation With District Attorney Concerning Injunction Against Packers.

Chicago, April 26.—William A. Day, assistant to Attorney General Knox, and special counsel to the interstate commerce commission, arrived in Chicago today to confer with District Attorney Bethea relative to taking action against the so-called beef trust. Mr. Day said he did not bring with him the application for an injunction which the attorney general has ordered filed against the packing firms of Armour & Co., Nelson, Morris & Co., the G. H. Hammond Packing company, the Cudahay Packing company and the Schwarzchild & Sulzberger company. Further, he said that no bills would be filed by him today. The matter of the investigation, he said, had been placed entirely in the hands of District Attorney Bethea.

Attorney Day said: "I want to correct a misconception of my position in this case. I am here merely as the representative of Attorney General Knox. District Attorney Bethea is to have sole charge of the prosecution. I have not authority to direct his actions, but merely to convey to him certain instructions of his superiors in Washington as to the outline of the case. I have also brought some additional evidence which I secured in New York. This will be sifted by him and will be used to supplement his proof of the existence of a meat trust. I do not think the bills will be drawn hurriedly, for they must stand the severest scrutiny of some of the best corporation lawyers. For this reason care must be taken to withstand the assaults of a demurrer. I have no authority to say anything concerning the evidence I have secured. It is sufficient to state that the attorney general has approved of the proofs secured by Mr. Bethea and myself, and unless he was certain that we had strong evidence to support the applications for injunction under the Sherman anti-trust law he would not have ordered the prosecution started at this time."

As soon as the bills are ready for filing, notice will be sent to the defendants. Thirty to fifty days will be allowed to file answers or demurrers. It is stated authoritatively that the center of the government's action against the packers will be Chicago, and if any bills are to be filed at New York, it will be later.

ASSYRIANS IN COURT

Fight Over Oriental Rugs That Were Traced From Duluth to Tacoma and Seized By the Sheriff.

Tacoma, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Haheeb Abalan, Jamaly Abalan and Charles Etol are Assyrians that in name at least have figured somewhat conspicuously in the superior court here of late. Haheeb and Jamaly were divorced last fall in Duluth. The district court at Duluth gave Jamaly judgment for a decree of divorce and allowed her alimony. She attempted to attach a lot of 600 or 700 rugs said to have been owned by Haheeb. The latter is said to have transferred them to Charles Etol. They disappeared from Duluth, were traced to Tacoma, and here seized by Sheriff John Hartman under a writ of attachment.

The case attracted some attention here from the tall swearing of a whole colony of Tacoma Assyrians regarding the title to the rugs seized. This mixed swearing is what has puzzled the court, who now has the case under advisement. Some of the witnesses swore the rugs had never seen Duluth and that they had been on the Pacific coast for years. Others swore they had never even crossed the Atlantic, nor, for that matter, any other ocean.

CELEBRATE GRANT BIRTHDAY

New York, April 26.—Gen. U. S. Grant's birthday, which falls on Sunday, will be celebrated tonight by a dinner given by the Grant Monument association at the Waldorf-Astoria. Gen. Grenville M. Dodge will preside. The principal speakers will be Senator Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan; Champ Clark, of Missouri, and Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, of New York. Others who have been invited are Thomas B. Reed, Samuel Sloan, Gen. A. G. McCook, Gen. John R. Brooke, John O. O. Howard and Nicholas Fish.

Galena, Ill., April 26.—The eightieth anniversary of Gen. U. S. Grant was celebrated in this city under the auspices of the Grant Birthday association of Galena. This marked the tenth observance of the day. The orator at the first celebration in 1893 was William McKinley, and he was followed in succeeding years by Luther Laflin Mills, Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Emory Smith and others. The speaker today was Hon. W. J. Calhoun, of Chicago.

GRINDELAND IS A CANDIDATE

St. Paul, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Senator Andrew Grindeland, of Marshall county, has filed with the secretary of state a declaration that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in the Ninth district, composed of the larger portion of the old Seventh district.

PAY OF CUBAN SOLDIERS

President-Elect Palma Has Interview With Veterans of the Cuban War In Relation to Payment For Their Services.

New York, April 26.—An important conference has been held between President-elect Palma and several generals who participated in the late insurrection, says a Bayamo, Cuba, dispatch to the Tribune. The meeting was held at the request of the president-elect to obtain the views of former Cuban soldiers on questions of pay for their services. Those who attended were Gens. Rabi, Lora, Saleedo and Capote, representing the province of Santiago, which was the pivotal point of the rebellion.

This was the first opportunity Gen. Palma had for personally gauging the sentiment of these people on this question, which will be one of considerable importance. The result of the consultation was entirely satisfactory to the president-elect, all the conferees acquiescing in the plans outlined by him. He is opposed to paying the army immediately. His proposition is to give first attention to the agriculture of the islands. By fostering this industry, he argues, will be obtained the wages of the army. The constitution of Cuba, and the Platt amendment provide that the budget and interest of the insular debt must first be taken care of from a loan that will be negotiated.

Gen. Palma said that it must first be determined who is really entitled to be paid, which means an overhauling of the rolls. The amount now asked is about $80,000,000, which is considered far too much. It is believed that $15,000,000 will suffice to settle all legitimate claims. Perhaps two years will be required to settle in full. The president-elect also proposes to have the government take care of those who were crippled in war or were invalids as a result of the war. Provisions will be made for the widows. The question of pensions will not be favorably received.

The body of Gen. Palma's mother, buried by him thirty-two years ago near the Cauto river, has just been removed to this city, and will be reinterred here Saturday. It was placed in a coffin and brought in by 200 neighbors of the president-elect, all mounted. The village priest headed the long procession which received it. Behind it walked Gen. Palma, Senor Quesada and 500 citizens, all with bared heads. It was a particularly solemn ceremony, and the president-elect was as grief-stricken as if his mother had died yesterday. Mass was sung in the same little church which he attended when a boy.

At Manzanillo the American flag was hauled down on Thursday and the Cuban flag hoisted in its stead. The American post was abandoned, all troops embarked on the steamship Seguranela by way of Newport News for Fort Robinson, Neb., and immediately after the Cuban flag was hoisted by the captain of the Rural Guard. An immense crowd was at the ceremony.

Death of the Widow of Comedian Holland Revives Recollections of "The Little Church Around the Corner."

New York, April 26.—Mrs. Katherine Holland, widow of George Holland, the noted comedian, and mother of Joseph, E. M., and George Holland, is dead in this city. Her funeral will take place from the "Little Church Around the Corner" on Sunday.

Her death revived recollections of the manner in which the famous little vine-clad house of worship became so popular with the actors of this country; indeed, to such an extent that the members of the profession have come to look upon it as their own. George Holland died in 1870. Joseph Jefferson was requested by the family to make arrangements for the funeral. He applied at a marble edifice in Fifth avenue, but was told that the actor's funeral was not desired there, "There's a little church around the corner that does that sort of thing," said the clergyman.

"Then I say God bless the little church around the corner," replied Joseph Jefferson, and successfully applied to the late Rev. Dr. George H. Houghton of the Church of the Transfiguration.

As the result of this incident Dr. Houghton's church has since had the good will of the theatrical profession, and what was once a struggling parish has become a strong metropolitan church.

SUPERSTITIONS SHATTERED

New York, April 26.—Traditions and superstitions of the sea are to be shattered by the White Star line. Friday sailings from a port of departure always have been tabooed by mariners as such a thing as starting on a voyage Friday was believed to be the most convenient form of courting acquaintance with "Davy Jones Locker." The sailing of the Cymric from this port marks the inauguration of the new service, and the White Star line hereafter will send out a ship on alternate Fridays. The movement to defy the hoodoo is to supply the demands of shippers.

AT WEST DULUTH

The street car service was the paramount issue at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening, and there was a large attendance of the mmebrs. M. Jacoby started the discussion by stating that a committee of West Duluthians had called on Mr. Lowry when he was here and had been told by him that when the West Duluth people had agreed on another route than the West Third street extension, and it was found to take about the same amount of the trackage that the company will have to put down under the order of the court, to present the route to the company and it will receive consideration. Mr. Jacoby then outlined the four or five routes that have been suggested and talked for the route from the present end of the West Third street line, north on Fortieth avenue west to Norton avenue, thence to Fifty-ninth avenue west, then down that avenue to Grand avenue and west to Sixtieth avenue west. M. M. Clark, George S. Davis, Thomas Olafson and Hanson Smith talked along the same lines.

Alderman R. L. Cochrane, while in favor of a route that will be of most convenience to the people, suggested that the matter should proceed with caution so as not to invalidate the judgment already secured against the street railway company.

Dr. Burnside led the argument in opposition to any change from the route that has been ordered, that is, the West Third and Grand avenue extension to Sixtieth avenue west. He argued that it was quickness of service that was desired, and that the Grand avenue route would be several minutes shorter than the route by the hill. He suggested that the service would be even quicker than on the old West Duluth line, but this was disputed by several, who held that with the completion of the Jenswold street tunnel the old service will be the quickest. A num of remarks favorable to the tunnel were made by those taking part in the discussion.

No definite agreement was reached last evening and the meeting was adjourned, the question to come up again as a special order of business.

There is another matter regarding the construction of a sewer outlet that is pending, and which will receive the attention of the club just as soon as the street railway question is out of the way. The city engineer has plans for the construction of an outlet sewer that would not cost the city more than $150 per lot, perhaps less. The opposition to the sewer heretofore has been based on the fear that the cost or lot would be too heavy. Of the two plans held at the city engineer's office, one would cost $10,000 and the other $5000. The $5000 plan contemplates the present sewer trunk down Polk street a block, then south to the open creek that empties in St. Louis bay. If sewer rights could no be readily obtained from adjoining property owners it would not be a difficult matter for the city to condemn the land necessary. The water is said to be high enough in the creek the year round, and with sufficient current to fully meet the demands. The district traversed would not be a residented district, nor would it be in proximity to the sawmills.

TALLY HO!

A Turnout Which Will Hold Many Merry Parties.

A new and splendidly constructed 15-foot rig, which will undoubtedly be well patronized during the entire season about to begin, has just been received by the Stewart Livery company, West Second street. It was built especially for the firm for tally-ho and picnic purposes, and is an admirable specimen, having seven seats and being capable of holding twenty persons besides the driver. A canopy covers the entire top and there are side curtains which may be let down in case a sudden shower should endeavor to throw a damper on a merry party, as sometimes happens. The trimmings are of light tan colored leather.

The rig was built by the Janesville Carriage works, and is in every way up-to-date and practicable. Four well-matched grays are employed to bowl it along in good style.

The firm has also added to its equipment several new single and two-seated traps made in the very latest New York styles. Prominent among the nobby turnouts may be noticed a very handsome brougham, which has already been much in demand. The whole equipment is on a metropolitan scale, and it is safe to say that the firm can give its patrons a service not excelled by any other company in the Northwest.

WOODLAND IS WORKED

Pretty Girl Introduces a Bunco Game In That Suburb.

Sells Chances on Piano and Machine to Aid Family.

Then Collects Money From Several For Delivery of Prize.

Woodland has been victimized.

A pretty girl of 16 and a man of 60 successfully worked the beautiful suburb with one of the rankest bunco games ever introduced in Duluth.

Bowery grafting is a fine art compared with the methods employed by the girl and her father to cause a formal separation between the Woodland people and their money.

The girl is Miss Myrtle Corwin, of 1810 Tower avenue, West Superior. Her father is Daniel E. Corwin, but he only made one trip to Woodland.

The pair struck the suburb early in the week. The girl said her mother was at home in West Duluth suffering from a disease from which there was no hope of recovery. The father was too old to work and the family was in destitute circumstances.

In order to get money to properly take care of the mother they had decided to sell their piano and sewing machine on the raffle basis at 50 cents a chance.

The aged father confirmed the girl's story, and made a special plea. The result of all this was that Woodland contributed liberally. A few days after the girl appeared and recanvassed every house that she had sold a ticket in.

At each place she told the purchaser that he or she had drawn the lucky number and won either the piano or the sewing machine, and that if they would advance her $2 for drayage charges the prize would be delivered that night.

One housekeeper said that she could get the piano out there herself for 75 cents, and the girl finally collected that amount, but in most cases the scheme netted her $2.50 for each ticket sold.

A young lady from Woodland somewhat more observing than her neighbors noticed that the girl was stylishly gowned, and refused to give $2 to have the sewing machine delivered, saying she would pay the drayage when the machine was delivered.

The pretty feminine swindler said that would be all right, but the sewing machine was not delivered. Yesterday the Woodland girl met the other girl on the street and she pointed her out to Chief Troyer.

The chief took the girl to police headquarters and a Woodlander said he would swear out a warrant for her, but as he failed to appear against the girl the police were compelled to release her without prosecution.

The police have Miss Corwin's address in West Superior and will rearrest her in case any of the people victimized care to make formal complaint.

Otto Kalkbrenner, a youth of fifteen trout seasons, was in police court this morning. He stole a beautiful $15 reel from the Kelley-How Hardware company and a very fine trout line from Daugherty's hardware store.

He put up a great bluff when arrested, a bluff in fact that would have done credit or discredit to a hardened criminal, but in court he broke down and wept a regular trout stream.

Judge Edson, after a lecture which seemed to have a good effect on a number of other boys in the room, sentenced him to the Red Wing industrial school, subject to the possibility of a parole.

Harry Hagenbrock, another mere boy, recently walked into the Kelley-How Hardware company's retail store and pocketed a Colt revolver worth $15, remarking to a companion that "the Colt in this case was a horse on the store."

He was sentenced to Red Wing, but owing to a good record in the past he may be released on parole.

POISONED.

Large Number of Dogs at East End Are Dead.

East End dog owners are much alarmed at the number of valuable animals that have died from poisoning during the past week or so.

At least twelve dogs have been found dead around the alleys and yards and the matter is now in the hands of the police, who will probably be interested because the police relief fund gets a good portion of the money that is collected on live dogs.

Among those that have lost valuable dogs are: A. C. Hubbell, George A. St. Clair, W. J. McCabe, Harry Gilman, J. B. Newcomb and others.

It is claimed that one woman saw two men walking through an alley feeding something to all the dogs they could find.

BIG MEETING.

Union Labor and Railroad Men Meet at West End.

There was a big union labor mass meeting last evening in Columbia hall at the West End.

It was held under the auspices of the local lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Switchmen and Frank T. Hawley, of Buffalo, grand master of the order, was expected as the principal speaker, but failed to arrive in the city in time.

Despite this there was no lacking in enthusiasm. Mayor Hugo, Alderman McEwen and Rev. H. W. Knowles made interesting addresses.

The meeting is looked upon as having considerable significance in union labor circles. Up to the present time the railway organizations and the trade and labor organizations have never associated together much, but now that the railway men have taken the initiative more intimate relations are looked for in the future.

CORRIGAN IMPROVES.

The Archbishop Passed a Very Comfortable Night.

New York, April 26.—It was said at the archbishop's residence this morning that Archbishop Corrigan was holding his own. The archbishop's secretary said the archbishop had slept about four hours last night; that his temprature was a trifle lower and that he was about to take some nourishment.

At 9:30 o'clock the following bulletin was posted:

"The archbishop passed a comfortable night. His symptoms continue to improve. E. L. Keyes, M. D.; Francis Delafield, M. D."

Dr. Delafield said the archbishop's condition was much improved this morning and he expected that the crisis would be reached on Monday.

TO ERECT BUILDING

Elks Decide to Put Up a Building For a Lodge House.

Field's Minstrels Will Lay Cornerstone of Building Fund.

Project Still Indefinite But May Materialize At Early Date.

The local lodge of Elks has decided to erect a lodge building as soon as it can raise the necessary funds. This decision has just been reached, and the foundation of the building fund will be laid a week from today when A. G. Field's minstrels will play matinee and evening performances at the Lyceum as a benefit for this project. Chairman Charles Goodrich of the building committee confirmed this news today. He said the plans of the lodge for building were necessarily in an indefinite condition. The decision to build had just been made, but so much interest had been shown in the proposition, and so much energy was avowed, that it is believed the plans will experience an early development.

It is considered that the opportunity to have Mr. Field lay the corner-stone of the building fund is a most happy thought. Mr. Field is grand esteemed leading knight, the second highest office in the order. For years he was exalted ruler of the Columbus, Ohio, lodge, one of the foremost in the country. Only a short time ago Mr. Field took charge and put to a successful conclusion a plan for a street fair which netted the Columbus lodge $40,000 for the building of a fine new home. He has always taken an intense interest in the Elks, and has been prominent in their national councils.

It is said that Mr. Field has with him this year a greater show than he has ever put on the road. Jimmy Wall, who is well known as one of the funniest little men that ever got under a coat of burnt cork, is one of the headliners. Another is Dan Quinlan, who is coming to occupy the place Johnson used to occupy as the Chesterfield of modern minstrelsy. Johnny Whalen, whose hypnotic spell over an acrobatic drum baton, has long been the wonder of theater-goers, and whose performance grows more wonderful every year, is another spellbinder. Besides, there is a wonderful list of strong artists headed by Mr. Field himself, who this year has a most amusing burlesque on opera in the first part that is said to take the house by storm. The congress of singers is unusually strong, and there is a second part of the good old minstrel style in which every number is a feature and every feature a hit.

APPLICANTS.

Lage Number For Places On the Police Force.

Intense interest centers in the competitive examination to be held Monday for the municipal classified service.

It will be the largest examination since the creation of the civil service system, and a number of very desirable men are striving for permanent places in the fire and police departments.

There are twenty-four citizens, over five feet and ten inches tall, that have a yearning to become policemen. Many of these are street car men. Four out of the last five appointments to the police department have been street car men, and they seem to have taken a particular fancy to the police department in preference to the fire department, despite the fact that men in other lines of work look on the fire department as the softest snap.

Four of the old officers now serving on the force are candidates for promotion to the detective force, and three members of the force are candidates for promotion to the position of sergeant.

Seventeen of the applicants will enter the examination Monday for a position of the fire department. A large number of these are skilled mechanics and men that will add greatly to the efficiency of the department.

The examinations will be conducted by Professor J. W. Miller, secretary of the board of health. All candidates are expected to report for the examination in the council chamber at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

DOWN WENT

McGinty and Taylor to the Bottom of the Lake.

St. Paul, April 26.—A Bemidji, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Two rivermen, William Taylor and John McGinty, were drowned in Lake Bemidji, near Diamond Point, this morning while gathering logs for Patcher & Lynch, contractors. Their cries were heard, and Freeman Doud, who lives nearby, saw one man lying on the keel of a capsized boat. He went out in another boat to his rescue, but being old and crippled, could do nothing, and the man slipped into the water and drowned. His companion was drowned previously. The cause is unknown, as the lake was smooth. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

My Book Tells

The Only Way to Get Well Without Risking a Penny.

Tell Me Some One Who Needs It.

There is one treatment for chronic diseases that is free if it fails.

That is the treatment I offer.

I have spent my lifetime in perfecting it to a point where it is almost sure.

My confidence in it is so great that I invite any sick person to test it entirely at my risk.

Please tell me some one who needs it; tell me which book to send.

With the book I will mail an order on your druggist for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I will authorize your druggist to let the sick one test it for a month. If it succeeds, the cost is $5.50. If it fails, I will pay your druggist myself.

I will leave the decision to you.

I may be a stranger to you, but that does not matter. You are also a stranger to me, yet I trust you. I am not asking money; not asking that you trust me.

I only request that you test, at my risk a remedy which seldom fails. You hazard nothing in trying it; you gain health if it succeeds.

You know that a physician who makes an offer like that must have a remarkable remedy, else he would ruin himself.

I have published this offer for five years, and my records show that 39 in each 40 who get those six bottles pay for them because they are cured.

That is why this offer is possible. There are 39 chances in 40 that I can cure you.

My book will tell you how my Restorative strengthens the inside nerves. I have learned how to bring back the nerve power which operates every vital organ. Others doctor the organ which is weak. I restore the nerve power which alone can make that organ do its duty. It is like giving a weak engine more steam.

Will you write a postal to learn about a remedy like that?

Simply state which book you want, and address Dr. Shoop, Box 685, Racine, Wis.

Marriage and Divorce.

By Rev. MINOT J. SAVAGE, of New York.

I believe with my whole soul that what God hath put together man has no right to put asunder. I believe that in the cases where God has joined them together no man can put asunder, no man ever does or ever can or will; but I have too much respect for God to feel willing to hold him responsible for all the marriages that have taken place since the beginning of the world. I believe we have a right to turn that saying around.

Where God has put people asunder no man has a right to force them to stay together.

If the husband and wife have both ceased to love each other and there are no children, they should be permitted to separate. Suppose there are children; suppose husband and wife have lost their love for the other. If the children's welfare would be subserved by their maintaining a home, then they are under the highest kind of obligation to maintain that home.

I would make divorce difficult. I would compel people to take at least one year in the process of divorce. They should not be able to get through in one month or three months or six, and perhaps by the time a year was ended they might have had time to think it over and reconsider their intention. I would not allow them to remarry the next day or the next week or the next year. I would have it at leasttwo years, and perhaps three.

There is no place in the world where divorces are so easily maintained as in the United States, and there is no place in the world where women stand so high, where women are granted so many liberties and rights; no place where they are so free to seek the highest and best things, where they are surrounded by so much care, such courtesy, such sympathy, such respect.

The great cause why there are so many more divorces in this country than any other is that here, for the first time in history, women are granted freedom to throw off a thousand intolerable burdens under which they have been borne down and crushed from the beginning of the world.

I believe that if a careful investigation were made we should find that a large proportion of the divorces granted in this country mean kindliness and consideration toward women, readiness on the part of the manhood of America to deliver her from crushing burdens, set her free, give her an opportunity to retrieve a so far wasted life.

Dave Kelly Enriches the County Treasury to That Extent.

Pleads Guilty to Keeping Immoral Houses on Range.

Money Will Go Into the School Fund of the County.

Dave Kelly, wholesale proprietor of houses of ill-fame, paid $2000 into the county treasury this morning as fines in two cases wherein he pleaded guilty.

Last November the grand jury returned five indictments against him, charging him with keeping houses of ill-fame in various cities and villages of the northern part of St. Louis county.

Considerable stir was made in getting together the witnesses necessary to make the proper showing before the grand jury, and the result of it was that when the indictments were returned and the officers went to look for Kelly he was not to be found.

He returned this morning and gave himself up, announcing his willingness to plead guilty to two of the charges against him, providing the others were dismissed. He was arraigned this morning before Judge Dibell, and he entered pleas of guilty to indictments charging him with keeping disreputable houses at Biwabik and Eveleth.

C. O. Baldwin appeared as his attorney, and he stated that the defendant was ready to receive his sentence at that time. He asked that the sentence take the form of a fine rather than imprisonment.

Judge Dibell asked County Attorney McClintock if the law permitted a fine without imprisonment, and Mr. McClintock said he understood it did, and he suggested that if a fine was to be imposed the maximum would be the right thing.

The maximum fine is $1000, and Judge Dibell imposed that in each of the two cases, making $2000 in all. Kelly had it in his inside pocket, and he immediately went down stairs to the clerks' office, where he fished out a bundle of bills and handed over 100 twenties to Clerk of Court Johnson, who will turn it over to the county treasurer.

The money goes into the school funds of the county, and the schools will, therefore, be $2000 richer because of Kelly's transgression.

On motion of County Attorney McClintock, the other three indictments were dismissed. The county attorney stated that it was doubtful whether he would be able to secure conviction in these cases, as the witnesses are all inmates of the houses. They are of a very migratory character, and while he would have been able to get them before the court at the time the indictments were returned, he did not think he would be able to find them now.

It is understood that Kelly has been in Canada since the indictments were returned. He has operated houses of ill fame in the range towns for years, and it is said that he has places still in operation.

DEATH'S CALL.

Mrs. T. W. Hugo Dies Suddenly This Morning of Dropsy.

Mrs. Jane Lanigan Hugo, wife of Mayor T. W. Hugo, died this morning at her home, 221 Sixth avenue west.

Although she has been considered dangerously ill for several days, her death came unexpectedly.

Mayor Hugo was called away from the bedside to look after some official business at the city hall, and at 11 o'clock received a message that his wife was dying.

He hurried home, reaching there about ten minutes before she passed away. Her young son, Rene Hugo, was also with her, having left his studies at the university of Minnesota last evening when he learned that his mother was slowly falling.

Her only other child, Victor Hugo, now a prominent civil engineer in St. Louis, was telegraphed for and will arrive Monday. No funeral arrangements have been announced pending his arrival.

Mrs. Hugo has been an invalid for more than a year. Her death was attributed to general dropsy, due primarily to an anyloid degeneration of the kidneys.

About a month ago, while Mrs. Hugo was walking down Fifth avenue west, she turned into a shoe shop, and, not noticing a step, received a severe fall.

Since the shock received in this fall there has been a rapid decline.

The deceased was about 50 years of age and a native of Kingston, Ontario. Before her marriage to Mr. Hugo she was a Miss Jane Lanigan. For the past twenty years or more she has lived in Duluth and was greatly beloved by all that knew her.

Much of her life has been devoted to church work and charity. When it became generally known today that she had passed away, many people could scarcely believe it and were greatly shocked.

Final arrangements for the funeral will be announced on Monday.

IS NOT IN HIS POWER

Suggestion That Judge Ensign Could Clear Court House Site.

Impression Has Gained Ground Among Many People.

Judge Ensign Disputes This---Was Merely a Trustee.

In view of the discussions over the proposition of having a new court house for St. Louis county, a good deal of attention is being paid to the condition of the present court house site.

One of the main arguments against moving the court house down town is that the court house site is held only so long as it is used for court house purposes, and that if it were abandoned the county would lose its interest.

A number of people have acquired the idea that Judge Ensign, who transferred the property to the county with the condition that it should be used for court house purposes, could give the county a clear title to it without restrictions of any sort.

Judge Ensign was asked about the matter this morning, and he said that he could not do this, that he had no personal interest in the property, except as trustee for the original owners of Portland property, and that he had no power to remove the condition on which the county holds the property.

A communication has been received by The Herald from a prominent taxpayer on the subject. In part it is as follows:

"Having been somewhat interested in the talk of a new court house, and the claim that in the event of the county abandoning the present site for court house purposes, the property would revert to the original owners, I have taken the trouble to look into the manner in which the county came into possession of the present location.

"I have heard two stories concerning it. One is that the land comprising Portland division, was originally platted in 50-foot lots, and the streets and avenues run east and west and north and south. And because of a rivalry between the East End and the West End, the East Enders, in order to get land to donate to the county for court house purposes, and in order to make that division conform to the adjoining property, deeded their lots to J. D. Ensign for the purpose of having it replatted in 25-foot lots.

"The other story is that the lots never were over 25 feet, and the only object in having it replatted was to have it conform, as regards streets and avenues, to the adjoining property. That when the replatting was completed said Judge Ensign had deeded to the former owners a lot or lots, satisfactory to them in exchange for those that had been deeded to him, the ground upon which the court house stands was left over. And the former owners, by vote, instructed Ensign to deed it to the country for court house purposes.

"Being a newcomer I do not know whether either story is correct. But I do know that the records show that nearly 100 deeds were made to Judge Ensign of property in that division. The deeds convey the property absolutely to him, they do not in any way hedge in his right to dispose of the property in any way he should see fit.

"Judge Ensign's deed to the county contains this clause, 'But upon condition that the county of St. Louis shall keep, maintain and use a court house and building for county offices and other necessary county buildings upon said half blocks.' The claim is made that, by reason of the above clause if the county should build another court house anywhere, except on the present site, this property reverts to Judge Ensign and his heirs.

"I hardly believe that Judge Ensign will claim that the former owners of Portland division intended to make him a present of that property, in the event of the county abandoning it for court house purposes. Then is there any good reason why he should not, by a quit claim deed or otherwise, give the county an absolute ownership to it, with a right to use or sell it as may seem best in the future? If there is any such reason, will the judge let us know what it is?"

In response to this Judge Ensign said this morning:

"Neither myself nor my heirs have any interest in the court house property any greater than that of any other owner of Portland property. I can have no interest, except as trustee for those owners. I was an owner of property in the original town of Portland, and have an interest in the property in that way, but that is no greater than that of anybody else similarly situated. My actions as trustee were governed by a committee of the owners, consisting of James D. Ray, Luther Mendenhall and William Branch, and whatever I did was done at the direction of that committee, as a trustee. It would be out of my power to give the county a title to the property that would be free from the restrictions contained in the deed given under those directions."

WILL BUILD.

National Iron Works Wants a Much Larger Building.

If the negotiations now pending between the National Iron company and the Northern Pacific Railway company, for a site on Rice's Point conclude successfully, the foundry company will this summer and fall erect a new building that will cost many thousands of dollars. Some of the officers of the foundry company were in St. Paul yesterday to confer with the railroad company regarding the site, but there are said to be a number of preliminary details to be arranged before it is secured.

The plans of the National company are for a brick building 400 feet long, 250 feet wide, part of which will be two stories in height and which will contain the foundry, pattern rooms and machine shop.

For many years the National company has been located in the old wooden building north of the Northern Pacific crossing near the head of Garfield avenue. The site was never entirely satisfactory on account of the low ground, but the company's business has grown so steadily that it is now cramped for room. The new building will be situated where the National company will have all the railway and dock facilities to its varied business.

With a new building erected it is quite probable that the force employed by the company will be largely increased.

Mrs. Harper had been an invalid the greater part of her life, but it was not until three weeks ago that she became seriously ill. Mr. Harper died in 1893, the result of being thrown from his carriage.

MAKE A CALL.

Baseball Delegation Pays Visits to Rev. Harry Knowles.

The opening of the local baseball season ocurred this afternoon.

A delegation of baseball men headed by Manager Van Praagh, went to call on Rev. Harry Knowles, and present a long petition signed by leading Duluth business men, who are in favor of Sunday baseball.

The conference was still on at a late hour, but the score at the end of the sixth inning was as follows:

	R.	H.	E.
Van Praagh ..1	0	8	5
Rev. Knowles ..	0	0	0

The business men that have signed this petition for baseball say they will stand by their signatures and that the West End Civic Federation to merely give the ball players a chance and if there is any rowdyism or anything that will disturb the sanctity of the West End Sabbath, they will abandon the Sunday games.

DOUBTFUL.

E. Z. Griggs Does Not Think O. D. Kinney Will Run.

E. Z. Griggs, who has been spending the winter with O. D. Kinney in Florida, arrived at the St. Louis this noon on his way to his home at Virginia. He says Mr Kinney left Florida some time before he did and came up to New York, Washington and Philadelphia. Referring to the talk about Mr. Kinney's prospective nomination for congress by the Republican party, Mr. Griggs said:

"I have read something in the papers about the talk up here with reference to running Mr. Kinney for congress. Of course, I do not know what Mr. Kinney's opinion would be if he were to come home and look over the situation and then be asked to come out as a candidate. However, from my talks with him while in Florida, I do not believe that he will want to be a candidate. While he is in good health, he feels that a business man his little time to indulge in the game of politics. Still, I cannot assume to speak for him in any way. My remarks are based on my own opinion.

"Mr. Kinney and I have had a splendid time this winter. We made Tarpon Springs our base, but from there made trips to Tampa and numerous other places as the fancy seized us. Senator Hawkins was with us for a time, and Senator Clapp and family also spent a week with us. Mr. Kinney and I have bought a winter home at Tarpon Springs. It was built by one of the Philadelphia Distons of saw fame, and cost $17,000. Senator Hawkins is negotiating for a property adjoining ours. Tarpon Springs is about twenty-four miles north of Tampa. Tampa is directly on the gulf, but Tarpon Springs is on a bayou several miles deep running up from the gulf, which affords a landlocked harbor. Our place fronts directly on this bayou, and we have boats and boat houses right at our grounds. The grounds are especially attractive to us, at least. Out beyond the mouth of the bayou are a number of keys, which to my mind make the best chance for sailing in the world."

POWDER MILL GOES UP.

Pottsville, Pa., April 26.—One of the buildings at the Shenandoah Powder company, at Kreb's station, this county, blew up today. Four men were killed. They were: Amos Yarnell, Irwin Wolf, W. J. Lindemuth and Elmer Stauffer. The body of Wolf was the only one recovered.

A MYSTERIOUS APPEARANCE

In the Quiet Little Village of Wilsey, Kansas.

A Stranger Event With a More Wonderful Sequel—Its Effect on the After-life of One Woman.

About six years ago a stranger, a woman, came to the little village of Wilsey, Kans., to live. This was the important link in a chain of events which set the whole town wondering. Mrs. Rachael A. Gardner, the person whose life was most affected by it, tells the story.

"It was very strange," she says, "I never could tell what caused it and neither could anybody else. For a long time I had bad spells with my stomach. The pain would commence about my heart and was so deadly agonizing that I would have to scream aloud. Sometimes it would last several hours and I would have to take laudanum to stop it. Besides this I had a headache almost constantly, day and night, that nearly crazed me and hemorrhages caused by the change of life, so you see I suffered a great deal. And, when I think of the agony it still makes me shudder.

"'Doctors,' did you say? Their medicine made me sicker. I couldn't take it and I kept growing worse until this lady came to our village. She advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I did. I only took half a box before I began to feel better and, after taking the rest, was wholly converted to this wonderful medicine. It did me more good than I had ever hoped for. I kept on with the pills and now I recommend them to all who suffer."

The pills which cured Mrs. Gardner have accomplished as wonderful results in hundreds and hundreds of other cases just as severe. They are an unfailing specific for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold at all druggists, or will be sent direct from Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y., postpaid, on receipt of price, fifty cents per box; six boxes for two dollars and a half. Send for free booklet of medical advice.

MRS. GEO. M. PENHALE.

AGAINST ASPHALT

M. H. Alworth Does Not Believe Duluth Should Use It.

Recent Visit To Detroit Brought That Conviction To Him.

Believes Cedar Block Good Enough In Superior Street.

M. H. Alworth, who recently returned from a trip to Michigan, during which he had ample opportunity for investigating public improvements in Detroit, comes back a supporter of some other sort of pavement for East Superior street than asphalt.

"I believe," said Mr. Alworth this afternoon, "that a young city like this should take advantage of the exerience of older cities in public improvements. There is no reason why we should go ahead with a costly experiment simply because some of us may have a fanciful leaning toward some particular sort of pavement when we can easily find that that pavement is in a sense an expensive failure.

"While in Detroit I had a splendid opportunity to investigate the experience they have had there with all kinds of pavement. I drove about the city a great deal with F. A. Schulte, of the People's Savings bank. Mr. Schulte has been a resident of Detroit for thirty-five years, and has seen the city grow up. He has charge of city loans for his bank, and consequently is about the city a great deal and is exceptionally well qualified to judge of the relative kinds of pavement they have tried in Detroit.

"To begin with, I noticed large forces of men repairing holes that had worn in the asphalt pavement. I found from information and observation that as soon as the pavement begins to wear, wheels continually crowd down into the rut and wear the rut larger and deeper with almost incredible rapidity. As a result, it is not long, unless prompt attention is given to repairs as soon as a rut starts, before the rut has worn through the asphalt into the concrete base.

"I learned that these repair crews were kept at work all the time, and that they had to go over the same streets three or four times a year. When they begin to repair a rut, they have to cut out or tear up the sides of the rut, seemingly, in order to get direct connection for the new layer of asphalt with the concrete.

"It was clear to me from what I learned there, that asphalt is not a success, and moreover that it is a very expensive luxury. They have vitrified brick similar to ours on Superior street, and that for business streets seems to be excellent. I saw some brick that had been down for ten years, and was still in good preservation. It was on a street where there had been even heavier traffic than here.

"From my talk with Mr. Schulte, however, I gained the belief that cedar block pavement when laid on a good foundation was the best surface for a street over which the traffic is not exceptionally heavy. Good cedar blocks, well laid on a good foundation, it strikes me should be good enough for East Superior street, and I don't believe we can improve very much on them."

CONSIDERING PLANS.

Silberstein & Bondy Company Figuring on Building Changes.

Several plans for the enlargement of the Silberstein & Bondy company's store on West Superior street, between Lake avenue and First avenue west, have been submitted by the architects to the company, but none have yet been accepted.

One plan calls for a one-story addition to the two-story addition. It is claimed that with a one-story additon the heating plant and elevator system now in use would be sufficient, but that a two-story addition will mean the additional cost of a new heating plant and elevator system. It is this extra expense that the company is desirous of avoiding and yet get the two-story addition, if possible.

HOMELESS.

Twenty-Five Negro Families Burned at Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., April 26.—Fire broke out at 11 o'clock today in the residence of Daniel Mayo, corner of Chapel street and Princess avenue and in less than an hour six houses had been destroyed. The fire is still raging. A high wind is blowing and the weak water pressure interferes materially with the work of the firemen.

At 1:30 p. m. the flames were under control. Twelve houses on Princess avenue were totally destroyed and two houses on Gofff street were also burned. Twenty-five families are homeless. The fire was confined to a negro settlement. There was one fatality, a small negro boy, name unknown. The origin of the fire and the loss has not been ascertained.

GIFTS

Of General Educational Board of Women of Georgia.

Athens, Ga., April 26.—Four thousand five hundred dollars, one-half of the balance necessary to complete the Winnie Davis memorial hall; $5750 to provide fifty three-years' scholarships of $50 each year at the Georgia state normal school to duplicate the forty-six scholarships provided by the women of Georgia; an offer to duplicate for a period of three years all new scholarships of $50 each that the women of Georgia may provide before Jan. 1, 1903, to a number not exceeding fifty, were the contributions today of the general board to the women of Georgia. The announcement came in the middle of the morning session by William H. Baldwin, Jr., of New York, and was made by Dr. Wallace Buttrick, secretary of the board. Dr. W. T. Harris, United States commissioner of education, was the principal speaker of the morning session.

RUN WILD.

Two Brothers Cause Trouble at Meade, Kans.

Wichita, Kans., April 26.—Homer Lanham ran wild in Meade, a town in Southwestern Kansas, last Wednesday, and sought the marshal with a threat to kill him. He shot at him four times and hit a young man named Ed Kragh, who will probably die.

The marshal took his gun away and aimed a bullet at his heart. His life was saved by a book in his breast pocket. He was arrested and put in jail.

The next day Jesse Lanham, a brother of the prisoner, came to town with a revolver and defied the authorities. A public meeting was held. Lanham was ordered to surrender. Instead he fired his revolver at random and one bullet grazed the cheek of Mrs. C. B. Campbell, who sat in a hotel parlor nearby. He was finally disarmed and is in jail with his brother.

DASTARDLY

Attempt to Wreck Tunnel at Niagara Power Plant.

Buffalo, April 26.—A special to the News from Niagara Falls says: As the night shift went to work last evening in the tunnel of the Canadian Power company, discovery was made of an attempt to wreck the tunnel and kill the men, thirty in number, working 160 feet below the surface of the earth. The shaft leading down to the tunnel is 160 feet deep. From the bottom of the shaft the tunnel runs north and south and men work at both headings. The blasts are discharged by means of batteries, which are operated at the foot of the shaft, the wires extending to the headings.

One of the "nipper boys" discovered that one of the batteries had been cut and a cartridge cap connected and placed in a stick of dynamite. The stick of dynamite had been placed between two boxes of dynamite containing seventy-five pounds of the material. Had an explosion occurred the havoc wrought would have been fearful. No motive can be ascribed for the plot.

THE STORM.

Reports of Great Damage Come From Many Localities.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 26.—A terrific wind storm, assuming the proportions of a tornado did several thousand dollars worth of damage in Marshall and Jasper counties last night. Many barns and out buildings northwest of the city were destroyed, and in Melbourne in the southwestern part of the county considerable damage is reported. North Jasper and the vicinity of Baxter report heavy damage to buildings and much stock killed. So far as known no lives were lost. Estimated damage $20,000.

Cincinnati, April 26.—The wind blew almost a gale through the night, and after midnight dashes of rain fell. This was accompanied by a material lowering of temperature, making today a sharp contrast with the summer temperature of yesterday. There is no telegraph communication with Chicago except by roundabout routes.

Omaha, April 26.—The damage from last night's storm appears today to have been general throughout the city, although no great individual loss occurred. The greater losses were down town where a number of large plate glass windows were blown in and immense skylights blown to pieces. Probably a hundred buildings suffered loss of roof, cornices or porches.

Albert Davies, a clerk, aged 20 years, was struck by a flying walk and his shoulder badly crushed. A large number of other accidents, some of them more or less serious occurred.

Reports from the outside indicate similar damage in other nearby towns. The rains last night were heavy and general and the distribution was evenly divided throughout the state.

QUEEN HAS QUIET NIGHT.

The Hague, April 26.—In their morning bulletin from Castle Loo, Queen Wilhelmina's physicians say the rise in the patient's temperature yesterday evening was of shorter duration than before. Consequently the queen had a fairly quiet night, resulting beneficially to her general condition.

SICKNESS IS A BAD HABIT

AND IF YOU HAVE IT, SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR WILL CURE YOU OF IT.

Why be sick when we guarantee this medicine to help you?

Some people are aptly described as "always grunting." They never seem to feel just right, and if one thing isn't the matter with them another is. These are the people that we always feel like crossing the street to avoid meeting. They are always more or less ill because they refuse to adopt a sensible course. When they feel some particular symptom they dose themselves with various things which are supposed to be good for what that symptom indicates.

There is no use in pursuing such a course as this. The only way to get cured and stay cured is to find the root of the trouble and pull that root out.

Now, everybody knows that weakness or diseases of the stomach, liver or kidneys and consequent impure blood is responsible for more than ninety per cent. of the ills that flesh is heir to.

The only sensible thing to do is to take Smith's Green Mountain Renovator. That doesn't waste any time chasing around for this symptom or that symptom, but goes right to the vital organs, cleans them out and strengthens and upbuilds them, and purifies and enriches the blood. Just as soon as this is done you get well, and just as long as you keep yourself in proper condition by the use of this famous old medicine you are going to stay well.

There isn't any guesswork about this. In its native New England home, where it is the standard household remedy for old and young, rich and poor, Smith's Green Mountain Renovator has been effecting the most wonderful cures for a great many years, and it will do for you just what it has done for others.

"My husband has already told you how wonderfully he has been benefited by taking SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR, and now I want you to know the rest of the story.

"For years I have been a frail woman. My household duties and cares of a family were so much upon me this winter that I was afraid of a severe illness. When I saw what the RENOVATOR did for Mr. Schott, I decided to try it. It does not seem possible, but in four weeks I have changed into a healthy, rested and vigorous woman. Your medicine is the best remedy for tired out people that I have ever tried. I have no more backache, headache or nervousness. The RENOVATOR cured me."

AT ISLE ROYALE

Fine Opening For Someone to Care For Tourists.

G. G. Barnum Tells of Fine Site For Summer Hotel.

Duluth Men Will Lease Large Log House--- Cottages Building.

One of the noblest health and pleasure resorts in the world is lying ready for somebody to choose as the location of a summer hotel and summer cottages.

Duluth men who are familiar with Isle Royale, which is fast growing in popularity as a summer resort, say that there is a good opening for somebody to provide accommodations for tourists. They need not be very elaborate, but there is room for much greater accommodations than there are at present. There is nothing whatever at this end of the island, while the accommodations at the other end are inadequate to meet the demand.

G. G. Barnum returned yesterday from Isle Royale, and he has located a site that would be admirable for a summer hotel. It is on Mott's island, at the eastern end of the island and on its southern shore. The island is covered with flowers and strawberries in season, and it is a most beautiful spot. Its shore is all rock, except one place where there is a beautiful sand beach on which greenstones are to be found.

The island is about 1000 feet from the main island, and Rock harbor would provide the safest of shelter for the whole United States navy from all winds.

"At Tobin's harbor," said Mr. Barnum, "on the east end of the big island, Mattson Bros. have a stopping place, and on the main island at Rock harbor a man named Knutson is building a resort consisting of an eating house with tents and small cottages for sleeping accommodations. He will be able to accommodate fifty people with meals, and if the sleeping accommodations are not enough they can bring tents and live pleasantly.

"There is excellent brook and lake trout fishing all around Tobin's harbor, and there is no more delightful place for an outing anywhere than Isle Royale. Capt. Singer is building a dock on Washington island, in the mouth of Washington harbor at the western end of the big island, and just back of his dock there is a magnificent location for a hotel. Any good, live man putting up a house there, and in addition several two-room cottages to be occupied by tourists taking their meals at the hotel, will do well. There is good fishing all around this end of the island and anybody that has been there knows that as a health and pleasure resort it cannot be equalled anywhere."

William Johns, who formerly kept a stopping place at John's island, has discontinued keeping boarders, so at present there is no place for tourists at this end of Isle Royale.

Last season there was a big tourist business on the north shore, and many people put in vacations at Isle Royale. Hay fever victims especially found unspeakable relief there. The first-class steamers Iroquois and America, as well as the Mabel Bradshaw, will make several trips a week to Isle Royale this year, and the tourist business is likely to increase quite largely. Stopping places on either Mott's island or on Washington harbor would be full at least during July and August.

Twenty Duluth gentlemen are now organizing a club for the purpose of taking advantage of the beauties of Isle Royale. The club is to have the lease of one of the largest and finest log houses in the United States, which is located on the main island on the shore of Washington harbor. It has twenty-five sleeping rooms and a dining room 18 by 70 feet. This is only for the use of club members, however, and their friends.

Robert C. Ray, of Duluth, and Arthur Andrews, of Minneapolis, are now building cottages for their own use on one of the islands in Washington harbor.

A man and his wife spent the winter at Washington harbor, and they were the only persons on the island. When Mr. Barnum went in to see them he was the first person they had seen all winter, but they were healthy and happy, and protested that they had never spent such a delightful winter in their lives. They had a lot of chickens, and by keeping them warm they managed to keep the hens laying so that they did not miss a day all winter. They had plenty of fresh eggs to eat all the time and a lot of them in cold storage.

CHARLES A. MARSHALL,

The New Manager of the Lyceum Theater.

NOT FOR SALE

The Hines Company Will Log the Big Sauntry Tract.

S. J. Cusson, manager of the Edward Hines Lumber company interests in the Northwest, said this morning that there was no truth whatever in the report that his company had, or was about to make, a deal for the sale of the Sauntry pine tract, lying between Hawthorn and Dedham, Wis. The purchase was made by the Hines interests about two months ago, before the partial failure of the logging season put an additional touch on the bullish sentiment regarding the value of lumber. Mr. Cussen said this morning that he thought it would be an easy matter to sell it again at a profit of $500,000. He added, however, that the timber had been bought to saw, it was especially available for summer or winter logging, and not subject to the troubles that beset much of the timber now left in this district. The Hines company has such enormous handling yards in Chicago, a large fleet of lumber carrying vessels, and an extensive trade to take care of that it is said it would not be good business policy in these times to let go of the timber unless at a very large profit.

It is said, too, that instead of selling the standing timber, the Hines company is now preparing to cut it. Estimates of the amount of timber on the stump vary, but it is thought that it will hardly reach 300,000,000 feet. In these days when every scrap of lumber is in demand, and what once went into the slab burner is now considered lumber, and with closer work by the improved saws, it is claimed that the lumber product will overrun the log scale board measure pretty nearly 25 per cent.

Edward Hines, the head of the company, and who has built up the largest lumber trade in the world, arrived at the Spalding last night, accompanied by Isaac Baker, buyer for the concern.

Alger, Smith & Co. has just closed a deal for the sale of 23,000,000 feet of timber near Grand Marais, to be shipped to Ogdensburg and Albany this season. The lumber is being cut by the Alger, Smith & Co.'s mill on the north shore. Part of the lumber sold is already on the docks and the rest will be manufactured this season. The sale is the largest one made by a single firm in several months. The consideration was about $60,000.

The Nestor people were the only ones that had trouble with their rafting during the storm the first of the week. The John O'Brien lumber company was also making up a raft from various points down the north shore when the storm came up and had the same sort of an experience.

EDDY

May Not Stand For Congress But Has Not Decided.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 26.—Congressman Frank M. Eddy, of the Seventh Minnesota diserict, who has been in Europe for months, arrived here Thursday in charge of 50 Scandinavian immigrants who will be located in New Ontario. To a reporter Mr. Eddy said:

"I recoglize my absence has been rather unfortunate for me politically. When I left on my mission to the old country, which was to get settlers started here for the Clergue companies, I had no idea I would be away os long a time. I was delayed on account of the various contingencies which could not be foreseen, mainly because of complications that arose with foreign officials that took time to adjust.

"Naturally I am up in the air some regarding the political situation and I do not care to declare my intention concerning my candidacy until I consult my friends. I may decide to withdraw. I have arrived at no decision.

"I expect to leave for Washington Sunday or Monday and after canvassing the situation thoroughly will make a statement."

Mr. Eddy expressed himself as highly pleased with the result of his work abroad. The first lot of settlers are a fine body of men, intelligent, willing and altogether a desirable class. Mr. Eddy has a good offer from the company to continue the work and may conclude to take it up. He also has other prospective work.

THE DAKOTAS

Judge Starcher, Gregory County, Fined $600 For Forgery.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Judge Garland in the United States court Tuesday, imposed a fine of $600 on Edward M. Starcher, county judge of Gregory county, who pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with transmitting forged final proof papers covering a quarter of a section of government land.

Aberdeen—As a result of arguments occupying an entire day, Judge McCoy has ordered a modification of the decree of divorce granted Mrs. James Murphy, of Hitchcock, from her husband. The original decree provided that Murphy should pay $600 alimony in monthly installments, and Murphy's daily sales in his store were turned over to the clerk of courts of Beadle county to pay the claim. The modification provides that she takes three-quarter sections of land in lieu of $1000 and Murphy settles the remainder by $300 in cash and $1500 in notes.

Yankton—A pathetic scene was witnessed at the Pierce hotel yesterday when Peter Kohm, of Emery, was parted from his three children, who were taken to Chicago by two lawyers, whom they will join their mother. The father was beside himself with grief, and was with difficulty restrained from doing violence to the lawyers. About two months ago Kohm kidnapped his children from his divorced wife and escaped with them to this state. He had married again and was comfortably settled, when he was found and the law appealed to to restore the children to the mother.

Lead—The county board of health, attended by the sheriff and several deputies, visited Lead and enforced vaccination in two saloons where smallpox cases had been found. The surgeons operated on the arms of about 150 persons who were found in the Buffalo Hump and Gold Mine saloons. Several remonstrated, but they all submitted on pain of going to the county jail. It was a surprise to the inmates of the saloons, as they did not know the movement had been contemplated. A similar raid was made on the Green Front, a variety house in Deadwood, two or three weeks ago. The board of health has issued an order that all school children must show a certificate of successful vaccination in order to remain in school.

Four well known young men of the Black Hills have set out for Nome, to spend the summer. They are Thomas Madison, William Stevenson, Jonn Rutter and Herman Morrison. They have been in Alaska before, and are returning to work ground they own there. John Manning, of Deadwood, the first elected sheriff of Lawrence county, intends to leave for the north this month.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Frank Filt is up against more trouble. He was a farmer near Everest, Martial troubles led to a divorce and there have been half-a-dozen suits regarding the relations of his former wife and her brother which led to her filing a suit for $5000 damages. Yesterday Filk was arrested on complaint of his wife on a perjury charge.

Fargoans who have been at Jamestown and visited the North Dakota hospital for the insane report a badly overcrowded condition of the women's wards. Two hundred women are crowded into the space formerly assigned to 100, and the conditions are such that proper treatment cannot be given. Superintendent Moore seems to be doing everything in his power to take care of the unfortunates, but is laboring under a serious handicap, and a strong sentiment is being worked up for liberal action by the next legislature.

Dickinson—This week C. F. Merry was tried before a jury of Dickinson's business men for his assault upon the editor of the Press, a short time ago, and was found guilty. The trial justice imposed a fine of $100. Merry's defense was that he had already pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $22 for disturbing the peace, but the state maintained the defendant had complained of himself with the intent of cheating the ends of justice.

Jamestown—R. B. Moses resigned as water commissioner because of the report of a committee in the city council which stated that but one-half of the subscribers were paying the city for water. Mr. Moses has come out in an open letter in which he says the statements of the committee are false. Interesting developments are looked for.

WORK OF BETHEL

Board of Directors Make a Statement of Its Work.

Covers Four Years, Period Since Last Report Was Made.

Presents Needs of the Institution Along Various Lines.

No report has been issued by the Bethel for the period of four years but the board of directors has now prepared a statement to cover that period of time. The present officers are: President, H. H. Hanford; vice president, Ward Ames; secretary, W. S. Moore; treasurer, L. A. Marvin; general superintendent, Charles F. Robel; assistant superintendent Lake avenue Bethel, William Asher; assistant superintendent at Bethel branch, Charles H. Hall. The directors are: H. H. Hanford, W. S. Moore, H. M. Peyton, C. F. Robel, Ward Ames, L. Mendenhall, L. A. Marvin, Giles Gilbert, James T. Hale, R. W. Mars and W. D. Edson. The report is as follows:

The last printed report of the Bethel association was issued Sept. 1, 1897, at the annual meeting of the board of directors. Each year an annual report is submitted to the board.

When the panic came upon us in 1893, it became evident that it would be impossible to carry on this great work, depending only upon its former subscribers for the whole expense. Realizing that a large number of our benevolent friends were either embarrassed, or felt that their regular benevolent interests must require their first attention; and knowing, also, that the Bethel would have to add a great number of people who were in straitened circumstances, a restaurant was established at the Lake avenue Bethel to aid in raising necessary funds. At this time the minimum price of a workingman's meal was 25 cents, and in establishing a restaurant it was with the thought that, in addition to assisting in raising the funds necessary to carry on the work, we could also aid the workingman temporarily by furnishing a meal at a low figure, and spiritually by bringing him in contact with Christian people. The experiment was successful, and from that time, to the present day, good meals have been provided at reasonable prices, not only at the Bethel but in many other restaurants. Lodgings were also added, with equally good results. It should be obvious to every one that no member of this board is anxious to conduct a restaurant or lodging house. These are but means to an end. It has been demonstrated that providing a good meal, room, bath, reading rooms, etc., does induce attendance at the religious meetings, and gives an opportunity to live away from such influences as saloons, brothels, etc. The restaurant always closes at 7 p. m. to make way for the gospel meetings.

FREE READING ROOMS.

Free reading rooms at both Bethels provide first class reading matter and are crowded to their full capacity. The average annual visits to these two rooms during the past four years was 141,000. These figures seem astounding when we consider that the public library reported only 87,000 visits for the past year. As soon as the funds can be procured, it is our intention to enlarge both rooms to double their present capacity, believing that with additional facilities, the annual attendance will easily reach 200,000. This feature is greatly appreciated, and affords many a man a comfortable retreat at any time. The reading rooms at both Bethels are open from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., are in separate apartments, and are undisturbed by any other work. Taking into consideration the rental, lighting, heating, reading matter and service, we estimate the cost of conducting these rooms at upwards of $3000 per year. We are indebted to the public library for a contribution of $127 per year up to January 1 of the current year, when it was discontinued. We need additional literature, and we shall endeavor at all times to meet the demands. We desire the hearty cooperation of our citizens in the enlargement and better equipment of these rooms.

EVANGELISTIC WORK.

The "Gospel of Good News" is preached every night. Since our last report 4613 meetings have been conducted. Good music is always provided, and able speakers from abroad are frequently employed. As a result of these meetings, a large number of men and women have given their hearts to our Lord, and have been placed upon a footing of true manhood and womanhood. As a rule, there are several men at each meeting who manifest a desire to lead Christian lives. Much of the work of these meetings is done by people who, regularly employed in the different departments of the Bethel, cheerfully give their time to this additional service, and much is done by the friends of the work in our city. The audiences is largely made up from the moving masses of men who visit the city—railroad men, sailors and men going to and from the lumber camps, mines, etc. We consider it safe to say that from 45,000 to 50,000 men pass through this city every year, giving a wonderful opportunity for this class of work. The universal sentiment of approval and appreciation is most encouraging, as is instanced from the attendance during the period of this report, 353,627, and from the numerous letters which are received from nearly every state in the Union, and from distant parts of the world. The young people of the several churches, both American and Scandinavian, kindly conduct from one to two meetings each week at the Branch Bethel. The cost of this work last year for speakers from abroad, was $717.28, not taking into account the services of those regularly employed at the Bethel. If we were obliged to pay bills for rent, lighting and heating for rooms used only for gospel services, they would be beyond our reach, especially at the branch, where the rent is $293.33 per month.

MUSIC.

During the last year we have expended more money for music than heretofore. The gospel message is no more fittingly expressed than in song. We are convinced that it is a wise expenditure, producing good results, and providing delightful entertainment to the listeners.

MISSIONARY WORK.

We employ one lady missionary, who gives all of her time, and one other who devotes a portion of her time, to visiting among the people. They visit the children of the Sunday school, the poor, the sick, and the destitute, supplying their various needs. The total number of calls made among the poor during the period covered by this report, is 4292.

TEMPORARY AID.

Temporary aid is given, as far as possible, and at all times, to all applicants who, as far as we can ascertain, are worthy of assistance. No one in any way identified with the Bethel is ever buried in the potter's field. Speakers and singers are provided for funerals, and in many cases the entire expense of a funeral is borne by the Bethel. We endeavor to help the person who is entitled to help. No doubt we are deceived in many instances, but who would not be? We are trying to renew and make character. Since our last report 2887 meals have been given away, and 2595 lodgings have been furnished free of charge. In helping the poor of our own city, burying the dead, paying rents and the services of the missionary, fully $1500 is expended annually. All charity is dispensed from the Lake avenue Bethel.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The Sunday schools are maintained at both Bethels, meeting at 3 p. m. each Sunday. No department of our work is more important. About 475 children are enrolled. The aggregate attendance since our last report was 68,139. Our citizens respond grandly as teachers, and still we need more who will always be present. If the teacher is irregular in attendance, it is at once noticeable in the attendance of the lass. For literature and Christmas entertainments in this department, fully $500 is expended annually. The results are very encouraging. Many of the young are converted and become strong Christian characters. At the beginning of the Indin famine the schools undertook the support of four children who were made orphans by the famine.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor meets regularly, is well attended, and is a powerful factor for good. It is among the strongest features of the religious work. It is assisting in the maintenance of one of its members now a missionary in Turkey. It has contributed for its different purposes about $150 per annum. The aggregate attendance during the last four and a half years was 11,695.

BIBLE STUDY.

This meeting is conducted every Monday evening, and is well attended. All of the workers are supposed to be present on this evening. This meeting is a source of great spiritual blessing to all who attend. Anyone who is desirous of greater insight into Bible truths will be richly repaid by attending these meetings, which are held at the Lake avenue Bethel.

THE RESTAURANTS.

The restaurants meet with a most hearty support. The food is always unquestionably the best. The prices, with one exception, are the same as when first started nine years ago. The service is simple, patrons carrying their food from counter to table, thus dispensing with table waiters. We know of no better means at hand than to convey the degree of esteem in which the restaurant is held than by its patronage during the period covered by this report—1,102,835 meals have been served during this time.

RELIEF WORK.

We are greatly indebted to many of our generous citizens for clothing, furniture, etc. Applicants for donations of this nature are referred to the lady missionary that she may ascertain the degree of their need, and the articles are readily disposed of among the poor. Let the times be good or bad, the poor are always among us. The Woman's Guild has regularly contributed new garments. It seems hardly necessary to say how thoroughly their generosity is appreciated, or with what delight these new garments are distributed among the needy. Please bear in mind that we always need these supplies. During the period of this report 10,622 garments have been distributed. They have supplied a great need, making many families comfortable and happy. In many cases children have been sent to school after being clothed who might otherwise have been detained at home during the long, cold winter.

CHEAP LODGINGS.

We have supplied as best we could a vast number of 10 cent and 15 cent lodgings in large apartments. We shall hope that this need may be met in such a manner that every man may have a small

Accurate Treatment Of Men's Diseases

I guess at nothing. My understanding of men's diseases is so sufficient that I have no need to resort to guess work. To men's diseases alone I have devoted my entire attention for many years. I have closely studied them in every possible phase and complication. I believe there is no case that I cannot accurately diagnose. My diagnosis is the foundation of my treatment. It determines the course to pursue. As the cure progresses I carefully note developments and vary the remedies accordingly. I employ original and distinctive methods of treatment, but they are not set methods. They are pliable to meet the conditions in individual cases, and their use calls for the most delicate prescribing. That they are correct, scientific and rational methods is conclusively proven by the cures they produce.

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

"WEAKNESS"

That disorder commonly known as "weakness," has for years and generations baffled the efforts of physicians, yet to this very day a majority of doctors are attempting to overcome it by methods that have been in constant use and that have constantly failed for half a century. They dose the system with powerful stimulants and tonics calculated to restore nervous forces or strength that is not and never has been lacking, with a result that the functions are temporarily excited to the positive detriment of the patient. Weakness, we will call it such for convenience just now, is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years I have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that come to me for treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS

To but partially cure a contracted disease is almost as dangerous as to allow it to go untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. All greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflammed, which always brings partial or complete loss of power. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated disease. During the past five years I have treated over 600 cases of contracted disorders and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever and my patients have been cured in less time than other and less thorough forms of treatment require in producing even doubtful results.

VARICOCELE

Many men afflicted with varicocele are endangering their general health, their manly power and even life itself by allowing the disorder to remain uncured. Varicocele results from partial paralysis of the delicate nerve fibres that have a part in controlling local circulation of the blood. The muscular coating of the veins being deprived of nervous communication and control, become inactive, weaken and relax. The blood vessels expand from the pressure within, the circulation in the parts become sluggish, and frequently stagnant pools form in little nooks and pockets that constantly enlarge as the relaxation continues. The possibility exists that clots may form in these stagnant pools and then pass out into the general circulation. Should one find lodgment in the valve of the heart the result might be instant death, or should it be carried to the brain, general paralysis will follow.

I guarantee to cure varicocele in one week by a method that involves no cutting or ligature, or caustic. No other physician employs a like method, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. Those who have been long afflicted with varicocele will never realize the injury it has caused until they feel the vim, energy and buoyancy of spirts that a complete cure will bring.

STRICTURE

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations, even in severe cases of long stanaing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methous of overcoming this disorder, so the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder, reduces enlargement of the prostate gland and restores to health and tone all organs affected by the disease.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON

I permanently cure this most hideous of all blood diseases. I employ harmless, blood cleansing remedies that positively drive the very last taint of virus from the system, and every symptom vanishes to appear no more.

DISHONESTY

Charged Against Man Who Died Last Year.

Newark, Ohio, April 26.—Did James W. Gray die of heart disease on July 23 of last year, or was it suicide? is a question many Newark people are asking. While it is unanswerable, there is at least a reason for the suspicion that it may have been a case of self-destruction. Gray's employer, Julius J. D. McNamar, positively asserts that Gray's books show a shortage of more than $3000, and that the peculations extended over a period of thirteen years, beginning within one month after McNamar's father died.

The charge, coming, as it does, nearly a year after Gray's death, against a man who had borne the best possible reputation in the community, having been a leader in the Baptist church for years, financier of the Newark lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen and prominent in the Royal Arcanum, has produced a profound sensation.

Gray is dead, and cannot be harmed by the exposure of his alleged betrayal of trust, and everybody sympathizes with the widow and four children.

HAIRPIN

And Proposal of Marriage Was Hidden In Butter.

Kokomo, Ind., April 26.—The art of buttermaking has been the novel means employed by Ora McKinney, of Russiaville, to aid him in finding a wife. Young McKinney placed a small wooden toilet box containing a hairpin, a bottle of choice perfume and a note in the center of what was sold for a pound of golden butter. The butter was bought of a New London huckster, who sold it to one of the first ladies of the town. In cutting the roie of butter she discovered the toilet box in which was a note which read as follows:

"Near Russiaville, Howard County, Ind., April 15, 1902.—Two miles south and one-half mile west of Russiaville is where I live. I am a young man, a housekeeper, poultry raiser, gardener and soap maker and butter maker. I try this project to get an answer and to see where the pound of butter goes. Smell this paper and see how sweet it is perfumed. Write immediately whoever gets this. Yours respectfully,

"ORA McKINNEY.

COPPER OUTLOOK

Lower Price Is Leading to Greatly Increased Consumption.

Cost of Making Copper Greater Than Six Years Ago.

Higher Prices In the Immediate Future Not Expected.

Houghton, Mich., April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The muddle in the copper situation seems to be working out in the only way that such a muddle can ever be cleared up satisfactorily—that is, by allowing natural trade conditions to rule. Manipuater prices are followed by sad reactions, just as a headache follows an excess of alcohol. Were it not for fear that the Amalgamated Copper company, or its sales' agents, the United Metals Selling company, may enter the market again with the outlook would be fairly clear. The lower price of copper is leading to greatly increased consumption, especially abroad, where copper was out of all specifications, wherever possible, during the three years proceeding the break in prices that came near the close of 1901. American consumption continues very large, and has been increased by the drop of 5 cents per pound, though not to the same extent as abroad.

A number of tables have been printed within the past six months setting forth the cost of making copper in the various American mining districts. Nearly all of these figures are too low. In 1894-1896 the cheapest copper ever made in the United States was produced. There are no big American mines now making copper as cheaply as then. In most of the fields wages have advanced, and the efficiency of labor seems in inverse proportion to earnings, as it now takes more men to produce a ton of copper, and each man draws higher wages. The cost of structural iron and steel, hardware and machinery, is 35 to 50 per cent higher than six years ago, and copper mines are notoriously large consumers of these articles. Last, but not least, prosperity has bred extravagance in mining methods, as is always the case, and in consequence of all these facts the cost of making copper is 2 to 4 cents per pound greater than six to eight years ago.

If the entire copper supply of the world came from the United States, or even from North America, the advanced cost would simply be charged direct to consumers, but the foreign mines are expanding at least as rapidly as those of the United States, Canada and Mexico. It is of the highest importance to the American producers to know whether costs have advanced in Spain, Chile, Australia and other copper-producing countries. That costs have advanced to some extent is certain, but it is not probable that the increase abroad has been so marked as in this country. In Germany, which is a large producer of the metal, it is probable that copper is being made at least as cheaply as six years ago, for Germany is now "enjoying" a period of industrial depression, and it is while times are hard and business is bad that every country lays the foudations for its next boom. The United States traversed the valley of depression from 1893 to 1898, and has been in clover since. Germany's turn is coming.

The copper production of Montana continues restricted. The Boston and Montana is so effectually tied up by litigation that it is making only about two-thirds the production secured two years ago. The Anaconda is now using its magnificent new smelting plant, but it is hard to see where the mine is making any money, as its copper must be costing nearly all that it is selling for in the market. Heinze's Montana Ore Purchasing company is now turning out copper at the rate of about 3,500,000 pounds per month, much the largest output ever secured. There seems no prospect of an end to the unfortunate litigation between the Amalgamated and Heinze interests, and until some sort of a settlement is reached Montana is sadly handicapped in copper production. Arizona is increasing its production steadily, and is opening a number of new mines of considerable promise. To the north of the United States British Columbia is making wonderful gains in copper production, and new mining fields are being opened to the eastward of Lake Superior, and in various districts of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. In Mexico the Boleo remains the only considerable producer in Lower California, but Sonora is coming to the front with great rapidity. The Nacosari mines of the Moctezuma Copper company are producing at the rate of about 10,000,000 pounds per annum, and the Greene Consolidated, in the same state, is making nearly four times as much. In the state of Michoacan, south and west of the City of Mexico, the Inguaran mine, controlled by the Rothschilds interests, bids fair to speedily become one of the world's largest mines.

Abroad there are few mines of the first rank in process of development, but there are large numbers of second and third-rate mines, and the number is being added to steadily. The Mt. Lyell mines of Tasmania bid fair to become a second Rio Tinto in time, and show a steady expansion. Japanese mines are working steadily, and a large number of new properties are being opened in various parts of the island continent of Crisuralia. South Africa is merely holding its own, but important developments are under way at a number of points in South America, notably in Chile, Peru, Bolivia and the Argentine republic. Alaska has not reached the producing state—in fact, has not passed the stage of reports of copper discoveries of fabulous value. That Alaska has copper deposits of importance seems reasonably certain, but the tales brought back from there are too widely improbable for serious credence. It may be assumed with safety that the same geological, mineralogical and chemical laws rule in Alaska as in the more settled portions of the earth's surface, and acting upon this assumption it becomes necessary to scale down or discard the wonderful stories of mountains of solid ore impossibly rich in the metal. As the mere opening of the big copper mine is a matter of years, it is reasonably safe to infer that Alaskan copper will not become a factor of importance in the world's supply for some years to come, no matter how rich the deposit may prove.

That the production of copper by the mines of the United States remains practically stationary is not due to the suspension of producing mines. No American mine of any importance has shut down because of the drop in the price of the metal, though it is certain that some of the mines now in operation are losing money on every pound produced. Just as it takes several years to develop a new mine, so it takes a long time to close a copper producer down. The iron trade is responsive to market conditions, and iron mines are closed down and reopened at will. Such is not the case with copper mines. They are wound up like a 30-day clock, and must run down before stopping.

Viewing the situation from a purely economical standpoint, there seems no great reaso nto anticipate a materially higher range of prices for copper in the immediate future. Manipulative influences may be brought to bear upon the situation, but barring such, 12 to 14 cents per pound for lake copper at the Atlantic seaboard seems as high a price as is warranted. At such figures the best mines can make fine profits—not as great as during the period of boom, but large as compared with other industries. Not all of the mines now producing can live at such a price for copper, though most of them can. None of the producers of the first class will be compelled to close, and but few of those in the second rank will be unable to produce their metal so as to leave a profit. The newer mines, many of which have been advertised as bonanzas, will be compelled to demonstrate their right to existence, and under conditions that mean the survival of the fittest, and some first-class funerals for the balance of the list.

DECISIONS

Handed Down By the Supreme Court of Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., April 26.—Justice Lovely, in the supreme court, affirming the order of the Ramsey county court yesterday, decided that the application of Carrie C. Eggleston to have more of the property belonging to the John L. Merriam estate set aside for her annuity was premature and should not be granted. Mrs. Eggleston is a sister of the late Col. Merriam, and in his will he provided that she should have an annuity of $600 per year from his estate. The executors set aside twelve bonds of the West Superior Water, Light and Power company for this purpose. Justice Lovely says that since it appeared in the judgment of the trial court that these bonds would be sufficient to produce the required annuity for several years to come, it was not required to go further and impose obligations on other funds which had been previously distributed. The action was brought against W. R. Merriam and other trustees of the estate.

Justice Lovely affirmed the order of the Ramsey county district court in the case of William A. Sommers, as assignee of the Wildwood Park company, insolvent, respondent, vs. William Dawson et al., defendants; Henry H. Fuller, Cynthia S. Fuller, R. C. Strong and C. R. Robbins, appellants, a suit to enforce stockholders' liability.

In the case of N. D. Farmer et al., appellants, vs. the Stillwater Water compeny et al., respondents, the judgment of the Washington county district court is affirmed. The action grew out of a dispute over the reasonableness of a hydrant rental contract extending over a period of thirty years in Stillwater.

Justice Brown affirmed the order of the Clay county district court in Norris R. Griswold, appellant, vs. Great Northern Railway company, respondents. Griswold was run down by a Great Northern train while driving across the tracks at Barnesville. The courts find that he did not exercise proper care and is not entitled to damages.

Justice Brown reverses the order of the Hennepin county district court and granted a new trial in the case of George Roe, respondent, vs. P. B. Winston, et al, appellants. It is a personal injury case.

George B. Dartt, appellant, vs. J. K. Sonnesin, respondent, suit over broker's fees for an exchange of lands for a stock of goods. Watonwan county district court affirmed. A broker is not allowed to charge a commission from both parties, because he was the agent of one, and could not legally demand compensation from the other. Lovely, J.

Charles F. Vine, respondent, vs. Charles Carmey, et al, defendants; Charles Carmey, appellant; an action for tort. Held that neither the complaint nor the evidence made a case for exemplary damages. Order of the Olmstead county court reversed and a new trial granted. Start, C. J.

Bensy Johnson, Brynhild Johnson and Gina Horavold, respondents, vs. P. J. Volve and Mary Volve, appellants, an action to set aside a deed. Order of the Jackson county court affirmed by Chief Justice Start.

Herman Schlenberg, appellant, vs. William Zimerman and Albert Zimmerman, respondents. Action to compel the defendant to reopen a draining ditch. Plaintiff had no right to have the ditch maintained. Judgment of the Sibley county court affirmed by Chief Justice Start.

In re estate of Claus Schact, Sr., deceased, W. K. Schact, individually et al, respondents, Olmstead county. Judgment affirmed. Dispute between heirs of Claus Schact, Sr., over property.

Western Realty company, respondent, vs. Carrington Appels et al, appellants, Hennepin county. Judgment affirmed by Justice Brown.

Plano Manufacturing company, appellants, vs. William Richards, respondent, Todd county. Order reversed and judgment ordered for plaintiff. Suit over a note given in payment for machinery.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS

"Peruna Is an Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy—I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan A. Grosvenor, deputy auditor for the war department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent Catarrh remedy."—

DAN A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive numerous letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer yes."—Dan A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.

Hon. John Williams, county commissioner, of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh, and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."—John Williams.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

W. E. Griffith, Concan, Texas, writes: "I suffered with chronic catarrh for many years. I took Peruna and it completely cured me. I think Peruna is the best medicine in the world for catarrh. My general health is much improved by its use, as I am much stronger than I have been for years."—W. E. Griffith.

A Congressman's Letter.

Congressman H. Bowen, Ruskin, Tazewell county, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy, Peruna, to any one who is suffering with catarrh, and who is in need of a permanent and effective cure."—H. Bowen.

Mr. Fred D. Scott, Larue, Ohio, right guard of Hiram football team, writess:

"As a specific for lung trouble I place Peruna at the head. I have used it myself for colds and catarrh of the bowels and it is a splendid remedy. It restores vitality, increases bodily strength and makes a sick person well in a short time. I give Peruna my hearty endorsement."—Fred D. Scott.

Gen. Ira C. Abbott, 906 M street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes.

"I am fully convinced that your remedy is an excellent tonic. Many of my friends have used it with the most beneficial results for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."—Ira C. Abbott.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir council No. 168, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2535 Polk street, N. E.:

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, Minneapolis, Minn.

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh In the Spring.

The spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systematic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of thes tomach or bowels with the same certainty of catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

DUN'S REVIEW

Changeable Weather Has Affected Business In Various Localities.

New York, April 26.—R. G. Dunn & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Versatile weather has produced erratic fluctuations in prices and affected business very differently, according to locality. The extremes were blizards and oppressive heat, with every intermediate variety. As the future prosperity of the railroads is more or less dependent upon the crops, the vagaries of the weather were quickly reflected in the markets for securities as well as in option sales of grain and cotton. Retail distribution of merchandise has maintained a good average, losses at some points being offset by gains elsewhere. Manufacturing plants are well employed, except where wage disputes interrupt. Copper and silver touched low record prices, but the average of commodities advanced. Transporting interests maintain their wonderful record, railway earnings thus far reported for April exceeding last yeas by 5.2 per cent, and those of 1900 by 15.3 per cent.

Most large consumers of pig iron have provided for their needs well up to the end of the year, and consequently there is little change to report in the situation except as to small orders that appear from time to time.

Quotations received by cable indicate that pressure in the United States has produced a decided advance abroad, and imports, after paying duty and freight, are extremely expensive. Movement of partially manufactured and finished steel products continues on a large scale. A severe setback in London speculation caused a decline here, but other minor metals are without special feature. Increased output and quicker deliveries of coke facilitate work at iron furnaces and reduce the price, while the lower list for anthracite coal has stimulated orders. Lumber and building material are having the usual spring activity.

Manufacturers of cotton goods are still behind with deliveries, and active machinery is assured for some time to come. Labor disputes have ben temporarily adjusted, making the output very heavy as compared with recent weeks when the strikes were causing interruption. New orders are small, the recent liberal export demand being checked, it is thought, by the fall in silver. Jobbers have received requests for more prompt delivery, retail trade having expanded with the warmer weather. Quotations of cotton goods are firmly held, the strength of the raw material giving support. Independent woolen mills are working night and day.

Wool moves slowly and in some instances prices are shaded, but as a rule holders insist on fall figures. Foot wear shops at the East have few new orders, and shipments from Boston continue to decrease. Jobbers have sufficient stocks to supply the retail demand, and inclined to delay placing contracts. Shops at the West are more fully engaged, buying leather freely. Leather is quiet, without change in price, but domestic hides have again risen and foreign dry hides are scarce.

While the prospects for a full yield of wheat are less bright than they were a week ago, the sharp rise in prices must be attributed in part to skilful manipulation by interests recently prominent in the stock market. Lack of moisture has checked growth in the Southwest, and snow has retarded farm work in some spring wheat states, but it is probable that there is the customary exaggeration of damage reuorts for speculative purposes. A year ago there was a sharp advance in price on gloomy reports, yet the final yield promises to be a record breaker. Exports from all parts of the United States, including flour, were 4,041,614 bushels, against 3,433,987 last year, shipments being mainly of wheat purchased before the advance. Exporters made few new contracts at the higher prices. Corn was attracted to market by the better terms offered, receipts for the week reaching 1,494,479 bushels, against 1,138,398 a year ago, but Atlantic exports fell off to 340,217 bushels, against 1,275,156 in 1901. Meats were well sustained. Cotton rose to the top point of the season on light receipts and reports of reduced acreage. Not only has the planting season been retarded by bad weather, but there is evidence that grain will be largely substituted to high prices of the past season.

Failures for the week number 212 in the United States, against 215 last year, and 18 in Canada, against 25 a year ago.

KILLING

Of His Wife Was Justifiable, Asserts William McCarthy.

Lexington, Ky., April 26.—William McCarthy, the wife murderer, has given out a statement about the killing of his wife last Saturday night. He claims that he was justified, and that under the unwritten law he did exactly right. He said:

"I saw my wife talking to a man near a house of ill-repute. I had accused her of acting suspiciously around that house, and she promised me to quit frequenting the neighborhood. I had just left my home and was going to take a train for Cincinnati in search of work, when I caught her near that house with some man whom I don't know.

"I started toward them, at the same time drawing my revolver. She ran into the house, and the man jumped over a fence. I followed her and began firing. The second shot dropped her, and as I gazed at her on the floor she said, 'Oh, God,' and expired. I then started for my home to tell my mother, but in my nervous condition went another way, and was soon arrested. I think any man would have acted as I did. I only ask for law and justice, based as the Bible and public sentiment make it."

McCarthy's wife was buried by public subscription, none of her relatives having been found. Her family connections are not known. She was an employe of the new Kentucky hotel in Cincinnati in January, 1901, when she was married to McCarthy by Rev. Mr. Lee, of Covington.

ENTERPRISE AND PUSH.

Albert Lea Tribune: The Duluth Evening Herald has begun the twentieth year of its existence and it has need to be proud of the proportions it has reached in so short a time in a city the size of Duluth. The Herald is anti-Republican, but it is edited with ability and its news columns show great enterprise and push. The paper is an excellent exponent of the city at the head of the great chain of lakes and the Tribune hopes to see it continue to prosper and expand.

The Sugar Differential Amendment.

It seems to be the universal opinion that Congressmen Tawney, Morris and other "insurgent" Republicans who have voted for the amendment removing the differential on sugar, do not really want the differential removed, as it will hurt the beet sugar industry as much as it would injure the sugar trust. Mr. Tawney, however, maintains that he is sincere in demanding the removal of the differential, and that while it would be slightly harmful to the beet people it would not affect them anywhere as much as it would the sugar refiners. In explaining the situation to the Brooklyn Eagle correspondent, he said: "The duty on refined sugar—the product from the sugar refiners—is $1.95 per 100 pounds. The maximum duty on unrefined sugar is $1.82 per 100 pounds. The difference between the two rates, which forms the differential, is 12½ cents per 100 pounds. That is about 6 per cent of $1.95, and that is the loss to the beet sugar people, resulting in the removal of the differential. The 12½ cents, however, is all the open protection which the sugar refiners get, and when it is taken away they lose 100 per cent. The refiners buy raw sugar and the beet people produce it. From these figures it can be readily seen that our people are only slight losers by this agreement, while it puts the refiners on the same plane with the producers of sugar in this country." Congressman Tawney may be in earnest in his desires, but at the same time he knows very well that the senate will never allow the differential to be removed and his beet sugar friends are not in the slightest danger.

Assistant Paymasters in the Navy.

There will be, and in fact there already is, a large number of applications filed by civilians for appointment as assistant paymasters in the navy, all based on the passage of a bill which has been introduced in both branches of congress largely increasing the number of paymasters and adding to their rank. A navy paymaster combines the official functions of the pay, commissary and quartermasters department of the army. Every dollar appropriated for naval purposes, from purchasing a battleship to a keg of nails and paying the salaries of all officers and enlisted men and the civilian employes of all grades at navy yards and foreign stations, is handled by the navy paymasters. The subsistence department and the uniforming of the crew is wholly in his charge and the proper feeding of Uncle Sam's bluejackets is one of the chief duties of these officials. The paymaster although a naval officer, subject to the strictures of military regulations, is also under the cognizance and direction, so far as his duties are concerned, of the accounting officials of the treasury department, to whom under bylaws as rigid as those of the Medes and Persians he must submit monthly and quarterly an exact account of his stewardship. During the war wtih Spain the paymasters did splendidly, and made a record in their line it will be hard to beat. The proposed bill provides for the appointment of assistants from civil life and there are many who desire the positions.

EAST SUPERIOR STREET.

The question of paving East Superior street must soon be settled, if the work is to be done this year. That a new pavement is badly needed is admitted by nearly every one. The old block paving has done good service, but the street is now in a dilapidated condition and so full of holes and depressions that driving over it is not only uncomfortable but dangerous at some points.

There is a diversity of opinions as to the character of pavement that should be laid. Some favor asphalt, others think brick would be better, while a large number contend that a wooden block paving, properly laid, would be the best as well as the cheapest. While an asphalt pavement has some advantages it also has many disadvantages, and it is questionable whether the latter do not outweigh the former, when its high cost as compared with other pavements is taken into consideration. St. Paul and Minneapolis have been compelled to pay very high prices for asphalt pavements, by reason of the combination of asphalt companies, and it is not likely that Duluth would fare any better. The asphalt pavement has also failed to give entire satisfaction in the Twin Cities, and it is doubtful if such a pavement would be a success here on account of the great extremes in the weather in this northern climate.

A short time ago The Herald republished an article from Charles M. Loring, the father of the Minneapolis park system, who has studied the paving question very thoroughly, and he pronounced emphatically against asphalt pavements. It was stated by Mr. Loring that the best pavement in all respects laid in Minneapolis—both as to cheapness, durability, cleanliness, noiselessness, lack of slipperiness and easiness of repair—is a wooden block pavement treated with tar. The superintendent of streets in Boston not long ago expressed a similar view as to the superiority of wooden pavements.

Duluth should profit by the experience of other cities that have tested the various kinds of pavements, at the same time taking into consideration all the local conditions. The very general approval of the wooden block pavement would point to that style of paving as the most desirable for East Superior street. But whether asphalt, brick or cedar blocks be chosen, no time should be lost in taking the preliminary steps towards securing a new pavement this summer.

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.

Ever interesting to the true American, whether native born or of foreign descent, are the statistics showing the progress of the United States. Of especial interest is a statement prepared by the treasury bureau of statistics showing the area, population and material industries of our country by decades during the century from 1800 to 1900. The progress in many lines has been simply wonderful. The area of the United States exclusive of Alaska and islands belonging to the federal government increased during the century nearly four-fold and the population more than fourteen fold. The population per square mile increased nearly four-fold, from 6.41 in 1800 to 25.22 in 1900. The public debt per capita, less cash in the treasury, was less in 1900 than in 1800, and less than one-quarter in 1900 of what it was in 1870. In 1840, however, the public debt was only 21 cents per capita, while in 1800 it had been $15.63, rose to $64.46 in 1870, and fell to $14.52 in 1900. The ordinary revenues of the government in 1900 were over fifty times as great as in 1800, and the expenditures over sixty times as great. The postoffice receipts in 1900 were 365 times as great as in 1800, averaging $280,423 per day for 365 days in 1900, as compared with a total of $280,804 for the entire year of 1800. The number of postoffices multiplied eighty-five fold in the century, from 903 to 76,688.

The increase in wealth, commerce and industry of the people of the United States cannot be demonstrated as to the entire century of progress. The exports of merchandise increased nearly twenty fold, and per capita from $13.37 in 1800 to $17.90 in 1900. In 1830 the exports per capita were valued at $5.57. Imports increased in value more than nine fold in one hundred years, but the per capita importations of merchandise have never since been so large as they were in 1800. From $17.19 per capita in 1800, imports declined to $4.87 in 1830, rose to $12.51 in 1880 and declined to $10.88 in 1900. The tonnage of American vessels built in 1900 was less than four times as great in 1900 as in 1800. The tonnage of American vessels engaged in domestic trade increased more than fourteen fold during the century, but the tonnage of American vessels engaged in the foreign carrying trade was but slightly greater in 1900 than 1800. At the close of the eighteenth century the tonnage of American vessels engaged in the foreign trade was 669,921 tons; in 1850, 1,585,71 tons; in 1860, 2,546,237 tons, since which date the tonnage steadily declined to 826,694 tons in 1900.

This is one feature of the exhibit which is positively disappointing. Outside of that, any American can point with pride to the record of his country—the greatest in the world.

THE DUTY ON WHEAT.

The Commercial club of Duluth should lose no unnecessary time in actively considering the question of removing the duty on wheat. There is already quite an extensive movement in favor of more enlightened trade relations with Canada in a general way. In the specific direction noted, however, it is not a question of good fellowship or theoretical tariff discussion. It is purely a matter of selfishness on the part of this country. And that selfishness points toward the removal of the duty on wheat.

This part of the tariff has probably never afforded a cent's worth of protection to the American farmer. It has been a stumbling block in the pathway of the grain and milling trade of Duluth and the Northwest. Now this duty has become a positive curse to these trades on this side of the border, and little better to the farmer of Western Canada. Incidentally, it has resulted in the depression of the market for American wheat.

This duty has prevented the manufacturing of Canadian wheat into flour in this country. Such restrictions are placed about milling in transit that it is impossible to overcome them to any appreciable extent. The duty, therefore, interferes with the free movement of the Canadian wheat through this country. It places Canadian wheat raisers at the mercy of the Canadian railway and elevator interests of the Dominion, and results in congestion of the wheat beyond the rail terminal points in Manitoba. Free movement would enhance the price; large accumulations and blockades overshadow the market and attack the price. The duty obliges Canadian farmers to be satisfied with 5 cents a bushel less for their wheat than they would get if they could ship it via Duluth. The depressed price commanded by their wheat drags down the price of Duluth wheat. Instead of either supporting the other, each drags one another down.

The first thing that letting this wheat into the United States free of duty would bring about would be greater activity in milling. There is but little question that, if Canadian wheat could be ground here, most of the flour mills at the head of the lakes would be in full operation today. The backing up of this Canadian wheat all winter long in the territory covered by initial railways has so depressed sentiment regarding the supplies and demand that there is little buying for shipment except for immediate consumption. Canadian wheat is bought to be ground in England, because this wholly artificial barrier has so blocked trade, and the weight thus created on the market has so pulled the price down that Duluth wheat cannot often be worked except at a loss.

The duty was intended as an influence in behalf of higher prices. It has resulted not only in the restriction of the commerce and industry of this country, but in the actual depression of the price of this country's wheat. There is no chance for Canadian wheat to actively enter into competition with the American cereal to supply the needs of this country. Every legitimate, actual reason for the retention of the duty has worked out by inversion, and it is a menace and damage to every branch of American industry and commerce involved.

STRAINED RELATIONS.

It grows more and more apparent, even to the casual observer of affairs at Washington, that the relations between the president and many members of congress are becoming strained. Especially is this so among the senators, who do not think the president treats them with the dignity with which they have been accustomed, and which they believe is their right. His hearty, bluff manner and habit of addressing senators in a loud voice from the opposite side of the room while others are present is not soothing to the feelings of the solons of the senate. Then, again, many of President Roosevelt's appointments have given dissatisfaction to the Republican machines represented by the different senators. This is glaringly the case in Kansas, New York and West Virginia. It is only necessary to glance over the proceedings of congress to see the result of this antagonism to the administration. The refusal of the senate to confirm the appointment of Capt. Crozier, the turning down of Secretary Root's army bill, the black eye received by the administration in connection with the Cuban relief bill last week, and the present almost unprecedented condition of things in the senate are all indications of this opposition. It is predicted that congress will adjourn sometime between the first and the middle of June without acting on any legislation of importance except the Philippine government bill and the appropriation measures.

Things have now reached a climax and the time has come when those who are with the president will be forced to declare themselves. The vigorous protest made by Senators Hoar, Allison and several others against the removal of Gen. Miles seems to have had the desired effect. It also called attention to the bitter feeling entertained toward the secretary of war by several of these Republican senators. The statement is made on reliable authority that Senator Hoar in his talk with the president in regard to Gen. Miles referred to Secretary Root as a menace to the Republican party.

The gossip of the cloak room of the senate is said to be all against the administration. Here the senators meet after their almost daily visits to the White House and discuss their experiences there. They do not like the style of President Roosevelt and they admit it among themselves, and as soon as the administration has disposed of all its patronage it will become public. The president lacks the tact of McKinley, and it is beginning to be felt. He will have to change his tactics, or his chances for the renomination in 1904 will go glimmering.

MERELY CHEAP POLITICS.

A great amount of nonsense is being printed by some of the Eastern papers about the people of Minnesota and the Northwest being agitated over the so-called merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington railroads and action by the federal supreme court being necessary to allay popular irritation. If representatives of these journals would come to the Northwest and travel around among the people they would be surprised to find that there is no agitation or excitement whatever over this question and that, outside of a few politicians who tried to stir up the matter with a hope of making political capital and two or three newspapers of a yellowish tinge which strive to create sensations and attract attention by demagogic appeals, there is no one who fears any evil results whatever from the "community of interests" plan which has been put in operation. The railroads are being managed and operated at the present time in the same way as they have been run during half a dozen years past. Since the consummation of the so-called merger freight rates have been reduced, in accordance with the well understood policy of lowering freight charges as the volume of traffic increases. Shippers are being afforded the usual facilities and are getting quick dispatch for their shipments. Travelers find the passenger trains making as good time and as well equipped as before the formation of the Northern Securities company, and there is nothing at all to indicate any change in the policy of catering to the accommodation of the public. This is the state of affairs in Minnesota; it is the same in North Dakota, and reports from the states farther west through which the Pacific roads run are of a similar tenor.

All the suits in state and federal courts started by politicians are with a view of throwing dust in the people's eyes, of detracting attention from their weaknesses and furnishing them with a little cheap political capital with which to hold on to the offices. The proceedings taken by the attorney general of the United States to test the validity under the Sherman act of the Northern Securities company as a holder of stocks of competing roads would settle all the questions that can properly be raised, and the other state suits are entirely superfluous and designed only for political purposes. It is cheap politics and the people of the Northwest are so thoroughly aware of all the facts that they will not be hoodwinked.

HOME WORKSHOPS.

The assertion of Dr. Emil Hirsch, of Chicago, that the ultimate development of electricity means the establishing of a factory in the home instead of in congested industrial plants is of peculiar interest to Duluth, in view of the matured plans of the Highland Canal company. If electricity generated by steam can so revolutionize the industrial world, why will not electricity generated by cheap water power carry Dr. Hirsch's prediction much earlier or farther toward its goal?

The basis of this prophecy is, of course, the very great improvement that has been made in the handling of electricity. The chief improvement in this direction is the application of what is known as the direct-connected generator or dynamo to the very spot where the expenditure of power is required. By this means the electric current is conveyed over the wire to any piece of machinery, and contact is made with the motor attached to or in close proximity to the machinery. The result is that there is great economy in waste power. Shafting and belting are reduced to a minimum. It is no longer necessary to convey the power from one end of a plant to another, or steam in the same way. Shrinkage of steam is often estimated as high as 20 or 25 per cent. The loss in transmission by belt or cable must in many old-fashioned cases be very large.

In these days of machines that oftentimes takes some small article in the raw material form and completes it before it is delivered from the device, it is quite possible that home workshops may be established as a result of these great developments in electricity. It has long been foreseen that Duluth needs nothing so much as small industries—factories that can find a product right here at home and in the territory directly tributary for their product. If the home workshop idea is within range of possibility for cities where electricity must be made by steam, then it would seem that in Duluth, where electrical power is to be so cheap, small factories will spring up on every hand for the production of articles that nobody would seriously think of making on a large scale here for many years.

It is a subject that seems worthy of the new canal company's attention. It would seem that, if nursed somewhat, the idea might work out to the great advantage of both Duluth and of the canal company itself.

President Schwab of the steel trust states that his company could easily get $15 a ton more for some of its products than the prices they are actually selling for, but their policy is to keep prices so far as possible, upon an even basis. They are looking not so much to immediate profits as to results through a long series of years, and they do not propose to kill the goose that lays their golden eggs by checking consumption through high prices. How nice it would be if the beef trust would take the same view of its business.

Professor Alexander T. Trowbridge has resigned as director of the college of architecture at Cornell university, in order to resume practice as architect in New York city. He has been hoping for the erection of a fine arts building in connection with the college, to cost $3,000,000, and has drawn the plans for it. What trust magnate will come to the rescue of these plans?—that appears to be the question.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Chicago Post: "Why do you call it a fairy tale?"

"Because it says they were married and lived happily ever afterward."

Philadelphia Press: "My daughter is taking piano lessons," said Mrs. Nexdore.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Pepprey, sadly, "so I hear."

Detroit Free Press: He—Why were you so nervous while I proposed?

She—I was so afraid someone would interrupt.

Judge: Mabel—Blanche, are you going to accept Mr. Oldboy?

Blanche—Yes, I think so.

Mabel—But he's three times as old as you.

Blanche—But he does harmonize so lovely with my antique furniture.

Brooklyn Life: "Rose and Mabel have never spoken since they took part in the private theatricals."

"Professional jealousy?"

"Worse than that—amateur jealousy."

Philadelphia Press: Mr. McCall—The woman I expect to marry must be beautiful, cultured, sweet tempered and—

Miss Passay (coyly)—Oh, you flatterer.

Washington Star: "Do you think your father would offer me personal violence if I were to ask him for you?"

"Hardly. But there's no telling what he will do if you don't say something pretty soon."

Chicago Post: "Do you think the very young wife of an old man can be really happy?"

"Why, certainly, if the old man is considerate enough to stick to his club with reasonable persistence and is properly generous in financial matters."

WHEN THE OLD MAN GOT RELIGION.

When the ol' man got religion things sorter changed aroun',
The house wuz topsy-turvy, the worl' wuz upside down;
We didn't know what hit us; 'peared like we'd started wrong;
Life had to be made over to his hallelula song.

He kep' the whole house hustlin'. "Work while it's called today!
An' pray whilst wou're a-workin'; but work an' work away!"
But ever' youngster of us—with sad an' solemn face,
Wuz prayin' fer the ol' man to fall away from grace.

Long years have passed, an' left us still with our work to do;
An' the ol' man, bein' weary, went home an' left us, too;
Led by his homely counsel safe to the shelterin' fold—
Sightin' the fur-off city, with shinin' streets of gold.

An' evermore we're praisin' of the Providence on high
That the ol' man got religion in the happy days gone by;
An' we hope to hear him shoutin', when we reach the heavenly stairs,
In the bright, celestial mornin', "Rise up to family prayers!"

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It isn't what people don't say, but what they do say, that is always the mistake.

Whether an evening gown is fashionable depends on how much neck and sleeves it hasn't got.

To judge by a widow's expression of innocence you would think she had never seen a man before.

Blessed is the peacemaker, but more blessed the woman who keeps the peace by holding her tongue.

The girl with black eyes and blonde hair can be accounted for; it is the girl with black hair and blonde eyes that puzzles one.

When there is no hesitation about calling what carries a man his legs why should there be any in calling what carries a woman the same thing?

A woman's idea of being economical about clothes is to buy a dress for $100 and when she finds she doesn't like it sell it for $50 and buy another for $150. To save your life you can't make her see that the second one, counting what she got for the other one, cost her any more than the first.

Where the Blame Belongs.

I Favor Peace, But—Peace With Honor.

By JOHN MITCHELL, President of the United Mine Workers.

To me the solution of the problem of labor is not a difficult one. It is not one that requires the introduction or consummation of utopian ideas. It seems to me, and I have taken part in about as many labor strikes as anyone of my age, that what men want to do is simply to reason together. If the employers of labor and the representatives of the labor unions can meet in honest conference, if when they meet they will tell one another the absolute truth, I dare say that the days of strikes and lockouts shall be over.

I have never seen in my experience a strike that could not have been averted if the employers and the men who work had met in conference before the strike was started.

If the men who were interested in the Civic federation movement will give as much time and as great effort to it as the men who represent the labor movements have given to their own particular branch of industry, then I dare say that something tangible will come out of it and the resule will have been demonstrated and strikes and lockouts will have been reduced to a minimum.

I dare to say as one who knows the effect of industrial war that no one more than I shall welcome the day of industrial peace. I have said on many occasions that I was opposed to lockouts, opposed to industrial turmoil, that I favored peace, but always with the qualification that it must be an honorable peace.

Great Britain and the Boer War.

By Dr. JOHN WATSON (Ian MacLaren.)

I wish, as one who loves the United States next to his own country, to make an appeal both to the mind and heart of the American people not to think hardly about us because we don't see our way to withdraw from the war in South Africa.

I want the Americans to believe that we only asked the Boers to treat our English people in the Transvaal as we treated the Dutch in Cape Colony; that if the Boers had not attacked us we should not have made war on them; after what has happened there would be no guarantee of peace for South Africa if the two republics remain independent and hostile states; that if the two states become an integral part of the British empire they will be placed as soon as possible in the position of Canada and Australia, and that they will then enjoy such order and peace and justice as they have never known in the past.

Women Are Needed On American Juries.

By WU TING FANG, Chinese Minister.

My opinion of womanhood has undergone a great change since the time I first came here as the representative of my country.

I have no hesitation in saying that women, American women, in eloquence and in intellect, have demonstrated their superiority, or at least their equality, with men.

I want to enter a strong plea for the admittance of women on the juries of the various law courts of the country. The disadvantage of the present system was brought home only recently, when a woman was placed on trial charged with murder.

This woman was, I believe from the evidence produced at the trial, guilty of the crime which was brought against her. Nevertheless, because she had the advantage of eminent counsel and because she was young and beautiful she was allowed to go "scot free."

A woman told me that she would have rendered an entirely different verdict.

I think that when a woman is placed on trial, if not the judge, at least the jury, should be wholly composed of women. Let each sex try and convict the members of its own sex.

I would like to warn women who enter a profession against the evil of becoming unsexed. Retain your charms, retain your gentleness, and remember that, although you have a profession, you are still a woman.

Wanted: Simpler Living By the Rich.

By Prof. FELIX ADLER, President of the Ethical Culture Society.

When a certain multimillionaire declared that it was a disgrace to die rich, he expressed a sentiment that must in time obtain. It is interesting to note that in ancient times the aesthetic Hindoo and the aesthetic Christian believed in escaping from any complicity in the wrongs done to the poor by the rich, and removed himself entirely from all temptations to enter into the pursuit of wealth. St. Francis tells us that the food that rich men eat is seasoned by the tears of the poor from whom it was wrung; that it is tainted with injustice, wrong and suffering, and that a just man should embrace poverty as his bride.

Our modern attitude seems to have gone so far as to induce people to voluntarily take up their abiding place with the poor, to associate with them and to bear their hardships. The appeal of the tenement settlement is very strong.

There was a time when I thought seriously of going into the tenement district of New York to live, but when my first child was born I thought it would be monstrous in me to subject it to the degrading influences that abound in a poverty-stricken district. The social settlement idea is picturesque, but is hardly practical.

I should say that our attitude toward wealth should be the same as it is toward food. We should conform to the laws of simplicity.

In his last book, Booker T. Washington, whom I believe to be, with a single reservation, one of the greatest men our country has produced, tells us that the senseless waste at our sixteen-course public dinners always saddens him.

Let us, in dispensing wealth, act on the same principle as that which governs a sane, well-balanced man in taking food—consume just as much as is wholesome and necessary for our needs and avoid luxury of every kind, not only because the sight of luxury excites envy, but because it produces such preposterous results.

A wealthy man has his valet, as if he were too feeble to put on his clothes. He cannot be seen opening a door, but must have an obsequious footman to turn the knob.

After a while we shall have stout porters to carry these rich persons out of their carriages into their houses.

Luxury is enervating because it creates the false idea that the glory of life consists in having people to do things for you.

KILLED IN STORM

Destructive Gale Sweeps Over City of Joplin, Mo.

Two Are Dead and Several Are Seriously Hurt.

Storm Swept Down Upon People Without Any Warning.

Joplin, Mo., April 26.—Joplin was visited yesterday by a destructive storm, during which at least two persons were killed outright, six fatally injured, a score or more seriously hurt, and $300,000 worth of property destroyed. Three dead and six fatally injured have been reported.

The dead:

ESTHER HUNTER, killed by falling timbers.

MARTHA CAPES, colored, died from fright.

Fatally injured: Bidwell Hunter, William Jones, Mrs. Anna Hunter, Mrs. Marian Hicks, a boy named Kruger, three miles west of Joplin, and F. H. Kelley, at Googoo Mines, three miles west.

The fury of the storm broke loose at 4:35 yesterday afternoon. There was no premonition of its terrible violence. There was an utter absence of the usual funnel-shaped cloud, and the clouds looked no more threatening than those which produce the ordinary spring thunder showers. The wind was a straight gale, but it was of terrible velocity, and whipped down scores of houses in the south part of the city, and reduced to kindling wood $100,000 worth of the finest mining plants in this district.

The worst havoc in Joplin city was in a territory four blocks wide, commencing at the west limits of the city, at Seventeenth street, and ending at Seventh street on the west. Within this narrow belt the destruction done is visible on every hand. The home of Mrs. Nellie Sullivan was destroyed. Mrs. Sullivan was badly hurt about the head and face, and her 2-year-old baby was blown fifty yards into a pond, and only saved from drowning by the heroic efforts of her 7-year-old brother, who had also received injuries from the storm.

One room of the residence of S. D. Brower was blown away, and his young son was carried three blocks, receiving only slight injuries.

Passing east from the main portion of the city, the storm spent its fury on the suburban district known as Moonshine Hill and Villa Heights. Three people were killed at Moonshine Hill.

The hill is now a tangled mass of debris, and not a single house is left standing. It is populated mainly by miners, who live in little shacks.

Of the little home of Bidwell Hunter not a timber is left standing, and the three inmates of the house are dying, all having had their skulls fractured.

It is feared that the mining camps farther west, which seemed to be in the path of the storm, have suffered great damage, but no reports have been received from there.

Omaha, April 26.—An unusually heavy wind storm which struck this city last evening killed one person and injured a number of others, unroofed a number of buildings and damaged a great number of skylights. There was a heavy downpour of rain. Street cars were stopped for an hour and wires and signs were blown down in all directions.

Robert Maxwell, aged 13 years, was struck by a flying sidewalk and probably fatally injured.

Ex-Mayor George H. Bemis was struck by a flying sign and sustained a broken leg and other serious injuries.

Lawrence Taggert, aged 20, was struck on the head by a broken billboard and seriously injured.

The storm reached its height about 5 o'clock, when the stores were closing and a great number of people were on the streets. Over a dozen large plate glass windows in down town business houses were blown in and several roofs carried away of small buildings. A great number of small buildings were damaged and several barns were blown to pieces. The greatest damage to any one building was suffered by the A. C. Powell flats, five of which lost their roofs.

At Lyons, Neb., the storm reached almost tornado proportions, doing a great amount of damage to buildings, but nobody was hurt.

At Valley, the Valley hotel and Eddy Brothers' general store was unroofed.

Rains have been general throughout the eastern portion of the state.

Chicago, April 26.—The gale of wind which passed over the city last night did considerable damage. Windows were blown in, roofs ripped up and signs torn from their fastenings. J. McCloud, who was riding a bicycle on West Madison street, was caught by a heavy gust of wind and blown against a passing horse. He was badly trampled upon.

The wind blew over a sheet iron smokestack of the Barber Ashphalt and Paving company, Paulina street and the Chicago river, seriously injuring Simon Teron, a watchman.

At Whipple and Van Buren streets the saloon of John Maroney was demolished by the gale.

Foresters to Meet.

There will be a large meeting of the members of the United Order of Foresters at West Superior, June 3. On that date the High Court Superior, which includes a large section of Wisconsin, Michigan and several Minnesota cities within its jurisdiction, will have an annual convention. High Chief Ranger W. G. McMurchy has been at the head of the lakes making arrangements for the meet. There are a large number of Foresters lodges in Duluth and Superior and the meeting will probably bring several hundred visitors here. The local lodges will make all arrangements to give their visiting brethren a good time.

were made in the spring at from $1.00 to $1.20 per bushel, and before the year closed the price was over $1.50. That year the entire Northwest was short, farmers as well as speculators. Not discouraged by the experience of that year, the next crop was started at about the same price, and in October, under the combined influence of a partial crop failure and a tremendous short interest, the price reached $1.88, and remained there during the entire year.

In the spring of 1901, in spite of the fact that cash seed was again bringing $1.50, speculators, ignoring the experience of 1899 and 1900, began selling new crop futures at about $1.00. The crop was the largest ever raised, but the shortage abroad, causing a large foreign demand, and the tremendous demand from the domestic trade, has up to this time absorbed all the receipts, and present prices, $1.78 per bushel is close to record price.

It is said that all the seed raised last year will be needed to supply the demand for linseed oil, and that the movement of the new crop will find stocks practically exhausted.

Up to this time trading in new crop futures has been quite limited. Prices have ranged from $1.45 to $1.35 per bushel for the September future.

The reason for the small amount of trading in futures of the new crop, is thought to be the fact that farmers and interior shippers, have during the past three years, seen the price advance in the fall to $1.75 and over, and with remarkable unanimity, are this year refraining from offering.

Very little is heard as yet about the new crop prospects, in fact seeding is barely commencing, but there is every prospect for a very large increase in the area.

The Northwestern area was estimated last year at about 2,500,000 acres, of which North Dakota had something more than 1,500,000 acres.

Nearly all the flax handled at Duluth goes to crushers East and abroad. Chicago crushers are estimated to have taken about 500,000 bushels from Duluth this last year, and something more than 3,500,00 bushels were shipped abroad or to Lower Canada.

The prominent crushing interests in the East are the American Linseed company, Spencer Kellog at Buffalo, and the National Lead company, with quite a number of smaller ones. The two interests first mentioned keep their own representatives at Duluth.

The Duluth houses prominently connected with the trade, are Ames-Brooks company, A. D. Thomson & Co., Spencer-Moore & Co., Cargill Commission company, Van Dusen-Harrington company and McCarthy Bros. company, although practically every commission house in Duluth has connections, who at some time during the year are in the market. At one time the Albert Dickinson company of Chicago, handled 75 to 90 per cent of all the seed handled at Duluth, but this company is no longer a prominent figure.

A large number of people identify flax seed only with its use for poultices and other household purposes and do not know that it is used to make linseed oil and oil cake. A bushel of 56 lbs produces about nineteen pounds of oil and thirty-seven pounds of cake.

Practically all the cake is shipped abroad for cattle food, but American feeders are beginning to appreciate its value as an adjunct of corn in fattening cattle for market.

Many attempts have been made to save the fibre and convert it to some use, but up to the present time they have not met with any great degree of success, and the greater part of the straw is burned as soon as the seed is threshed out. Flax fibre is used in the manufacture of linen.

THE WHIRL OF POLITICS

Eighth district congressional matters will be very much smoother and simpler when a few vexed questions are straightened out. Some of them are as follows:

1. Will O. D. Kinney consent to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress?

2. If he does not, is Senator McCarthy the choice of the Willcuts faction, or has it somebody in reserve to be trotted out later?

3. How many candidates are there to be for the Republican nomination?

4. Is there to be a distinctly Duluth candidate?

When these four questions, together with some others that will suggest themselves, are answered conclusively, everybody will be in pretty good condition to tell who is going to be the Republican nominee.

The principal matter of discussion just now is whether Mr. Kinney will permit his name to be used in the campaign before the primaries. His friends know that he will not incline very much to the prospect, but many of them believe that they will be able to paint it to him in such attractive form that he will give in to their wishes and become a candidate. If he does, there is no denying his strength, and he will make a formidable opponent for J. Adam Bede. As for Senator McCarthy, he has practically stated that if Mr. Kinney is a candidate he will retire. Much therefore, depends upon Mr. Kinney's decision and the powers of persuasion that his friends possess. Probably nothing will be known about the matter until Mr. Kinney's return, which is expected before May 1.

As to the second question, it has been reported that Senator McCarthy was the Willcuts choice, and on the other hand this has been denied. One man who claims to know something about politics says that the Willcuts candidate is none other than W. E. Culkin, the present register of the United States land office. Others say that Mayor Hugo will yet be found in the race. In short, there is a good deal of talking, and nobody outside of the inner circles knows much about it all.

• • •

The next thing of interest is the settlement of the date of the Republican state central convention. The executive committee of the Republican state central committee, at a meeting at the Windsor hotel, Thursday afternoon in St. Paul, decided to call a meeting of the central committee next Thursday afternoon, when the date of the convention will be decided upon and the number of delegates from each county apportioned. The Associated Press dispatch conveying the news stated that sentiment favored an early convention, and that June 17 was talked of as a probable date. This is doubtless the sentiment of the members of the executive committee, but there will be found a feeling among the other members in favor of a later date, and the date mentioned will not meet with undivided approval.

J. P. Johnson, clerk of the district court, is the Duluth member of the state central committee, and he favors a late convention.

"I can see nothing to be gained by an early convention," said he yesterday afternoon, "and I shall vote to have it as late as possible without getting it tangled up with the primary elections. It might just as well be held in July as in June, and that would shorten up the campaign that much."

• • •

Selecting delegates for the state convention will be the only chance for the old-fashioned county convention to get in its work this year. The primary election law does not apply to state elections, and the state convention will, therefore, be preceded by the county conventions to select the delegates, and the county conventions will be preceded by the old style primaries.

• • •

The nomination of Governor Van Sant to succeed himself seems to be finally settled now. Even the Duluth News Tribune, in an editorial yesterday morning, conceded that he will be nominated.

• • •

For the information of everybody interested in the election that will be held next November, the date of the primary election has been figured out. It is Sept. 16. The last day for filing certificates of candidacy is Aug. 26. Every candidate must file a certificate before that date. If the candidate's district, or rather the district he wishes to be his, is in more than one county, he must file his certificate with the secretary of state. If he is interested only in one county, it can be filed with the county auditor.

The principal local happening of the week in the political field was the announcement by Senator McCarthy of Grand Rapids, through The Herald, that he was a candidate for the congressional nomination. Later, after hearing the name of O. D. Kinney pretty frequently mentioned in this connection, he qualified his statement by saying that his candidacy depended on there being no strong Duluth candidate up. Senator McCarthy has many friends, and his known ability will rally quite a following when he is in the field to stay.

• • •

It was also announced during the week that William C. Sargent would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff. It goes without saying that, as usual, he will be a strong figure in the field. His principal opponent at this time is W. W. Butchart, who has been a candidate several times and who landed the office for one term.

• • •

A. T. Park, county superintendent of schools, will have vigorous opposition from Bert N. Wheeler, who has held the place once and would like to get it away from Mr. Park to hold it again.

• • •

P. Ellard Dowling, in his Eveleth Star, says:

"Virginia will have a candidate for a lucrative county office. The candidate is one of the cleanest men in all the county. He is bright, honorable and a most worthy Republican. Virginia has never had a citizen of its community in public office in this county and it is high time that some concessions be made. We will not at this time call the roll, but we will guarantee the gentleman will deliver the goods at the proper time."

As P. Ellard himself is tied up to a legislative ambition, this can hardly refer to himself. The Herald guesses he means former Mayor M. C. Palmer, of Virginia.

As to Mr. Dowling's candidacy for the legislature, here is his own saying on the subject:

"According to the Duluth papers we are a candidate for the legislature. We hardly know whether to affirm or deny the allegation. It's a reasonably soft impeachment. It might be as well to plead guilty."

Editor Cuppernull, in the Virginian, speaks thus on the legislative situation:

"There is considerable talk of P. Ellard Dowling, of Eveleth, becoming a Mesaba range candidate for legislative honors in the Forty-ninth district. At present this range has no representative in either branch of the legislature. When Senator Hawkins was elected four years ago he was considered a range resident, but a great many here now feel that the senator is an adopted son of Duluth. Were this not so the Mesaba range is entitled to a representative. We are expanding up here and will soon have a larger population than the capital of St. Louis county and it is but fair that the offices, both county and state, should be more equally divided. Should Mr. Dowling—or any other popular range man—announce themselves as candidates for either branch of the legislature they would receive a great deal of encouragement."

• • •

The Hibbing News man says that Senator Hawkins would be a strong man in the race for congressional honors. So he would, and the Twin City papers are mentioning him quite freely.

• • •

The Virginian discords the chorus of praise of the retiring congressman from this district as follows:

"Page Morris has decided to retire from politics. There are a whole lot of people in the Eighth district who are glad of it and we don't know of any one who is at all sorry."

Here is an artistic suggestion from Editor Dowling, of the Eveleth Star:

"It looks very much as though County Auditor Halden would get the nomination for state auditor. St. Louis county is not so few when it comes to reckon on numbers in delegates. Every delegate from this county ought, and no doubt will go to the state convention with a full measure of bright red paint and a large brush."

• • •

D. E. Cuppernull, of the Virginian, makes this observation on a prominent figure in the legislative field;

"'Jake,' the Lac Qui Parle freak who makes so much noise during the sessions of the state legislature, has decided not to make the run for state auditor. This would indicate that there is some hope of 'Jake's' sanity."

The Wadena Tribune (Dem.) says of the retirement of Judge Morris:

"Nevertheless, as a factor in Minnesota politics, Page Morris has not lived in vain. His two successful contests against Charles A. Towne served to demonstrate to a certainey that with a good organization backed with most unscrupulous methods and plenty of money, a candidate who is generally admitted to be below par can be elected, in some quarters at least, over the most ideal candidate who makes an honorable fight on argument and merit.

"Giving Mr. Morris due credit for what little he may have accomplished during his several successive terms in congress, should his name be recalled after he steps out of office and the press representatives cease to sound his praises, he will be remembered simply as the man who beat Charley Towne, and not for any brilliancy of statesmanship."

Here are a couple of observations from A. N. Dare's Elk River Star News on the congressional situation:

"J. Adam Bede was shaking hands with friends at the depot yesterday morning, and was in good spirits. He thinks they cannot pry him loose from the Republican congressional nomination in the Ninth district to succeed Congressman Morris."

"There is one man in the district who stands out conspicuously as a fitting successor to Congressman Morris, and that is Senator McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, but McCarthy is modest and will likely be defeated by some man with more gall and less brains."

• • •

The Ortonville Journal thus discusses the views on the state auditorship in a county that borders on Lac Qui Parle:

"The fight for the auditorship will be between S. G. Iverson, the present deputy auditor, and O. Halden, of Duluth, county auditor of St. Louis county. Both gentlemen have friends in this county, but Mr. Halden seems to be the favorite at this time."

• • •

The Ely Miner views the situation in this manner:

"The state auditor fight is between Odin Halden and S. G. Iverson, with Halden's chances the better of the two. Should, however, Jacobson become a candidate in connection with Iverson in that part of the state, Halden would be a winner on the first ballot."

And the Virginia Enterprise:

"It is now given out that J. F. Jacobson, of Lac Qui Parle, who has had his eye on the state auditorship for many months past, has decided, after a careful survey of the field, that discretion is the better part of valor and will not enter the contest. This narrows the race for the Republican nomination down to O. Halden, of Duluth, and S. G. Iverson, at present chief deputy in the office of state auditor. Mr. Iverson will be accorded the support of State Auditor Dunn and the Lac Qui Parle statesman, but the gentlemen must not be surprised when the returns from St. Louis county come in to note that Mr. Halden has a few friends in this section."

Ralph W. Wheelock in the Minneapolis Tribune:

"Odin Halden, county auditor of St. Louis county, spent yesterday in the city in the interest of his candidacy for the Republican nomination as state auditor. Mr. Halden is by no means a stranger in Hennepin county, and he has encouragement to believe that he will receive fair consideration when the division of the vote of the county is made in the state convention. There is no question as to his qualifications for the office."

Bill For Public Buildings Has Provision For Duluth.

Washington, Arll 26.—Representative Mercer of Nebraska introduced in the house today the omnibus public building bill agreed upon by his committee, and on Monday next a special rule will be presented to the house for consideration of the bill on Tuesday. The rule will provide for three hours' debate, and for a vote, without opportunity of amendment. The bill will carry authorizations for public buildings in every state of the Union except Delaware and Idaho, for which states no bills were introduced.

In all, there are 173 authorizations in the bill, 58 increasing the limit of cost of buildings already provided for, 77 for new sites and buildings, 6 for the construction of buildings on sites already purchased and owned by the government, 18 for the construction of buildings on donated sites and 16 authorizations for the purchase of sites only. The authorizations aggregate 15,800,000.

No new postoffice building is provided for New York city, but the bill authorizes a commission, consisting of the secretary of the treasury, the postmaster general and the attorney general, to select a site in the borough of Manhattan. No limit of cost is placed on the site to be selected. The only condition attached to it is that it shall consist of a block or square.

The bill repeals the present law for the erection of a department of justice building in this city and covers the $1,000,000 which it appropriated back into the treasury. The following cities among others have the limit of cost of the public buildings increased:

Minneapolis, Minn., $718,913 to $968,913.

Fergus Falls, Minn., $100,000 to $115,000.

Aberdeen, S. D., $100,000 to $175,000.

Menominee, Mich., $50,000 to $51,000.

Philadelphia mint, $2,000,000 to $2,025,000.

Appropriations are made on condition that sites are sold to the United States at a nominal cost, as follows:

Centerville, Ia., $45,000; Atlantic, Ia., $30,000.

The following appropriations are made for buildings and sites:

Marshalltown, Ia., $50,000; Waterloo, Ia., $150,000; Boone, Ia., $100,000; Iowa City, Ia., $60,000; Grand Forks, N. D., $125,000; Deadwood, S. D., $200,000; Superior, Wis., $175,000; Baraboo, Wis., $35,000; Wausau, Wis., $50,000; Green Bay, Wis., $140,000; Fond du Lac, Wis., $60,00.

In the latter appropriation for buildings and sites there is a proviso that the cost of site in each case shall not exceed 15 per cent of the total amount fixed.

Appropriations are made for sites as follows:

Pierre, S. D., $5000; Albert Lea, Minn., $3000; Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., $6000. Authority is given to select a site at Des Moines, Ia., limit $125,000.

Provision is made for a report as to the capacity of the public building at Duluth, Minn., with a view to providing new quarters.

Sunk In Graveyard and Church People Make Threats.

Lancaster, Ohio, April 26.—The little Catholic parish at Pine Hill, just over the line in Hocking county, is in a tumult, and several of the members are making dire threats against the officials of the Springfield Natural Gas company. The church property, comprising about an acre of land, is in the gas territory of Good Hope township, and some time ago the Springfield people leased the land for drilling purposes. Bishop Moeller, of Columbus, signed the lease, as he acts as trustee for all church property in the diocese.

Part of the churchyard is used as a cemetery, and many of the parishioners have friends and relatives buried there. The contract stipulated that the company should not interfere with any of the graves or tombstones. A short time ago the company commenced setting up a rig on the property, and the parishioners revolted. Some of them wrote to the bishop and said that graves were being desecrated, and called the action of the company a sacrilege. They even went so far as to consult a local attorney with a view of getting out an injunction against the company.

Bishop Moeller has written to George Ewing, of this city, who is the company's counsel, calling his attention to the charges made by the parishioners, and Mr. Ewing went to Pine Hill to investigate the story. He says that none of the graves have been interin a section removed from the burial lot, and that when the complaints were first made the man in charge of the field work had a temporary board fence erected around the space occupied by the graves so they could not be encroached upon.

CABLE FLASHES.

The examination in bankruptcy of the marquis of Queensberry, which was concluded Friday, showed that he ran through personal property to the value of £260,000 and the Glen Stuart estate of 500 acres. When he succeeded to the marquisate in 1900 he had anticipated his interest in the state to the extent of £108,235. The marquis lost between £60,000 and £100,00 in speculation on the stock exchange.

The first naval squadron, under the command of Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, sailed Friday on a training cruise which will last several weeks, along the English-Irish coast. The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, which sailed with Prince Henry's squadron yesterday morning, returned later to the imperial docks. Her machinery became deranged at sea and caused some damage on board the vessel.

"It is no time for mirth and laughter
"The cold gray dawn of the morning after."

A fur overcoat on your tongue; "hair on your teeth;" a taste "as if a cat had littered in your mouth;" nerves a-tremble; aching hair; a "bust-head of splitting agony;" appetite—none; movement of the bowels—not a sign; present (unwelcome visitor), Gen. SPRUNG A SURPRISE.

Parker Faction Opposes Advance of Mayoralty Case.

The Parker faction in West Superior has sprung a surprise on the opposition, H. W. Dietrich and his friends, by opposing any advance of the Parker-Dietrich mayoralty case on the state supreme court calendar. It is said to be doubtful now if the case will come up for trial at this term of court. The case is one brought by Mr. Dietrich against the city clerk et al, of West Superior, commanding him to place on the official Republican ticket the names of Mr. Dietrich and other nominees of the Dietrich convention. When the case was brought before Judge Vinje, it was in the nature of an injunction and a mandamus. The injunction was ordered but the mandamus was denied and the case was appealed.

It was thought that both sides would be anxious to have the matter decided by the supreme court at the earliest date and claim is made that opposition to the advance is for political reasons.

It is not thought that opposition is based on any consideration of the effect it may have on state politics.

The Unity Dramatic club will present on Saturday evening, May 3, at the Unitarian church, a two-act comedy, by W. M. Browne, entitled "A Fool For Luck." The club has in the past, on several occasions, pleased Duluth audiences with such plays as "Mr. Bob," "Scrap of Paper," "My Lord in Livery" and others. No efforts have been spared in preparing "A Fool For Luck" to make it as pleasing and entertaining as the former plays. The characters for the play have been selected with special care from the members of the club, and judging from the efficient work shown at the rehearsals, under the direction of A. A. Brackinreed, the play promises to score another success for the club.

TO DETECT POISONS.

The Body Tries to Sweat Them Out.

At a convention of medical men in St. Louis the effects of coffee drinking were carefully considered. It was unanimously agreed that while coffee does not seem to injure some persons, to others it is rank poison. The effect on different persons is, of course, very different. In some the heart is affected, in others the kidneys, again the stomach or bowels, or the eyes, and in nervous cases the prostration is spread over the whole body.

As an illustration, a man in Hinton, W. Va., experienced well-defined symptoms of poisoning from coffee. He says: "I used coffee a great many years with no apparent ill effects, but about nine years ago I began being sick. I became dull, lost my ambition, had dizziness, my eyesight was very bad and kept getting worse, and at times I could hardly navigate at all, I felt I was going to fall every minute, and finally became so bad I would have to sit down and rest three or four times in a distance of twice that many blocks.

"I went from one physician to another and faithfully took their prescriptions, but the case was so complex that they could not successfully diagnose it. I finally went to New York city to the Vanderbilt clinic for treatment. There my case was diagnosed as neurasthenia. Every morning about 9 o'clock I would have a kind of spasm. The perspiration would break out all over the palms of my hands, and my hair would be wringing wet, every nerve in the body would be affected and my heart would jump and beat at a fearful rate. This condition would generally last for about two hours. What I suffered no one can understand.

"It finally came to me that these terrible sweats and spasms were just the same as in cases where people are poisoned and nature tries to throw off the poison through the pores. So I concluded that something I was taking must act like a poison and I decided it was coffee. I left it off one morning and had a fearful headache all day, a sure sign that I was being held up by a drug, so that evening I bought Postum Food Coffee and the next morning had it for breakfast in place of coffee. I was surprised for I could hardly tell it from coffee. That day I was only a little sick about the usual time, and from the next day until now, something over thirteen months, I have never felt even the remotest return of the spasms.

"I steadily got strong, my weight has increased from 130 pounds to 147 pounds and I am a well man. The seven years of suffering from coffee poison will always remain with me as a horrible nightmare." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

FINE SYSTEM.

Judge Ensign Enthusiastic Over Duluth Fire Department.

"I never fully realized what an effective organization the Duluth fire department was until the other day," said Judge Ensign yesterday afternoon.

"Sunday morning I had a bad chimney fire in my house. I fought it as long as I could, and then, finding that I could make no headway with it, I sent in an alarm. A very few minutes later I was up in the attic working at the fire, when I happened to look out of the window and saw a crowd gathering. I concluded I would go down and keep the crowd out of the house, knowing that there is always a rush of curious people in such a contingency. I found that my solicitude was unnecessary. At each door stood a stalwart fireman, barring the way to all that had no business there.

"The next second the firemen were swarming over the house. Several departments were there, and there were many firemen. They pounded through the house, and when they first arrived their numbers caused no appearance of confusion. But without a word of command those men distributed themselves at their stations. Not a man moved hastily, not a man got in another's way, but each moved rapidly and surely to the place where he belonged. When the officers arrived and began to issue commands not an order was given above an ordinary tone. There was absolutely no confusion, but that admirable body of men moved with perfect discipline, each to his appointed station. Every man seemed to know just where he belonged without being told

"Meanwhile the salvage corps arrived, and without waiting for orders, and apparently needing none the men stood in the halls above and below with their protecting tarpaulines, ready for use if it had become necessary, and when it was found that their aid was not required, they left as quietly as they came.

"The fire was soon disposed of. It was a peculiarly favorable opportunity for observing the work of the firemen, because the whole situation centered in the fear of what was coming rather than in anything that was happening, and there was ample opportunity for watching the work of the department. When the fire was out the chief quietly issued orders for the various departments to go home, and they went as quietly and as precisely and as orderly as they came. They remained until all appearance of danger was over. The assistant chief was the last to go, and before he left he made a careful examination to see that no fire was left anywhere.

"It was one of the most interesting sights I ever saw. Everything showed the result of perfect discipline. There was no shouting, no crowding, no confusion; all the men moved like orderly parts of an ingenious machine. Every man seemed to know his particular duty, and made his way to it through the house without being directed. Commands were necessary, and they were given, but as I have said, they were all in quiet tones.

"It was the first time I had ever had such an opportunity of witnessing the work of the department, and it impressed me very strongly. The effect of it all was that the natural alarm of the family arising from the situation was entirely dissipated by the arrival of the department, and we all felt unbounded confidence in the protection of the men whose duties were so promptly and quietly performed."

SUICIDE.

Lars Hansen Takes His Own Life In Lodging House.

Lars Hansen, a dock laborer lately from Hanska, Minn., hanged himself in the Durham lodging house last evening.

With a rope he tied himself up to a gas jet and strangled to death.

Very little has been learned of the man. About a week ago he was first seen at the Durham lodging house, and since then every day he has paid 25 cents for lodging. Yesterday he failed to turn up with the quarter, and the clerk went to the room to collect. Entering, he found the man dead, and at once notified the authorities.

Deputy Coroner Patton had the body removed to Stewart's undertaking rooms on West Furst street. Efforts are being made today to locate his relatives.

DENIES IT.

W. C. Agnew Knows of No Proposed Combination of Mines.

W. C. Agnew, who, it was rumored, was to be the head of a combination of the independent producers of iron ore, has returned from a trip East. Mr. Agnew said this morning at the Spalding that he knew of no foundation for the report that the independent mine operators were about to organize. He added that he could see no reason whatever for such an organization. There was nothing that Mr. Agnew imagined could be gained by such action, and as far as he knew no definite movement had been made looking toward that end.

Mr. Agnew says that frost is still bothering operations in the open pit mines, and that a good rain is needed to take the frost out of the ground. While the big Mahoning is making no effort to push its product yet, it is shipping 5000 or 6000 tons a day.

Splendid Prospects In Sight For Stockholders.

A recent issue of The Herald called attention to the fact that the Colorado Coal and Oil company, the field of whose operations is fourteen miles northwest of Denver, have a splendid proposition to offer in oil stock. The famous McKenzie and Arnold wells, which produce the highest grade oil in the United States, are but a few miles north of the company's property, and new wells in close proximity are coming in almost every day. George Woollen, 102 Palladio building, represents the Colorado Coal and Oil company in this city.

STILL STRUGGLING.

County Board Deadlock at Superior Continues.

The Douglas county board of supervisors now meeting in West Superior, have been unable to break the deadlock for county poor commissioner and an adjournment was taken yesterday afternoon until Monday.

In all 166 ballots have been taken for a county poor commissioner but neither faction of the county board will give an inch and the outlook is said to be hopeless for any agreement. Thursday evening an adjournment was taken and a committee from the opposing factions met to see if a compromise could not be made on some other candidate, but the old members of the board held out for W. T. Kennedy, the present incumbent, or nobody, and the feeling is said to be bitter.

It is claimed that this refusal of the old crowd on the board to consider a compromise, removes from the "reform" committee the charge of delaying the county business through their obstinacy, a charge made Thursday by Supervisor James Eardon. The older faction of the board has been searching diligently through the statutes of Wisconsin for a law that will bear out their claim of a vote by ballot, but thus far no such law has been found.

During the meeting yesterday afternoon, Supervisor Linley, of the "reform element," went on record as absolutely opposed to tax settlements of any form, and the sentiment of the board is said to bear him out.

The Land and River company is said to have indicated an intention of paying part of its taxes very soon. This heads that the company will discontinue its suit against the county to have all the property of the city reassessed.

Some of the taxes of the company are still in dispute and these will be referred to and passed on by the county board of arbitration.

The amount that will be turned over to the city in the first payment is about $50,000.

CURABLE.

Female Troubles of All Nature Yield to Chiropractic Treatment.

It is said that 90 per cent of the women of today have female trouble in one form or another.

This is an alarming statement and unfortunately it is only too true.

Female trouble tells its own tale on the face of every sufferer afflicted with it.

It can be cured. There is only one way and that is nature's way.

What causes female trouble, or any other trouble that flesh is heir to?

Pressure on some nerve or nerves which supply the part afflicted with nourishment. Remove the cause and nature does the rest.

Chiropractic is the science which every day is demonstrating that any wrong condition of the human frame can be righted by its intelligent application.

Dr. D. W. Reisland, 206 East First street, wants every sufferer to see him, no matter how difficult to the ordinary practitioner their case may have been. He has cured hundreds of chronic and serious cases, and can give the names of hundreds of grateful patients who from misery and despondency have become well and happy through his treatment. He makes no charge for consultation or examination.

ONE CENT ADVANCE

Wheat Started Out at Advance and Ruled Strong.

Higher Cables and Lack of Sufficient Rain In Kansas.

Trading In Futures Very Lively on the Duluth Board.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 26. —The wheat market was strong and higher today. The advance was due to the higher cables, the lack of sufficient rains in Kansas to relieve the drouth in the winter wheat districts and Bradstreet's estimate of a probable crop yield for that state of about 90 per cent of last year's crop. May wheat closed 1½c higher than yesterday here, 1c higher at Chicago and ½-⅝c higher at Minneapolis.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher. Paris was quiet and ½c higher, with a slight advance in flour.

The Australian shipments were decreased to 152,000 bus, against 576,000 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 183 cars, and at Chicago, 35, a total of 196 cars, against 143 last week and 349 last year.

Trading was very lively on the Duluth board and the market strong. The opening was ⅛c up at 75c. The market sold at 75¼c at 9:35, at 75⅝-¾c at 10, at 75⅞c at 10:15 and then advanced steadily to sell at 11:20. The close was at 76c, an advance of 1¼c. Chicago advanced 1c and Minneapolis 1⅝-⅞c. Duluth July advanced 1¼c. Cash sales were 10,000 bus at May price for No. 1 northern, 2½c under for No. 2, and 4½c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was light and the market steady in the early trading, selling at 71⅝. Later it declined sharply, closing 1½c off. Cash and to arrive seed fell the same amount and the October option advanced 1c.

September oats advanced ⅛c and rye was up 1c.

Following are the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat—Cash, 1 hard, 73c; 1 northern, 75c; 2 northern, 73½c; 3 spring, 71½c. To arrive, 1 hard, 75c; 1 northern, 76c; May, 76c; July, 76⅜c; September, 75c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Unfavorable Reports Had Bullish Effect on Wheat.

Chicago, April 26.—Higher cables, insufficient rains in Kansas and Bradstreet's report of a probable crop yield for that state of about 90 per cent of last year's crop had a bullish effect on wheat at the opening and prices reacted well from yesterday's slump. July wheat started ⅝c to 1c higher at 75⅝@75⅞c, to 75½@75¾c. Trade was quiet, but the market held part of its advance firmly. July sold back to 75⅜c and then steadied around 75⅝c. Local receipts were 33 cars, none of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 183 cars, making a total for the three points of 196 cars, against 143 last week and 349 a year ago. Australian shipments were decreased to 152,000 bus, as against 576,000 bus last year.

Late trade in wheat continued bullish on heavy seaboard clearances—816,000 bus. July sold up to 76⅝c and closed firm, ⅞c higher at 76⅜@¾c.

Wheat strength and higher English cables exerted an early bullish influence on corn. Buying was fairly good at the opening and there was little disposition to sell. July corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 63½c to 63¾c, advanced to 64@¼c and later eased slightly, steadying around 63⅞c. Receipts were 94 cars.

Trade in corn continued very quiet the latter part of the day. The most noticeable sentiment in the pit was that of fear to sell by shorts, because of uncertainty of the action on the part of principal house that is supposed to be heavily long of July. July closed firm ¼c up at 63⅜c.

Oats opened a little higher. The demand was very light early and prices steadied at last night's closing figure. July (new standard) started ¼c up at 37⅛c and sold between 37¼c and 37⅜c. Receipts were 195 cars. There was a tendency to sell provisions at the opening, but a good demand developed on packers' support. July pork opened 5c higher at $14.42½ and advanced 5c more. July lard started unchanged at $8.95 and sold to $9.97½ and July ribs 2½c up at $9.27½ and sold up a shade further.

Bradstreet says—Crop reports indicate that beyond a doubt the Kansas wheat crop has been hurt by the drouth and hot winds. Nothing in excess of three-quarters of a crop has been left for even by the most sanguine, while 90 per cent of last year's crop is confidently predicted

Logan & Bryan Chicago: Wheat—Primary receipts, 275,000 bus, against 443,000 bus; shipments, 272,000 bus, against 377,000 bus. Clearances 817,000 bus. Rains are still lacking in Kansas, but this was not such a much of a factor in the market today as was the steadily decreasing stocks and large clearances. Attention has of late been diverted to crop conditions. With the tension of feeling in that direction relieved by rains, the market must naturally come back to the surplus situation on the present crop and the probable demand for them. This section of the situation is certainly not bearish. The price seems held by these conditions. Stocks of flour both here and abroad are very small. European conditions are favorable and has made them from hand to mouth buyers for some time past. They must be fed, however, for several months to come, largely from America. We are inclined to think therefore that the pretty safe proposition to buy wheat on the breaks. The visible supply, it is expected, will show a liberal decrease on Monday.

Corn—Primary receipts, 297,000 bus, against 245,000 bus last year; shipments, 160,000 bus, against 339,000 bus last year. Clearances, 1,700 bus. The market here was firm but not extremely active. While the receipts are small they are about equal to last year. Stocks, however are very much smaller. There is an undercurrent of cash demand here and in the Southwest markets but interest is largely centered at the moment in the operations on a large scale by prominent local holders. Position of corn seems to us a strong one.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, April 26.—The wheat market, after opening higher owing to more encouraging advices from abroad, advanced on better export demand, light receipts at primary points and large clearances from Atlantic seaboard, amounting to 830,000 bus wheat and flour. Trade was large all day and undertone to the market firm. The close was within a fraction of the highest point of the day. May, 1c; July, ¾c, and September ⅝c higher than yesterday. General rains were reported throughout the winter wheat belt with the exception of Kansas, and advices from Minnesota and South Dakota indicate plenty of moisture there and prospects for the crop favorable. Liverpool reported their market as firm, ¼d higher on covering by shirts. Our friends tell us that they have confidence in present prices and indications point to a good export demand in the near future from this country. Continental markets were generally firm, especially Paris. European crop reports continue favorable. The seaboard reported a good business done there for export today with considerable more inquiry from France and every indication that that country will soon become a free buyer of cash wheat. Broomhall predicts the world's shipments for Monday at 8,000,000 bus. The legitimate situation looks strong. Receipts are small and cash demand is good. Estimated receipts for Monday, 25 cars.

Trade in corn was very light today and the market ruled dull. The narrow range closing firmer in sympathy with wheat. Country offerings were moderate, cash demand rather quiet although a sale of 75,000 bus was reported to go East. Foreign markets were quiet. Liverpool closed ¼d higher for the day on forecasts of smaller shipments to that port. There was no special feature to the market today, the recent manipulation of a prominent commission house has evidently frightened the trade and as we said before as long as this exists it is hard to diagnoze the future course of the market. We are inclined to think receipts in the near future will increase. Estimated receipts for Monday 215 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in oats today and the market ruled quiet within a narrow range. Closed firmer in sympathy with wheat. Country offerings were fairly large, cash demand good. The weather generally is favorable for the crop. Estimated receipts for Monday, 205 cars.

Provisions opened easier for a moment on lower hogs. Little were immediately taken in hand and under vigorous bidding market was advanced sharply, closing steady about the best price of the day and season. Outsiders took very little interes in the market and trade was mostly local. There was some buying of September lard by prominent grain men and packers were all on the buying side. We are not surprised at the action of the market. In fact, the market is so thoroughly in the hands of a few strong men that they can dictate prices, but cannot force the general public to follow them. Opinions are valueless, for the market is not governed by legitimate influences. Estimated receipts for Monday, 35,000 hogs, and for next week, 140,000.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Many Important Stocks Carried Below Friday Night's Close.

Bank Statement Favorable and Caused a Temporary Rally.

Ease of Money Market Fosters Speculation In Stocks.

New York, April 26.—Stock exchange prices this week have reflected the growing importance of the grain crop prospects as an influence. The heat and drouth of the early part of the week in the winter wheat belt led to heavy liquidation of stocks, while the breat in grain when the rains fell in the West caused violent recoveries in stocks. A strong and aggressive speculative party has kept up the activity, shifting operations from one quarter to another. The coalers have been conspicuous, operations there marking the progress in establishing a community of interest in those properties. The ease of the money market has fostered the speculation in stocks, and the indication from the rise in exchange that more gold will soon go out has not disturbed the money market.

The opening dealings in stocks this morning were comparatively quiet. Prices in the majority of cases were higher but there were some reactions on secondary dealings and a number of important stocks opened lower. Louisville & Nashville opened a point higher and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville 1¾, but Southern Railway sagged a fraction. Northwestern and American Ice preferred rose over a point.

The market yielded quite generally but there was no pronounced pressure against any particular group of stocks. Prices of some of the grain carrying stocks fell below last night and Canadian Pacific, Louisville, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, Tennessee Coal and Colorado Fuel sold a point below the best. Standard Rope, Railway Steel Spring and International Pump gained 1@2. Pennsylvania and New York Centrla came into prominence later and advanced 1 and 2½ respectively. Colorado Fuel rallied to 44@44⅝ for demand and at $4.85@4.85½ for sixty days; posted rates, $4.80@4.85½ and $4.88½@4.89; commercial bills, $4.84¾@4.85@; silver, 59c; Mexican dollars, 47c. Government bonds, steady; state bonds, firm; railroad bonds, firm.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—The bank statement was better than expected. It forecasts easier money, which will be helpful for the copper stocks. Calumet & Coppers were very quiet today. Attention is being attracted away from them by activity of the New York market. They are acting well, however, and we expect to see them at higher prices before the end of next week.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.—The market opened firm for most issues with especial strength in New York Central and Pennsylvania, in both of which there was excellent buying, the grangers maintained the advance of the last few days on better crop reports. Coalers were somewhat neglected, pending the definite news on labor situation. The bank statement was as expected, fairly good and the market generally held most satisfactorily. Some of the lower stocks, notably Ice and Leather showed better trading. If crop reports continue good we expect to see higher prices next week. We have excellent reports of the stocks both common and preferred of the Consolidated Lake Superior company, now listed in Philadelphia, but which will shortly be listed in New York. We think both of these issues are well worth the investigation of our friends.

Grier to B. E. Baker.—The market was quiet, Union Pacific and Southern Railway are said to be the Western cards also Monon on dips. C. F. I. they are and have been picking up for some weeks. The bank statement should help the market. All insiders and commission houses are flinging Steels for an advance. The movement is probably being engineered more on account of their new bonds than on the good statements they are sending out.

* * *

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.—Today's market was fairly active with particular strength and large dealings in Pennsylvania as well as in the New York Central and junior Vanderbilts. The general railroad list fluctuated within narrow limits showing no notable changes. The coalers were steady evidently waiting the result of today's meeting at which differences between the corporations and the mine operators will be definitely adjusted. In the industrial list Sugar and Amalgamated were rather erratic changing frequently between weakness and strength while Colorado Fuel showed a firm tone, and American Ice common and preferred were strong, gaining over yesterday's close. The bank statement showing a gain in reserves of over $3,000,000 had no perceptible effect on the market, but it was only about what was expected. Steel common and preferred were rather irregular and fractionally lower. Late in the day there was the usual closing out of contracts over Sunday with small reactions scattered throughout the list.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—The bank statement was better than expected. It forecasts easier money, which will be helpful for the copper stocks. Calumet & Coppers were very quiet today. Attention is being attracted away from them by activity of the New York market. They are acting well, however, and we expect to see them at higher prices before the end of next week.

RELAY RACES

Are Being Held on Cinder Track at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 26.—The fleetest amateur runners in the United States are on the cinder path this afternoon at the annual carnival of relay races and field sports under the auspices of the university of Pennsylvania. The star events on the program are the five-mile relay championship and one-mile event. In these races record breaking performances are looked for. There will be sixteen other relay races for contestants not entered in the championships and eight field events. In the latter contests most of the present intercollegiate champions are entered as are also several new men who give promise of being dangerous opponents to the veterans.

The weather was clear and the track was in splendid condition.

ANDREWS

Promised to Straighten Out Bank Affairs Last Summer.

Detroit, April 26.—Frank C. Pingree, president of the wrecked City Savings bank, was called to the witness stand today at the examination of Frank C. and Henry Andrews, vice president and cashier respectively of the bank, who are charged with causing its ruin. Mr. Pingree testified that last July the directors discovered that the bank was holding some of Frank C. Andrews' paper, which they had not approved. He said he talked the matter over with Frank C. Andrews and told him that if the bank was going to be robbed, he (Pingree) did not want to have anything to do with it and would resign.

"Andrews," said Pingree, "said he would not take the presidency if I would resign. He added that if I resigned he would, and if I wanted the bank to go down all I had to do was to resign."

After a heated argument Andrews finally agreed to sell his real estate and straighten out the affairs.

NEW LIGHT

On Dynamite Outrages at Henson Creek.

Denver, April 26.—A suit has been filed in Hinsdale county which, it is said, throws new light on the dynamiting outrages and riot which occurred in Henison Creek, near Lake City, in March, 1899. Damages in the sum of $50,000 are demanded, the allegation being, in brief, that McCarthy instigated the riot and concealed the state's arms in a conspiracy to force Chauncey E. Dewey and co-owners in the Hidden Treasure Mining company to part with their interests at much less than their real value.

CHAMP CLARK RENOMINATED.

Kansas City, April 26.—A special to the Star from Mexico, Mo., says: Congressman Champ Clark, of Bowling Green, was today renominated by the Democratic convention of the Ninth district without opposition.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

No Wrecking Tugs at Soo For Boats In Trouble.

Unknown Schooner In a Dangerous Position Near Colchester.

Nine Tugs Will Be Working In Duluth Harbor Sunday.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to the tug strike there are no wrecking tugs to send to boats in trouble in the Soo passage. In consequence the steel trust has ordered the steamer Maruba to go to the assistance of the steamer Walla aground in Mud lake. The steamer Howard L. Shaw is also reported aground in Mud lake, but her owners, the Eddy Transportation company, has no steamer on hand to send to her aid.

ONE TUG AT SOO.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Lakes Towing company has one small tug in service today, manned by officers of the company. Efforts are being made to get the crew of the firemen and linemen who are on strike. There seems to be no idea of a settlement with the strikers.

Colchester, Ont., April 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—A three masted schooner anchored off this point, parted the cable and at 11 o'clock was drifting rapidly towards the beach. The unperilled vessel is too far from the lighthouse to make out her name. A furious gale from the southeast prevails.

NINE TUGS SUNDAY.

Local Tug Company Working Without Any Difficulty.

The local tug situation was reported by the Union Towing and Wrecking company to be in a very quiet and peaceable condition today

Six tugs were working, manned with non-union firemen and by tomorrow there will be nine in commission. The company has had no trouble in getting men, and this morning it is said, fully twenty-five men were turned away because they were not needed.

The strikers are keeping up their attempts to persuade the new men to leave their jobs, and they got several away yesterday afternoon. Their places were quickly filled, and none was lost last evening or today. The company has a reserve of about a dozen men that can be called upon if any of the new men leave.

The striking firemen have been visiting the docks pretty regularly, and when the tugs are lying at the dock they board them to talk with the non-union firemen. A policeman has been at the dock off and on until today, when a man was put on there regularly, some of the firemen having complained that threats had been made against them.

The tug Record went into commission this morning, and the Helm and Wisconsin will join the fleet tonight. T

THE WEEK IN THE REALTY MARKET

Large Sale on West Superior Street and Another On East Superior Street---Interesting Lease of Superior Street Property.

Large trades, rather than many small ones, have characterized the week in real estate. Chief of all, perhaps, was Stryker, Manley & Buck's sale of 313 West Superior street, from George W. Sherwood to Robert F. Fitzgerald for $20,000. The price it is considered makes the purchase a fine speculation. Considered on the basis of market values for the same class of property as an investment, the trade is considered by many people to be a remarkably good one for the purchaser. Superior street property in that locality is quite largely held as high as $1000 a front foot, while this is only $800.

Two more sizeable deals, which were made by the agency of W. M. Prindle & Co., caused much interest. One was made the more important because it was bought for the immediate erection of a Masonic cathedral by the Scottish Rite order of Duluth. This project lends additional significance to Second street property for public improvements. Second street has gained attention from the proximity of the new steel building and the Carnegie library. Now, with the Masonic building added to the church and school buildings already situated on the street, additional interest is taken in Second street property. The location involved is the southeast corner of Second street and Second avenue east, just in the rear of the Armory. The property has 140 feet frontage on the avenue and 100 feet on Second street. It sold for $10,000.

The opposite corner of Second street was sold by the same agency to W. W. Billson for $5500. This had 50 feet on the street and 140 feet on the avenue. It is considered that the price in each case was about the same, considering that a corner was involved in each case. The owner of the 100 feet was Harold Thorsen, of Elbow Lake, Minn. The 50 feet was owned by George P. Boutelle, of Waterville, Maine.

H. H. Hanford, of the Interstate Real Estate company, reports the sale of the building and 25-foot lot at 214 East Superior street, to W. W. Billson for $4750. The conveyor was Everett Wilson, of Chicago. The property is that just east of the city hall, which is occupied by John N. Ehle as a shoe store. The price is considered a very fair one, considering the recent appreciation in values. It is equal to $190 a front foot. The property at one time was listed at $4500, but this was some time ago.

One untoward factor in the market during the past week has been the very bad weather. People could not be induced to go out to look at property in most cases. In others, the property seemed less inviting than it would under sunnier conditions. The shrewd real estate man as a general thing did not attempt to do any demonstrating. Those that had old deals to round up took advantage of the first day to get after them and have been busy at it since.

• • •

One of the most notable leases that have been made in Duluth was closed last evening, when Frerker Bros., of the California Wine house, acquired the leasehold rights to the fifty feet of property on West Superior street, lying between the Spalding house and the Manhattan building. The lesser is Frank A. Schulte, of Detroit. The lease runs ninety-nine years, and the rental is to be based on five per cent of an appraisement every five years. The value for the first period is agreed at $50,000 or equivalent to a front foot value of $1000. The property is bought for immediate improvement in the form of a business building four stories high on Michigan street and three stories high on Superior street. Frerker Bros. will occupy the Michigan and Superior street floors, the former with their wholesale department and the latter with their retail department. Negotiations are now pending for the occupancy of the two upper floors. Among the prospective tenants is the Commercial club of Duluth.

• • •

The Lyceum theater, not the rest of the building, was leased this week for three years to Charles A. Marshall, managing owner of the Grand Opera house of West Superior, and one of the most popular managers in the business. There was competitive bidding, and it is understood that the lowest bid was $5000 a year and lights and repairs, which it is estimated will run from $1500 to $2000 a year. It is explained, however, that the award was not necessarily made on the basis of the highest bid made, but that the personality of the bidder and other claims outside of the amount of the proposal were considered.

• • •

Quite a number of sizeable deals are well under way, and the greater part of the trade is working on negotiations that are in a pretty promising condition. As a result, most agencies are keeping quiet this week.

• • •

The outlook for building is greatly improved. The gain has not reached the stage where architects are getting ready to call for bids, but the market for loans on building improvements, chiefly homes, has improved so greatly that it is believed the early part of the summer will find building operations in the residence districts largely augmented. Deals closed this week indicate the early award of contracts for at least two buildings to cost $50,000 or more each.

• • •

C. P. Craig: We have closed seven deals the past week, and the market seems to be growing better all the time. It is becoming easier to make sales. Buyers are showing a greater tendency to accept the situation as it is; that is, they are growing accustomed to the stiffer prices at which property is held. They are realizing, I think, that no better opportunities may be found for investment locally, while the opening may prove much less promising. One thing we note that is quite a novelty, and that is a growing activity in property on Duluth Heights. We have sold seven cottages and lots on the Heights in the past ten days, five of them this week. Among other transactions are 1280 acres in 51-13; a lot in Harrison division; a lot on West Superior street between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth avenues west, and two lots in Portland division, on the upper side of Third street, east of Tenth avenue east.

• • •

Stryker, Manley & Buck: We have found the market a very active one, both in point of trades actually consummated and in new business. Business has been pretty well distributed also among business and residence property. Among trades closed have been:

Frame house and lot on Fourth street near Sixth avenue west, to a Duluth party, $3000.

Frame house and lot on Fourth street near Eighth avenue west, to a Duluth man, $2100.

Frame house at Lester Park, near Fifty-fourth avenue on Grand avenue, $1550.

Three residence sites in the East End, one on Second street near Fourteenth avenue east, $1500; one on First street near Twenty-first avenue east, $1500.

Two lots on Branch street near Twenty-sixth avenue east, $2100.

N. J. Upham company: We are devoting more attention to the real estate market at present, and find conditions have improved materially. Trade has been exceptionally good with us, though most deals are not in a position to be printed. We have sold the Noble property at 119 Seventeenth avenue west to Mr. Fischer for $4500. We had also a fractional deal in some West First street property.

• • •

W. M. Prindle & Co.: We have done about $40,000 worth of business this week, but only the Second street trades are in such position that we care to report them. We have dropped new business altogether in order to get old trades rounded up during the bad weather.

• • •

Whitney Wall: Business has been very good considering the bad weather, which has prevented the closing up of deals that were well along toward completion. One sale I had was of a house on First street near Eighteenth avenue west, for which the consideration was $2750. One thing that strikes me is the chance for quite a little boom in the West End. Property is cheap there; it is in good demand there for homes for the railroad people that must live within "call limits," and an exceptionally good class of people reside there, while the topography is excellent for cheap building.

• • •

J. D. Howard: It has been a dull week with me. New business is in progresss, but not at the culminative stage as yet.

• • •

George H. Crosby & Co.: We have been working on routine matters. As far as actual news is concerned, it has been the dullest week with us since the first of the year.

• • •

S. F. Wadhams: The market looks good. Conditions are most promising. There is some difficulty in getting parties together in their conflicting views, but the outlook seems very gratifying.

• • •

J. A. Stephenson: I have been too busy for several weeks with my rental business to attend to the real estate branch. It is naturally quiet with me as a result.

• • •

BACHELOR

Has Been Sentenced to Wed During Coming Year.

Waukegan, Ill., April 26.—Every mail that comes to Waukegan now is laden with letters addressed in feminine chirography to Louis J. Yeoman, president of the Waukegan Bachelors' club. The news has gone around the country far and near that Mr. Yeoman has been chosen—or sentenced, some say—to be married during the coming year, and for fear that Waukegan is not large enough to furnish him a field for the choice of a bride the eligible fair ones of nearly every state and territory are calling the attention of Mr. Yeoman to the fact that, like Barkis, they "are willing." If the flood of missives keeps on coming in anything like the volume with which they have started Uncle Sam will have to give the letter carrier on the Yeoman route an assistant.

Some of Mrs. Yeoman's fair correspondents content themselves with hinting that there is no necessity on his part of looking far for a life partner, while others do not confine themselves to hints, but bluntly confess their desire to find a man who will wed them and are certain they could meet the fancy of an even more fastidious man than Mr. Yeoman.

They want to write to him, they want to meet him, they are willing to come to Waukegan and encounter their fate or they would be glad to have Mr. Yeoman come out their way and drop in for a sociable chat over the matter. Some have money at all others want it. Some have beauty and others have comely traces of it. Some have youth and nothing else to recommend them, while others assure Mr. Yeoman that they have passed the giddy stage of life and are willing to be a second mother to him.

Under such an embarrassment of offers Mr. Yeoman is growing worried, and every woman that comes into his store nowadways is a cause of mental anguish to him until he finds out her business.

One young woman living near St. Louis has written a very interesting letter, and after mentioning the peculiar nature of the bachelors' club's proceeding, hints that she would like to correspond with Mr. Yeoman further. Whether or not these letters will result in a match remains to be seen.

It may be mentioned that Mr. Yeoman is a bright, good-looking man of 30, a son of a leading family, a good musician, and the owner of a fast automobile. He is in the jewelry business with his father and keeps engagement and wedding rings constantly on hand. He was formerly in the music business in Kenosha, Wis., for a time and is thus quite widely known in both Illinois and Wisconsin.

The Bachelors' club, at its annual meeting Wednesday evening, elected Mr. Yeoman president, F. A. Durst, vice-president, and T. H. Durst secretary and treasurer. One member is also chosen, as is their custom, to get married during the ensuing year.

BLACK LAW

Forbade Their Marriage, But Heirs Want Property.

New Albany, Ind., April 26.—Heirs of Mrs. John Miller, a negress, who married a white man, claim the woman's property on the ground that the marriage was illegal.

Shortly after the marriage the couple were arrested for violation of the law then in force known as the "black law," forbidding intermarriage of races. They were sentenced to jail, but after serving their sentence resumed their relations and were never again molested. For more than twenty years they lived together and accumulated property, which they held jointly. The woman died two weeks ago.

TO FORCE THEM UP

Railroads Striving to Advance Passenger Rate to New York.

South Shore Road the Stumbling Block In Their Way.

Thus Far That Line Declines to Join the Others.

If the other roads than the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic affording passenger rates from Duluth to New York can have their way, it will cost Duluth people just $4.50 more to make that trip very shortly than it does now. The stumbling block to an advance in rates is General Passenger Agent George W. Hibbard of the South Shore.

A meeting of general passenger department men was held in Chicago yesterday, according to reports current here today, and considerable progress was made toward the proposed advance in rates. The chief announcement of progress that was made was to the effect that the Soo line was willing to join in the movement. But the other ambitious lines have not been able as yet to line up the Duluth road.

For the last six or eight years the passenger rate from Duluth or the Twin Cities to New York has been $3 to $5 lower than it was formerly maintained at. The greatest factor in this reduction was the C. P. R. lines on this side of the border, and the South Shore was the pioneer in the movement. It is now proposed to restore all rates to the basis formerly existing.

The former tariff over differential lines, which includes the South Shore and Soo, was $29.50 for first-class fares and $27.50 for second-class fares. The current tariff is $25 first-class and $23 second-class. The summer rate has usually been from $1 to $2 cheaper than the winter rate, which latter still applies. Besides the winter and summer fluctuation, rates have fluctuated through manipulation $1 or $2 from time to time.

Over the standard lines, which routes include via the Michigan Central, Lake Shore and roads of that class, the tariff from Duluth and the Twin Cities now is $27 first-class and $24 second-class. The proposition at present under consideration would advance these standard lines' tariffs to $31.50 first-class and $28.50 second-class.

It is reported in Duluth that the Western and central lines hope to bring the South Shore into line. They claim that the cost of railway operation is much greater than it was during the times when the rates were cheapened, that the country is in a higher state of development and that less inducement is needed to cause considerable travel.

On the other hand, it is rumored here that in spite of the belief that the Soo has fallen in line with the advance, Mr. Hibbard will stand pat for the present basis of charges. Mr. Hibbard is one of the nicest men in the world, but he has a way of standing his ground and putting up a pretty fight. It is even intimated that the other lines are trying to work through the general passenger department of the Canadian Pacific railroad, with which system the South Shore, like the Soo, enjoys very close traffic relations. The prophecy is made, however, that Mr. Hibbard will not yield willingly.

Mr. Hibbard holds the view that Duluth's position is different from that of the Twin Cities in point of passenger traffic to the East. He believes that the interests of his line in this connection demand that the present basis shall be maintained. Duluth's position as a water route port has a great deal to do, he insists, with determining these interests. Furthermore, he is reputed to have the belief that his trains are carrying the heaviest eastbound travel out of Duluth, and the suspicion that the other lines have some selfish purpose in view in the proposed advance.

IN MICHIGAN.

Log Driving Entirely Suspended Owing to Lack of Water.

Gladstone—Owing to the scarcity of water in the Flatrock, Rapid and Whitefish rivers, driving on these streams has been suspended. Only a few logs are out and unless sufficient rain comes many mills dependent on these rivers for their supplies will remain idle this summer. Companies operating in this district have withdrawn their men from the rivers.

Laurium—Albert Cornish, the young son of George Cornish, of this place, while riding his wheel on Oak street, was run down by a runaway team owned by R. T. Harvey, the Laurium bottler, and severely injured. The accident happened near the Mineral Ridge passenger depot. The lad was picked up unconscious and carried to the Arlington hotel, where physicians were called. The boy's head and face were badly bruised and cut and he suffered the loss of several teeth. He was later removed to his home. The doctors say the lad will recover in due time.

Houghton—Game Warden Buchanan has been successful in continuing his search for nets in Portage lake with which illegal fishing has been done. He discovered and seized five large nets in the cut between Portage and Torch lakes, near Dollar bay. The nets were brought to Houghton, where the owners may secure them at the risk of being arrested. From what can be learned it is said that illegal fishing has been going on in parts of Portage lake for some time.

Iron Mountain—John Kane, 75 years old, suddenly fell dead after drinking a glass of beer in a saloon Thursday afternoon.

Negaunee—The coroner's jury in the case of the ten men who met their death as the result of the cave-in at the Negaunee mine, returned its verdict on Tuesday. It was to the effect that death was purely accidental. All the witnesses testified that they considered the ground above where they worked perfectly safe at the time it fell away. All said they labored there without fear for some time before the cave-in occurred.
